By The Canadian Press

The Director of Naval Personnel of the Royal Canadian Navy, Capt. Harold Taylor Wood Grant, submits to interviews as a duty. He has the navy's distaste for getting its name in the paper, but not for the same reason.

Explaining his attitude on the first point (navy's distaste) he says with good Haligonian roundness (the R's are slightly anglicized), "I don't think the general public realize how valuable information on the movement of ships is to the enemy."

"I saw an article the other day describing convoys and it actually gave the distance between ships moving in convoy," he added. "That would be interesting to a submarine commander firing his torpedoes."

On the second matter Capt. Grant has a kind of combination British-Canadian aversion to getting into the public prints.

The office where he works, arranging to take on more men, train them, figuring how many, when, where, and who goes where to do what, is a typical R.C.N. office operating with an informal efficiency not to be found in other services.

When Capt. Grants telephone rings, somebody answers on the other side of a thin partition and then if it is the D.N.P. himself who is wanted the person on the other side gives a couple of lusty bangs on the shuddering partition. If the D.N.P. doesn't answer immediately the other side lets go with two or three more terrific wallops.

"D.N.P.," answers Capt. Grant. "Why, no sir," he says. "I think we should stamp on that. Either we should do it ourselves or let them do the whole thing."

Turning back to his interviewer, the D.N.P. says "I think the best way to do your piece would be simply to put down what ships I've served in and let it go at that."

Served in North

This Capt. Grant is a slim, dark, wiry man. He was born in Halifax in March, 1899, a son of Hon. MacCallum Grant, former lieutenant-governor of Nova Scotia.

When the last war started he entered the Royal Canadian Naval College at Halifax. At 16 he was serving in the Leviathan, flag ship of the famous "Hookie" Browning on the North American and West Indies station. Six months he was there and then went to the North Sea where he served on various cruisers. He "saw action" convoying ships to Norway.

"Saw action," he explained, merely meant being fired on with torpedoes. There was some further action in destroyers and active fighting in the Baltic, later on against the Bolsheviki.

It was very cold on that station, he said. His ship was based at Borjka in what then was Finland. But the cold was really the thing. They got out just before the Gulf of Finland froze up.

In 1920 Capt. Grant was a sub-lieutenant on the Canadian cruiser Aurora. There was a kind of a rebirth of the Canadian navy at that time.

"Capt. Grant thinks they tried to go too fast. "It was no use putting the cart before the horse," he said. "I don't mind saying, and it's a pretty general opinion, that you can't commission a sea-going ship unless you have the personnel and the dockyards and the drydocks to dock her in.

"There's no sense in starting to build a colossal navy if you haven't got the shore facilities. You can put all sorts of ruddy thing afloat but you must have trained personnel and the necessary training establishments."

With Royal Navy

After a year in the Aurora, Capt. Grant spent two years in H. M. S. Ramillies, a battleship of the Royal Navy. He later specialized in navigation in H.M.S. Dryad at Portsmouth.

He was promoted lieutenant in 1922 and later spent a couple of years on the west coast in destroyers. In 1927 he returned to battleships, the Queen Elizabeth and the Warspite, and was assistant master of the fleet under Admiral Sir Roger Keyes. Master of the fleet, he is careful to explain, merely means that you are a navigating officer.

In 1928 he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander and the next year served as staff officer at Halifax. In 1931 he was navigating officer in the Saugueney and after that spent a couple of years ashore at Halifax as first lieutenant at the barracks.

Then he moved to Ottawa as assistant director of naval intelligence and plans. He was promoted commander in 1935 and was named director of naval reserves.

After spending the next year at the naval staff college at Greenwich, England, he was present at the final big naval review before the war. This was the time that the British Broadcasting Corporation's announcer from the foretop of the flagship Nelson, made the famous remark concerning "the whole fleet's lit up."

In 1938 Capt. Grant commanded the Skeena. Last year his escort met the Empress of Australia carrying Their Majesties, off Newfoundland, and escorted them to Quebec. In June the captain had the honor of embarking the King and Queen aboard his own ship and carrying them from Tormentine to Charlottetown and thence back to Pictou, N. S.

Having arrived at this point in the interview, Capt. Grant was interrupted by the entrance of Rear Admiral Percy Nelles.

Rear Admiral: "Not at all. I'll just write something here and Capt. Grant will look at it and say yes or no."

(Silence while the admiral scribbled and passed the pad to the captain).

Captain: "No, sir." Exit admiral.

Capt. Grant thinks it is too bad the naval college at Halifax was closed after the First Great War. He says "it is not easy to build a college with a tradition like the Royal Military College for example, which is known both for learning and sports. The youngsters always look to their seniors. If you have to established a new college starting from zero it's uphill work.

"Of course since we must always co-operate with the British navy it's essential that our men should have some time in the Royal Navy. Our men have to know the tactics of the battleship and the submarine —every branch of the service.

"A man commanding a destroyer has to know what the other men in the fleet are thinking."

Capt. Grant used to play rugger. He says that all Canadian navy men play football, hockey, tennis, golf, squash and everything except cricket. He is also fond of shooting and fishing. He is married and has three children, one separate and a pair of twins.

Capt. Grant says, "we are a continental people like the people in the United States and we don't realize the importance of the merchant marine. We don't understand the really tremendous part they are playing in the war."

That is a navy tribute!

Mussolini's Dream! A New Roman Empire

By BASIL MATTHEWS

The name of Graziani, Mussolini's Governor General of the Italian North African colony of Libya, brings curses to the lips of every Arab, whether he is in his tent in the Syrian desert or sipping coffee in the bazaars of Tunis or Algiers.

The Arabs eveywhere feel undying hate for the man who, to crush their resistance to his tyranny in Libya, took sheikhs of noble birth into the air and threw them from aeroplanes to crash to death among their tribal followers, and who beat others to death.

He, too, it was who — forcibly transporting Libyan Arab tribes by hundred thousand to desert areas, destroyed their flocks and herds—reducing their camels from 75,000 to 2,600 their sheep from 800,000 to 98,000 and their horses from 14,000 to 1,000.

Balbo was a very different type from Garziani, and would have done much more to give Italy a real Empire, based on sound methods of development. Mussolini sent him to Libya in order to put him into the background; for Balbo's exploits in the air had made him the adored hero of the Italian people and a potential rival to the Duce.

Balbo's Colony

Balbo didn't accept his governorship of Libya as exile. He set to work to improve flocks and herds, and he also carried through a great mess-colonization scheme. In 1938 he transported twenty thousand Italian peasants on sixteen steamships from Italy to Libya and settled them all within twenty-four hours in eighteen hundred farm houses—all exactly identical with one another, on farms provided not only in seed and animal stock, but also in water for irrigation from Artesian wells sunk fifteen hundred feet beneath the Libyan sand.

Balbo thus began to create, behind the narrow fringe of fertility on the thousand mile coast line of Libya, a new Italy in Africa. His death ended his work, and Graziani began the other sort of Empire-building—the sort that Mussolini prefers—a brutal tyranny.

The Population Problem

But Mussolini still values the mass-colonization idea. His first motive for this is to find space for Italy's swiftly growing population. Her increase is at the rate of 400,000 a year. Mussolini, by financial and other inducements, incites the Italian people to have more babies, and at the same time, utters curses because there is inadequate room for them on Italian soil.

The Libyan colonization is a step towards the answer, but it is only a small step.

Aiming at Autarky

The second driving force behind Mussolini's Imperialism is the Fascist passion for a self-sufficient Italy, or to use the word invented by the Dictators an "autarky". The menace of economic sanctions, held over the head of Italy during the Abyssinian crisis, wounded Fascist pride. Italy now plans that Libya shall be a farm of the Roman Empire which, with Abysainia, would theoretically go some way towards making her independent of imports.

The third motive for colonizing Libya is that of strategic security.

Obviously if some hundred thousand and sturdy and prolific peasants, owning their own farms in Libya and, therefore, keen on defending that territory, are living on the soil of Africa immediately opposite to Sicily and the toe of Italy, Italy's strategic position in the Mediterranean is much stronger.

The Mantle of Caesar

The fourth driving force in the Italian adventure of colonization in North Africa is tied up with all the others.

It is the motive that appeals so much to the gandiose imagination of Mussolini, who sleeps every night with the famous book "The Mantle of Caesar" by his bedside; it is the motive of prestige, the passionate desire to make the Mediterranean the lake of a new Roman Empire whose frontiers might even go down to the marches of India.

How Rome Would Rule

What the rule of Italy over other races will always be under Fascist rule is officially stated by Ennio Giurio in the Rivista delle Colonie (November 1931) in an official exposition of "Italian Colonial Expansion." He says:

"Our attitude towards the natives will be determined exclusively by what we expect of them. Humanitarian prejudices are out of place. We shall preserve native institutions so long as they strengthen our productive power in accord with our colonial intentions. We shall rigorously reform native institutions when detrimental to our prestige or security.

"The purpose of native education is to create an obedient, respectful, disciplined population....Intellectuals are available in sufficient numbers in Italy.

"The native, in short, is to remain a subordinate, co-operating with the Italian colonist. He is to remain on the soil to prevent a coloured proletariat from arising." —Director Public Information.

Getting Mental Patients Away From Themselves

I visited an acquaintance who was a patient in a mental institution. He was granted a certain amount of liberty and I went out on the grounds with him and the patients began playing a game of softball.

I asked him why he wasn't playing ball with the others and he replied that as he was not required to play, he didn't bother with it.

I reminded him that he could certainly play ball better than most of the players in the game and also that he needed more exercise. I pointed out also that when he was playing baseball or any other game he was not only helping himself physically—heart, lungs, digestion—but that during the game he wouldn't be thinking inwardly of himself, but rather about playing the game. There would be that much time anyway when his mind would be on other things than this presence in a mental institution.

Dr. Abraham Myerson, Boston, in American Journal of Psychiatry states that every patient at the Boston State Hospital who is not bedridden is removed from the ward at least once a day, weather permitting, during all seasons. More baths of various kinds, more exercise is taken and games played and directed by the patients themselves. More food is given. There is some entertainment every day and the patient's general life has been altered in the direction of more sunshine, baths, feeding and entertainment.

Definite improvement has resulted. The number of deaths has become less, more have been able to return to their homes, and the necessity for restraint and quieting drugs has lessened.

Showers, douches, massage and rub-downs have a tonic effect and also give a start to the patient's energies. Such measures as throwing a bean-bag to women and a ball to men succeeds in having them co-operate by throwing back the bean-bag or ball. This simple start often causes them to engage actively in games.

To awaken pride in appearance, patients have been "dressed up" in nice clothes. Men have been shaved regularly and their nails cared for. Women's hair has been dressed.

I believe getting about more, playing more, mixing with others, would prevent many from having to enter a mental institution.

NAVAL HERO

The name of Captain Fogarty Fegen will take a prominent place among British naval heroes following his heroic action in sacrificing the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay to the might of a powerful German raider so that a convoy might slip away to safety. Captain Fegen directed the Jervis Bay in an attack on the raider and held the German ship at bay for two hours, enabling the majority of ships in the convoy to break formation and escape. With his arm almost severed and suffering from multiple wounds, Capt. Fegen directed the attack until his ship plunged to the bottom.

INSPECTS DAMAGE

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aircraft production, spent all day Friday inspecting raid-wrecked Coventry. The Press Association reported yesterday that the raiders 'failed lamentably' to do extensive damage to military objectives in the attack in which more than 1,000 persons were killed and injured.

CANCER REMEDY IS BENEFICIAL REPORT STATES

Ensol, Discovered by Dr. Hendry C. Connell, Kingston, Recommended as a Combatant of Disease

CASES REVIEWED

Toronto, Nov. 16.—(CP)—Ensol, the biological product discovered by 45-year-old Dr. Hendry C. Connell of Queen's University, Kingston, as an "anti-body" combatant of cancer, stood today with the recommendation of the Ontario Commission for the investigation of cancer remedies as one to be used "in conjunction with other therapeutic procedures".

The commission, appointed in 1938, made its third interim report to Ontario Health Minister H. J. Kirby yesterday, and said in part: "Since it is harmless and in view of the beneficial results obtained, we see no contra-indication to its utilization and would recommend its use in conjunction with other therapeutic procedures".

Commission Named

The commission, headed by Mr. Justice J. C. Gillanders, includes Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's, Dr. T. H. Callahan and Dr. George S. Young of Toronto, Dr. R. E. Valin of Ottawa, Dr. W. J. Deadman of Hamilton and E. A. Collins of Copper Cliff.

The report said that recent inquiries had been confined to a review of cases treated in Dr. Connell's Kingston clinic and they recommended that ensol used in a selected group of cancer patients "such as those in provincial cancer clinics would greatly aid in assessing the significance of the clinical results reported".

Not Final Statement

The Commissioners said they did not wish to offer ensol to the exclusion of "standard recognized procedures. Final estimation of its value must await a satisfactory demonstration of positive results in the control of transplantable and spontaneous tumors in animals, the completion of laboratory studies and further clinical tests".

The report said that in fairness to Dr. Connell's Foundation clinic—established by him and his father Dr. J. C. Connell in 1935—"we would like to dissipate any illusions regarding ensol as a cure for cancer. The idea that any one remedy will ever be a cure for this condition seems very remote and the Hendry Connell Foundation has reserved its claims.

"While we feel that their efforts are directed in the proper channels, their only claim at present is that ensol is harmless and in the majority of cases has potentialities of aiding and in some cases offering permanent relief to the cancer patients".

Ensol's discovery was announced by Dr. Connell in 1935 and at that time he explained it was not a cure but a biological product in the nature of an anti-cellular serum to be used as other anti-toxic serums to combat malignant or cancerous cellular growths.

Disaster at Coventry Clear Warning to America Says Times

New York, Nov. 16.—(CP)—The New York Times declared today that the "disaster at Coventry is a clear warning to America to rush that material aid which we are pledged to give and which our people overwhelmingly desire to give".

In an editorial on Thursday night's intensive bombing of Coventry, where casualties exceeded 1,000, The Times said "if the destruction of Coventry awakens our people to a new sense of Britain's danger", the victims of this horror will not have died in vain".

Marmora

Marmora — Mr. and Mrs. James Dostanko accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. P. Dikum and P. Paceluiko of Deloro spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. Yosepenko of Point Anne.

Rev. W. J. Kinlin of Flinton was a visitor at Sacred Heart Church Bazaar on Wednesday evening.

Constable J. Hatch of Belleville was a visitor to Marmora on Wednesday.

Messrs. Charles and Hugh O'Connor of Copper Cliff and Crawford O'Connor of Locknesh, Northern Ontario, were called home this week owing to the serious illness of their mother, Mrs. Richard O'Connor.

Miss Madeline Bertrand Reg. N., left on Friday for Smiths Falls to accept a position in the General Hospital there.

The second night of the Sacred Heart Church Bazaar was also largely attended. A chicken supper was served by the ladies and the bingo and different games of chance were well patronized. Several tables of euchre were played, the prizes going to Miss Marguerite Doyle and Mr. James E. Gehan. The third and last night also brought large crowds to enjoy the supper at six o'clock. Later, dancing was enjoyed to music furnished by Jack Denmark and his Aces. Near midnight the drawing of the lucky tickets for the prizes was held with the following result:—

First prize, $25.00, Harold Doyle, Marmora; Second prize, $10.00, Norman Bentley, Havelock; Third prize $5.00, Wilfred Terrion, Deloro; 4th prize, $5.00, W. Mills, Havelock; 5th prize, $5.00, Ford Woodhouse, Marmora; Doll, K. Kerr, Marmora; Box of candy, Madeline Bertrand, Marmora; Ham, Mrs. J. McCrodan, Deloro; Bean guessing contest, Mrs. Harold Nayler, Marmora.

After a midnight lunch served by the ladies dancing was resumed until 2 a. m. when the bazaar was brought to a close. Out-of-town visitors on Thursday evening included Rev. G. T. Martin, Deseronto, Rev. F. D. Hyland, Madoc, and Rev. R. Rowell, Stirling.

WAR WILL TAKE ALL OF CANADA'S STAYING POWER

Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of Defence, Gives Detailed Review of War

GOES TO ENGLAND

By CARL REINKE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Nov. 16 —(CP)— The task facing Canada—helping to destroy the menace to freedom and life itself hanging over the world—calls for "all the energy, all the loyalty and equally all the staying power that Canadians can command," Defence Minister Ralston holds.

"It is of no use for us to try to delude ourselves that the work in hand is something which will be easily or speedily accomplished," he told the House of Commons yesterday.

"It will be a task of years. May we have the courage, the perseverance and the unshakeable resolution to see it through."

The Defence Minister climaxed a detailed review of the progress of Canada's war program with the reassurance the government was taking the most vigorous and effective steps to make Canada self-sufficient in munitions, to the maximum possible, in addition to exporting large amounts of armaments to the United Kingdom.

Leaves for Britain

Col. Ralston, who shortly will leave on a trip to Britain, emphasized that Canada's plans and preparations were of necessity closely integrated with those of the United Kingdom and the other Dominions. There had to be not only unity of purpose but unity of planning and execution.

He emphasized also that first consideration regarding war materials had to be given to the front line—and that front line was in England.

Shall Not Hesitate To Go Short.

"We have gone short and we shall not hesitate to go short so long as the material we produce is needed overseas," Col. Ralston said.

The minister's heply included the announcement that here-after all officers commissioned in the Canadian army will start at the bottom and work up. After a period in the ranks, men selected by their officers commanding will be made officer cadets and be given a special officers' training course.

This change, he said, will make for more uniformity and improve the standard of officer qualification. "We face a long war and must use manpower resources to the best advantage," he said.

May Lengthen Training.

Col. Ralston announced that the war committee of the cabinet now was considering lengthening the compulsory militia training period from thirty days to four months.

Such a change would at once provide "a large number of men whose individual training was complete" and would reduce the aggregate number of men to be called from civil occupations during the year. This would help to prevent undue disturbance in industry. However there would be at least two more 30-day camps.

No one ever pretended that trained soldiers could be turned out in 30 days, the minister said.

Canadians Accept Principle

"The real success of the undertaking lay in the fact that Canadians accepted this new principle of compulsory training as a necessary part of our activity," he contended.

The minister told the Commons Canada now had an army, active and reserve, of 300,000 men. Canada had two full divisions, corps troops and reinforcements almost equal to another division in England.

He took sharp exception to Conservative House Leader Hanson's suggestion that Canadian troops had not been a factor in the defence of Britain. Canadians had been called on when troops were needed in Norway; they had also been ready to embark for France. There was nothing "pitiful" about troops in which the war office had such confidence.

He also took exception to Mr. Hanson's charge that Canadian motorized units had been sent to Britain with parts missing, and that it had cost $80,000 and considerable delay to put them in shape.

Col. Ralston said unsatisfactory brake equipment had involved $2,840 for materials and an estimated maximum of $1,020 for labor. However, he thought the work probably was done by the Ordnance Corps overseas, at no cost. Some additional tools also had been required for use in shops in England. He would find out, he said, whether these tools would make up the $80,000 to which Mr. Hanson had referred, but at any rate the shortage was "not because there was anything lacking in the tools which were sent over.

Minister Replies to Mr. White

The Defence Minister replied to charges by Capt. G. S. White (Con. Hastings-Peterborough) that a Peterborough reserve or non-permanent active militia unit had lacked certain equipment.

From the list of equipment which the unit did actually possess, the minister suggested they were not badly off. Ordnance issued available supplies where they were needed most. This N.P.A.M. unit had been issued boots and socks, although never before had militia units been given such supplies.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

SHERIDAN—McCAMON — At St. George's Chapel, Trenton, November 12, Celestine Doris, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert McCamon, Thomasburg, to Leading Aircraftman Thomas M. J. Sheridan, R.C.A.F., Trenton, son of Mrs. Sheridan and the late Edward Sheridan of Quebec City. Flight Lieut. Province, chaplain of the Airport officiated.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCEMENT

Mrs. M. C. Sine, Harold, announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Viola to Clayton Howard Stapley, son of Mrs. Stapley and the late Harry Stapley, Stirling. The marriage to take place the last of November.

Mrs. G. H. Stobie is spending the week-end in Toronto.

Miss Marjorie Dunford has returned to Toronto after visiting in the city the guest of Mrs. Percy Ray.

Mr. and Mrs. Orley Parks, Rose and Glenn, left on Wednesday evening, for McGee, Saskatchewan, to visit the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Parks for a couple of months. Before leaving they were presented with a lovely wool blanket by their neighbouring friends as a token of friendship.

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Forrester opened their home last evening to the Canadian Concert Association Committee, the members of which entertained in honour of Mr. Thomas L. Thomas, baritone and Mr. Marino Nardelli, pianist, following their concert in the Collegiate Auditorium.

Mr. and Mrs. William Doxtator, Shannonville, are observing their fifty-first wedding anniversary very quietly today at their home. They were married at Milltown, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kellar by Rev. Mr. Lewis. Mrs. Cecil McCarthy is a daughter. Mr. Doxtator is 74 and his wife 69 years of age.

The staff of the Mead Johnson Company held its annual At Home last night in the Trianon Ballroom. Bingo, euchre and dancing were the attractions for everyone. Euchre prizes were won by Mrs. P. Reid, Mrs. H. Thurgood, Mrs. H. Canning, Mrs. P. Bell, Mr. B. Trice, Mr. H. Canning, Mr. M. Jarvis, and Mr. H. Taylor. Music was provided by Bud Haines and his Commodores Orchestra. Four spot dance prizes were won by Miss Bernice Saunders and Mr. Allan Argue, Miss Donalda Long and Mr. Bill McBride, Miss Lois Sharpe and Mr. Stewart McBride, Miss Verla Young and Sgt.-Pilot Tim Edwards. Luncheon favors added to the enjoyment of the evening. The committee in charge of the dance was Misses Ann Schrieder, Vina Sarley, Gladys Scriven, Ethel Crewson and Messrs. Walt Cross, Lloyd Thompson, Clare Langabeer and Bob Kidd.

HOLLOWAY STREET MISSION CIRCLE

The regular monthly meeting of the Mission Circle was held at the home of Mrs. Howard, Moira St. A delicious supper was served by Group One.

The meeting opened with the President, Mrs. Howarc. in the chair. Hymn 63 was sung.

The Devotional period which was taken by Jean Mathews opened with quiet music rendered by Mrs. Hubbs at the piano. The Leader read the "Call to Worhip" and all responded. Hymn "In Christ There is No East Nor West", was sung followed by the Scripture reading by Ruth Brough. Mrs. Miles led in prayer and Marion Daniels gave a very interesting story.

Social Litany was taken by Jean Mathews. Miss Hicks read a poem and Jean Mathews said the Benediction.

Members were favoured with music by the ladies' quartet. The business part of the meeting was conducted by the President. Mrs. Anderson read a report from the annual sectional rally held at Foxboro. The meeting closed with thte Mizpah Benediction.

POSSIBLE SHORTAGE

Washington, Nov. 16 (CP)—A possible shortage of turkeys for the United States' Thanksgiving No. 21 developed today. The Department of Agriculture reported that this week's storm in the western areas killed possibly 15 per cent. of the turkeys there, four per cent. of the national crop.

WEDDINGS

McMILLAN—HACKMAN

The marriage of Miss Vivian Muriel Hackman of Belleville, daughter of Rev. Canon and Mrs. E. A. C. Hackman of Swift Current, Sask., to Kenneth McIntosh McMillan, R.C.A.F., of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald A. McMillan of Avenue Road, Toronto, took place Saturday evening at seven o'clock in All Saints' Anglican church, Ottawa. Rev. R. G. Flander officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. R. J. McMillan and wore a soldier blue crepe dress with wine accessories. Her corsage was of Token roses.

Miss Dorothy Hackman attended her sister, and was wearing a teal blue dress with a matching hat and a corsage of Joanna Hill roses.

The best man was Mr. John Conlin, Canadian Dental Corps.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McMillan, Third avenue. Lt.-Col. G. L. Cameron, C.D.C., proposed the toast to the bride. Later the bride and groom left on a short motor trip, the bride donning a coat of soldier blue trimmed with mink. They will reside in Belleville.

Out of town guests were Corporal and Mrs. H. Crichton of Belleville; Miss Frances Graham of Ste Anne de Bellevue; Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McMillan and Miss Eleanor McMillan of Toronto.

Benefit the Parent, Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Our children profit when we parents grow more skillful in their guidance. You, my Fellow Parents, who read this column regularly, believe you can improve your parenthood as a result of reading. Some of you are so busy you hardly have time to read more. Most of you, however, could find time to read more on child development, child guidance and family relationships.

Be Critical as You Read

I know, of course, as you know that an occasional person grows worried and confused from reading so many books which deal with her particular problems. Such a person should be prevailed upon to quit reading all such books. But with this rare exception, parents, or anybody else, can profit from selective reading.

As you listen to a lecture, or read an article or book on child rearing, be critical. Pick out only what squares with your reason and experience. When one lecturer or another disagrees, calmly choose from one or the other, or from neither. Reserve your own judgment. You will be safe in keeping your eyes on those parents you know who have happy, likable children. Try to find out how these parents have succeeded. Then check what you find with what you read. With this attitude you should gain a great deal from reading most of the books on the selected lists I have made available.

Library Books

Though some of you might desire to buy a few books, most of you will choose, to borrow books from the public library. (The librarian will suggest some to you.)

Some of you, don't have access to a public library. In this event your church or club might be able to develop a library for parents. Better still, you might by working through some local organization, create public sentiment for the establishment of a public library in the community to provide useful books for all the people and their children.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Why will some fathers grow crabbed and rude and childish toward the daughter when she begins having dates?

A. They are jealous of any young man who might be winning her attention and affection, foolishly assuming that such should be chiefly theirs.

BODY FOUND IN FIELD

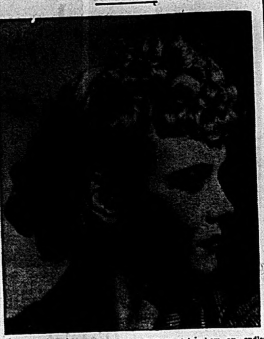
Alexandria, Ont., Nov. 16.—(CP)—Searchers Friday found the body of Kate Ann MacGillivrary in a field about a mile from her farm home near here. Miss MacGillivrary was 57, and was last seen when she left a neighbor's house for her own home ten days ago.

Dr. D. J. Dolan, Chief Coroner for Glengarry, decided death was due to exposure and that an inquest was not necessary.

MUST CEASE CUSTOM

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—By order of the court, Irving Klehn, 32, a prize-fighter, must cease introducing his wife as his sister. The wife, Harriet, 25, complained to Judge Rudolph Desort that she was tired of being represented as a sister. Klehn explained the sister angle by saying that he goes to social functions where it is a handicap to be known as a married man.

Patience With a New Hair-do



By HELEN FOLLETT

If you are breaking in a new hair-do, be patient with your tresslocks, they do not always take kindly to a different arrangement. Change your parting and your scalp will hurt, shafts protesting against any disturbance in their old way of living.

Women who have gone in for the high coiffure have tearful tales to tell. Silky strangs that fluttered in the breezelets put up protests. No likee the uplift. The only way to get the rear locks under control is to throw the head forward, groom them with a stiff brush, the bristles of which have been dipped in brilliantine. Often the hair rebels against hairpins and tuck combs and kicks them out.

Net Gain

By wearing a net the rebellious wool can be trained to stay in place. After a time the net can be discarded. Finger waves help, of course; two lines of undulations along the nape line will give an appearance of decorative neatness.

Coiffure styles show an endless variety of roll arrangements. The old time Recamier style is growing popular—masses of rolls and soft curls on the crown of the head. It is necessary to have the right kind of a cut, the hair being longer back and front than on the crown. Only girls with plenty of leisure can indulge in this mode; it requires time to groom a lot of little hirsute sausages.

A group of bristles on a woman's chin, seeming to appear over night, can just about drive a woman crazy. She visualizes herself as a bearded lady, believes that the hand of fate is raised against her.

The electric needle will banish the hairs. The treatment does not inspire a new growth as some women fancy, though if there is an inclination to develop facial fuzzers, more will keep on coming. If the growth is light a fifteen minute treatment now and then will keep the skin surface clear of these unsightly blemishes.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

While There's Youth There's Hope

A correspondent who, to my way of thinking, does not understand human nature has sent me a newspaper clipping about a girl who attempted to commit suicide but didn't succeed in anything but getting her name in the papers.

She took an overdose of sleeping powder and, as sometimes happens in such cases, the dose was too heavy to work. On returning to consciousness she said: "I'm afraid I'm going to get well." Physicians worked ten days to save the girl's life, all of which time she was in a coma.

Conclusively she has proved that her health is miraculous. Her young strong body is a thing at which to marvel. Why hasn't a girl still in her twenties, with such vitality, had youth's birthright to happiness? The motive she ascribed for the attempt on her life was that no one loved her. Her working surroundings were uncongenial, and she saw no other way out of a world that had no place for her.

I, for one, hope this girl in going to get well. Many persons who have been snatched from the brink have in some mysterious way been brought to the consciousness that life is worth living. Many have made surprising successes of life after the new leaf has been turned.

It's hard for oldsters to understand the despair that can completely overwhelm a girl of twenty. We know nothing is hopeless as long as there is youth with which to fight battles. At the moment, the world needs every pair of willing hands it can summon. If this girl has been disillusioned with life so early, here's her chance to do useful work.

If she would take training for some of the community work that must be done while the wives of men in training camps go back to their jobs, she would at least have the satisfaction of knowing that she's a useful cog in the scheme of things. Perhaps this is the turning of the tide for this modern Cinderella.

The lady who sent me the newspaper clipping said the girl was a snob because she went to a fashionable hotel "to die among nice people." My correspondent didn't, I think, fully realize the elements that go to make up youth. All her life, this girl had wanted to know "nice people." Being deprived of that, she took her pitiful little savings and went to New York to die as she would have liked to live.

Maybe there was a dash of snobbishness in it, but haven't we all some trace of that weakness? Our snobbishness may be nothing more than an overwhelming desire to be the president of our town's woman's club. Maybe we're convinced that we can sing, play, go on the radio, and give a better account of ourselves than the people who have contracts to do these things. And isn't that snobbishness?

APPLE TAPIOCA

⅓ cup fine tapioca (or sago) or ½ cup pearl tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
6 small apples
Brown sugar

Cook tapioca with salt and milk in top of double boiler until tapioca is transparent.

Core and pare apples. Stick three or four cloves in each. Arrange apples in buttered baking dish. Fill cavities with sugar and pour cooked tapioca over apples. Bake in a moderate oven until apples are tender. Serves 6.

If using pearl tapioca or sago, soak in some of the milk for several hours before cooking.

"PERFECT WIFE" TO SEEK DIVORCE

Hollywood, Nov. 16 (AP).—Myrna Loy, the movies' "perfect wife", and her producer-husband, Arthur Hornblow, are headed toward the divorce courts.

Ending months of rumors that all was not well between them—each rumor quickly denied—Miss Loy announced through her attorney last night:

"It is with great reluctance that we admit that we are ending our marriage."

The attorney, George Cohen, said divorce proceedings would start "at an early date".

Miss Loy won her sobriquet of "the perfect wife" in a series of domestic comedies beginning with "The Thin Man", in which she and William Powell found all manner of adventure together. She was unmarried at the time, but her romance with Hornblow culminated in marriage in Ensenada, Mex., June 27, 1936.

The actress is at Palm Springs recuperating from an attack of influenza.

CONFERENCES FAVORABLE

Vichy, France, Nov. 16 (AP). — Vice-Premier Laval was reported having "very favorable" conferences with German officials at Paris today concerning a German order expelling French-speaking residents from the Province of Lorraine.

The French government issued this statement:

"So far as the facts are concerned, the French government has presented the matter to the (German) armistice commission."

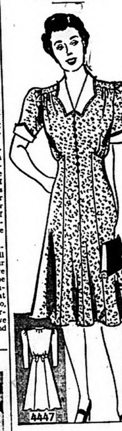
Railroad officials said yesterday that 6,000 Lorraine evacuees had been arriving in Lyon each day since Monday.

FINDS GOING TOUGH

Saranac Lake, N.Y., Nov. 16 (CP)—Clinton L. Brown on a leisurely airplane flight found the going tough. Bad weather forced him to land at Lafargeville and Gabriels. A compass failure set him down at Gananoque, Ont. His departure next day was delayed further by damage to his landing gear.

Matrons' Crisp At-Home Style

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4447

Memo to a busy housewife: "Here's a must-have dress for your winter home-work!" Pattern 4447 is an Anne Adams design with a crisp-rise-and-shine quality that will carry you smartly through a full day. There are slenderizing lines in the skirt, with its panelled back and its side sections that rise to points at the trim waistline. Gathers above the waist-seams and below the neat yokes hold the fullness of the bodice just where you need it most. Make the sleeves long for warmth. Or leave them short and trim them with well-shaped cuffs in self-fabric or contrast to match the attractive, star-point collar. Buttons down the centre-front seam add a nice feeling of height.

Pattern 4447 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 4 1-8 yards 35-inch fabric and 5-8 yard of contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c), in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S A STRONG DEMAND for elaborate afternoon clothes, according to fashion reports. At a fashion show the most applause greeted a handsome afternoon frock of black woolen worn with collarless jacket with deep peplum of black monkey fur. Big monkey fur muff.

SET OFF a simple black outfit with a colorful hat. One shop shows a delightful model in coral red velvet trimmed with strips of black-dyed ermine.

THERE'S NO RIVAL when it comes to all-white for evening. A new gown is of white slipper satin with bands of grape-like clusters of gold beads and mother-of-pearl paillettes outlining the deep off-the-shoulder neckline and forming a fake peplum on either side of the hips.

DOING A GOOD JOB for town or country or travel wear are those nicely done pastel wools. Pale coral red smooth woolen is used for a frock which has brown velvet ribbon laced through to give shoulder and hip-line yoke suggestions.

HEADED SOUTH is a handsome lynx set. The seventeen-inch-long cape is collarless, hugs the shoulder line and is cut away at the hemline in front. With it is an enormous globe-shaped muff also in this lovely long-haired light fur.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, November 17

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is a most propitious one for all pertaining to the private life, with much stirring and giving pleasure in social, domestic, as well as all artistic and cultural functions. There may be unusual excitement and stress in these, with trivial annoyances or setbacks.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a particularly enterprising and strenuous year, with new propositions giving excitement and gratification. As well the intimate affairs, social, domestic, emotional as well as artistic and intellectual are under splendid impetus for progress and happiness.

A child born on this day should have much force and initiative, with fine creative ability, probably in music, art or literature. It may be the subject of craft, duplicity and illicit invalvements unless it keep alert.

For Monday, November 18

Monday's astrological forecast is for a very expansive and promising day, with gratifying returns and recognition for industry, probity, sound ideas and practical propositions. Elders, superiors and those in financial power may be easily induced to lend cooperation. Important groups too may be looked to to strengthen and stabilize cherished plans. Work hard for enduring relations with those in prestige and standing. Keep firm and settled.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshhold of a year of opportunity and expansion, with openings and contacts for putting the fortunes and position on a stableand solid basis. Those in high places may be sought to lend support and to further important ambitions. Avoid petty changes and worries.

A child born on this day should have many solid and dependable traits for success, with sound ambitions and workable ideas for attracting support and favors from those able to help realize enduring objectives.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Take Pride in "Thank-You" Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How should "thanks" be given to persons after having received a graduation gift from them? Should it be written. Should it be written in a formal or informal style? It is a High School graduation. Would you send it by means of card or letter?

D.

It is most important that a High School graduate should write an especially fine letter of thanks for every gift received as a compliment to graduation. A card of thanks won't do. The detail of its form should be perfect, to show that the High School education has "taken root" properly.

It is natural, in such a letter of appreciation, that we thank for the kindness and thoughtfulness of the giver. Then we chat, informally, of course, about the beauty of the gift, its usefulness, or both. We should be proud of the letters of thanks that we write.

Don't Anticipate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a boy calls on a girl to go to a dance or some other entertainment, should she put on her coat and hat after he comes, or should she have them already on?

M.

It is best to wait until the boy comes before you put on your hat and coat. This takes away the unpleasant effect of being too hurried and substitutes the gracious effect of extending a bit, even though a few minutes, of hospitality of your home.

Include Husbands

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a friend who has been married one year this month. As I did not give her a shower before her marriage, I would like very much to have an anniversary for her now. But as my home is quite small, would it be proper to give a luncheon on her anniversary, entertaining a small group of her women friends?

N.

Since the idea of your party is the celebration of the wedding anniversary, it would seem more consistent to have a party that would include the husband of your friend and the husbands of the guests. Why don't you have an evening buffet party? Such a party accommodates a great many guests in a small space. You need little or no service.

Corsage Depends on Man

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sorority is planning a dinner dance which is to be given in a few weeks. There will be fourteen couples. A few of the girls are "keeping steady company" and their boy friends are sending them corsages. The rest of the girls would like to have corsages also, but do not want to go to the expense of buying them themselves. Is it understood that when a young man is invited to a dinner dance he shall buy a corsage for the girl who invited him? If not, is there any way we can suggest it to the escorts, without embarrassing either person?

B.

While it is indeed generous and courtly for the man to send a corsage to a woman to wear to the party, this courtliness cannot by any means be taken for granted. Either he thinks of making this gallant gesture or he doesn't — and that is all that can be done about it. To suggest that this is the thing he should do would certainly be embarrassing to both the girl and to the man. It can't be done, in any mannerly way. The joy the girl might have in wearing a corsage would certainly not be worth this awkwardness of manners!

SHINGLES

There are some sicknesses that seem to arouse smiles among laymen when they are mentioned. Shingles, for example. The name makes it funny to many. But only to persons who have never had it, for it is an extremely painful complaint.

The ailment commonly called shingles is a complication of neuralgia of the chest. Neuralgia isn't common in childhood, but it often affects them indirectly, for many varieties of it are more common in women than in men, and mothers, driven to distraction by the pain of facial neuralgia, for instance, have caused a home to be a very unhappy place for children. It is most apt to attack women in pregnancy or "change of life."

The complication called shingles isn't contagious, yet I have observed that when I have had a case of it to treat, there usually are three or four other cases in the community. The season and the weather are factors in producing it. However, I don't see as much of it as I used to. Possibly it is becoming rarer. But I may see fewer cases because I'm not in as active general practise as I was for many years. The needs of the Quintuplets keep me fairly busy, and I feel it wouldn't be in their best interest for me to be going in to see them every day after coming from sickrooms. However, I still look over older persons who have been my patients whenever sick for many years, and one of these came in the other day with as "pretty" a case of shingles as I have seen in a long time.

The disease known as "shingles" is a complication of neuralgia caused by an acute inflammation of the roots of the nerves leading either from the head or the spinal area. These inflamed nerves cause an eruption on the skin that look like masses of small blisters or cold sores. They itch, they burn, they ache, they pain and you mustn't scratch them.

The commonest place for shingles to occur is on the chest, usually on one side. Cases of shingles on both sides are rare. So are deaths resulting from shingles. This is the basis of an old superstition that if a victim gets shingles and the rash girdles the body, then death follows.

There's no truth to this superstition, but I have known old-timers who believed it to the extent they almost did die of fright.

Sometimes the shingles will spread down the body and when this happens, the patient usually stands to eat his meals. A tenderness remains long after the shingles disappear. One patient of mine had the shingles on his neck and on the back of his head. He says that when he gets a head rub at the barbershop now, three years after the attack, that side of his head is still tender. That is because sometimes, after the inflammation is gone, the nerve doesn't return to normal.

In almost every case of shingles, the victim is in a run-down condition. Her nerves have been jumpy for some time, and she has needed treatment. The attack of shingles may be nature's warning of something far more serious.

Health No. 1 School Aid

Without It the Child Is Handicapped in Class

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

The success of a child in school is based on his physical soundness. Our whole system of education is based on seeing and hearing. A child with a considerable degree of failure in vision or hearing may have got by during his young years of play, but these become serious handicaps when he enters school. The defect may be entirely unsuspected. In one community in one year 66,000 children were found to have defective vision and 17,000 defective hearing.

Other defects while not so disabling should receive consideration. The child who is a mouth-breather and is subject to chronic colds cannot concentrate as successfully as his healthy schoolmates. At this time of year the nose and throat surgeons are busily engaged in working on adenoids and tonsils so as to correct the defects resulting from mouth breathing. The teeth should be examined and put in good condition—mouth breathing may result in bad occlusion of the teeth and mal-formed teeth may tend to keep a child a mouth-breather. Eleven per cent of children are found to be either mouth-breathers or to have abscessed teeth, the first year they enter school.

Undernourishment Common.

All the defects mentioned are of a remediable nature and need not hamper a child's progress forever.

Undernourishment is found in a greater or less degree in nearly a third of all first year school children. In most cases this is due to ignorance of the use of protective foods at home. It is so easy nowadays to get in the habit of eating processed foods, especially in a household where the cook and the housekeeper goes to town to work, as well. School teachers tell one that hundreds of children come to school having had an insufficient breakfast or one that represents internal starvation because mother and father both had to rush off to work. To provide breakfast out of a can or a box is much easier than getting fresh milk, fresh fruit, an egg and a good cooked cereal.

Posture is an indication of good health or bad health rather than a disease in itself. It may mean poor nourishment, the residue of rickets earlier, weak muscles from undernutrition or bad postural habits.

Parents' Responsibility.

Schools have found an awakening conscience in these conditions in their pupils. They have a responsibility for the physical as well as the spiritual rehabilitation of their pupils. The best plan would be for the parents to have their family physician make an examination: it would be more thorough and necessarily more intelligent than the examination made by the school physician or the school nurse. But whatever plan is used the general movement will inevitably lead to a higher standard of physical efficiency in the citizen of tomorrow.

Questions and Answers.

E.M.B.—"Is smoking harmful in Meniere's disease? Also is beer and alcohol harmful?"

Answer—I have looked up this question in several textbooks on ear disease and nervous disease and I find no prohibition against smoking expressed by the authors. Patients I remember with Meniere's disease have been too sick to ask about it. When you are so dizzy you have to lie down on the bed, order the room to be darkened, shut off the telephone and all other noises, and hang on to the head of the bed because you are spinning around so hard, you are not likely to think of taking a smoke. Beer and alcohol make well people dizzy, so they are not advised.

L.B.A.—"Please advise me what foods to eat in a bad case of anemia. I am 50 years old."

Answer—Liver, half a pound a day if the anemia is of the Addisonian type (ask your doctor to find out about this), spinach and eggs for iron.

C.R.—"Will you please tell me a list of places in the United States with climate most favorable to patients suffering from sinus infection? My son six years old is afflicted."

Answer—The dry, warm desert climates of New Mexico, Arizona, etc., are usually recommended. Six years old, however, is very young for true sinus infection. Are you sure a post nasal obstruction, as from infected adenoids, is not the real cause?

Sane Hats Enhance Mature Charm

Frippery in Headdress Inclined to Detract From Rather Than "Play Up" Wearer's Personality

The older woman who wants to appear smart and well-dressed should choose a hat which sets her off—not one which buries her own personality and appearance under an exaggerated amount of frippery and extravagance.

This advice comes from a milliner, who specializes in designing chic hats for discerning women of mature years.

"Men are absolutely right in the stand they have taken against wild and wacky hats," she says, "What is amusing and acceptable in a young thing often is simply ridiculous on her mother. Nine times out of ten, the hat her husband likes is the one that is really most becoming to the typical Canadian matron."

Neglected Group.

This milliner started specializing in designs for older women fifteen years ago, because she felt at the time that this age group had been most neglected, from the fashion point of view, in the popular worship of youth.

"Youth is wonderful, of course. But the real leaders of life and womanhood are mature women. So I continue to try to give these older leaders of social life, business, women's clubs, the arts and professions, hats which are chic but not wacky, dignified but not dull — in other words, smart in the best sense of the word."

She points out that it is impossible to make a hard and fast list of dos and don'ts regarding hats for any age group. Naturally, each individual face must be suited. However, some of her generalities are interesting, and should be helpful.

"The woman with a full face needs a hat with width," according to this hat designer. "A woman who wears eye glasses can wear a hat with a veil only if the veil is placed so that the glasses do not get in its way—which is a neat trick in itself.

"The tiny woman needs a hat that will give her height and importance. A woman with a thin, pointed face never should wear too high a crown or too close-fitting a turban. A turban with side fullness for width is ideal for the thin-faced, however.

"Certain kinds of hats—tri-corners, turbans and classic-rimmed models—can be designed to fit every type of face. These are reliable standbys, any one of which, in the hands of a good designer, can be made to suit any face."

Her final words of wisdom on the subject of hats for the mature are:

"You should be able to wear any hat you buy with confidence for a long time. It's better to own one fine hat with character and background in which you feel exactly right than to get several little inexpensive ones, not one of which really gives you confidence. You don't need a new and different looking hat every few weeks. Buy a good hat of fine lines and excellent material and wear it gladly for several months.

Household Hints

To keep your cook book clean and free from splashes, put a glass bottom serving tray over book while you are using it, laying book flat on table. If you haven't a glass bottom tray, a clear glass baking dish or pie plate will do just as well.

CARE OF BLONDE HAIR

In the garden of beauty, blondes have a tough row to hoe. They're not very happy about it, either. Their lovely blue eyes stay as was, and that's about all. Complexions which are of fine texture undergo changes with advancing birthdays, often wrinkle early. As for hair, it cannot be depended upon at all. It may be like cornsilk in childhood but that doesn't mean anything. The golden halo may tarnish; at forty, it may be light brown or drab. Nature plays mean tricks on the light-headed sisters.

It's a great piece of luck for the blonde to have a mother who is beauty minded and who will, from the start, take good care of the yallery tresses. The blandest soap should be used for the shampoo and, as we have said time and again, it should be melted. Not a particle of soap scum should remain on the shafts. Brushing is helpful. It tugs on the hair roots, invigorates the papillae in which they rest, has a vitalizing effect upon the tiny blood streams from which the shafts receive nourishment. Scalp massage is highly recommended, no matter what the color of your topmop may be.

Why fair hair darkens nobody knows, as nobody knows what causes grey hair. Within the shafts are tiny pigment cells. The shafts themselves are like glass tubes, the inner cells providing the color. When these cells disappear, the hair is white.

When the golden glow disappears and locks go dingy, the poor darling flirts with the idea of toying with the peroxide bottle. Let her beware; that is a hazardous adventure. All right if done by a professional who knows how far he can go with the bleaching process without damage to the silky threads. Over-bleaching makes the hair like jute. It breaks at the touch of the comb. The growth is pretty well done for. Soapsuds rolls from it like water from a duck's back.

The trouble with bleaching and dyeing is that it makes every hair the same color, which is not nature's plan. Nature provides varying shades that give the human thatch delightful lights and shadows. The trained professional eye can detect chemical effects at a glance.

The first home bleaching may bring joy and satisfaction. Continued treatment is what does the harm. Applications must not overlap. Only the new virgin growth close to the scalp should be submitted to peroxide.

Bleaching should be done several hours before the shampoo, not immediately after, as is the way with the home experimenter. However, we trust our beauty clientele will take their tarnished heads to beauty shops, have the work done properly.

A Dry-Suds Shampoo For The Furniture

By ELEANOR ROSS

The dry-suds method of shampooing furniture is a well-tried and successful one. It is an easy job, which if carefully handled, will keep upholstered furniture spick and span between professional cleanings. Dry suds does sound like a contradiction in terms, but it is feasible and real just the same.

The basis of dry suds is soap jelly made either of soap scraps or packaged soap. If scraps are used, or bar soap shavings, mix half a cup of soap with five cups water and let simmer until dissolved. Remove from stove and set to cool. For packaged soap, while the proportions are the same, no simmering is necessary. Just melt the soap in boiling water and let cool. To make in large quantities, double or triple the amounts. If the jelly is to be used for upholstery or rugs, it is wise to use a mild soap.

Whipped Soap Jelly.

When cleaning day dawns, a small quantity of the jelly should be transformed to a mixing bowl and whipped vigorously with an egg-beater or electric mixer till it forms a thick lather which resembles white of egg. It is then ready to use as a shampoo. Before starting on the furniture, brush the fabric thoroughly to remove dust, or better still, give it a good vacuuming. Then get to work and apply a little of the whipped soap jelly with a clean fibre brush to a small area of the upholstery. Use a circular motion and work very quickly, but thoroughly. With sponges wrung almost dry in clear water, remove all trace of the suds

Requires Careful Application.

This must be done thoroughly and requires at least three or four applications. Avoid the excessive use of water because wetness should not penetrate to the padding. With reasonable care, this should not happen. Now when all the soap has been absorbed ,rub the area lightly with a clean soft cloth. Repeat the washing process until the entire upholstered surface has been completed. The result should make sofas and chairs distinctly cleaner, and bring out the colors.

While about it, why not give that soiled rug a good shampoo as well! Rugs of all sizes can be washed with a method which is almost similar to that used on upholstery. Here again, there should be a thorough preliminary sweeping or vacuuming to avoid loose dust. There should be the same care to avoid every trace of soap. To dry-suds a rug, apply some of the whipped soap jelly with a brush to a few square inches at a time. Scrape off the excess suds, after rubbing with the brush for a minute, with the flat part of a knife or with a ruler or something similar. Then use a succession of sponges wrung out in clear water until every speck of suds has been removed. A quick wipe with a clean, dry cloth completes the process. If carefully and properly done, none of the moisture will penetarte to the back of the carpeting, and the washing may therefore be done on the floor without damage to the woodwork.

Hankies Just to Show Off

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

Whether it's a scotch plaid or a flower print the handkerchief is definitely for show in the fall fashion picture. To make them decidedly feminine so the male members of the household won't snitch them for their very own they are done in lovely pastel shades, and discreetly perfumed they will add a subtle allure to any costume.

The splashier prints of last season are being replaced with flower treatments of a lighter, more sprightly mood.

Shadow Details.

Pretty and most effective are the new shadow initial handkerchiefs in floral prints. Large four-inch script initials are silhouetted in the heart of corner floral bouquets.

For women who choose tailored suits or tweeds for Fall, there are the new haberdasher kerchiefs, designed especially for the suit mood. These are plaids and stripes developed in multi-tone and ombre effects. Soft heather suedes of blue, red, yellow, and brown are featured. Cords, plaid centres and dramatic borders develop detail interest.

Haberdashers are ideal too, for the college girl and for active sports. That is why one plaid haberdasher kerchief has been companioned with a 27-inch square which serves as scarf for any sports need. It is particularly smart used as an ascot for your tailored suit.

Cravat Prints.

Entirely new too, in handkerchiefs of the tailored mood, are those in cravat prints. Neat small geometric designs borrowed from neckties, make the printed centres of these kerchiefs. Inch wide dark borders are in wine, brown, rust, blue and black with the narrow rolled hems flashing a note of vivid color.

Costume colors in large French chiffon squares dominate the evening mode. Some squares have lovely, colored sequin trim in cat-o-nine tails, wheat and clover leaf pattern. On others corners have been appliqued with subtly colored floral motifs in taffeta, crepe or chiffon.

Piping Hot Dishes For Winter Menus

Ham Balls in Mustard Sauce.

1¼ cups ground ham, ½ cup grated raw potato, dash black pepper, 1 egg, beaten, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon shortening, 3 hard cooked eggs, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, ½ teaspoon dry mustard.

Combine first five ingredients and mix well; shape into balls, allowing one heaping tablespoon to each ball; then brown in fat. Melt butter in top of double boiler, blend in flour, mix smooth, gradually adding milk, stirring constantly until thick and smooth, then stir in mustard. Add hot ham balls (ham should be cooked) and hard-cooked eggs cut in halves lengthwise. Place over boiling water and heat from 10 to 15 minutes before serving. This amount serves from 4 to 5.

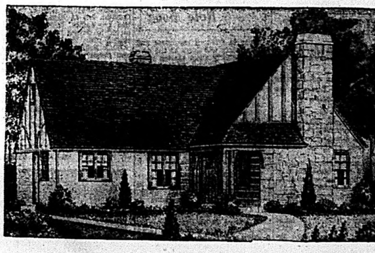
Chocolate Chiffon Pie.

1 tbsp. granulated gelatin, 2 cups milk, ¾ cup sugar, 2 squares chocolate, 2 egg whites, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1 baked pastry shell, 2 egg yolks, ½ cup cream, whipped.

Soften gelatin in ¼ cup of the cold milk. Combine rest of milk, ½ cup sugar and the chocolate, cut in small pieces, in top of double boiler, and cook over hot water until chocolate is melted. Beat well and stir into slightly beaten egg yolks; return to double boiler and cook one minute longer. Remove from hot water, add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved, then stir in vanilla and cool.

When cool stir in stiffly beaten egg whites to which the remaining ¼ cup sugar has been added. Pour into cooled pastry shell and top with whipped cream, or fold whipped cream into the mixture if you prefer.

Making The Most of Space



Five rooms and a bath; low, broad lines and a massive chimney; a fine feeling for the English style of architecture, make this home an imposing one in the smaller house range.

There is a dinette for casual meals, an unusually large living room perfectly adapted to the buffet type dining table for use when the meal is a more elaborate occasion.

The location of the compact kitchen permits easy serving in living room or dinette.

Closet space can never be too great—seldom large enough in a house you don't plan yourself. Augment your space by putting a false wall along some room—a wall with sliding panels which push aside to reveal a narrow space fitted with a rod on which you can dangle clothes hangers.

A Florida householder whose home is entireley polished black cypress finish inside had a broad ledge beneath a wide window built of the wood, flanked at each side with asymmetric shelves and drawers. This is the dressing table and bureau, the chest and high-boy, and it leaves her free to use all floor space.

The economic advantages of not having to buy wood bedroom furniture which matches is obvious; with built-in pieces identical to the walls, matching chintzes make the ensemble.

COMEDY IN THE HALL

It may not be long before managers of touring artists, to serve the public's growing thirst for novelty, will be planning deliberately such situations as the one in the Omaha auditorium where Tenor Richard Crook, during the course of a recent recital, had a hot argument with a meddlesome janitor.

Audiences remember and relish such unprogrammed events as a ballerina stumbling, a conductor losing a collar button, a pianist walking off the stage with a garter dragging.

There aren't half enough of these amusing decorum of a concert-hall and give many a tedious recital its planning by impresarios could do such affairs. We dream o fthe time when we'll casually look over the Symphony orchestra some Friday night and find the third Marx brother at the harp, and Ed Wynn stepping out to play the Beethoven concerto on a jewsharp.

Leafs Continue to Impress With the Power Distributed Better Than in Many Seasons

Team Has a Tough Week-end Playing Canadiens at Home and Boston in Bean Town

TEAM IS SECOND

Black Hawks Heading the Loop and Right Now the Surprise Team of League

By SYDNEY GRUSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The loudest drums have been beaten for a lot of other guys so far this season, but Lester Patrick and Frank Boucher can't be feeling so badly about the first two weeks of the National Hockey League campaign.

True enough, Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs are ahead of their New York Rangers, but the front-running Hawks have played four games and the Leafs three, while the Rangers have gleaned enough points in just two games to stay right behind them.

And in the pay-off department, goals-scored-against, who else but Rangers' Davie Kerr is leading with a 1.5 average. That is probably the greatest source of satisfaction to the Ranger bosses, who are as convinced as ever that the Ranger 15 is good enough to retain the Stanley Cup.

The Rangers make their bow to the home fans tonight against Detroit Red Wings, one of the two clubs with whom they are tied for third place. The league's other game brings Montreal Canadiens back against the Maple Leafs in Toronto, with the Flying Frenchmen barely having time to recover from Thursday night's 6-2 beating from Toronto.

Leafs Continue to Impress

The Leafs continue to impress. Gord Drillon and Syl Apps, their biggest guns, were spiked in Montreal but along came Hank Goldup and Pete Langelle to take up the torch and fire two goals each. It appears that Leaf power is better distributed than in many seasons, and that Happy Day may be able to take some of the offensive load off his big two.

It is a double-header week-end for Leafs, Canadiens and Detroit. Toronto makes its first Boston invasion Sunday night against the burly Bruins while Detroit meets up again with the Americans in New York and Canadiens travel to Chicago to engage the red-hot Hawks.

This round-up could go a long way toward shaking up the standings which seem unnatural with Paul Thompson's club in first place and Boston Bruins, the league champions, in sixth. The Hawks, however, will take a lot of beating and they're set to get off to such a running start that they won't have to worry at all about the bottom of the league.

Canadiens will have to show quickly that their defence is going to stand up. In three games they've had 10 goals scored against them while the offence got only three—a combination that can't lead to a spot in the first-division sun.

CATTLEMEN QUIT BIG DEER AREAS

Hunting Grounds of Pacific Coast Grow Larger as as Ranchers Retire

Conconully, Wash., Nov. 16 (CP).—One of this Pacific coast states happy hunting grounds, the Sinlahekni Valley, is a sort of deer heaven for the deer while they're still alive.

To oblige the deer, and hunters, too, the state game department is now chasing the ranchers and cattle out to make it still better.

Officially it's the Sinlahekin Deer Refuge. To state game protectors, it's a rich valley of 17,000 acres of rolling, timbered hills, lower lands covered with browse and green, well-watered bottom land, set down between two towering mountain ridges.

It's ideal winter country for deer, driven by cold and the snow-covered ground out of the hills and mountains. Better still, the department hopes it will solve the problem of the annual battle of Farmer vs. Deer.

Each year orchards are destroyed and feed and haystacks raided by deer desperate for food during the long winter months. Even with this "loot" they are underfed and a decimated deer population moves back into the hills each spring. The department expects more deer will move into the valley and leave orchardists and farmers alone, and live well meantime.

Some of the twenty-five ranchers are already moving out, lock, stock and barrel. New cattle-proof fences will be built at the few passes where cattle or other livestock might wander in.

An estimate puts the valley's winter deer population at 1,100 deer. Game department officials say the number may be greatly increased.

It's such a good hunting area that this fall many men shot their bucks within an hour after daybreak. The hunting season lasts three weeks.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in front of my house and Reddy Merfy was down at the corner and Shorty Judge started to go passed him, and Reddy pulled Shorty's cap down over his eyes just for something fresh to do, and Shorty came up saying, Darn that darn guy, I'll get even with him some day.

What's a matter with today, right now? I said. Do you want me to tell you a safe way how? I said, and Shorty said, Sure, how?

Just go down there and stand there and make faces at him, I said, and Shorty said, Hay, you said a safe way.

Well wait till I finish it, will you? I said. As soon as Reddy wants to know what you think you're doing, just tell him your nose itches so bad you cant help wiggeling your face around it, and even if Reddy dont believe it he cant prove it's not true, because whose nose is it? I said, and Shorty said, Well if you're so sure it'll work, you go down and try it first to prove it, and I'll go next.

Well good night he'll believe me, but you cant expect him to believe it twice in a row, so you're the one that'll get pushed in the face and I'll have all the fun. I said, and Shorty said, No you wont, I'll have fun watching you.

Aw good night I'm not going to do all your work for you, I gave you the idea and that's enugh, I said, and he said, Well, I think I'll just make faces at you and see if you can tell if I'm doing it on purpose or whether my nose really does happen to be itching.

And he started to make fearse faces at me and kept it up till I asked him if he was looking for trouble.

Proving the idea might not of worked after all.

HAMILTON WINS FOURTH STRAIGHT IN SENIOR O. H. A.

Doug Fritz Scores Three Goals as Dofascos Trim Port Colborne 5-2

LONDON SHUTOUT

St. Catharines Whams London 6-0 and Niagara Falls Victorious Over Oshawa 3-1

(By the Canadian Press)

Any hockey expert trying to draw an early line on Eastern Canada's more important hockey teams today would be committing a grave breach of judgment should he omit to print in large characters the name of Hamilton Dofascos.

Last night the Dofascos won their fourth straight Ontario Hockey Association senior game, beating Port Colborne 5-2, and the stamp of class was written all over the best senior hockey club Hamilton has had for years. In other senior O.H.A. games last night St. Catharines whammed London 6-0 and Niagara Falls defeated Oshawa 3-1.

If the experts can't afford to pass up Hamilton, then they certainly also must tab Doug Fritz, bespectacled centre-man on Dofasco's first forward line. Fritz scored three of the goals in beating Port Colborne. His linemate Jack Shillington got the other two Hamilton counters.

Thompson and Fitzgerald scored for Port Colborne as Hamilton continued to hew an unbeaten path through its league opposition.

Niagara Falls remained in the exclusive unbeaten class by beating Oshawa, but as Niagara Falls has tied two games the victory only served to elevate it into a three-way second place tie behind Hamilton.

Blink Bellinger, Bobby Walton, and Cooper scored for Niagara Falls, Thompson for Oshawa. It was Oshawa's fourth straight loss of the season.

St. Catharines snapped its losing streak with that six-goal explosion and looked good enough to be classed as a possible threat from now on. Backor scored twice, Roy Heximer, Paul Mundrick, Rossini and Hastie one goal each.

Nominations For Marsh Memorial Are Now Open

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Nominations for the Lou E. Marsh Memorial Trophy, awarded annually to the outstanding Canadian athlete of the year, are now open, Miss Alexandrine Gibb, secretary of the committee of judges, announced today. Men and women athletes, either professional or amateur, are eligible for the award, given in memory of the Toronto (Star) sports editor who died in 1936.

Athletic clubs or organizations are entitled to submit the name of one nominee, along with a record of his or her achievements. A committee of five makes the selection.

Dr. Phil Edwards, great Montreal middle-distance runner, first won the trophy. In succeeding years it has gone to Marshal Cleland, noted horseman of Troy, Ont.; Bob Pearce, world's champion sculler of Hamilton, and Robert (Bob) Pirie, Toronto swimmer.

Syracuse Sophomore Runs All Races In His Bare Feet

Syracuse, N.Y., Nov. 16—(AP)—"Shoeless" Joe Coffin's naked feet, which have paddle unashamed to scoring position in every college cross-country race he has run for two years, await the gun starting Monday's championships in New York City.

Coach Tom Keane, the shoeless one's mentor at Syracuse University, has abandoned efforts to confine Joe's tootsies to regulation spiked footwear.

"I just can't run with shoes on," says Joe. "Coach Keane made me wear them once. By golly, I ran my worst race."

"That's right," agrees Keane. "I still don't believe it's possible, but Joe does it."

Coffin, a sophomore, has been indifferent toward the advantages of footgear since, barefooted, he first plodded behind the plough on his father's farm near Scuylerville, N.Y.

Gravel paths, harsh concrete highways and rocky hills over which Coffin lopes his steady way in cross-country races offer not the slightest hindrance to him.

HAYMAN EXPECTS TO BUILD TEAM AROUND MORRIS

TAKES WEST'S PLACE

Kid Can Run, Pass and Pass Receive, but Little Shy on Blocking and Tackling

By WILF GRUSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Bound for stardom after less than a season in big-time football and now, by chance, one of the main cogs on the Toronto Argonaut backfield, Elwyn Morris is expected to be the man around whom the Argo half line will be built after this season.

The 19-year-old halfback whose only previous football experience consisted of a year with a midget team and two with a Toronto high school club, showed enough promise in the pre-season training to make the Argo second team.

No one realized at that time what a large part he was going to play in helping Argos gain the Interprovincial Union playoffs. He probably would have remained just another back if Art West and Red Storey hadn't suffered injuries.

With these two on the sidelines, Lew Hayman was forced to use Morris more often and the stocky little half has come through. The men who direct the fortunes of Argos have been waiting for someone like him to arrive, for the players who comprised their great backfield when they won the Dominion title in 1937 and 1938 have nearly all gone.

West Playing Last Year

Now it appears that West, the main man in that backfield, is playing his last year. West suffered a knee injury last season and he's lost much of his speed. It will be West's shoes Morris will have to fill.

During his years with Argos West gained a reputation as one of the best backs in Canada, but Hayman believes Morris will be every bit as good.

"He looks better than West did in his first season," Hayman said. "He is an exceptionally good runner, passer and pass receiver and when he learns to tackle and block a little better we'll have one of the finest backs produced in this country."

Morris' work in the Argo games against Ottawa Rough Riders proved he had something special—an uncanny shift and two of the fastest feet on the gridiron. In the first game, which Ottawa won 41-6, he was the only Argo half who was able to untrack himself, running 80 yards for their only touchdown.

In the return battle he hooked up with the veteran Bobby Coulter to lead Argos to their 11-9 upset victory. He pitched a touchdown pass to Coulter and combined with him in a 52-yard runback that paved the way for Annis Stukus' game-winning field goal

Appeasement Policy Gone, Warning Issued

Hong Kong, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Hong Kong telegraph described Friday the creation of a unified British Far Eastern Command as "a direct warning to any power not to allow itself to imagine that one-sided appeasement continues to be a vulnerable spot in our political and diplomatic armor."

"Britain today means business," it said, "and overt threats, cunning encroachments and diplomatic manoeuvring will no longer find us hastily retreating and nervously on the defensive."

ROWDY AL DAVIS IS DISQUALIFIED IN N.Y. BOUT

STOPPED IN SECOND

N. Y. Commission States After Bout Davis is Through in That State

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 16—(AP)—Rowdy Al Davis of Brooklyn, who gave promise up to last night of being a boxing champion some time soon is free today to shop around for another career.

He finished himself as a fighter, in New York state at least, by foul exhibition against welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic in Madison Square Garden last night.

After Referee Billy Cavanagh had stopped it in the second round and helped the cops carry the kicking, snarling Davis back to his corner, the three members of the State Athletic Commission said that "Bummy" is through for good in their bailiwick.

And what doubtless hurt Davis worse, they held up his end of the purse—probably permanently. In the opinion of 15,000 who braved a nasty night to see it, "Bummy" deserved about anything that happened to him.

By more or less actual count, Davis threw ten cruelly low blows into Zivic before Cavanagh stopped the thing. He had warned Davis twice before that in the second round. But "Bummy" seemed determined.

Zivic Really Angry

Zivic was so angry when it ended that he rushed into Davis, and the pair fought like alley cats until police and Garden attendants could separate them. Davis got in a couple of good kicks, one in the neighborhood of Cavanagh's pants.

Examination afterward revealed that Zivic was badly bruised and skinned up by the low punches. Davis was severely battered about the face from the beating he took in the first round, before he figured out a way to hold Zivic off.

It obviously was no match from the start. Zivic had Davis at his mercy and clouted him virtually at will, almost flooring him midway of the opening round. At that rate the Brooklyn boy would have been in bad shape before the scheduled ten rounds were up.

The blows he laid into Zivic once he got the range were full lefts that started near the floor and landed with a clang on the champ's protective gear. The angry crowd was yelling murder long before the referee acted, and some of them still were hanging around the dressing room an hour later in hopes of getting a punch at "Bummy."

New York, Nov. 16 (AP). — Nick Ardillo, an Italian, and Vic Costellos, a Greek, have played side by side in the Auburn line all season and neither has been penalized a yard for slugging. . . .

Today's guest star.

R. G. Lynch, Milwaukee Journal: "Perk up, Wisconsin! . . . The Badger team won the hog calling contest at Kansas City last week, a Wisconsin student won in horse judging and tied for first in hog judging. . . . Is it Wisconsin's fault if the Big Ten emphasizes football instead of livestock judging?"

Broadway melody.

Max Baer, striding down the Great White Way, much admired by all the dolls. . . . Most missed guy along W. 49th street is Joe Jacobs, the little man with the big cigar. . . . Hank Greenberg, who used to squire her around, laughing with everybody else at Actorine Betty Allen's Crack, "most valuable player in the league, huh? Not in my league?" . . . Ed Brrow, directing affairs of the Yanks by telephone from a sick bed at Larchmont.

The Georgetown Hoyas got their nickname from the school battle cry "Hoya, hoya, saxa!" Hoya is English spelling of the Greek word, "Oua," same being an exclamation of astonishment. Well, to date the Hoyas have been astonishing, all right.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

Under the heading "Take care, young fellow," a poem was written by Had Dison and published in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger. The poem pertains to the safety in hunting and has been republished in hundreds of daily newspapers since first penned. For your pleasure we give you Had Dison's "Take care, young fellow":

"Just a minute Brother Nimrod, afore you're on your way,
For it isn't very often this old-timer has his say.
Advice is often tooken, but forgotten in the hunt,
So heed a word of wisdom from this rabbit-chasin' runt.
A gun is mighty handy when a pheasant's in the air,
Or Blackie Bruin is heading for the safety of his lair,
But that old shootin' iron is a tombstone in disguise,
If a feller doesn't watch his step or thinks himself too wise.
A fence is built for safety until gunners take the trail,
And the thing's as deadly as any darn third rail.
A shiny huntin' rifle fills a gunner's heart with glee,
And little tots will crowd around to see it on his knee.
But mark my words, young feller, that rifle brings dismay
When kiddies' little fingers upon its trigger play.
Don't point your gun at buddies just to feel its hidden might,
For Death makes no exceptions of gunner's oversight.
Don't say it isn't loaded when it's handled by a friend,
Make sure the breech is empty, or your friendship ties will end.
Hold tight that trusty rifle, it will stand you in good stead,
When in the forest brush appears a deer's majestic head.
But drop that gun upon the ground of bump it on a post,
And you will never see again the ones you love the most.
So take a tip, young feller, from a rabbit-huntin' runt,
Take care and you will long enjoy the glories of the hunt."

The following suggestion on an easy and clean way to pluck a duck was published in the monthly bulletin of the Department of Game and Fisheries:

"Just in case you have heard, here is the formula for peace in the kitchen and happiness in the home—provided always, of course, that you are a duck hunter and have killed some ducks.

"Fill a deep pot or bucket with water and put it on to boil. Melt in it enough paraffin to cover the surface to a depth of from one-eighth to one-quarter of an inch.

"Cut the duck's wings off at the second joint. Pluck dry the major feathers from the wings, tail, back and breast. Simply take what comes at the first grab and do not be too particular. Leave the neck hackles, because you will later lop off the neck anyway.

"Grasp your half-plucked duck by the head and dunk it in the water, which is now not actively boiling but still hot enough to keep the paraffin liquid. As you remove the duck the paraffin will completely cover it. Lay the duck on a piece of newspaper to dry. Continue with the next duck. By the time they are all laid on the paper the first will be covered with a hardened case of paraffin. Simply crack the case any place and rip it off in sheets. All down and feathers will come with it, and your duck will be as clean and pink as a spanked baby."

Do you remember when "Tiger" Flowers, former world middleweight boxing champion, died in a New York hospital 13 years ago today following a minor operation for removal of a growth over his left eye. Only negro to hold the title, Flowers reached the top Feb. 26, 1926, with a 15-round decision over Harry Greb. He lost the crown to Mickey Walker.

Next week sees the final games in the Junior City Interscholastic rugby loop and the big game will be between St. Mikes and the O.S.D. The "Deaf boys" have tasted victory and must win to stay in the running. However, if the Irish win and the Collegiate should, then Jack Doran's sextette will finish a tie with Cliff Yerex's Church Street "Collegians" for the league leadership. The standing today reads:-

Junior Interscholastic

	W.	L.	Pts.
St. Michael's	3	2	6
Belleville C.I.	3	2	6
O.S.D.	2	3	4
Albert College	2	3	4

Games next week: O.S.D. at St. Mikes and B.C.I. at Albert.

Denial is made by President Horace C. Stoneman of the New York Giants that his club is considering abandoning its farms. On the contrary, he intimates the Giants may increase their holdings. The announcement was made by Stoneman, following a story that his club was contemplating getting rid of its farms.

"The New York club desires to emphatically deny this statement," Stoneham declares. "It has no intention of disposing of its farm system. Any story to the contrary is untrue. It may even be that the New York club intends to expand its minor league holdings."

Seems as though the Reliance Tool and Aircraft Company has garnered together several fairly good pucksters, but the lack of ice for practice purposes locally is unfortunate when other teams in the Kingston Van Horne series are right at hand to practice as often as they please. St. Louis' sextette is sadly in need of another right-winger, however, as Tabby Gow is the only front line player that fires from the right side of the boards. Good right-wingers don't come in bunches, like grapes, and it may be difficult to fill this gap at present. However, the Reliance squad signed Carl Hewitt, who tended goal for the Kingston Juniors when that club advanced into the junior "B" finals two seasons ago. Hewitt turned in a smart effort against Queen's the other night, but like all goalies needs some protection out in front. Jim Donihee, former Cornwall senior, lacks condition at present, but by the time the O.H.A. campaign rolls around local fans will see a good puckster in this lad. The same applies to Sanderson and Gill, they tell us.

Dave Bockus, who learned the rudiments of football while playing six-man rugby at the B.C.I. a couple of years ago, was selected as one of the backfield players on the Secondary Schools Western Conference all-star team for the city of Toronto. Dave will play for the Western all-stars versus the Eastern crack team for the interscholastic football championship of Toronto. Which only goes to show how Belleville can produce champions, be it in football, hockey, baseball, softball or what have you.

SPORT SPICE—Leo Goyer, former Belleville junior defenceman, scored two goals and had an assist for the Kingston Lions as they beat Regiopolis College 11-0 in Kingston. . . . Incidentally Goyer has been moved up forward and Wally Elmer is attempting to make a centre player out of the former Belleville rear-guardsman. They do say the Toronto International League ball franchise will be transferred to Reading, Pa., for 1941. . . .

FIRST COINED MONEY IN SPAIN

Pamplona, Spain, Nov. 16 (AP)—A 14th century treasure trove containing what experts believe to be some of the first gold money coined in spain was discovered by workers razing an ancient building here. The coins date back to the reign of "Pedro the Cruel" in 1350.

ADVERTISING SIGNS TO FALL

Akron, O., Nov. 16 (AP)—Hatchets will fly and advertising signs will fall today around the Summit county village of Peninsula. "The Westerner"

The current year marks the eleventh anniversary of Walter Brennan's activities as a "scene stealer." Which is to say that this well-known character actor has been working in films steadily for the last decade, for it was when he was making his debut as an actor that he was first dubbed "scene stealer" by the star of the film.

Samuel Goldwyn had seen him among the crowds working in "Wedding Night" and marked him as a face to remember for future casting. Then, when Goldwyn was looking for an actor to play "Old Attrocity" in "Barbary Coast", he remembered Brennan and put him under contract, starting him off with a role which is still remembered.

From that time on Brennan has been among the most steadily employed character actors in the film industry. Currently he is appearing in Samuel Goldwyn's Gary Cooper starring vehicle, "The Westerner," now on view at the Belle theatre. However, he had not intended to become an actor when he first arrived on the West Coast some fifteen years ago. Born in Lynn, Massachusettes, Brennan had enlisted in Boston in the 26th Division and was badly gassed in the World War. When he was demobilized he vainly looked for work in the east and, having no luck, moved gradually westward, finally ending up in the California real estate business.

Following the collapse of a real estate boom in Los Angeles, Brennan found himself jobless and with a wife and three children to support. So he tried motion pictures. For some time he eked out a meagre living with extra roles, vainly trying to make producers believe that he could play old men with the proper amount of pathos and humor. Finally Samuel Goldwyn cast him as "Old Atrocity" and Brennan won immediate recognition as an important film personalty.

Walter Brennan is best remembered for his work in "Come And Get It," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "The Buccaneer," "The Adventures of Tom Sawyers," The Cowboy and the Lady," "Kentucky," "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle" and "They Shall Have Music."

In "The Westerner,' which was directed by William Wyler for United Artists release, Brennan impersonates the roistering, besoted Judge Roy Bean, who administered justice at the point of a gun and established himself as the sole "Law of The Pecos."

Three Entertaining Shorts

A special added attraction now on the Belle theatre program is the exhibition of "London Can Take It," the most unusual picture to come out of the war.

A Walt Disney Cartoon comedy, "Pluto's Dream House," in technicolor and the popular Belle Newsreel, will be exhibited on the same program.

Thompson Funeral Service

It is not necessary to pay a premium for good service. Whether you pay $75.00, $100.00 or more, our service is always satisfactory. No extra charge to go to Kingston, Toronto or Hamilton. We can take charge and arrange Funerals anywhere.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Trader Horn"

Metro-Goldywn-Mayer's sensational filmization of the famous book of African adventures returns again to the Capitol Theatre, as their next attraction availing the citizens of Belleville their last opportunity to see this great picture the biggest undertaking in the filming of adventure films in history.

The story, as adapted from the famous book by Alfred Aloysius Horn and Ethelreda Lewis, deals with the trader and his protege, Peru, who promises a woman missionary to find the "White Goddess" of the savage Isorgi, whom she believes to be her daughter, lost in a native raid as a baby.

Harry Carey, hero of "Trail of '98", "Silent Sanderson" and many other hits, plays the trader, and Edwina Booth, pretty blonde of "Manhattan Cocktail", who volunteered for the arduous trip, is seen as Nina T. Duncan Renaldo, of "Bridge of San Luis Rey" fame; Olive Golden, former Western star, and Mutia, giant Swahili warrior, who plays Renchero, are among the cast.

Pygmies Appear in Film

Thousands of natives appear as well as thousands of wild animals of every conceivable variety. The strange African pygmies, who hide in the jungles and fight enemies with poisoned arrows, are also seen in the picture. W. S. Van Dyke, who directed the vivid film, is noted for photoplays made in wild places, such as "The Pagan" and "White Shadows in the South Seas".

The dramatic highlights of the picture include the chase of the dread juju priests of the Isorgi, the barbaric dance of the blood-thirsty tribesmen to doom the white traders, Horn's promise to the missionary and her dramatic death, his sacrifice to save the lives and loves of the two young people, the conflict between himself and Peru over the love of the girl, the death of Mutia, and Horn's terrific feat of swinging through the snapping jaws of huge crocodiles in the escape sequence.

Delicate human touches, such as the wild white girl's first glimpse into the mirror and her experience with the trader's watch, are handled with deft skill in Van Dyke's direction.

The added attraction is the most baffling mystery in many a year, "Inside Story" starring Michael Whalen, Jean Rogers and Chic Chandler.

"London Can Take It". The most amazing pictures to come out of the war! The actual bombing of London.

"Blondie Plays Cupid"

The Bumstead Family, Dagwood, Blondie, Baby Dumpling and Daisy the pooch, are now delighting capacity audiences at the McCarthy Theatre in their newest, merriest and funniest feature-comedy "Blondie Plays Cupid" the seventh straight hit in the "Blondie" series which have come to the screen. You will laugh until you almost roll into the aisle when you see Baby Dumpling drive the old car in one of the biggest comedy scenes ever filmed. Bring the family to the McCarthy. "Blondie Plays Cupid" is a real laugh treat for all, and in addition the companion feature "Girls Under 21" featuring Rochelle Hudson and Paul Kelly, is a splendid co-feature crammed with action and stirring drama. "London Can Take It" the biggest thrill story among the war films to date and a new episode of "Terry and the Pirates" completes the present McCarthy Theatre program and makes the whole show one of the most entertaining any movie lover could hope to see.

"Girl From God's Country"

Breathlessly exciting adventure North of the Yukon will be the screen treat for the patrons of the McCarthy Theatre next week, when the Republic Studios (makers of the Gene Autry westerns) new production "Girl from God's Country" co-starring Chester Morris, Jane Wyatt and Charles Bickford, opens. Acclaimed by press reports to be one of the finest outdoor hits to reach the screen this year, "Girl from God's Country" is well worth putting on your 'must see' shows for the coming week. Warner Bros. new hit "Pony Express Days" filmed in gorgeous technicolor, also "The Wild Hare" new cartoon novelty, latest McCarthy-Fox news events and the thrilling war subject "London can take it" will be the splendid added attractions preceding the feature "Girl from God's Country."

WALKED IN ON RELATIVES

Hyannis, Neb., Nov. 16 (AP)—Mail carrier Gordon Houpt says his funeral will have to be deferred. He walked in yesterday on sorrowing relatives who thought him dead in this week's storm and had planned his last rites.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

After a glance at the still unconscious Josef, North swiftly collected the documents and other papers.

Nadia observed in faint sarcasm: "Mon Dieu, you're not going to take Josef along for a chaperon? What will people say?"

The intelligence captain responded in kind: "With the lioness safely caged, who fears the jackal? And now. . . . Get on a coat," he directed gruffly, "and let's be going."

"To where?" she demanded demurely. "Shall I take only a nightgown, or shall I pack a bag?"

"You'll come just as you are." He recovered his own .32 from the closet floor and substituted its compact efficiency for Josef's badly balanced silencered revolver. With his left hand he rolled the sheaf of documents into a tight cylinder and thrust them into his inner coat pocket.

For all her icy composure there was, he realized, a distinctly dangerous glint back of Nadia's eyes . . . eyes which he could not yet trust himself to face for long.

"May I have the honor?" he invited gallantly, and with firm Central Office grip he took Nadia Stefan by the elbow and conducted her down into the little court. Then, in the shadows of the doorway, he studied the area all of two minutes, noting nothing save a Japanese sampan man snoring on a doorstep.

Much of the quarter's activity had subsided; cats were bolder, more in evidence, and from some distant steeple the slow, resonant strokes of a clock marked the hour of one as the pair emerged from the courtyard.

Yielding to the situation with apparent grace, Nadia Stefan strode at his side, apparently lost in thought. It was not until they sank onto the lumpy upholstery of the cab which he presently hailed, that she said with puzzled air, "Really you are the most extraordinary American I have ever met."

"Old stuff!" he grunted ungraciously. "I suppose Cross and Clark believed that? Well, I don't!"

Silence ensued while the taxi sped smoothly along towards Fort Shafter. Then to his amazement she suddenly broke into a lilting laugh.

"Monsieur, now I know you are afraid of me."

"Right—afraid and suspicious," he admitted. "But really it's you who are extraordinary. I've been wondering—" He broke off abruptly, for the taxi's brakes had been jammed with an ear-torturing screech. North instinctively thought of a prelude to a bad smash-up.

"What in—"

On peering outside, North realized that the black and lightless outlines of not one but three taxicabs were hemming in his.

"Quiet, please!" Almost at once there appeared in the cab's window a face swathed in a black scarf pierced with two very ragged eyeholes.

"Messir Nevins, please step out."

North's hopes dropped on recognizing the precise, sibilant accents he had learned to associate with Hideyo Kanamura. Facing an automatic of large calibre, North stepped out onto the moonlit road. Promptly one of the blocking cars slid aside, and to North's horror his cab was signalled ahead.

"Wait!" he cried sharply to Kanamura. "Please don't let that cab go!"

"Be quiet!" An arm, unyielding as a steel cable, slid about North's throat, and he was jerked violently backwards. Then another hand caught him a shrewd clip on the side of the neck. Amid the greatest blaze of lights he had seen since Saint Mihiel he collapsed among a clump of hibiscus bushes.

That he could not have remained unconscious long, Captain North realized as he glimpsed the tail lights of the three taxicabs go whirling off into the luminous Hawaiian night. Uncertainly he groped for his inner pocket.

As he fully expected, the papers from Nadia Stefan's desk were gone.

Still half dazed, he swayed to his feet. He wanted to crow upon that pungent vocabulary he had gleaned in many curious corners of the world. He wanted even to indulge in the Latin luxury of tears, howls, and recriminations against an unjust fate. Instead, he gazed blankly, drearily at the countryside which was revealed, all silvery in the moonlight. His hand crept up and tested the side of his neck. It was exceedingly sore.

"Effective whack on the vagus nerve," he diagnosed his pain. "Wonder why white men never will learn that the edge of a hand is just as effective as a fist?"

Because he was still weak and giddy, he remained a moment clinging to a branch of the hibiscus shrub. As he recovered a little, he began brushing himself off, but uttered a grunt of surprise when his palm encountered in his watch pocket a small, cylindrical outline. Afire with hope, he pulled out that same lipstick case which Nadia Stefan had thrown at his feet.

"One on Kanamura and Co., he chuckled when a quick inspection showed that scroll of paper was still there.

Then, he started cautiously back in the direction of the city, but almost immediately shrank back into the dewy underbrush.

A long column of armed men in regular ranks of four were marching across a field to the left.

"Um," he told himself, "things must be getting pretty serious when the government begins moving infantry at night." He watched two companies of doughboys, complete with packs and sagging ammunition belts go swinging off towards Punch Bowl Hill, with the moon glinting on rifle barrels.

Hardly had they disappeared when North saw three short individuals who wore white handkerchiefs tied about their left arms. These came running hastily by his hiding place.

"Japs!" he breathed. The stocky, soft-stepping shapes dodged expertly from tree to tree as they observed the progress of the infantry.

"Too late! Too late!" infernal voices gibbered in his ears. "You can't stop this war!"

North felt suddenly sick and shaken . . . but it was with a hasty stride that he presently set off towards the lights of the city, choosing the broadest and best-lit streets.

The hotel night clerk said, a little later, "Mr. Nevins, next time you go out, sir, would you please leave a phone number?"

North, aware that the clerk's eyes were wandering curiously over his dew-soaked and none too clean linen suit, asked why.

"You see, sir," the clerk continued as he passed over the key to 1533, "several people have been trying to get in touch with you. There was a lady here about midnight and waited until an hour ago; said you had an appointment with her."

"What did the lady look like?"

'Blonde and attractive, sir," the clerk said with a grin of esoteric understanding. "She seemed to be right upset when you didn't show up."

"Did she give her name?"

"No, sir, but I know her. She's been here before. Her name's Miss Belknap."

To make sure that it was not Nadia Stefan who had returned, North inquired, "What did she wear?"

"Sport suit of some kind," the clerk replied. "Didn't notice what color."

North pondered, as the elevator shot upwards, on Nadia Stefan and her curious ways. There was an actress! Dangerous as a fer de lance! Seldom had he been taken in quite so skilfully. But for that conveniently half-open door the game would have been hopelessly lost. Despite the red-haired girl's assurances he'd probably have been murdered—they of the O.G.P.U. were not sparing of such final arguments. . . .

He was still revolving the facts in his mind when he unlocked his bedroom door, turned on the light, and, propping a chair under the knob, proceeded to peel off his linen suit. Next he slipped into a dressing gown.

Soon he got a pad of paper and several pencils; then switched out all the room's lights save the one in a corner out of the direct line of both door and windows. No use asking for more trouble than Nadia Stefan would send his way.

Frankly weary, he sank into a chair and began to reconstruct the events of the day while waiting for Kilgour's appearance with the data.

Should he send out a general alarm for Nadia Stefan? No—probably things were so arranged that her organization could and would function without her. At large, she might be made to reveal something useful.

North made a wry face as he recalled Baron von Rentner's stiff-backed figure bending over the nude corpse on Polk's float. It stood to reason Polk must know a lot about this Transpacific affair — does it mean he's in on this present war crisis? Else why would Kanamura, Phedre, von Rentner, and the rest be there at his house?

Kanamura. Yes — this was at least a three-cornered problem: Russia, Japan, and America. It had been Kanamura who had appeared at the morgue, and Kanamura, also, who had snatched from his hands a hard-won victory over the lovely and inscrutable Nadia Stefan. North flushed a little at the thought of her. . . . There was certainly something uncannily haunting about the Russian girl. . . . Well, he wasn't another Wilson Clark—not by a long shot.

The deeply troubled intelligence captain continued to ponder on Nadia Stefan. . . . Why had she been sent to Hawaii? Because it stood to reason that Russia would be interested in a war between Japan and the United States. But just what part in the Honolulu drama did Nadia plan for her country?

He was annoyed to realize how keen was a yearning to see the girl again. . . .

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP).—Western oils and, possibly, the industrials showed slightly more strength than weakness in the early period of today's Toronto Exchange session. Mining groups remained practically unchanged with trading in fair volume. Turnover in the first hour totalled 74,000 shares.

Royalite firmed ½ to 24, Home Oil gained 6 cents to 2.72 and Calgary and Edmonton was up 3 cents to 1.60.

In the food group the gains included ¾ for Loblaw B and ½ for International Milling Pfd. Maple Leaf at 3 was off a fraction. C.P.R. was in demand and the price was up ¼ to 6⅛.

Announcement of a dividend for Naybob brought new buying in that issue and turnover was heavy around 30 to 31 cents. It closed Friday at 31.

The base metals recorded no changes aside from a loss of 10 cents for Ventures to 3.20.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Dressed-weight were down 80 cents at Hull and 75 cents at Stratford in bacon hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight—Hull $10, Stratford $10 plus transportation. The bid price at the Toronto stock yards was $10.65, a drop of 76 cents from the closing price at the livestock market here, Thursday, of $11.40.

Threat of Control Upsets Butter Price

Toronto, Nov. 16—The threat of controlled butter prices counteracted the influence of a bullish stock report and imparted a nervous undertone to the local butter market during the past week.

Ontario butter prices advanced to a new high for the year of 30 1-2c a pound from which level the market soon started to back away when demand subsided after buyers had made substantial purchases. This slower pace was intensified as a nervous undertone developed on the market because fears that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board may take some action to curb higher prices were revived by the announcement last Wednesday that the board had been given authority to fix maximum prices on butter in Canada. Trading for the last three days was barely sufficient to establish a definite market and prices on No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids closed practically nominal at 29 3-4c to 30c a pound. Offerings at the lower price were mainly in small lots, while holders generally asked the latter figure for the larger lots. Western regraded butter was available on spot yesterday at 30 1-4c to 30 1-2c but no interest could be aroused for this product.

Prices turned steadier for fresh eggs under buying for week-end requirements, following the weak trend displayed most of the current week. The local market on top grades closed Friday showing losses of from 3 cents to 6 cents a dozen from the previous week's close. Good demand, however, resulted in modest price improvement in the undergrades. Inspected shipments to Northern Ontario continued light as did l.c.l. shipments to Eastern points. Further export business was reported with five cars going forward from Toronto and nearby points to the seaboard for shipment overseas.

Montreal Produce

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c: first grade solids, jobbing price, 30 1-2c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price. A-large 43c to 45c; A-medium, 39c to 40c; A-pullets 35c; A - large original 28 1-2c to 29c; B-original 27 1-2c; C-original 22c to 23c. Receipts 794 cases.

JAPANESE TROOPS WITHDRAW

Hong Kong, Nov. 16—(AP)—The Chinese Central News Agency reported today that Japanese troops at Langson and Dondang in northern French Indo-China were withdrawing westward to an undisclosed destination.

Japanese trops stationed at Peining and Chialing, near Hanoi, were reported to be erecting barracks, indicating a permanent occupation.

Britain Wants Weapons of All Kinds Says Arthur Purvis

New York, Nov. 16 (AP)—Britain wants "weapons—all kinds of weapons," said Arthur B. Purvis of Montreal, head of the British Purchasing Commission in the United States, as he departed on the Dixie Clipper today for London.

Purvis was en route to the British Capital via Lisbon to report on purchases made here since Nov. 7, 1939.

He said deliveries by United States industry had been "very good."

Then he added that Britain wants "more and more" vital weapons including guns, airplanes and "even ships."

Purvis said that loss of material in transit through sinking or bombings had been "negligible."

Bombing of Coventry May Forecast New Nazi Air Strategy

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Nov. 16 (AP)—The tragic fate of ancient Coventry in England, trampled by a "rolling" air barrage that left 1,000 dead and injured and unestimated destruction, might be a foretaste of revised Nazi air strategy in the west. Or it could be a first German move to help Italy.

Similar heavy attacks on other industrial centres in England's "workshop" Midlands may follow, night by night. They could have a double purpose aside from the damage they inflict.

To some extent they might serve to limit the air power Britain can spare from her beleaguered home front to increase the attack against Italy. They also might help obscure, in the minds of the German and Italian people, the ill success of Italy's adventure in Greece.

A brief foregathering of the Nazi-Fascist military high command at Innsbruck clearly indicates Berlin's concern over the Italian fiasco in Greece, although there is yet no disclosure of what Germany will do about it. Acts rather than words are what will reveal Hitler's purpose. Until it is made known, however, that meeting looks like a time fuse set to explode the Balkan powder barrel.

There is no route by which Germany could march, except through Italy, that would not crack the neutrality barrier thus far carefully preserved by Hitler in the Balkans to protect his precious oil resources in Rumania. Neutral Turkey, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia stand between British bombers, now within close striking distance from Greek bases, and those oil fields. German incursions into any of these nations, on whatever terms would open that door to the Royal Air Force.

Rumania risked that when she invited German army "protective" custody of her oil fields. It is open season for the British bombers there now, but for the Balkan neutrality barrier. That is a factor Berlin must consider in whatever help she extends to Italy.

Yet the situation, so far as axis prestige is concerned, has steadily deteriorated in Greece and in Greek and Italian waters. Unexpectedly tenacious Greek resistance and Britain's prompt and aggressive aid for her little ally have altered both the military and the diplomatic aspects of the war in the East. Hitler is being pushed into perhaps premature action, before his political dealings with Spain, France and Russia can ripen fully.

Certainly Hitler's generals and military staffers went to Innsbruck with contemptuous thoughts for the professional efficiency of their Italian confreres. They would judge them by their works in Greece. And the Germans must realize that getting the British out of their new advance bases in Crete and Southern Greece, bulwarked as they are by water hazards dominated by British war craft, would now be something of a job. It is possible that the Germans actually have told Mussolini he will have to hoe his own row in Greece for the present. Time alone will tell.

ENCIRCLING

eastern corner of Albania, was destroying any plan the Italians may have had of using a route across southern Yugoslavia toward the Greek port of Salonika.

Greek army men claimed the capture of 700 Fascist soldiers and ten heavy guns.

Italians Harassed.

The Italians were reported to be having difficulty mustering sufficient troops to meet the flank attack from Lake Presba as they were heavily harassed by a third Greek force driving straight up the Ionian coast from the islands to the south.

(Presumably this drive also was aimed at Porto Edda and Valona, thus threatening the Italians with a pinchers movement.)

Reports from the south indicated British air attacks on Italian bases in the Dodecanese islands, off the Turkish coast, were increasing in violence.

Travellers from Turkey said many of the islands already were suffering from lack of food and munitions as a result of the British sea blockade, which has been tightened by occupation of Crete.

Raids Decidely Decline.

These Turkish observers said they look for the fall of the Dodecanese and point out that Italian air raids on British and Greek areas which could be directed from these islands had declined decidedly in the last ten days.

The British Expeditionary Force in Crete is less than 50 miles from the nearest Italian island of Caso and within easy reach of all the others.

In Macedonia, too, Italian planes seeking to penetrate behind the Greek lines to bomb strategic Salonika, at the head of the Aegean, were reported to have met with severe losses.

A violent air battle was reported to have swirled about the peak of Mount Olympus, near Salonika, at dawn yesterday, when Greek fighters and eleven Italian planes clashed

Intense infantry, artillery and air activity was reported in all sectors, and Greek bombers were said to have blasted Italian troops in action in addition to shooting down three Fascist planes. Two Greek planes were lost.

The Italian guns were understood to have been taken in the recapture of an important hill, while the prisoners surrendered in the Kalamas River region. A Greek spokesman said the invaders were retreating everywhere, although "quite serious" fighting continued.

Bridge Destroyed

The Royal Air Force in Greece reported that a bridge jammed with Italian re-inforcements was destroyed by British planes near Koritza yesterday. Surprised Fascists were tossed into the water, and "casualties almost certainly were very heavy."

A Royal Air Force pilot who participated in the attack said, "We hit the bridge fair and square, completely wrecking it. The Italian re-inforcements using it suffered heavily."

Also attacked was a motor transport column in the same area, which the R.A.F. bombed and strafed with "many casualties." A farmhouse used as an Italian army headquarter was demolished by bombs.

Yugoslavia Raided

Two British planes were lost in the day's activities, but a pilot said "altogether it was a most successful day."

(Three planes of unidentified nationality raided Bitolj, Yugoslavia, on the frontier near the fighting zone, for the second time last night and Yugoslav anti-aircraft batteries went into action for the first time. No casualties were reported, although six bombs dropped near the railway station. Yugoslav pursuit planes took off but were unable to find the raiders.

(In the first attack on Bitolj on Nov. 5 two persons were killed, five were injured and heavy property damage inflicted by three planes in broad daylight. Both Greeks and Italians disclaimed responsibility.

(Last night the raiders, which lighted the blacked-out city with parachute flares, reportedly came over the Greek-Yugoslav border and flew off to the west, toward Albania.)

Thomas L. Thomas, Baritone, Pleases Concert Audience With His Splendid Voice and Charm of Manner

Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, made his first concert appearance in Canada Friday evening. It was Belleville's unique good fortune to hear this promising radio star and member of the Metropolitan Opera Company in his first Dominion recital. If the impression he made on the audience in the Collegiate Auditorium Friday is an indication of the success of his Canadian tour, Mr. Thomas will add thousands of admirers to his following. Possessing a glorious voice and a personality whose charm melts the barriers of the footlights and makes the artist one with his audience, Mr. Thomas inaugurated the 1940-41 Canadian Concert Series in Belleville with an evening of unforgettable entertainment.

In the absence through military duty of the Association's President, Judge Charles A. Cameron, the Vice President, Mr. W. J. Morrison welcomed the members of the Association gathering for the first time this season. Membership this year was most encouraging, five hundred and thirty-five having registered. This attainment was due to the efforts of the committee and more particularly to the enthusiasm of the Secretary, Miss Leona Riggs, and Mr. Morrison expressed the appreciation of the committee for Miss Riggs' splendid work.

The Concert series this year plays a special part in the war program of the nation since at this time it is necessary to sustain the spirits of the people through the difficult days they are enduring. In connection with war efforts, Mr. Morrison appealed to the audience to participate in the War Savings Stamp campaign as a definite gesture of co-operation with the Dominion's plans as well as an investment for themselves.

With Metropolitan Opera

In introducing the singer Mr. Morrison pointed out that he was a native of Wales, his father being an outstanding musician, a fellow of the Royal Academy of Music. An artist of radio fame whom many in his audience had heard with pleasure in his broadcast programs, Mr. Thomas is now a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. His accompanist was Marino Nardelli.

Mr. Thomas, it will be remembered, was one of the singers chosen as winner of the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air, two of whom are selected each year, ten having been added to the Metropolitan Company since the beginning of the series. At the time of his entry into the competition Mr. Thomas was residing in Scranton and had as a radio and musical comedy singer. That he was one "prophet" who overcame the tradition that he was unknown in his own land was demonstrated in a compelling way when he made his debut at the Metropolitan as Silvio in "Pagliacci". A delegation of fifteen hundred people came from his home town by special train to attend.

Varied Program

To his concert, Mr. Thomas brought a freshness of approach that heightened the pleasure his audience found in the rich beauty of his voice. His program was arranged with a discerning perception and in its composition it contrasted the various nationalities as expressed through the medium of song. Included were the styles characteristic of English, French, Spanish, Italian, Welsh, Irish and the American negro music. Mr. Thomas has exceptional powers of interpretation and dramatic ability which gave full value to the significance of the songs, and he enriched with his personality the lighter, amusing numbers.

For his first group, Mr. Thomas chose four descriptive numbers in English, songs with the charm of a gay and sparkling mood. The encore to this group was in keeping with the theme, "Because I Were Shy." It was in his second group that the artist displayed the full richness of his voice. Its wonderful resonance and depth of tone, that found perfect medium in works of the Italian and French composers he selected. The flexibility of his voice that is one of the special gifts of this young singer, was most apparent in his rendition of these numbers, particularly Fria Aminte and Nina (Pergolesi).

The artistic temperament in this singer leans to the side of good nature, rather than the moodiness associated with musicians. For Mr. Thomas had a supreme test during the evening. In his first two groups he had to compete with a clanking radiator. The persistence and volume of the clatter drowned out his softer notes, and made some of the words of the songs inaudible. But the singer was not daunted. He smiled at his audience, took a deep breath and continued. Through a dozen numbers the soloist and the radiator struggled for mastery. The radiator gave every indication of being faithful forever but during the recital by the pianist, Mr. Nardelli, the miracle happened. After one last crescendo of sound and fury the third performer of the evening admitted defeat and a blessed quiet, broken only by the silvery tones of the piano settled over an audience which had been more upset by the interruption than the artists had.

Interpretive Power.

For his third offering, without the radiator, Mr. Thomas chose an aria from Hamlet (A. Thomas) "O vin dissipe la Tristesse". Deeply expressive, this number had an inspired interpreter in Mr. Thomas. This and succeeding numbers accentuated the full tones of this wonderful voice, and the perfect control exercised by the singer in its handling.

Life, color and gaiety characterized the Spanish numbers on the program, both being the works of de Falla, and the second "Seguidilla" faithfully reflected the fire and brilliance of the Spanish dance. In contrast the Welsh folk songs, the treasury of music that is the Welshman's heritage, were deeply musical or gaily lilting.

Soft and tender were the descriptive passages of "The Cave" which preceded M. Thomas' group of negro spirituals. These including "Down To De Rivah," the muted "Sweet Lil Jesus Boy" and "Daniel in the Lion's Den" poured forth the longings of the negro heart in a way that thrilled and delighted the audience.

Most generous with his encores, Mr. Thomas responded to ovations with American Lullaby, Kitty O'-Toole, Sing a Song of Sixpence, The Glory Road, Rich Man, the merry and delightful aria from the Barber of Seville.

Accomplished Pianist.

In his accompanist, Mr. Marino Nardelli, the singer had a fellow musician of brilliant ability, who sustained the singer in perfect style. An artist in his own right, Mr. Nardelli proved himself a piano soloist of rare attainment in his group which was a most enjoyable part of the evening's entertainment.

DOCKS

"The Rehania Ossag oil refinery and the Bloehm and Voss shipbuilding yards were centres of heavy attacks, as the result of which many fires were observed.

"Away from the docks and on the north side of the city the gasworks at Baambeck were bombed with excellent results. A successful attack was also made against the electric power station in the Altona district as well as against other objectives in the city. Many outbreaks of fire resulted.

"Other aircraft raided Kiel dockyards and the ports of Ostend and Calais. In the course of operations one of our bombers shot down a Messerschmitt 109.

"Aircraft of the Coastal Command were active yesterday (Friday) during the day and at night and made many attacks ranging from Norway to occupied France. The military stores and buildings at Rennes were successfully attacked and also several aerodromes.

A. A. KEEPS

A government communique which described the bombing as "heavy and sustained" declared that "in view of the weight of the attack" the number of dead and injured was smaller than "might have been expected."

While London echoed with the roar of bombs and the staccato bark of anti-aircraft guns, the red glow of fires in ruined Coventry guided other Nazi bombers to new attacks on England's industrial midlands.

A communique, however, said "little damage and few casualties have been reported" from bombed midlands communities and indicated there was no repetition of Thursday night's terrific concentrated assault which left parts of Coventry a rubble heap with more than 1,000 dead and injured.

Towns near London and in southwestern England also were raided.

"Worst Night Yet," Says Worker.

London's ground guns which beat back several attacks early in the night failed to stop the renewed onslaught after midnight. A communique said, however, many of the bombers were kept so high that "accurate bombing was impossible".

Home defence crews worked feverishly throughout the night checking numerous fires in central London.

"This is the worst night yet," one air raid warden said, "at least in numbers".

He said he counted 80 bombers in formation at one time during the raid.

Several apartment buildings crumbled under direct bomb hits, rescuers dug for families in the wreckage. A boarding house was smashed and another bomb wrecked a pub.

Two bombs hit a shop where nearly 100 persons were sheltered in the basement. One smashed through the roof of the building and the other blew in the shop front, showering debris upon those inside.

In the whole shelter there was only one first aid case—a woman who received a slight cut.

A four-storey commercial art gallery in another part of London was smashed into a heap of rubble which spread across a street, blocking traffic.

One large London hotel was pierced by a bomb which crashed through the roof and three floors before exploding. It caused no casualties.

A bank and a suburban hospital were badly damaged by bomb explosions and fire.

In an East Anglian town all but one member of two families trapped in their bomb-hit homes were found dead. A large number of bombs fell in the residential district.

It was feared that a large number of casualties were caused by a lone raider which swooped low over a south coast town, dropping four heavy calibre bombs into a densely populated district.

tricated from the wreckage. Holley died in hospital three hours later.

Police said Holley was driver of the car. The four young persons were pinned beneath the wreckage when the car struck the transport and was hurtled through the air to land on its top several feet away.

45 Feet Through Air

The fatal crash occurred five minutes after two other cars were involved in a minor collision at the same place. Police said the transport, driven by John A. Pike, 17, Stratford, had turned out slightly to pass one of the cars involved in the previous crash, when it was struck by the Holley car.

Holley returned to his home on leave last Wednesday after competing a special course at Ottawa. He was awaiting word as to his next move. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. last April at London and received elementary instructions at the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Club.

Cawthorpe previously taught school at Sebastopol and Ayr. He also had completed the first year of the pass Arts Course at University of Toronto and gave up a law course at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, to enlist.

He first joined the Scots Fusiliers at Kitchener, that unit later affiliating with the Highland Light Infantry. Surviving are his mother and a brother, Capt. Joseph Cawthorpe of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps at Toronto.

R. A. F. Pilot From Belleville Takes Part in Bombing Raids on Berlin

A.C. Sargent, Son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Sargent, Travelled to England on Cattle Boat to Join Flying Forces

ALWAYS AIRMINDED

Blazing another glorious page in the history of Canadian warbirds over Europe is the splendid exploit of Pilot Officer Arthur Clement Sargent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sargent, 4 Highland Avenue.

Piloting his speeding machine through the bullet-ripped skies over the Dutch coast, Sargent and his bomber crew were attacked by two German fighters. The British machine gave battle at once. The action began at 7,000 feet and ended at 6,000.

The rear gunner, who was a South African, pumped several bursts of bullets into one of the attackers, killing the pilot outright and sending his plane down headlong into the sea. The other machine turned tail and went home.

Sargent was trained on Wellington bombers and it was as a captain of a crew of six in one of these machines that he took part in the first raid on Berlin. To his craft was assigned the task of bombing freight yards on the southeast part of the city. The trip took eight hours. Although the defence fire all the way from the Dutch coast was terrific Berlin itself offered no opposition. It showed no searchlights and fired no guns. The city's sole defence was its balloon barrage.

His rear gunner was a great guy, he said. "When we were over Berlin, he flung a half-dozen beer bottles on the town. They were empty of course and made a whistling sound as they fell. Our screaming bombs," he called them.

Also Bombed Kiel and Ruhr

The young pilot officer has taken part in several forays on Kiel and the Ruhr valley. He also helped to fire the Black Forest. Invasion ports he has raided several times and on Le Havre his machine dropped more than 1 1-2 tons of bombs—fourteen 250-pounders—and helped light a fire that could be seen for miles.

Pilot Officer Sargent was airminded from his early boyhood. He took instruction at several training centres and received his pilot's licence in Calgary and other Canadian flying schools. He had many hours to his credit with the Kingston Flying Club.

Thwarted in his attempt to reach England in the usual way, he secured passage on one of the Scott Brothers' cattle boats and was soon in the uniform of the R. A. F. His natural flying ability, initiative and aptitude for learning soon sent him to the top and it was not long before he was an instructor. He was sent to the Isle of Man and other places in this capacity because of his wide knowledge of the art of long-range bombing.

Sargent was born in Parry Sound and had lived with his parents here for a number of years before joining the Royal Air Force.

Barrie, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Pte. Antoine Simon, 25, Indian member of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Canadian Active Service Force, was killed last night when he walked in front of a freight locomotive at the town station. His unit is stationed at nearby Camp Borden.

Police said they believed that Simon, who formerly lived at Rouyn, Que., was blinded with the locomotive headlight and walked on the track.

On the soldier's person were found a ticket for weekend leave from the camp and a railway ticket to North Bay.

OBITUARY

REV. J. J. KEELEY
(Formerly of Marmora)

Marmora, (Special) — Residents of Marmora and parishioners of Sacred Heart Church, learned with deep regret on Friday of the passing of a former highly respected parish priest in the person of Rev. Father J. J. Keeley, whose death occurred in Montreal. Rev. Father Keeley was resident in Marmora from 1928 to 1938 when illness forced his retirement.

The deceased clergyman succeeded Rev. Father J. J. O'Reilly upon the latter's appointment to the parish of Trenton, and in addition to faithful service to his church, showed a practical interest in the welfare of the village. The funeral took place at Kingston on Saturday.

CLARENCE L. GOODMAN
(Contributed)

There passed away at his home 6th Concession Tyendinaga, Clarence Lee Goodman after an illness of some duration borne with patience and resignation, although he had been able to be around the house until the last two weeks when he was compelled to keep his bed. Medical skill and loving hands could do no more and he passed peacefully away Tuesday, Nov. 5th.

The late Mr. Goodman was born 72 years ago in Tyendinaga township being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goodman. He followed the occupation of farming all his life until ill health prevented five years ago.

Mr. Goodman was a member of the R. B. P. at Foxboro and a member of the L.O.L. Shannonville for over fifty years. He leaves to mourn his loss his wife (formerly Edna Parks) and three sons James, Alton and Lee all at home. One brother Fred Goodman, Milford, a brother Benton Goodman, Greenfield passed away three months ago and a sister Lottie one month ago.

The funeral which was largely attended was held from his late residence Friday afternoon, Nov. 8th., Rev. G. T. McKenzie conducted the service in the home and at the graveside. Mrs. A. F. Hall sang an appropriate solo "When I Come to the End of the Day."

The L.O.L. held their service at the graveside in Shannonville cemetery, the bearers all being members of that fraternity, S. Sherman, E. Whiteman, F. Bennett, J. Weese, J. R. Emerson, W. Sherry.

The beautiful floral tributes bore silent testimony to one whose memory will long linger among family, relatives and friends.

New Bacon Prices May be Announced Over Weekend

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—(CP)—An announcemnet is expected over the week-end from the Bacon Board on the new prices the Board will pay the packers for Wiltshire sides for export to the United Kingdom based on the new bacon agreement Agriculture Minister Gardiner described in the Commons this week. The Minister did not divulge the exact prices the British Food Ministry would be paying for Canadian bacon.

In the meantime the Board has advised the packers direct of the new prices with the result that the market for dressed hogs dropped 7. cents for 100 pounds today in Stratford, Ont., and Hull, Que.

On November 2 the Board reduced the prices for Wiltshire sides by 70 cents per 100 pounds in anticipation of lower prices in the new agreement. The Board price announced then for No. 1 sizeable Wiltshire sides F.O.B. Montreal was $17 per 100 pounds.

months, fearful of running the British blockade.

What caused them to turn back was not known. Waterfront sources suggested they might have returned to stand by the stricken Orinoco, largest of the four vessels.

The origin of the reported fire on the Phrygia also was unknown, but Villasana said it was possible its crew had set it ablaze when the ship encountered warships (presumably British) in the Gulf.

The Orinoco carried a crew of 200 and the other vessels 40 men each.

Given Clearance

The ships obtained clearance papers late yesterday, three of them giving the Canary Islands as their destination, and the fourth, Vigo, Spain.

Shipping circles speculated that they might be planning to keep a rendezvous with a German war vessel.

Reports of German warships in Caribbean waters have been prevalent for some time.

(Shipping circles in New York heard unconfirmed reports last night that the 2,297-ton German freighter Helgoland, which slipped out of Barranquilla, Colombia, Oct. 28, had been sung by a British warship in the Caribbean.)

36 Diplomas Granted at Commencement Exercises

Feature of Program is Play Presented by School Students

Picton, Nov. 16.—Commencement exercises at Picton Collegiate and Vocational Institute Friday evening, saw thirty-six diplomas presented. Of these, sixteen were High School graduation diplomas.

A feature of the program, presided over by Carson Hubbs, president of the school board, was a play "Hist, She's a Man". The cast consisted of Dorothy Cooper, John Walton, Woodrow Blakely, Ruth Roblin, Patsy Pope, Alex Carman and Bill Wills.

A display of war work, including a quilt, knitted articles, hospital supplies and rag dolls, showed the fine work being done by the students for the Red Cross. The Glee Club, directed by Miss M. Caughey, gave patriotic numbers. The valedictory address was given by Borge Kraglund, Principal J. E. Andoff replying.

The McGowan scholarship awarded the student of Picton Public School making highest marks in Entrance examinations was presented to Jack Walmsley by J. A. Maher, who also presented the Old Boys' medals, for highest pupils in the county to Jack Walmsley, Dorothy Knapman and Barbara Grindrod.

Students receiving Commercial diplomas were Howard Armstrong, Fredrica Frederick, Mary Gentile Mary Havery, Evelyn Scott.

Judge E. H. McLean presented a number of scholarships and prizes. Upper School scholarships for highest standing in best seven papers were won by Borge Kroglund, four first class and three second class honours; Harry Dulmage, Marian Fraleigh, Margaret Hazel.

Zilda Cook was awarded the McCabe bequest, given the student from P.C.V.S. entering the University of Toronto with highest honors.

Memorial scholarships from the War Memorial Fund were presented Theda Anderson, Lela Varty, Jean Mason, Eleanor Goodmurphy, in middle school; Leroy Sanders, Donald Sanders, Mary Havery, in Commercial school.

Theda Anderson received a 75 Club pin awarded students with an average of 75 per cent or over for three years. Marian Fraleigh and Borge Kraglund were named best all-round students and received crest pins.

OFFICERS' CLASS AT THE AIRPORT NOW FINISHED

FOUR WEEKS' COURSE

Trenton, Nov. 16—Without ceremony another clas sof administrative officers concluded its four-week course, here yesterday and left this morning to take over various administrative duties at the many air stations, depots and training schools connected with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Administration within the framework of the B.C.A.P. is of prime importance and is comparable to that introduced into any large business organization for efficient management. It is desirable, that the officers charged with the responsibility of operating the many schools for training pilots air observers and air gunners and the various other schools and depots have a complete knowledge of the system prevailing in the R.C.A.F.

The school of administration was established at the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton, for the production of the necessary officer personnel, who will assume administratives in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. The officers for the school are carefully selected from applications made to the R.C.A.F. since the war began. Only officers, who are unable to serve in a combatant capacity as pilots, air observers, and air gunners are chosen for the course. Those who have had experience of administration in civil life are given preference although many officers are taken from the R.C.A.F.

Week of Examinations

The course which extends over a period of four weeks is one, that ordinarily would last for eight weeks or even longer and the officers generally have a considerable amount of work to do each night, in addition to the work in the daytime. The first three weeks they are given lectures on the administrative law and other regulations, while the fourth week they try examinations.

Wing Commander F. J. Mawdesley is in command of the school and is assisted by Sqd. Ldr. H. H. Atkinson, Sqd. Ldr., W. G. Webber, Sqd. Ldr., W. G. Dever, and Flt. Lt., E. B. Pitblado.

The class is made up of many very prominent men Flying Officer George C. McCullagh, President and Publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail and Flying Officer W. G. Claxton D.S.O., D.F.C., are both in the Administration School.

DIES FROM BURNS

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—(CP)—Mrs. Annie Butler, 75-year-old native of Ottawa, suffered fatal burns Friday when a newspaper she was reading caught fire from an electric heater.

Mrs. Butler's screams as her clothing burned brought other roomers in the building to her assistance. They rushed her to hospital but she died from shock and burns a few hours later.

An inquest will be held. Surviving are three sons, James P., John A. and Rod E. and a sister, Mrs. B. J. Gilligan, all of Ottawa.

Chester Morris and Jane Wyatt in a scene from the adventure drama, "Girl From God's Country," next at the McCarthy Theatre. "London Can Take," will also be presented during the engagement.

With the Italian end of the Axis reeling under heavy blows by land, air and sea, German leaders worked at top speed in the 63rd week of the war in preparation for the next undertaking of the Nazi war machine.

From Moscow and Madrid came the chief lieutenants of the dictators of Russia and Spain, countries which hold important places in German calcualtions, while in Innsbruck the chiefs of staff of the German and Italian armies met to discuss military aspects of Berlin's program.

The crippling by British naval aircraft of half of Italy's battleship strength and the continued bad fortunes of the Italian army fighting the Greeks tended to make Italy more and more the junior partner of the Axis, but also guaranteed her full co-operation in any joint venture that would divert attention from the Fascist route in the hills of Northern Greece.

The journey to Berlin of Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Stalin's chief adviser, was in return for the Moscow visit last year of Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Hitler's foreign minister. Stalin's chief fear is known to be the possibility of the German army bein turned against him, and in the absence of information to the contrary it must be assumed that was the chief consideration governing Molotoff's position in the Russo-German talks.

Speculation Rife.

From Spain to the German capital went Ramon Serrano Suner, foreign minister and Gen. Franco's brother-in-law. His journey naturally revived speculation that the Nazis still are working on their reported plan to combine an offensive through the Balkans into the Near East with a thrust at Gibraltar and North Africa through the Iberian peninsula.

While a few weeks ago it looked as if the Germans might obtain a measure of co-operation in their plans from the Petain-Laval regime at Vichy, indignation over the expulsion of the French-speaking population of Lorraine, the progress of the Free French movement in central Africa, and continued mystery surrounding the activities of Gen. Weygand in North Africa contributed to making Vichy's position far less certain.

The extensive damage inflicted on the Italian battle fleet at Taranto was described by Prime Minister Churchill as not only affecting the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean but likely to influence sea warfare problems in all the oceans.

Coming as it did while the Italians were being driven back in disorder by the Greeks, the Taranto episode is regarded as an important factor in the question of Italian morale. In the same week the Italian forces took the worst of several skirmishes with British troops in the Sudan and over the Thames estuary Italian fliers operating from France were severely mauled by the Royal Air Force, thirteen Italian planes being shot down with no British losses.

Another Week of Raids

It was just another week of air raiding for London, but in the Midlands the ancient city of Coventry received the severest single night of bombing any British town has had. Sections of Coventry were left in ruins and about 1,000 townspeople were killed or wounded. On the other side of the fighting, British bombers made their first attack on war-away Danzig and renewed the bombing of Berlin and cities in southern Italy.

Glancing Back 25 Years:

Prime Minister Asquith announced Nov. 11, 1915, that the strategic conduct of Britain's war effort would be committed to a War Committee of the Cabinet made up of himself, David Lloyd George, Andrew Bonar Law, Arthur Balfour and Reginald McKenna.

The week of Nov. 10-16, 1915, saw little change in the positions of the armies on the French and Russian fronts but the armies of the Central Powers continued to force Serbian troops to retreat southward.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop, pop taking his umbrella on account of it looking partly like rain, and he went in a cigar store for a Queen Billie cigar and about 2 blocks further I said, G pop, where's your umberella?

By gollies I left it back there in the cigar store, pop said. That's not like me, that's just like you. It's just another proof that we cant help conforming to the company we keep, he said.

And we went back to the cigar store and pop started to look around and the cigar man said, If you're looking for an umbrella a little fellow just walked out of here with an umberella and I didn't notice he had one when he came in, I thought it was a little funny at the time, he said, and pop said, I dont think it's at all funny at this time.

And we went out again, pop saying, It's a wicked world and up to the present moment of recorded history the wicked people seem to walk off with all the prizes.

Meaning such as his umberella, and I said, G, pop, that must be him now, right in front of us, look at the handle.

Being a little man with a umberella walking kind of fast as if he was trying to hide a gilty conscience, and pop said, That's it all right, I'd know that handle anywhere.

And he reached and put his hand on the man's shoulder, saying, Pardon me but I believe that's my umberella you have there.

Oh, really? I'm so rorry, a naturel mistake I'm sure, the man said. Here, take it by all means, he said. And he stuck it at pop and quick kept on going, pop saying, For Peet sake this isn't mine after all, this handle has somebody's initials on it and it looks like real silver. By gollies he must of stolen it from somebody elts and he wasn't sure who. Well well, it's still a wicked world but the honest man gets an occasional break, he said.

Meaning himself.

Prepare New Line Of Defence 25 Miles From Front

130 Italian Tanks Are Cut Off on Mountain Road

Athens, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Italians sent wave after wave of infantry crashing against the Greek mountain positions today in an effort to prevent the capture of Koritza, Fascist invasion base, but the Greeks reported they repelled all attacks and gained new ground as well.

In their desperate attempt to thwart the Greek ring of steel being drawn around this most important city in Albania, the Italians were said also to have thrown a large force of dive-bombers into the battle.

The Greek Air Force, aided by Britain's Royal Air Force, itself bombed Italian positions heavily and pummelled troop-jammed roads leading out of Koritza, which is ten miles inside Albania.

Italian Planes Downed.

Dispatches from the Yugoslav border said twelve Greek and R.A.F. fighter planes engaged fifteen Italian bombers near the frontier in one clash, with two of the Italian machines being shot down.

Greeks reported Italian mechanized columns were hopelessly trapped north of Koritza and foreign sources said one column of 130 Italian tanks had fled into Yugoslavia.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from the Greek-Yugoslav frontier said 600 Italian troops and 130 tanks crossed the border and surrendered to Yugoslav authorities last night.)

The hard-pressed Italians were reported falling back from Koritza to a new defence line 25 miles deep in Albania.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The sun in winter! Due to the curvature of the spherical earth the sun's rays strike the earth's surface perpendicularly only over a narrow band within the tropics. Outside the tropics, no matter what season, the sun's rays strike the earth slantingly. The farther north of the Tropic of Cancer or the farther south of the Tropic of Capricorn, the more slanting are the rays. They must therefore penetrate greater depths of atmosphere, thus considerably weakening their effect. So in winter we get not only fewer hours of sunshine but less intensity also.

Precautions Taken To Guard Factory Under Construction

Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP)—Douglas Aircraft Company officials said today elaborate precautions will be taken to protect their projected $11,000,000 factory at Long Beach from any possible attack by enemy aircraft.

Defence features included:

Camouflage landscaping and "light traps" to make the plant nearly invisible day and night.

Underground storage rooms for airplanes, materials and equipment.

Bombproof shelters for its estimated 15,000 employees.

A railroad terminal entered by double tracks passing through "light proof" doors.

A parking lot connected with the plant by underground passageways.

This "black out" factory will be built on a 200-acre plot near the Long Beach municipal airport and will include 4,422,350 square feet of production space.

President Donald W. Douglas said 9,000 tons of steel are en route for the construction and the plant should be ready to produce bombing and fighting planes by next summer.

Pope Pius Will Broadcast Nov. 24

Ottawa, (CP)—External rest for those who have died as a result of war, comfort for exiles, refugees and prisoners of war and restoration of peace with tranquillity and prosperity will be the objects of a crusade of prayer in which Roman Catholic clergy and laity throughout the world will participate next Sunday.

The crusade is in response to an appeal from Pope Pius XII and it was announced in Ottawa churches yesterday in the reading of a letter from Archbishop Alexander Vachon, Bishop of Ottawa.

Due to a transmission error The Canadian Press reported last night the crusade would be held next Monday.

Vatican City, Nov. 18 (AP).—Pope Pius will broadcast Nov. 24 an important speech in which he is expected to appeal for peace, prelates said today. The speech will be delivered immediately after he celebrates Mass in St. Peter's Basilica.

The pontiff has proclaimed the day—next Sunday—a day of special prayer for peace.

HAMBURG CENTRE OF OFFENSIVE BY ROYAL AIR FORCE

War-Vital Industries of This Famous Port Are Left in Shambles

ARMY AIR ARM FORMED

Sir A. S. Barratt Chosen to Head New Army Co-operation Command

London, Nov. 18 (CP). — Germany's war-vital industries in which the rich Ruhr valley were reported attacked heavily today by the Royal Air Force in a quick follow-up of week-end blows at axis ports from Hamburg, Germany, to Mogadiscio, Somaliland.

The Air Ministry said the main force of the British offensive last night was directed at the oil refineries of Gelsenkirchen, near the Netherlands border.

Other planes bombed the industrial targets in the Ruhr, it said, rail and river communications in the western part of the Reich, the naval base at Lorient, in Nazi-occupied Brittany, and airdromes in occupied territory.

Even as the fliers struck, the R. A. F. high command was shuffled to give the army and air arm more nearly its own, concentrate the

LAST OF CONVOY ARRIVES IN PORT

Battered San Marina Set Afire by Nazi Raider, Reaches Port Without Loss of Crew

London, Nov. 18 (C.P. Cable)—The last of 38 vessels scattered in mid-Atlantic by a German raider, and defended by the H.M.S. Jervis Bay in her "suicide" stand, was accounted for Sunday.

She was the battered tanker San Marina, and she pulled into a British port manned by 16 of her crew who had navigated her without charts.

The vessel was the 34th. to reach port safely. Four are known to be lost.

The tanker was set afire by the raider and abandoned by her crew. Sixteen drifted in a lifeboat for 36 hours in the vicinity of the blazing ship and finally managed to board her again and put out the fire.

They guided the vessel to port although all navigation charts had been destroyed. Only four of her crew are missing, the remainder having been picked up previously.

Air Patrols Half Way to Europe Part of U.S. Defence Plans

Washington, Nov. 18 —The United States Navy is buttressing defense in the Atlantic with warplanes which can fly half-way to Europe in search of enemy surface fleet.

They are designed for long-distance patrol work, to flash back a wireless alarm of any hostile threat. They are designed also for heavy bombing, to make attacks on enemy ship concentrations, supply bases and aviation depets.

The airplanes are rolling off the assembly line in big volume and their manufacture begins to throw some light on the defense strategy of the navy which faces the problem of hemisphere defense in the absence, for the present, of a two-ocean fleet.

The navy has been secretive about Atlantic defense. A key to its plans has been letting of huge contracts for long-range patrol bombers for quick production, while shipyards get geared to the infinitely slower job of turning out more surface vessels.

Bases acquired from Great Britain in a trade for fifty United States destroyers and probably other bases which will become available in Latin-America, in addition to United States ports, will be used by the new fleet of bombers.

The patrol bombers are much like the clipper planes, plying between United States and Portugal. They carry heavy defensive armament and a formidable load of bombs at a cruising speed of more than 200 miles an hour.

Largest single contract for this type of plane recently was placed with the Glenn L. Martin Company, a pioneer flying-boat builder, at Baltimore. The $106,125,000 being spent at the Martin Company will provide approximately 400 of the planes, bi-motored and equipped with an odd-shaped "gull" wing.

With Tears in Eyes Lewis Asks Convention To Support Successor

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 18 (AP)—John L. Lewis, with tears in his eyes, told convention delegates of the C.I.O. today that he was stepping down as their President, and urged them to unite their ranks and support whomever they name as his successor.

To a hushed throng which a few minutes earlier had given him a thunderous ovation, Lewis said:

"I won't be with you long. I have done my work and in a few days I'll be out of this office."

Town on S.E. Coast Of Britain Bombed

London, Nov. 18—(CP)—German planes damaged houses and caused "a few" casualties in the counties near London today in daylight raids which the Air Ministry described as minor.

London, Nov. 18 (CP)—Sirens shrieked London's first air raid warning of the day shortly after the noon hour today.

Sky raiders struck vigorously at Britain's south coast during the night and one town in the south-east was reported to have suffered its heaviest bombing of the war.

Several persons were said to have been killed. A town on the south-west coast also was hard hit by raiders which dropped ten high explosive bombs and many incendiaries. Many civilians were found dead in the wreckage.

The "raiders passed" signal ended the nightly London raid after dawn. The attacks on the capital were described as recurrent, but not of the heaviest type. Heavy calibre bombs were dropped in the outskirts.

The government reported damage to "a number of dwelling houses" in the London area and in several towns along the English Channel. "Casualties were not heavy, but some people were killed," a communique said.

The raiders also dropped fire bombs and flares on Liverpool.

The raiders passed signal sounded shortly after London's noon day alarm sounded.

Heavy gunfire shook towns on the English Channel when British and German long-range guns duelled across the misty Dover Strait this afternoon.

SUNER ARRIVES TO TAKE PART IN AXIS CONFERENCE

SPAIN MAY MOVE

Berchtesgaden, Germany, Nov. 18 (AP).—Foreign ministers of Germany, Italy and Spain met today in this city near Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat where many conferences of far-reaching import in the past have been held.

Informed sources in Berlin said Hitler would have individual talks with the Spanish and Italian visitors and then hold a joint conference, probably later today.

Observers interpreted the visit of the Spaniard, Ramon Serrano Suner, as indicating that Falangist Spain now is in the axis camp and apparently ready to take a more active part in developments.

(Berne diplomatic circles reported axis plans for drives on Greece and Gibraltar were to be discussed by German-Italian and Spanish leaders.)

Kingston Acquires Another Industry

Montreal, Nov. 18—(CP)—Canadian Industries Limited announced today a site near Kingston, Ont., has been chosen for the construction of a $1,500,000 plant which will manufacture nylon, synthetic textile fibre.

The 100-acre site, two miles west of Kingston City limits and fronting Lake Ontario, was selected after surveys had been made in a number of eastern Canadian areas.

COAST GUARD TO JOIN FLEET

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 18—(AP)—The United States Coast Guard cutter Jackson from Rochester, accompanied by the cutter Dix of Erie, Pa., sailed today toward the St. Lawrence River to become part of the Atlantic naval auxiliary fleet. The two will rendezvous with the cutter Legare off Oswego, N.Y. The Jackson and Legare will go to the Norfolk navy yard and the Dix to Boston.

RCAF CONFIDENT MISSING MEN WILL BE FOUND

INTENSIVE SEARCH

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP). — Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters expected momentarily today to hear from five men who abandoned their Atlantic patrol plane over the rugged East Lake district of Quebec on Saturday night and have been unreported since.

Only one of the six-man crew of the big Digby bomber—Fo. U. J. H. Leblanc—is known definitely to be safe. He reported yesterday afternoon that he had landed by parachute near East Lake, about 100 miles roughly northeast of Quebec in the Riviere du Loup section.

Missing are Flt. Lt. G. F. Clay of New Westminster, B.C.; Fo. J. G. Richardson, Saskatoon, Sask.; Lac. H. E. Howard, Aylesford, N.S.; Lac. E. J. Benoit, Ottawa; and Ac. Elmer Johnson, Winnipeg.

Mussolini's Charge Denied in London

London, Nov. 18—(CP Cable)—Mussolini's charge in a speech at Rome today that Greece last May offered Britain the use of her naval bases was denied in official circles here.

These circles regarded the speech as designed for home consumption with the main motive to counteract a reported feeling of uneasiness among Italians after the Greek campaign failed to develop according to plan.

The speech was described as an extraordinary effort. For example Mussolini's lengthy justification of the truth of Italian communiques were regarded as queer. It was authoritatively commented that if Prime Minister Churchill ever spent his speech-time on that sort of tactics, the nation would feel definitely uneasy.

50 BILLIONS SPENT ANNUALLY BY SIX MAJOR NATIONS

Britain Has Increased Her Spending to 20 Billions and is Leader

U. S. BUDGET SECOND

What War and Threat of War Actually Costing Can Only be Estimated

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP). — A survey of the billions being poured out by the world's great powers for military implements indicated today that the United States has barely started spending on the modern mechanized fighting machine planned for defence.

The best available statistics, by no means complete, place the minimum current arms expenditures of the six major nations at close to $50,000,000,000 annually. The outlays of numerous smaller countries would send the total higher, and no one has yet begun to estimate the monetary value of the lost lives, destroyed wealth and devastated areas in those nations bearing the brunt of war.

Embattled Britain, for example, has recently increased her spending to a rate of nearly $20,000,000,000 annually, or as much as all of the United Kingdom's 47,000,000 people earned in a pre-war year.

Figures Not Available.

In Canada, with a national income of about $4,000,000,000, the armament budget for the current year is about $810,000,000. Figures for other countries of the British Empire are not available.

What war and the threat of war are actually costing the world can only be guessed at from fragmentary information. Government authorities say that Germany has published no budgets for the last

Dakar Still Looms Large, Says Edouard Jonas

Halifax, Nov. 18 (CP)—Failure of the "Free French" forces to take Dakar is attributed by Edouard Jonas—by his own assertion a leader in the movement headed by General Charles De Gaulle—to "either too quick or not quick enough action." If the move had been taken in July, there might have been success, he said.

M. Jonas, a member of the prewar French Chamber of Deputies, was in Halifax last night en route to New York where he will confer with Eugene Houdry, Chief of the Free French forces in America.

"We don't want any more mistakes like that in Dakar," he said in a determined voice. "That's one reason why I can't tell you much about why I'm in America. There was too much talk in advance before Dakar. Everyone in London knew about it beforehand."

According to the picture painted by M. Jonas, Dakar still looms big on the International scene. "We must get Dakar," he said, "and that's most important so far as you here in America are concerned."

Mussolini Denies Claims of British Fleet at Taranto

Says Preparation of War Began When League Voted Economic Sanctions On Italy For Invasion of Ethiopia

Rome, Nov. 18 (AP).—Mussolini told his Fascist chiefs today that the Italians must be prepared for "more severe" sacrifices and said he would "never turn back" in the Greek campaign.

"We have 1,000,000 men under arms," he declared on the fifth anniversary of economic sanctions against Italy which grew out of the Ethiopian campaign, "and we could call 8,000,000 more."

In his first speech since Italy's declaration of war June 10, Mussolini denied that half of Italy's battle ships were put out of action for a long time in an air raid on the naval base at Taranto last week.

Acknowledge Three Hits.

He acknowledged that three Italian ships were hit, but said "none was sunk and only one of them—as the bulletin of our armed forces announced — was seriously damaged and its repair will require a long time."

"It is false, I say, that two other warships and two auxiliary vessels were sunk or hit or damaged even slightly in any way," Mussolini asserted. "It is a sign of bad conscience, this enlargement and multiplication by six of the success which we acknowledged."

(Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons Nov. 13 that

Munitions Minister Guest

Ottawa, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Munitions Minister Howe will be guest of honor tonight when manufacturers, operators and affiliates of the aircraft industry gather at a reception of the Air Transport Association of Canada.

At the Minister's office it was said Mr. Howe was not expected to speak at the reception.

Plans to Promote Western Hemisphere Solidarity

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—A new move to promote western hemisphere solidarity will be started Jan. 1 when the National Broadcasting Company makes available to 20 Latin-American nations many of its short-wave programs.

John F. Royal, NBC Vice President in charge of International Relations, announced yesterday that the Broadcasting Company would permit a number of local radio stations in the countries below the Rio Grande to pick up and re-broadcast at no cost the extensive short-wave Latin-American programs of NBC. The programs include news events told in Spanish and Portuguese.

"The service we announce today will be one to foster understanding of American aims and policies, and our ways of life," said Royal.

HITLER CALLS FOR HIGHER BIRTHRATE

Berlin, Nov. 18 (CP)—Hitler called for an increase in the German birthrate today to replace war casualties and promised that if Germany should win the war a gigantic home-building program will be put into effect.

The preamble to a decree signed by Hitler read:—

"The successful outcome of this war will present a task to the German Reich which can be fulfilled only by an increase in the population. It is necessary that holes which are made by the war in the body of the nation be closed by an increase in the birth rate.

"The building of new German homes is a pre-condition for healthy families with many children.

"The Fuehrer will appoint a commissar who will begin immediately to make plans for the erection of 300,000 homes in the first post-war year."

78 Freighters Completed by Britain In First Nine Months of 1940

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Despite air attacks on her seaports, Britain completed at least eighty-four new merchant ships, most of them fast freighters, during the first nine months of 1940, an unofficial survey of British shipbuilding showed today.

By way of contrast, during the same period the United States launched approximately thirty-three vessels.

New British ships aggregated at least 426,500 tons.

At the same time, naval sources said, British shipyards completed many of the 100 destroyers and light cruisers and 20 escort and scouting vessels she was known to have had on the ways when the war began.

The new merchant ships included seventy-eight freighters averaging between 5,000 and 8,000 tons, four tankers and two passenger vessels. One British port alone produced twenty-two vessels, and has almost a score on the ways.

Sir William Isherwood said recently on arrival here that "we are building ships like you people build autos—with assembly-line methods."

BELLEVILLE YOUTHS WANTED IN NAPANEE

Wanted in Napanee on charges of theft and shoplifting, two local lads, Roy Thompson, Front Street, and George Miller, 292 Coleman Street, were arrested over the week-end by Detective Fred Isard and held for the Napanee authorities. On Sunday Chief Thos. Moore, of Napanee, arrived in the city with warrants for the accused men and they were taken to Napanee to face the above charges. Chief Moore revealed the men were charged with the stealing of gloves and other minor small articles of wearing apparel.

CAR TURNS OVER, WOMEN INJURED

Skidding on the icy pavement directly in front of the R.C.A.F. base near Trenton Saturday night an automobile driven by Gnr. Fred Nickiforuk, of the R.C.A. stationed at Petawawa, turned completely over into the ditch resulting in injuries being sustained by two passengers. Mrs. Fred Marshall, Oshawa, sustained a fractured collar bone, while Miss Mary Lindsay of Toronto, received a nasty cut on her left leg that needed four stitches to close. The vehicle was proceeding westerly when it skidded on the ice-covered highway into the ditch where it came to rest on its top. Two other persons and the driver escaped without injury, but the automobile was badly damaged. Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch reported after investigation.

The two injured ladies received first aid treatment at the R.C.A.F. hospital and later the party resumed their journey to Oshawa.

PETTY THIEVING REPORTED IN CITY

Two cases of petty thieving were reported to the city police over the week-end, one resulting in a valuable watch being picked up in a local jewelry store. Mr. J. O. McCurdy, local jeweller, told police Saturday that two youthful miscreants had entered his store and were looking at watches. When they left Mr. McCurdy missed a Bulova watch valued at $25.00. A description of the pair was afforded the authorities.

Mr. S. McBride, of the Haines Shoe Store Company, reported the theft of a fountain pen to the police over the week-end also. Mr. McBride told police that a man had entered the store and stood loitering near the company office. When he left, so did a fountain pen. Here, also, a good description of the party believed responsible was afforded the police.

POLICE DOG PUPPY IN CITY POUND

Thomas Thorne, custodian of the city dog pound, is in possession of a fine police dog puppy, which he found wandering at large near the intersection of Queen and Albert streets over the week-end. There was no collar or dog tag carried by the canine. The animal will be held until tomorrow, when it will be destroyed, unless claimed by an owner.

GULLS ESCORT WOUNDED MEMBER DOWN THE RIVER

A grey squadron of gulls, wings flashing as they swooped and dived over the waters of the Moira, near the lower city bridge Sunday afternoon, formed a cordon about a wounded member of the flock as it slowly drifted down stream. The bird had apparently been wounded by a gun-shot or struck by a stone from the hands of a callous individual.

One of its wings had been disabled and the injured bird tried pitifully to "take off" from the surface of the water. Its efforts brought it approximately two feet in the air when it would fall back into the water.

Overhead, its grey companions soared, wheeling and diving towards the water as if in an effort to assist their injured companion. Uttering raucous cries, the grey squadron dipped low over the bird as it vainly attempted to rise from the water.

Last seen, the flock was escorting the gull towards the mouth of the river, where it gradually disappeared from view.

INQUEST ADJOURNED UNTIL DECEMBER 18

The adjourned inquest looking into the death of Percival Furrs, Napanee trucker, who was killed in a motor accident near Marysville on October 18th, last, was further enlarged by Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson today owing to the inability of witnesses to attend. The inquest was adjourned until December 18th. next, Sergeant Arthur Booth informed the jury personally today. The adjourned inquest was to have been held tonight, but as several of the key witnesses are still indisposed it would have been impossible to continue this evening, thus the further adjournment was necessary.

BRITISH CHILDREN TO BE INCLUDED

Members of the Imperial Veterans' Association here will extend their annual Christmas festivities to include British war guests at present residing in the city and district, it was decided at a recent meeting. Ordinarily, the Christmas Tree and its load of seasonal gifts and candies, etc., has been confined to children of members only, but officers and members passed a resolution to include British children here as a result of the war.

Funds for the project will be derived from those accumulated during the summer from the Association's social functions. The regular sale of tickets for draws on poultry will not be held this year, members deciding to use club funds now on hand. Those having British children in their homes are requested to leave their names with Mr. Joseph Samaine at the County Courthouse.

Heavy Run Of Herring Expected

South Bay, Nov. 18 —Held at their wharfs, while great seas swept across the lake for many hours, Point Traverse commercial fishermen have retrieved their nets in an undamaged condition, despite the great storm that sent lake freighters seeking shelter.

The Point Traverse fishing colony it is expected, will be a beehive of activity next week. The annual fall run of herring which gather in great schools to spawn, it is believed will be at its heaviest within a few days. The catches of these fish are expected to be heavy and fishermen are hoping for favorable winds and weather during the harvest.

Whitefish Spawning

The annual run of whitefish which seek the shoal waters of the shores to spawn has commenced. Although the lifts of whitefish are not heavy as yet, fishermen expect that the fish will be spawning heavily next week.

Fall white fishing is a very hazardous occupation, and many lives have been taken in this manner, as well as great loss to fishing gear.

Shipping Season At Local Port Nearly Completed

With the end of November still almost two weeks away, already the 1940 shipping season is about concluded at the Belleville harbor. Only two or three more gasoline boats are expected in to fill the huge storage tanks at the waterfront and the navigation season season will be closed for this year, stated Harbormaster Joseph Waddell on Monday morning.

The Glen Allan, the only freighter to make regular calls at the Belleville harbor, is tied up at the Government Dock with her crew making her ready for the winter months. This will be the first winter for the Glen Allan to stay over in Belleville, as under her former ownership, Picton had always been her headquarters.

Not a boat remains in the inner harbor, with owners of pleasure-loving craft all having removed their boats from the water for the winter months. The "Edamena," owned by R. W. Hart, the only large pleasure craft to make Belleville waters its home and the only boat to tie up at the Government Dock last winter will again tie up in Belleville for the winter, this year bearing marks as the result of the windstorm which visited this district last week. Lying tied up in the harbor, the "Edamena" slipped her anchor during the gale and pounding on the dock broke several planks in her hull. The damage was temporarily repaired by the application of a metal patch over the broken place.

TRENTON

T. H. S. Students Will Send Christmas Gifts To Former Members

Trenton.—Trenton High School students will send Christmas presents to ex-students of the school who are now serving with His Majesty's Forces overseas. The presents will be purchased from funds secured during the recent wastepaper drive.

A large number of ex-students joined up with the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment at the outbreak of war and are now serving overseas. Many others have joined the Royal Canadian Air Force. Six commissioned officers and one nursing sister will receive special gifts from the students.

Trenton High School girls are doing their bit towards the prosecution of the war. The girls have been formed into two branches of Junior Red Cross Society.

Grades Twelve and Thirteen girls comprise the one branch with the name of "Beaver" while Grade Eleven A and B have formed themselves into a group under the name of "Spitfires."

Miss Marvell Campbell, is president of the Beavers, with Eleanor Ireland as Vice-President; Evelyn Donnelly as Secretary; Norma Dillen as Treasurer and Beckie Gitelman as Circulation Manager.

The Spitfires chose Phyllis Hendricks as President; Alice Wilkins as Vice-President; Audrey Maybee as Secretary; Phyllis VanAlstine as Treasurer and Dorothy Donnelly as Circulation Manager.

The funeral of the late infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Westlake of Frankford, took place on Saturday from the home of the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Pane, 173 Shuter Street, Trenton. The child died in the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday.

Rev. Hutchinson, rector of St. George's Church, conducted the service both in the home and at the cemetery. Interment was held in the St. George's cemetery.

Late Mrs. Dermo

Mrs. Nettie Dermo, life-long resident of Trenton and district, died suddenly at her home yesterday morning. The late Mrs. Dermo retired on Saturday night in seemly good health but was found dead in bed the next morning.

She was in her 78th year, being born in Prince Edward County.

Minor Accidents

A large number of minor accidents were reported in Trenton and district, over the week-end. Both Traffic Officer J. Hatch and Traffic Officer D. Wilson reported that large numbers of cars had gone out of control during the heavy storm on Saturday night. A number of these cars ended up in the ditch but no one reported seriously injured.

Becoming detached in some manner a large trailer loaded with baled straw crashed into the north side of the Trenton bridge this morning tieing up traffic for some time. The trailer owned by a Trenton trucker caused little damage to the bridge but bales of straw were strewn on the bridge.

Refers to Local Pilot Officer's Achievements

The heroism of a Belleville boy in the war was mentioned by the Rev. Dr. James Semple at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning.

PILOT OFFICER SARGENT

Pilot Officer Arthur Clement Sargent was the first member from Bridge Street United Church to enlist in the Royal Air Force, said the minister, who had a number of conversations with the young man before he went overseas to join the R.A.F. News dispatches from London have praised his daring and his efficient work on various forays such as along the Dutch-held coast on the way to Berlin where he and the crew of his bomber raided freight yards.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sargent, 4 Highland Avenue, parents of the young pilot officer, are members of Bridge Street United, Church congregation.

POLICE COURT

John Thompson, Rossmore youth, appeared in city police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today charged with the theft of a motor car. The accused was remanded in custody for one week at the request of Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson.

Thompson was arrested by city police early Sunday morning as he was partaking of a meal in a local restaurant. Dorland Bell, night attendant at the Hastings Motors reported to police that a motor car had been taken from off the company used car lot. Later the vehicle was found parked on Front Street by P.C. Taylor who arrested Thompson. Sergeant Arthur Booth and P.C. Evans conducted an investigation and followed footprints in the freshly fallen snow from Front Street to the position, where the stolen car was parked. It was following this investigation that Thompson was charged, police revealed this morning.

Charged With Loitering

After being arrested by Canadian National Railway Police for loitering, a charge of failing to produce his National Registration card was read to George Wright, who told His Worship he had no home. "Case enlarged for one week. In the meantime the authorities had better fingerprint and investigate this man," suggested Magistrate Butler after Wright failed to give any excuse as to why he had not registered under the National Registration Act.

An old offender was given three months in jail after pleading guilty to a third offence of intoxication. An assault case concluded this morning's proceedings.

Parks Awarded $6,875 in Their Damage Suit

Mrs. Jennie Parks and her husband, Arthur Parks, Madoc, plaintiffs in a $10,000 damage suit against Gordon Munro, Madoc, were awarded $5,000 and $1,875 respectively by a Supreme Court jury here on Saturday after two hours' deliberation. The suit arose from a motor accident in the northern village on November 23rd, 1938 in which Wellington Munro, son of the defendant, driving his father's car, struck Mrs. Parks, inflicting severe injuries.

The two-day hearing culminated one of the largest Supreme Court dockets heard here in many years. W. A. D. Fair, Peterboro, represented the defendants, with Chas. A. Payne, K.C., appearing for the plaintiffs. Mrs. Justice Keiller MacKay presided.

The jury retired at 11.50 Saturday morning after an eloquent one and one-half hour charge from the bench. Two hours later Foreman Fred Burke announced the verdict.

OBITUARY

PETER P. DOYLE

Many friends of Peter P. Doyle, residence 22 Alexander Street, will regret to learn of his death which occurred suddenly in the Belleville General Hospital, as the result of a heart seizure, on Sunday, November 17th.

The late Peter P. Doyle was in his 66th. year, and was born in Belleville, being a son of the late Alderman John Doyle and Mrs. Doyle. He was educated in the Separate School and High School here and later graduated from the Ontario College of Pharmacy, Toronto, and was a druggist for forty-six years. For a few years he resided in New York City, and in the year 1906 he returned to Belleville and since that time he was associated with his brother, Mr. J. V. Doyle, in the retail drug business.

Peter Doyle was well known, well liked and respected and will be missed by many friends and acquaintances. In religion he was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church.

Surviving him are one sister, Miss Loretto Doyle, Belleville; three brothers, Mr. Frank M. Doyle, Jersey City, N.J.; Mr. William Doyle, Toronto, and Mr. J. Vincent Doyle, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE FRED BURLEIGH
(Formerly of Wooler

Wooler —(Special)— Fred Burleigh, a resident of Hamilton, Ont., passed away at the hospital there on Tuesday evening, November 12.

For the past ten years he had been suffering from a heart ailment which had caused him to retire from active employment. He was the son of Mr. Lewis Burleigh, Carrying Place, and his first wife was the late Miss Edna Day. He was born sixty years ago in Wooler, where he spent the greater part of his life. A few years ago he moved to Trenton vicinity with his family and later to Hamilton. He was of a very friendly nature and had a wide circle of friends who will regret his sudden passing.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage, was Miss Edna Chatterson of Trenton, his aged father, Mr. Lewis Burleigh, and his stepmother; four daughters, Mrs. D. Fairman (Clara) of Hamilton, Lucille and Luella of Buffalo and Leita at home; two sons, Glenn of Trenton and Harold of Buffalo and one brother, Bruce.

The body was conveyed to Trenton, resting at the funeral parlours of Mr. G. Cobley, where the funeral service was conducted on Friday, November 15. Interment was made in the family plot of St. George's Cemetery, Trenton.

MRS. JOHN IRWIN

After a brief illness Mrs. John Irwin of this city passed away on Sunday, November 17th., at the residence of her brother, Mr. A. E. Bottum, in Bobcaygeon, Ontario, with whom she was visiting.

The late Mrs. Irwin, who was in her 77th. year, was born in Bobcaygeon, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Bottum. For fifty-two years she resided in this city and of late years she made her home with her brother, Capt. W.H. Bottum, 29 Catherine Street. During her long residence here Mrs. Irwin made many friends, by whom she was held in high regard and to whom the announcement of her death will bring sincere feelings of regret. In religion she was a member of the Church of England and a parishioner of Christ Church. When able she took an active part in the work of the women's organizations in connection with the parish.

Surviving her are two brothers, Capt. W. H. Bottum, Belleville, and Mr. A. E. Bottum Bobcaygeon, Ont. Her husband, who was a member of the old firm of Messrs. Foy & Irwin here, died some years ago.

Announcement of the funeral, which will take place at Bobcaygeon, is made elsewhere in this paper.

MRS. WILLIAM McMULLEN
(Sidney Township)

Mrs. William McMullen passed away at the family residence in the 2nd concession of Sidney Township early this Monday morning, Nov. 18th. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. McMullen, who was in her 68th year, was born in Rawdon Township. Prior to her marriage she was Miss Bertha E. Sharp, daughter of the late Mr and Mrs. John Sharp. The early part of her life was passed in Rawdon Township and for the past twenty-eight years she made her home in Sidney Township and in the community she was highly esteemed. In religion she was a member of Aikens United Church and when health permitted she took an active part in church work, being a Past President of the Ladies' Aid Society and a faithful worker in the Women's Missionary Society. To many friends her death has brought sincere regret.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. William McMullen; three daughters, Mrs. Clifford Hall, Sidney Township; Mrs. Samuel Marshall, Sidney Township, and Mrs. Earl Stickle, Sidney Township; two sons, Mr. Cyril McMullen, Sidney Township and Mr. Leon McMullen at home; two sisters, Mrs. Ernest Cronkwright, Thurlow Township; Mrs. Boulter McMullen, Winnipeg, Manitoba; two brothers, Mr. Alex. Sharp, Frankford, and Mr. Charles Sharp, Sidney Township; nine grandchildren. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

MISS MARGARET MacDONALD

The funeral of Miss Margaret MacDonald, a former resident of Belleville, who died in Washington, D.C., on Thursday last, Nov. 14th., took place from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street, this Monday morning to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G. Interment was made in St. James' cemetery; the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father C. E. Baker.

The bearers were Messrs. F. M. Barrett, Daniel Donohue, Sr., T. J. Roach, Thomas Cushing, James Lynch and Allan Meagher.

$6,875 Awarded In Damage Suit

Jennie and Arthur Parks, Madoc, Plaintiffs in Suit Against Gordon Munro

A brief, though pointed address, in which he paid fine tribute to court officials, jurymen, the press, and others connected with the proceedings, was given by Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, presiding judge at the Supreme Court of Ontario, at the conclusion of the sitting in the County Court House here on Saturday.

Justice MacKay expressed his "heartfelt appreciation" of the fine co-operation given him by members of the Grand and Petit Juries. "It has been a pleasure to work with you gentlemen of Hastings County" his Lordship remarked, "and I shall take nothing but the happiest of memories with me as I leave."

He complimented the petit jury on their willingness to assist him in bringing the session to a close "after three weeks of strenuous work." "I must thank you, gentlemen," he said, "for your return to the sessions on four nights, thus reducing the cost to Hastings Country which has been, of necessity, quite large."

The docket, one of the largest in the history of the county, concluded on Saturday with the award of $6,875 damages to Jennie and Arthur Parks, plaintiffs in a $10,000 damage suit against Gordon Munro, also of Madoc. The suit was the result of a motor accident in Madoc in November, 1938, in which Mrs. Parks received severe injuries.

Other cases in the docket included joint charges of murder against Frederick Thain, Rawdon farmer, who was sentenced to death by the court after being found guilty. Thain will hang on January 14th. Alice Archer McFarland, jointly charged with the murder of her 18-months-old son, Gordon Archer, with her husband, Robert McFarland, Frankford, was adjudged insane and unable to stand trial. A jury disagreed in a verdict against McFarland, and he will stand trial at the Spring Assize of the Supreme Court.

In the civil actions, a $25,000 damage suit against George C. Montgomery, Frankford salesman, brought by the Canadian National Railways was settled out of court for an undisclosed amount after five days of hearing.

A damage suit of $10,000 brought by Leo Ballinger, Belleville, against George F. Ostrom, also of this city, was laid over until the non-jury assize of the court being held here on December 15th.

WING CMDR. NAIRN RANKS AS CAPTAIN

Ottawa, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Promotion of Wing Cmdr. K. G. Nairn, Director of Accounts for the Royal Canadian Air Force, to the rank of Group Captain was announced today at air force headquarters.

Group Capt. Nairn, whose home now is in Vancouver, is a native of Edinburgh, Scotland. In the first Great War he was a trooper in the Lord Strathcona's Horse and later transferred to the Royal Flying Corps and served as an officer-pilot.

SIXTEEN PERSONS KILLED IN ONT. DURING WEEKEND

Survey Shows Six Died as Result of Fire and Five Through Highway Accidents

CHILDREN RESCUED

(By the Canadian Press)

Traffic accidents, fire and railway mishaps contributed to a death toll of at least 16 in Ontario during the week-end. A survey by The Canadian Press showed six persons dead as a result of fire, five because of highway accidents, one through an industrial mishap, one because of gas and three because of railway accidents.

Three men were dead of injuries suffered when they fought a fire in Fort William Saturday. Assistane Fire-Chief J. A. McEwen of that city was killed instantly when the front of the blazing building collapsed and Pte. Gordon Cyploski of Iroquois Falls, Ont., died Sunday of injuries he received. Fireman Thomas Ross, who fell 20 feet when another part of the building collapsed, died a few hours later. Five other men were seriously injured combatting the fire.

In Sudbury the small children of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lalonde were overcome by smoke and severely burned when fire of unknown origin broke out in their home Saturday night and they died in hospital soon afterwards. The children, Maurice, nine months, and three-year-old Raymond, were alone in the house, asleep in their beds when the fire started and were rescued by Pte. Pete Landry, member of an active service unit in Sudbury, who saw the burning house and rushed in to take the children to safety.

Dies from Burns Received

In Toronto, 14-year-old Harold Roberts of nearby Unionville, died in hospital Saturday of burns he received Friday when his clothing caught fire in a gravel pit. No one could say what had happened but the boy had been sent to get anti-freeze out of a barrel and in some way it ignited.

Miss Margaret McCormick, 80, of Toronto, was asphyxiated by gas fumes in her home early Saturday. Police said jets in a kitchen stove in her home were open when they arrived.

Most serious traffic accident of the week-end occurred early Saturday in the Western Ontario village of Shakespeare when two Tavistock members of the armed forces, Lac. Frank Holley, 23, of the Royal Canadian Air Force and Sgt. Robert Cawthorpe, 25, of the Highland Light Infantry of Canada, were killed. Their car collided with a large transport truck operated by John A. Pike, 17, of Stratford. Pike, who allegedly turned out to pass two other cars which had been involved in a minor collision, has been charged with reckless driving. Two girls in the car, Beatrice Millington and Edna Hammer, also of Tavistock, suffered serious injuries but were expected to recover.

Another traffic death was recorded when Henry Briscoe, 79, of Toronto, died Saturday of injuries received when struck by a street car Friday.

Pte. Antoine Simon, 26, Indian member of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, Canadian Active Service Force, was killed early Saturday when he walked in front of a freight locomotive at Barrie. Police said they believed he had been blinded by the headlight of the locomotive and stepped on the track.

Blood Transfusions Fail

At Sudbury 13-year-old Roy Phillips of Biscotasing, 90 miles to the northwest, died in hospital on Sunday of serious injuries received late Friday when he fell under a moving Canadian Pacific Railway freight train. Blood transfusions given by his father, Colin C. Phillips, failed to make him rally.

William Durrant, 65, of Oakville, was killed Saturday when his car collided near Oakville with one operated by Allan Cudmore, also of Oakville.

The industrial accident occurred at London Saturday when Joseph Polankai, 47, of that city, was struck on the head by a toppling light tower. He died in hospital Sunday. The accident occurred at the scene of a war production plant construction project.

At Windsor, James M. McKenzie, 48-year-old car inspector for Canadian National Railways, was killed instantly late Saturday when crushed under a switch engine. He was crossing the tracks in the yards to inspect a train when the accident occurred.

Ronald Healey, 21, of Easton's Corners, Ont., was killed at Kemptville Sunday night when he was struck by a car.

PREMIER KING QUOTED

New York, Nov. 18 (CP)—The New York Times today quoted the words of Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada in discussing in a lengthy editorial Britain's prospects in the war this winter.

Great Britain "will stand in a serious position throughout the winter, more serious in some respects than the grim winter of 1916," The Times declared and said "the successes against Italy did not for one moment invalidate the realism of Mr. Mackenzie King, who said that the road ahead of Britain is longer, rougher and more terrible than any one likes to believe."

A NEW VERSION OF ADAGE

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 18—(AP)—A new version of "like father, like son" cropped up in Domestic Court when a 21-year-old bride of four months charged her spouse with threats and non-support. "When I insisted he take a bath," she testified, "he told me that his father only took a bath every six months and what was good enough for his father was good enough for him."

MANY MINOR CAR ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY SNOW STORM

Few Serious Ones Reported as Motorists, Generally, Were Cautious

STORM IS GENERAL

(By The Canadian Press)

First widespread snowfall in the southern sections of Ontario, accompanied by a thin coating of ice over sidewalks and roadways, caused hundreds of crushed fenders to cars and bruises to individuals but few serious accidents

A survey of The Canadian Press showed that while driving conditions were the worst this season, motorists generally took extreme care, proceeded slowly and when collisions occurred they were not serious.

Snow fell heavily over large portions of the province and in some sections there were blinding blizzards Saturday. It was reported from Goderich and Tavistock that student fliers of the Royal Canadian Air Force succeeded in grounding their planes successfully during the storm although at Tavistock one landing was forced and was effected on an open field.

Milder weather Sunday, accompanied in many places by light rain, removed most of the snow and at Caledonia 80-year-old Chief Osborne Clear Sky, one of the last of the famous Tuscarora tribe of the Six Nations, said after this snow leaves there will be Indian Summer.

Dozens of persons were in hospital during the week-end—many of them suffering minor injuries received in traffic collisions and many more with sprains, bruises and fractures suffered when they slipped on icy pavements .

One of the most spectacular crashes due to ice occurred in Hamilton where a motor car slid into a trolley pole and knocked it down. A street car soon afterwards got tangled in the loose wires and a couple more poles fell before the matter was cleaned up.

One serious accident was reported from St. Thomas where Ac. W. McMillan of the Royal Canadian Air Force suffered back sprain and a slight concussion when struck by a motor car during the storm.

It was reported from Tillsonburg that the snowfall there was the heaviest for November in the last 35 years.

Halloway

Halloway—The weekly meeting of the Y.P.S. was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snider with a good attendance. The president, Mr. Colin Donald opened the meeting with hymn 384 followed by prayer by Mr. Cook. It was unanimously agreed to send for a travelling library for this winter. Mrs. Coleman Townsend then took charge of the meeting. Hymn 380 was sung after which Mr. Coleman Townsend gave a very interesting topic on Rev. Oliver Jackson and his work in Labrador and Newfoundland. Prayer was offered by Mrs. Percy Kelly. Everyone then enjoyed some very interesting lantern slides of Labrador and Newfoundland given by Mr. Cook. The meeting was brought to a close with the benediction. Collection for the evening amounted to 65c. The hostess then served a delightful lunch.

Mrs. R. Townsend is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warren, Sine.

Mrs. Arthur Greenwood, Belleville, and Mrs. Percy Kelly spent Sunday with Mrs. John Townsend.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Townsend were Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Irwin, Aikens, Miss Doris Irwin, Belleville, Mr. J. Palmer, Jim and Ruth, Foxboro, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison, Centenary and Mr. James McMullen.

The Halloway cheese factory has been closed for this season.

Mrs. Don Rose returned home on Wednesday after spending the past week in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Mott, Belleville, have moved to Halloway where Mr. Mott is operating the grist mill.

Mrs. Percy Kelly spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Embury Hough.

Chester Morris and Jane Wyatt in a scene from the thrilling adventure drama, "Girl From God's Country," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to "London Can Take It."

NOT FEELING SO GOOD

Chicago, Nov. 18—(AP) — Cab driver Sam Abrams felt pretty good. He was back on the job after five days' illness and a friend had just paid a $5 debt of long standing. And then — two men hailed his cab, shoved guns in his ribs and robbed him of $12, including the five-spot. They even fished around in the gutter to retrieve a quarter which Abrams had dropped. Then they drove off in the cab.

SNAKED OFF A LITTLE FROM ROLL

Chicago, Nov. 18—(AP)—B. C. Lehman, a tailor, took a $35 tuck in the loot which three robbers obtained from his shop. He had his hand on a $45 roll of bills in his pocket when the men entered the shop, ordered him to face the wall. While complying, he snaked $35 off the roll and tucked it down his waistband. The robbers fled with the other $10, plus $150 from the cash register.

The Stars are out— ALL FIVE!

★ SPECIAL ★ SUPER ★ CENTURY ★ ROADMASTER
★ LIMITED
All plus-powered with the new FIREBALL* ENGINE
All party-dressed in 1941's SMARTEST STYLE

VISIT any McLaughlin-Buick showroom and you'll see the bright stars of the 1941 season—the finest automobiles Buick ever built.

You'll lay eyes on a CENTURY broader, longer, bigger in every way, with an additional twenty-nine horsepower under its thrusting hood—and a ROADMASTER that's its rival in action and the very picture of super-streamlined grace.

And the Buick LIMITED offers close to twenty feet of sheer spacious luxury.

All this your wonder-wide eyes will tell you, then your ears begin to take things in.

Here are sensational new micropoise-balanced engines—FIREBALL Eights that get extra lift and power-wallop from still further progress in Buick's exclusive Dynaflash combustion principle—here's brand-new Compound Carburetion that combines the lift of an extra engine with economy stepped up a full 10% to 15%!

Here are rugged new frames and new Flash-Way signals. New quiet-easy Concentric Shifting and new Permi-firm steering. New lovely body lines and new inside roominess. New instrument panels, new oil-bath air cleaners, new concealed running boards—even new clocks.

When you see Buick you've seen the best of the bunch. Make it the first one you see for '41, the first one you try out. That way you'll save yourself a lot of fruitless looking around.

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, a super meteor which travels with a series of explosions like the shock waves of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."*

Secure Yours Early and Avoid the Usual Last Minute Rush

There has been no increase in the fees for permits and licenses. The fees charged in Ontario are still lower than in any other province of Canada or in the neighbouring states.

Table of comparison of fees in Ontario and two neighbouring provinces and states for three popular makes of passenger cars:

CAR	ONTARIO	QUEBEC	MANITOBA	NEW YORK	MICHIGAN
No. 1—4 cyl.	$ 2.00	$17.80	$14.00	$12.00	$ 8.40
No. 2—6 cyl.	7.00	22.00	16.50	15.00	10.50
No. 3—8 cyl.	10.00	21.30	16.50	14.50	10.15

Ontario's highway system is the largest in the Dominion, and for the very reasonable fees, indicated above, a great highway system comprising over 20,000 miles is maintained and made available to the motorists of Ontario and visitors from other parts of America.

The revenue collected from motorists by way of registration and license fees and the gasoline tax has made possible the construction and maintenance of this great system of highways.

For the convenience of motorists, permits and licenses are issued through the offices of 189 agents located throughout the Province.

MARCHING 'IN THE RANKS OF HONOR'

Words of the British Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, in praise of his late predecessor, Neville Chamberlain, are worthy to be recorded for all time. Never did words, even the words of Pericles, the great Athenian statesman, whose name will never be lost in world history for his service to ancient Greece and to the world, or those of Demosthenes or Cicero, the two greatest speakers of the ancient Greek and Roman worlds, surpass in beauty of expression and conception of thought the tribute paid to the late Mr. Chamberlain.

Through it is revealed the moral attitude of the British people.

"The only guide to man is his conscience. The only shield the rectitude and sincerity of his own actions. It is very imprudent to walk through life without this shield because we are so often mocked by the failure of our hopes and deceived by our calculation."

"With this world, however the fates may play, we march always in the ranks of honor."

"In the ranks of honor" was Mr. Chamberlain. Mr. Churchill paid a noble tribute to this man who bore the load of Empire and democracy in the world's most crucial time. Mr. Churchill's thought is always couched in the loftiest sentiment of honor.

Well might Mr. Churchill refer to conscience as the only guide to man and couple with this utterance the name of Mr. Chamberlain, who was guided by the moral law and marched 'always in the ranks of honor.'

GREEDY GRASP OF THE ENEMY

Some might have thought that Hitler and his crowd might know when to draw the line and not proceed with intensification of the persecutions of the French. But no, the greedy Hun, lusting for everything, wants all and means to get it if possible.

Again the enemy has persecuted the French people in Nazi-held France over whom Marshal Petain is Premier, that there is a possibility, it is reported, of a definite break between the Germans and the French over 'collaboration.'

No matter what Hitler promises, he wants everything. Even the Vichy Government can hardly yield to that.

The greed of Hitler itself proves one of his greatest foes, for he arouses the fighting spirit everywhere in the world, so low and degraded is his attitude towards the people whom he has overrun.

Everyone will remember how ruthlessly Hitler and Mussolini agreed over the evacuation by Germans of part of the Tyrol which was ceded to Italy at the close of the Great War. Hitler to assure Mussolini decided to transport the Germans from that new Italian section of the Tyrol and deposit them far off in a distant part of the Reich. It made no difference that they were being torn up from the territory they loved. That meant nothing to the dictators. Hitler has done likewise having brought Germans back from the Baltic area where their families had been living as long as seven hundred years. But that made no difference. The man who left his own Austria to become a German because he admired German militarism did not care a jot what the feelings of the transported were.

Now he does not care about the feelings and traditions of these people of Lorraine, who are of French race.

This same spirit will show in every step of his course towards what he thinks is to be his empire but what is to be in the long run his end and the death of Nazism.

He has raised his hand against humanity and humanity will strike him down.

SENATOR'S FAREWELL TO SENATE

A unique document has been issued by Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona, a handsome booklet which he spends his own money to publish and send out, to those whom he represented in office for 28 years. He was beaten in September for renomination by the Democratic party as candidate for the Senate but he is not an imbittered man. So often the defeated and shelved man slumps into background and feeds on bitter thoughts but not so Senator Ashurst. He issues his "Farewell to the Senate."

The man who was gracious in office is gracious in defeat and honest in the expression of his thoughts. He is a good loser, one of those rare personalities. Such a document of kindly observations in this farewell is comforting to those who back a loser and makes the winners a little meek in their triumph.

Here is one of his wise aphorisms, the product of a long experience dealing with problems and with men.

"A great many people unwisely imagine that the beauty and serenity of life inhere in office." No, they inhere in the citizen, he says.

"If we are to remain free people, it is the duty of the public servants not grumpily and sourly to accept the verdict of the majority, but loyally to accept that verdict. But it would be hypocrisy and pretense for me to say that I do not regret leaving the Senate."

The Senator quotes a resolution passed by the Arizona Senate thanking him for his long services and in closing he says that "I should be disingenuous if I failed to say that they (the people) had a fairly good reason for displacing me."

Few men could so memorialize their defeat, but this manner of ending his long career proves how useful and sane such a public servant must have been in the Senate.

In fact that is what every man ought to feel at the end of his public career, for he has been privileged to serve them through the people's act of choosing him. Not all men can achieve such a post because of lack of offices to go around or through their lack of preparation and fitness for office, but all men who have held office and then perforce retire into private life should be as frank as Senator Ashurst has shown himself to be.

Air Blockade Enemy Threatening Serious Menace Says-Times

London, Nov. 18—(CP Cable)—The air correspondent of the Sunday Times said Sunday the most serious menace confronting Britain from the air is "the air blockade the enemy is attempting to establish off the coast of Ireland."

To meet the threat, the correspondent urged that priority be given to construction of long-range fighter planes with heavy armament of cannon and machine guns combined. In sufficient numbers, he said, they should provide a powerful escort for convoys plying regularly between Canada and the United Kingdom.

He said that the German raiding or shipping, including such losses as the Empress of Britain, first bombed, then torpedoed, constitutes "the most vital, urgent problem of the war at present."

The Blackguard Hitler

All of us from the prime minister downwards, are in danger of getting Hitler out of the right perspective.

We talk of him as though he were a romantic figure in glittering armor bending the people of Europe to his will.

If the process goes on much longer we shall find the All-Highest Ruffian elevated to a place in the Pantheon which contains such giants as Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, and other conquerors of history who have filled the world with the rumor of their names and have drenched it in blood.

Hitler is in a very different category from those.

Our opponent is a common criminal—as are all his entourage—whom we are not fighting against in the spirit with which we would fight against a chivalrous foe, but whom we are tracking down as the police tracked down Charlie Peace and the Rugeley Poisoner.

There is nothing in common between Alexander the Great (or even Napoleon) and Hitler.

Hitler is the Monster of Berchtesgaden who practises methods as foul as Al Capone's, the only difference being Hitler does it on a universal scale.

That is the man we are against, and when the facts concerning him are set down in black and white there is very little "glamor" about him.

He is exposed for what he is—a murderous blackguard consumed by bestial hate against all decent men and all decent things, possessed of not the faintest trace of conscience or compunction.

As such we must deal with him.

Why not, as the first step, offer a reward of a million pounds to anyone who shall deliver over to us the body of the criminal Adolf Hitler, dead or alive?—London Exchange.

Winter Will Take Heavy Toll of Axis Morale

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP).—Five months ago when France fell before the German attack and left Britain fighting alone, Prime Minister Churchill assured his countrymen and the world that there were "good and reasonable hopes" of ultimate British victory.

What he then dubbed "the Battle of Britain" enters its sixth month today. At that point and despite a grievous toll of destruction and civilian casualties ,the main British hope has been realized. Great Britain remains uninvaded and the will of her people to fight is unbroken. She is striking back at her German-Italian foes with telling blows from the air and her domination of the seas at home and abroad is firmer, not weaker, than it was five months ago.

Mr. Churchill boiled down the war issue for Britain on June 18 to one "great question";

"Can we break Hitler's air weapon?"

Five months later it has been answered in part in Britains favor. Nazi air power has failed to shatter British morale or crack Britain's sea blockade of her foes. The Royal Air Force at home has lived up to Mr. Churchill's prediction that it would save Britain "from the deadliest of all attacks", invasion. Its far ranging bombers have hammered at German targets and dealt a smashing blow to Italy in the eastern war theatre.

Ready For Long War.

Britain's stand has done more than that. It has compelled complete revision of Hitler-Mussolini war plans to shape them to a long war pattern and the odds in a long war are with Britain. She has sea access to vast material resources around the world to aid her.

The deadly menace of a long war for Italy in particular has been revealed by Mussolini's ill-starred effort to smash a way through Greece quickly and break Britain's grip on the eastern Mediterranean.

Italy's march through Egypt toward the Suez Canal was halted by British sea power without a major land fight. Greek gallantry, backed by aggressive British aid, had foiled her first flanking thrust, perhaps marked as definite a turning point in the war as did the fall of France —but with the trend reversed against the Axis mates.

There is no talk today except in Berlin and Rome of a British retreat from Europe. Instead, Mr. Churchill speaks calmly of the campaigns of 1941, '42, '43, even 1944 and 1945.

The Axis dream that Britain could be smashed before winter has been shattered. Winter is close at hand. Its first icy breath is whitening Continental Europe's highlands from the Balkans to the English Channel. Its long nights hold added menace for both belligerents from air bombers, but also give added protection to Britain's shuttling transatlantic cargo service, her economic jugular vein. Winter storms will increasingly ground aerial scouts and bombers; winter's low visibility at sea will impede Nazi U-boat operations.

Mr. Churchill said five months ago:

"The winter will impose a strain upon the Nazi regime, with half Europe writhing and starving under its heel, which, for all their ruthlessness, will run them hard."

First glimpses of that strain are already visible in German-conquered countries, in Italy, and in Germany itself, where dog meat has been licensed for human consumption.

After five months of single-handed battle for survival, Britain, despite her mounting non-combatant casualties in the world's first great battle of the air, has more reason for cheers than for tears.

Japan Claims U. S. And Canada Tries For Pact With Siam

Tokyo, Nov. 18 (AP)—Japanese newspapers featured reports from Bangkok, Thailand (Siam) today claiming that the United States and Britain are putting pressure on Thailand's government to conclude a triple assistance pact.

These reports claimed Britain and the United States threatened to suspend oil and munitions shipments in the event Thailand refuses to agree to a common defence pact in the Pacific and an economic blockade if Thailand abandons her neutrality.

Britain and the United States have offered economic aid in Thailand's campaign to obtain territory from French Indo-China, and military support—native British troops and American warships —in the event a foreign power attacks Thailand, the Japanese reports contended.

The British minister, according to these reports, presented the proposition to Premier Songgram, November 14 in a two-hour talk, and Thailand is expected to reply soon.

NEW GUN DEVISED

London, Nov. 18—(CP Cable)—British artillery, according to the Daily Express, has been provided with a newly devised 25-pounder field gun which, the paper's military correspondent said, makes the famous French 75s "pipsqueaks" compared to "this grand weapon." The correspondent added that the gun is the "best compromise between a heavy and a light gun" and fires a 25-pound high explosive shell.

16,000 Heroes Will Fight Their Way Back Home

This is the tale of 16,000 brave men and a general who has fought his way around Europe. He is still fighting and he does not intend to stop until he has fought his way back again—to Poland.

This general and his officers fought throughout the Polish campaign (August-September, 1939) and only slipped across the frontier into Rumania as the German and Russian armies were closing in on them. He insists on drawing a veil over their trip from Rumania by devious means to France. Some of the friendly people who helped them might have to pay.

Once in France he and his officers under Gen. Wladislas Sikorski mobilized several Polish divisions—many of them naturalized Frenchmen. And finally ,at the end of April of this year, Gen. Duch, with his Polish Grenadier division, was sent into the lines opposite Saarbrucken. All the men were not yet fully trained but there seemed little likelihood of immediate action. Even after the Germans had invaded Holland and Belgium, there was little activity in the sector held by the Poles, deep in the Vosges Mountains overlooking the Black Forest.

It began on May 27 with heavy artillery duels and constant air raids. But the big push didn't start until June 14, when the Germans were already in Paris. Two German divisions attacked the Polish sector, while other German forces struck at the Maginot Line along the Rhine. Still a third German force was pushing up from the Dijon-Belford region.

The Polish Grenadiers formed part of the French 20th Army which was surrounded. On their left was the 52nd French division and on their right, Col. Dagnan's stout group. They were all ordered to retire to a line south of Paris and the Maginot Line was completely evacuated—not, however, without fairly heavy losses. The Poles had two infantry battalions and a reconnaissance group inside the line, but they managed to fight their way through to join their division.

This was fighting such as the Poles understood; it was the same kind of fighting most of them had had in Poland. They knew German tactics and how to counter them. It was not the kind of fighting the French understood or liked. Once the Maginot Line had been abandoned the French lost heart. But French divisions on either flank of the Poles did fight, and very well, too.

The story of this campaign as told by the generals is one of terrific fighting by day and long, hard marches by night. But the Grenadiers were not content to hold their positions against the Germans. On June 14 they counter-attacked and pushed the Germans back. This was the only sector through which the Germans never broke.

On June 15 the Germans attacked the French on the Polish left flank and completely wiped out the 52nd Division Anti-Tank Battery. The Poles counter-attacked and left the ground strewn with German dead. But the first signs of demoralization were showing in the 52nd French Division, which had been badly beaten. By June 19 that division was totally dispersed, most of its men having been taken prisoner.

The hardest fighting the Grenadiers had was on the Marne-Rhine Canal on June 17. The Germans by this time had a healthy respect for the Poles and they attacked the sector held by the 2nd Infantry with 2 and one-half divisions. The Poles suffered heavy casualties, but the general led a counter-attack with two infantry battalions, well supported by Polish and French artillery. By 9:30 o'clock at night the Germans were driven back across the canal. From then on attacks on the Polish sector ceased and the Germans concentrated on the French flanks. The Poles had lost 4,800 men that week.

On June 18 the Germans broke through on both flanks and the French general staff ordered the Poles to retire. Gen. Sikorski wirelessed them to fight their way through to join the British on the Loire, or to make their way to Switzerland.

Gen. Duch was in a dilemma. He had to decide whether to obey orders and leave the remaining French in a nasty hole, or to stay and fight. He decided to fight, although he knew his men and the French were surrounded. He asked the French corps commander to reassemble his men and try to break through to the south. The French commander said it was too late.

By June 19 there wase only a few small units of the French 52nd division left, and the tattered remnants of Col. Dagnan's group, and the Germans had begun an outflanking movement from the left. The Polish troops were exhausted. They had had no real food since June 14 and no rest since June 15.

On the morning of June 20 the Poles were completely surrounded; the French, on their right, were thoroughly demoralized and refused to fight any more. They had heard that Marshal Petain had proposed an armistice. Up to that moment they had been fighting exceedingly well, but as soon as they heard of the armistice they were finished. They strongly objected to the Poles continuing the fight. The Poles withdrew along to Raon-L'Etape. They had had 6,500 casualties and their ammunition was almost gone. They were so exhausted that if they stopped for a moment to rest they dropped where they stood.

The Germans were only fifteen kilometres (over nine miles) in their rear and surrounding them rapidly. The general estimated that they had enough ammunition for one more day's fight. So he called the regimental commanders and told them of their plight. Col. Dagnan wanted to fight, too, but his troops were going to pieces—those who were still alive and uncaptured. The division voted never to surrender and never to be captured. They would break through.

Gen. Duch gave orders at ten o'clock on the morning of June 21 for the division to destroy its artillery and what ammunition remained. The troops kept their light arms. He divided them into small groups and gave them directions.

"You are to make for Bordeaux or Toulouse," he said. And off they went.

The general and his staff made their way to St. Die. There they hid for five days in the same house with German soldiers. Then in civilian clothes they escaped. The tale of their escape cannot yet be told. It was miraculous and took them to Marseille, where by some equally miraculous means, 4,000 of their men met them.

If France had not been in such a state of chaos, its roads lined with refugees, this tale could probably never have been told. It is 700 kilometres (434 miles) from the Vosges to Marseille, and even after they had ceased to fight the Poles had to cross the German lines not once but many times.

Those 4,000 men and their gallant officers are now in England—all that remains of the 16,000. Perhaps others survived, but they couldn't reach Poland. Of one thing the general is certain—they are not prisoners.

He is equally certain of two other things—that the British and their allies will win the war—and that Poland will rise once again.

The general plans to complete his tour of Europe by returning to Poland by way of Holland and Berlin.

Naval Bases in Ireland

Great Britain has provided the United States with naval and air bases in various British territories from Newfoundland down to South America. Is there any reason why the Irish Free State cannot follow this example by leasing to the United States one or two ports on the south and west coasts of Ireland? The United States is, like Ireland, a neutral country, but a country whose neutrality does not prevent the extension of aid to the British Empire to the utmost limit short of formal participation as a belligerent in the war. Irish ports leased to the United States would be available to British ships for refuelling purposes and the greatest danger which now menaces the United Kingdom would be reduced to easily manageable proportions. Eire would still be neutral.

In his speech to the Dail on Nov. 7, Mr. De Valera spoke of the final settlement of all outstanding differences between Ireland and Britain except that of what he called partition. The Free State had obtained complete sovereignty over its own territory and if this has imposed a burden upon Britain that sacrifice has to be faced. He said the neutrality of Eire had been decided upon as the right policy for the Irish people but Ireland did not propose to be used as a basis of attack upon Britain. Before the war, and as a means of preserving neutrality, Ireland had tried to get arms but had met with only limited success, "and it is no fault of the government if our armaments are not even several times stronger than they are."

De Valera denied that German submarines were being supplied with fuel or provisions on Irish coasts He said "it is a lie" and "is known to be a falsehood by the British government itself.",The singular thing about this statement is that the British government had never made any such charge and has not made it since. De Valera was simply building up a case, and fortifying it artificially and mendaciously. He was bringing himself to the point of declaring that no Irish ports will be leased so long as Ireland remains neutral, that "they are ours—within our sovereignty"—and that any attempt to bring pressure on Ireland could only lead to bloodshed. "Certainly as long as this government remains in office we shall defend our rights in regard to these ports against whoever shall attack them." If Ireland has to face a crisis "we shall do it knowing that our cause is right and just and that if we have to die for it we shall be dying in that good cause."

A statement of this kind can have only one significance, namely that the author of it is prepared to sacrifice critical realities on the altar of an obsession. Irish sovereignty, the one thought in his mind, will have no meaning if, through official fanaticism at Dublin, Britain is rendered incapable of defending herself and Ireland. Irish neutrality as interpreted by De Valera, and as he proposes to enforce it, means the possibility of war with Britain but not with the enemies of Britain. The bloodshed which Mr. De Valera talks about would be blood shed in behalf of Hitler and Mussolini, not in behalf of the Irish people. The position taken by De Valera is that Ireland is prepared to go down fighting for a sovereignty which only Britain can safeguard. The whole thing is illogical and is heavily fraught with danger to Ireland herself. It is evident, however, that De Valera's hostility toward England renders any satisfactory arrangement between the two countries impossible and hopeless. But the situation as it exists cannot be allowed to continue; some other nation must bring the Irish leader to his senses and the United States is in by far the best position to shoulder this necessary task.—Montreal Gazette.

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

Secrecy already is beginning to veil Uncle Sam's naval activities.

Chas. P. Stewart

There isn't exactly a censorship. That is to say, if reporters can dig up any news, they can print it. They can't dig much of it up, however. When they ask questions officialdom won't answer. So all the scribes can do is to speculate.

For instance, a few days ago word was received that U.S. warships and planes seemed to be extremely busy in the eastern Caribbean. Air reinforcements were arriving in Puerto Rico. Dispatches from San Juan said so. But why? No explanation. Warships also were sighted from the Puerto Rico coast, steaming out into the Atlantic. What was their mission? The navy department wouldn't tell. The entire neutrality patrol fleet put to sea from Key West. Whither it was bound was another mystery.

Washington correspondents accordingly did some guessing.

They surmised that the U. S. might be getting ready to occupy Martinique, Guadaloupe and French Guiana should the Vichy government show signs of surrendering them to Germany. Or, they thought, maybe preparing to take possession of the West Indian island bases we recently acquired from Britain. Or, again, they weighed the possibility that the navy folk had received word of more sea raiding in southern waters.

Pure Guessing

But it was all pure guesswork. As the situation develops, there probably will have to be more and more of it.

The least sensational guess is that the U.S. simply is about to take over the bases the British are leasing to them, for John Bull won't object to that; quite the contrary. The Germans and the Vichy outfit emphatically will object though, if the U.S. assumes charge of Martinique, Guadaloupe and French Guiana. They won't be able to do anything about it, except howl diplomatically, but it will be quite an "incident," nevertheless.

If, however, the navy's informed of an Axis raider at large in the Pan-American oceanic neutrality zone, there's liable to be some shooting.

Supposing such a raider's presence, it isn't likely to give up without a fight. The pocket battleship Von Spee didn't, not so very long ago. First it fought and then scuttled itself rather than surrender.

And that some other Axis ship, or even more than one, isn't loose in the south Atlantic is no certainty. The Von Spee succeeded in snooping out from Germany despite the British blockade. It's no safe bet that a few more didn't manage to do so also.

Perhaps it would seem that, if any did, we should have heard of their depredations before now.

Yet, during the last war a German raider called the Moewe operated for a pretty long time off the South American east coast without being so much as suspected.

This craft's system was to catch an Allied merchantman, take its crew and passengers, if any, on board, and then sink the captured vessel. It ran up a score exceeding 20 ships. They were reported missing, of course, but nobody knew what had become of them.

Finally, though, the Moewe became so cluttered with prisoners as to have scarcely standing room on board. Therefore, the next time it overhauled an English ship, it didn't sink the latter, but loaded all its captives on to the captured vessel, telling them to beat it into the nearest port. It was a tactical error. The prisoners made Pernambuco. Thence the news was disseminated. Immediately the British sent men-o'-war to look for the Moewe, found it and sent it to the bottom.

I remember the affair perfectly, for I got the finest scoop out of it in my newspaper career.

Censors Hurt Others

I was Buenos Aires correspondent at the time for a North American news association. Upon the Moewe prisoners landing at Pernambuco, their story promptly was telegraphed down the coast to B. A. There I got it and naturally wired it at once to my New York headquarters. It went by the Central and South American Telegraph Co. — across to Valparaiso; thence up the South American west coast to Panama; thence to Galveston; thence to New York overland. From there it was broadcast everywhere in the United States.

It was a news beat. I couldn't understand it, for the yarn was available to anyone in Buenos Aires. Years later I learned how it happened. The U. S. wasn't in the war then. Consequently my dispatch, wired all the way across neutral soil and through neutral waters, got through. My opposition filed with the Western Telegraph Co., which was by way of London. There the British censor threw the opposition's account into the waste basket.

This just goes to show what a censorship does to news services. I was glad of it in that instance, but I don't like the principle.

125th Anniversary Services Concluded at Bridge St. Church

Rev. Dr. Cochrane Preaches on 'Holding the World Together' and Rev. Dr. Crossley Hunter on 'What Would Our Fathers Say?'

The 125th anniversary services of Bridge Street United Church were concluded on Sunday, large congregations attending. In the morning Rev. Dr. R. B. Cochrane, head of Home Missions of the United Church, preached on subject, "Holding the World Together" and in the evening Rev. Dr. Crossley Hunter of Hamilton preached on "What Would Our Fathers Say." The latter service was attended by the congregations of Tabernacle and Holloway Street United Churches with their pastors, the Rev. Mr. McClintock and the Rev. Mr. Dilts, and by members from other congregations of the district. Rev. Dr. J. Semple, minister of Bridge Street Church was in charge of the services of the day. The music was of special character, the choir in the morning singing Stanford's "Te Deum" and at the offertory Miss L. Riggs at the piano and Mr. A. Gordon at the organ played "Pastorale" by Guilmant-Stoughton and at the evening service a piano-organ arrangement of "Romance and Scherzo" by Schumann-Archer was played by Miss Riggs and Mr. Gordon, and a ladies' chorus of twelve rendered Sullivan's "The Lost Chord."

The Church a Building Force

Rev. Dr. Cochrane declared in his sermon that this world needs to be kept together. Man has seen institutions collapse which he thought would endure. Man has tried by trade, by diplomacy and by science to hold the world together but these have been ineffective.

It is the task of the church to hold the world together, for the only power that can hold the world together is God's way.

"The only force which has not been used to hold the globe together is the institution of the church," Dr. Cochrane said, pointing out that man must believe in a common creation, a common brotherhood and a common Father. The only foundations that will endure are the moral foundations."

Dr. Cochrane said that some men would contribute to their own municipality's effort but to no other cause. But real fellowship is only a part of the world-wide fellowship of Jesus who has won men of all classes and races.

He referred to the fact that when Napoleon was threatening England the Bible Society was founded. This congregation was founded 125 years ago because English, Scotch and Irish people sent out missions to Canada and to this section of Ontario.

He said that "we are more aware than ever before of the world-wide fellowship of Christianity. All the other world fellowships have been broken and gone, the church only remains."

Vision of United Christian World

"I hope to see a united Protestantism and I have a vision of a union of Protestant, Catholic and Greek Orthodox Churches which shall all be as one as they were in the early days of Christianity."

Dr. Cochrane noted that in Canada there are people of many races and yet Canada remains an example for all mankind as they live together in peace.

In closing he said that it may be that the blackout of war which eclipses so much of civilization will "lead men to see the Rising Sun in the East."

"No Ordinary Days"

"These are no ordinary days, they are sacred days and inspiring days," said Dr. Crossley Hunter at the evening service. "125 years look down upon us. The heroic and faithful dead speak to us. Before this the first Methodist Church in Belleville was established, those who had come to this place knew that a nation was in the making, that some day the bridle paths would be highways.

"We salute their memory. We pay tribute to their devotion. We do well to covet their consecration. I am hoping with you tonight that something of their consecration of the forefathers may come upon us as years ago the walls of this church echoed to the singing of hymns and the services."

Congratulating the congregation, the officials and the minister, Dr. Hunter said that he could say that there was no church in Canada that was so beloved by his father, the evangelist Rev. John Hunter, as Bridge Street Church.

What Forefathers Could Say

"What would our forefathers say if they could speak?" Dr. Hunter asked. They might say: 'We established this cause as a witness to our faith in God for God was very real to our fathers.'

There is but one fundamental problem in the world, "God is not so real to us as He was to our fathers and if we lose God we lose everything. No civilization can live long without a vital faith for it is God who gives purpose to life.

Dr. Hunter said that the blatant atheism of the older day is gone, but there is something more subtle, more dangerous more soul-destroying than the blatant atheism of other days, it is the lack of interest, it is the wave of secularism.

Spiritual and Aesthetic

Pointing to the danger of the spiritual and aesthetic being lost in the wave of secularism, Dr. Hunter advised "let your church stand as a constant testimonial to the fact that man does not live by bread alone."

Dr. Crossley said that the forefathers of the congregation could say they established the church because of their faith in Jesus Christ. In a superficial way life has changed but below the surface, life is much the same as in their days. They knew bereavement, the experiences of those days were the experiences of the present generation.

Jesus Essential Need of World

"Our forefathers believed that Jesus was no mere convenience to the world but an absolutely essential need of humanity," he said. "Jesus knew how to save the world. He said, 'This is the way. Walk ye in it.' All our problems, all our bewilderments are because we have tried some other way. Everything that has happened in the world today is vindicating Jesus Christ. Jesus would not ask men to make a prayer, knowing that it was unrealizable.

"How happy would we be if God's will prevailed! There would be the relization of God's power."

Dr. Hunter cited Bernard Shaw's latest play "Geneva" as showing that there was no other way for the world than to follow the way which Christ had indicated.

FLAT PRICE SET ON BACON TO U.K.

British Food Ministry Will Pay $15.82 for Grade A Wiltshire, $15.06 for Grade B

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP).—Reduction in the prices it will pay for export bacon under the new bacon agreement between Canada and the United Kingdom have been announced by the Canadian Bacon Board.

As a result of negotiations by Agriculture Minister Gardiner during his recent visit to Britain, the British Food Ministry will buy more of Canada's bacon, but the board said last night the price would be somewhat lower than that under the first agreement which ran out Oct. 31.

Under the new agreement, the British Food Ministry will pay a flat rate of $15.82 per 100 pounds for all grade "A" Wiltshire sides delivered at Canadian seaboard. For grade "B" Wiltshire sides it will pay $15.06 per hundred pounds. The prices in the previous agreement were $18.01 and $17.25 respectively.

Under the new agreement, the Canadian Bacon Board will pay $16.10 per 100 pounds for grade "A" No. 1 sizeable Wiltshire sides at Canadian seaboard. This is a drop of 90 cents per 100 pounds from the revised price of $17 established by the board Nov. 2 in anticipation of the reduced British purchase price.

The Bacon Board did not announce the prices it has set for other grades, weights and selections of Wiltshire side and export cuts under the new agreement—but it said the average price for all varieties of grade "A" bacon would be approximately the same as the British Food Ministry's $15.82 figure.

6,000,000 Lbs. Wiltshire Sides Weekly

The total value of shipments to the United Kingdom will be $69,300,000 during the next year. The amount exported will be 425,000,000 pounds, an increase of 95,000,000 pounds over the 330,000,000 pounds exported during the year ended October 31.

The British prices for other export cuts including hams, gammons, fores, middles and backs correspond to the price for Wiltshire sides. Under the agreement however, 75 per cent. of the 8,176,000 pounds Canada will deliver for export must be Wiltshire sides.

Under the new price agreement, the Canadian Bacon Board will pay almost as much to Canadian farmers as it receives from the British Food Ministry for bacon, but bacon officials say a surplus now on hand will pay the board's operating costs.

Officials point to the policy in placing a higher price on Grade A No. 1 as providing a premium for those who produce products of top quality.

"Farmers and packers will be called on to make every effort to produce the best quality possible," says a statement issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture. "With all continental supplies of bacon cut off because of the war, British consumers are eating Canadian bacon and, according to recent reports, are liking it. Consequently government officials in charge of bacon shipments are making every effort to maintain that favorable situation."

Building Construction At Mt. View Airport Will be Begun Soon

Construction of buildings at the Mountain View Airport, formerly scheduled for the spring of 1941, will be started in the immediate future a reliable source revealed today.

With favorable weather conditions, operations will be well under way by early winter and completion of the buildings, hangars, administration offices and other structures will be rushed.

It is expected the project will furnish employment to a number of skilled craftsmen of the city and district, a number of whom are now available through the completion of other building projects throughout the district.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Benito Mussolini has let loose another of his bombastic speeches, but it would not be difficult to read in it a swift undercurrent of frustration and fear.

The Duce, speaking to his Fascist chiefs on the fifth anniversary of the date the League of Nations voted economic sanctions against him for the invasion of Ethiopia, shouted: "Whatever happens, I will never turn back" in the fight against Greece.

However, Italian troops in Albania and along the Greek border, harassed and pursued by the furious Greeks, continued to retreat. It is only three weeks since they were launched on an invasion of Greece, but today they appeared in acute danger of having their seized territory, Albania, counter-invaded. Little fighting was taking place in Greece. Most of it was in Albania.

Mussolini also denied Prime Minister Churchills statement last week about the disabling of Italian battleships and other vessels at Taranto—but denied only the numbers and the extent of the damage.

He denounced Mr. Churchill as the "English loud speaker," and Britain as the "modern Carthage" which must be destroyed before the war ended. He advanced the novel theory that Britain started the war, really, five years ago when 51 nations voted the sanctions against Italy.

He promised the Italians he would relaunch the African offensive that fizzled out on the edge of the Egyptian desert. He warned them that they might expect further privations in the interest of the war that Italy now had 1,000,000 under arms but could call 8,000,000 more.

Meanwhile his son-in-law, Italian Foreign Minister Ciano, popped up at Berchtesgaden, Hitler's retreat, and from the other direction came Spain's Foreign Minister Suner Serrano. German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop was there to meet them and the Fuehrer himself was reported atop the hill.

Observers in Berne, Switzerland, suggested some attempted "squeeze play" might be in the offing, with a joint Axis assault on Gibraltar and Greece.

It was noted also that Mussolini in his speech claimed the German high command in France had discovered "documents" showing that Greece had offered the Allies naval bases in her territory before France fell. He said the Greeks hated Italy—which appears to be true now.

His talk indicated a change of heart on Italy's part since the controlled press, seeking the other day to excuse their lack of military enterprise, said the Italians were holding back so that the Greeks might see their true interests lay in "coming to their senses."

Around the Axis powers still lie some several neutral nations whose interest in the Berchtesgaden talks must be keen. Military zeal in the direction, say, of the Dardanelles, would concern several of them.

The sale of dog meat for human consumption was authorized in Germany last week.

Italian Bomber Reported Brought Down in Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 18 (AP). — Unofficial reports said an Italian bomber crashed early today near Danilovgrad, in southern Yugoslavia near the Adriatic coast, after Yugoslav anti-aircraft guns fired at the plane. There was no immediate confirmation.

Four members of the plane's crew were reported killed and one injured. Italian uniforms and insignia were found in the wreckage. Yugoslav authorities began an inquiry at the site of the crash.

Police Blotter

Two teen-aged lads found four dollars in cash on Front St., over the week-end and immediately proceeded to spend their findings. They purchased an air rifle. However, Detective Fred Isard learned of the incident and confiscated the gun, but no reports as to that amount of money having been lost were received by police. However, Mr. Adams of Wellington, reported the loss of $15 to the police. Mr. Adams was of the opinion his money was lost in the vicinity of the market.

Skids on Icy Road

A motor car driven by Bernard Sherry, 268 1-2 Front St., skidded on the ice of Victoria Ave. hill shortly after midnight Saturday night with the result that Mr. Sherry's motor car crashed into the Bell Telephone barricade that protects a street excavation at the intersection of Pinnacle St., and Victoria Ave. The only damage resulting was to a lantern, P. C. Evans learned upon investigation.

Collision Reported

An automobile driven by Cassidy collided with another motor car driven by H. B. Wilson, 187 Foster Ave. at the intersection of Church and Bridge Sts. Police allege that Cassidy did not stop at the Church St. "stop sign," while Mr. Cassidy held that his car skidded out into Bridge St. owing to the icy pavement, as he was proceeding south on Church St. The matter of damages was amicably agreed upon, however.

Many Not Carrying Cards

While investigating minor infractions of the law over the week-end, Belleville police were surprised to find many persons being unable to produce their National Registration cards. "It is an offence not to be in possession of one's individual registration card and charges can be laid against such offenders," Chief Kidd warned today as he intimated charges may be forthcoming against one or two found not to be carrying their identification cards over the week-end.

Pleads Guilty to Writing Threatening Letters to Gov't

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—James E. Rolland, Iroquois, was sentenced to two years definite in reformatory and two years indefinite when he pleaded guilty to a charge of writing threatening letters.

Magistrate P. C. Bergeron recommended that Rolland be interned at the end of the four years if the war is still in progress.

Rolland admitted writing letters to Dr. G. E. Shortt, Inspector of penitentiaries of the Department of Justice in Ottawa, demanding money from the Dominion government and threatening to blow up the locks in the Iroquois canal system if the money was not paid.

COUGHS, COLDS

When railroad men who are exposed to rain, snow, and bitter freezing cold depend on Buckley's Mixture you would be wise to follow their example. Mr. E. Harrold, Moose Jaw, Sask., says: "I find Buckley's Mixture the finest cough remedy I have ever used, and never go out on the road without a bottle in my grip for protection against colds." Buckley's Mixture is a time-tested, proven remedy used in thousands of Canadian homes whenever coughs, colds, grippe, bronchitis, etc., are troublesome. It eases the cough almost instantly, turns tough phlegm into easily expelled fluid, soothes the air ducts, corrects over-acidity. Don't experiment—Buy Buckley's.

SEEN LEAVING ROOMING HOUSE WITH HUSBAND

PAIR SEEN TOGETHER

Toronto, Nov. 18—(CP)—A Crown witness at the preliminary hearing of Aircraftman Hugh Alexander Newall testified today that Mrs. Aune Newall, whose body was found on Toronto Island Oct. 6, left her rooming house with her husband on the afternoon of Sept. 29, the last day she was seen alive.

The pretty Finnish girl's body was found in some bushes on the island with one of her silk stockings wound around her neck. Newall is charged with the murder of his wife.

Orvokki Hakamies, who had lived with Mrs. Newall since early this year, testified through an interpreter that the couple went out together and that Newall returned alone that night and asked if his wife was home. She said Newall was to have taken them to a concert.

Miss Hakamies said that she had seen Newall several times in the week before his wife's disappearance and had heard them talking about "signing some papers." She said Mrs. Newall told her husband that "she would sign if she got money for the baby but not for another woman."

Woman Kept Company with Boy Friend

Miss Hakamies, questioned by defence counsel G. C. Elgie, said that Mrs. Newall had been keeping company with a man named "Forbes" and that it was not unusual for her to be away from their home all night.

She said that Mrs. Newall had two other boy friends who used to take her home from work about midnight.

She testified that Newall told her, when he returned to her house on the night of Sept. 29, that he had left Mrs. Newall in the afternoon and that she was going to to the house of a friend who, he said, might drive her to Vineland, Ont.

He 'Sailed and Sailed' And Then Was Awarded D.S.C. for Saving 750

Vancouver, Nov. 18 (CP)—Saga of a hero, as related by Sub.-Lt. Robert Timbrell, D.S.C.: "Once upon a time there was a sailor called Trimbell and he sailed and sailed and sailed. And that's the end."

In those words the 20-year-old veteran of Dunkerque and survivor of the Canadian destroyer Margaree last night summed up a year of adventure as he returned home on a long-delayed leave. More than 1,000 persons were on hand to greet him.

"At the time I was training at Portsmouth," he said. "I was taken off the parade ground and given my first command of a yacht which I'd describe as a millionaire's dream.

"My crew consisted of four seamen who had never been to sea—they were Newfoundland lumberjacks—and two engineers who knew nothing about the Diesel engines in the ship."

Although the craft was damaged by a near bomb miss Sub.-Lt. Timbrell and his crew made three trips and saved 750 men. He was later decorated by the King but his medal, with all his other possessions, went to the bottom of the Atlantic when the Margaree sank in collision last month.

JIMMY WILSON TO MANAGE CUBS

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP)—Jimmy Wilson, 40-year-old hero of the 1940 World Series, returned to the Major League managerial ranks today when he agreed to a two-year contract to pilot Chicago Cubs of the National Baseball League.

The actual signing was delayed until after the arrival later today of General Manager Warren Giles of Cincinnati Reds to give Wilson his unconditional release from the World Champions.

Wilson and Owner Phil K. Wrigley had a long conference before they emerged smiling to announce that the former star of St. Louis Cardinals and one time manager of Philadelphia Phillies had agreed to terms.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today at breakfist ma said to pop, Willyum, do you still have your fantical objection to paper napkins? and pop said, Yes, and no, in other words I still have it, but it's not fanatical. Of all the inventions conceived by man in his most diabolical moments, paper napkins are 2nd only to gunpowder. Paper napkins have soured more dispositions than ungrateful children and ruined more meals than toemain poisoning, he said.

I know you've always felt that way on the subject, ma said. Even before we were married you used to turn around and stamp out of resterants when you saw a paper napkin as if it was a white rag to a bull. But for goodness sakes, Willyum, everbody doesn't feel that way, that's obvious because hundreds of factories manufacture paper napkins and succeed thrivingly, she said, and pop said, I know, and factories turn out high stiff collars and still pay handsome dividends to their stockholders.

But, Willyum, you cant deny paper napkins have their uses, ma said. For instants when you serve fruit, paper napkins are very convenient things to get fruit stains on, she said, and pop said, I'd like to get smoke stains on the whole lot of them from the biggest bonfire in the memory of man. The people who remain calm and unmoved while paper napkins slide off their laps are the insensible soles who start wars and then raise taxes, he said.

Oh well dont worry, Willyum, ma said. As long as I know you entertain any such adverse sentiments I'm not going to succumb to any offer of 2000 paper napkins wholesale, even if it is a bargain. So just lull your mind to rest, I talked the man into breaking the offer in half, and what are a thousand paper napkins? she said, and pop said, Yee gods what are a thousand mosquitoes. A thousand toothakes dont amount to much if you only have one at a time. I wish I'd had time to autograff them all for you, but I've got to hurry to the office where a thousand headakes laughingly await me, he said.

And he folded his paper and went.

NUDE BODY OF WOMAN FOUND

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Nude body of a woman found on the shore of Toronto Bay Sunday was identified today as Mrs. Margaret Taylor, 68, of Toronto. She had not been seen at her rooming house since Nov. 2, a few days after the death of her husband.

Police found a note in her room asking that all her belongings be given to a daughter-in-law.

WEDDINGS

MANLEY—HOWSON

A quiet wedding was solemnized Tuesday at St. Paul's Presbyterian Manse, Peterborough, when Marjorie Geraldine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Howson, Otonabee was united in marriage to John Allen, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Manley, Otonabee. Rev. A. G. Barr officiating.

The bride looked charming in a street-length frock of ocean blue wool crepe with black accessories.

Mrs. George Richardson, sister of the bridegroom was bridesmaid, dressed in empire blue crepe with black accessories. The groom was assisted by Cecil Howson brother of the bride.

Reception was held at the home of the bride to about fifteen guests. The young couple left on a motor trip to Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside in Bloomfield.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Congregation Celebrates 117th Anniversary

Principal T. Eakin of Knox College Declares in Sermon at Anniversary, That God's Laws Cannot be Broken and That Germany and Italy, Imbued With Primitive Idea of Survival of the Fittest, Will Pay by Their Own Deterioration — Guest Preacher Points Out 'Faith of Our Fathers' Was Based on the Moral Law and Faith of Christ

"The law of retribution is the death of that nation's soul that flaunts defiance to the laws of God. Germany and Italy will pay with their deterioration. The eternal sovereignty of God cannot be shaken," the Rev. Principal T. Eakin, Ph.D., D.D., of Knox College declared here on Sunday.

Speaking before a capacity congregation at the 117th anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on the subject: "Things that cannot be shaken," Principal Eakin told his morning listeners that "Man cannot break God's laws, he can only break himself against them. The wages of sin is always death."

God's Kingdom Cannot Be Shaken.

To have patience with God is Jesus' continued plea, the speaker pointed out. Nations should not think of barbarism, for Christ's reason will never be killed. "The sacrifice of our young men give the hope that some day the world will rest in peace. God's kingdom will never be shaken. Love will reign and the age of peace and kindliness will banish fear. These are the things that cannot be shaken, he said.

"We are witnessing today," Principal Eakin declared, "a turmoil that is developing into a magnitude such as the world has never seen. Society is being shaken to its very base. Things not dreamed of a year ago are happening. Germany and Italy are imbued with the old primitive idea that the world is something for the survival of the fittest. But through this very idea will they pay, and by their own deterioration."

Basis of Religion Is Morality.

"The basis of religion is morality," he continued" Without it religion would not last long. But the victory of faith and the triumph of goodness will ultimately reign.

"There will be economic, political and geographical changes," the speaker predicted," but there will be no collapse of civilization, for a wave of moral indignation is already sweeping over the world."

He pointed out the horrors of war in all its phases. "God hates war," he said, "and is showing his hatred of it by a transformation of the world. War is self-condemned—and the laws of moral retribution cannot be changed .

Faith of Our Fathers.

"We must believe and trust in the faith of our fathers for our moral life is based on that and the faith of Jesus. We must think constantly of these things that cannot be shaken," Principal Eakin concluded.

The guest speaker delivered another stirring address at the evening service. Special music was given by the choir under the direction of Mr. Harold Kitney, organist and choir director. The annual anniversary supper is being held on Tuesday night of this week. The Rev. W. J. Walker, B.A., B.D., conducted the services

Dandruff

Perhaps you have been reading about various cures for dandruff or have tried some without obtaining a cure. That dandruff is a forerunner or cause of loss of hair is not true according to many research workers. But whether or not dandruff causes los of hair, it is a distressing and embarrassing condition and it is not to be wondered at that those so afflicted are willing to buy and try any and every dandruff 'cure'.

The Federal Trade Commission of the United States, after an investigation of dandruff, states that there is on proof that dandruff is due to any infection. In Public Health Reports, Washington, D.C., Dr. C. W. Emmons states that while a small yeastlike organisms is always present in the dry or greasy scaels of dandruff, it can also be found in normal scalps where no dandruff is present.

This little organism is known as the "bottle bacillus" and many investigators have tried in vain to cause it to grow as other tiny organisms are made to grow. Even those research workers who have been successful in growing this organism adimt that they have no been able to cause dandruff in any scalps by inoculation with this organism.

Instead of trying to infect a normal scalp and thus perhaps cause dandruff, it was decided to inoculate an individual who already had dandruff and to measure whether this inoculation caused any increase in the time required to develop dandruff in places where dandruff was extensive as compared with places in which dandruff was absent or scant. The dandruff did not appear any sooner in the inoculated spots than in the other spots.

This proves, that, with our present knowledge at least, dandruff is not likely due to the organism that hitherto has been blamed for it.

The above information does not mean that something should not be done about dandruff. Until the cause is found, the frequent use of soap and water on the scalp, or the use of various sproprietary preparations should be continued. The cleansing and rubbing of the scalp in itself is helpful in that it not only loosen and removes scales but stimulates the circulation of the blood in the scalp.

Lessening the Prostration from Measles

Measles is such a common and harmless disease that it would seem that little attention should be given it yet it is one disease of children that has not been reduced in numbers or in the severity of its symptoms during the past twenty-five years.

As measles takes some lives and often produces great prostrations, Drs. Herman N. Bundesen, William I. Fishbein, Irving R. Abrams and Richard D. Miller, Chicago, endeavoured to lessen the number of cases and prevent the prostration in children who had come in contact with measles.

In the Journal of the American Medical Association these physicians show the results obtained by the use of serum collected from measles patients who had recovered. This is called convalescent serum. And also by use of human globulin.

When measles was reported a visit was paid to the home by the Health Department investigator, who quarantined the patient and reported the children in the home who had been in contact with the patient.

If there was no private physician, a health officer was sent to inject the convalescent serum or globulin into these contacts. Only the younger children in the home were injected and the older ones (who had not had measles) were not injected but used to compare with the ones receiving the serum.

What was the effect of the use of the globulin, or the serum, as compared with the other children in the home who received no injections?

Six hundred and seventy-eight (678) contacts who never had measles were injected with placental human globulin; 353 (52 per cent) failed to contract measles and 325 (48 per cent) contracted measles. Of the 325 who contracted measles, over 990 per cent had mild cases.

Two hundred and ninety-nine (299) children who never had measles were injected with convalescent serum; 219 or 73 per cent failed to contract measles; 80 or 27 per cent. had measles. Of those that contracted measles about 95 per cent had it in mild form.

What about the children, who had never had measles and were given neither globulin nor serum? Of this control group of 328 children only about 27 per cent failed to contract measles and 73 per cent contracted measles. Of the group that contracted measles, about 77 per cent had it in mild form.

From this large number of cases, injections of globulin or serum in "contacts" appears to be very much worth while. In adults, measles sometimes is followed by pneumonia. A vaccine to prevent measles is now reported.

Men's Night at Belleville Chapter, O.E.S. a Success

One night each year the men of Belleville Chapter No. 55 Order of the Eastern Star, provide the entertainment which is given after each regular meeting, and this year they provided the programme given on Friday evening, November 15th last. This is an evening looked forward to by every member as an opportunity to relax and enjoy some unusual form of entertainment, much of the enjoyment being the result of the unexpected type of entertainment provided. This year was no exception to the rule unless it could be said that it was more unexpected than usual.

The programme was under the very able chairmanship of the Worthy Patron, Clifford Baragar, and after the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Maud Elliott, had closed the Chapter for regular work, she turned the controls over to him and the party was on.

The first number was a character song given by Bob Adams and tried to portray the difficulties of the Southern Farmers due to low prices for their products. He seemed to have difficulty getting enough breath for singing.

The next number was a Mock Wedding and for real fun and nonsense it was a knockout. Clarence Clapp acted as Clergyman and from his performance, he must be a regular church attendant. The Eager Bride was Clinton MacDonald, while the heavy father part was taken by Billy Brooks. The parade of these two to the scene of the wedding was a treat, while the impatience of the Bride at the tardiness of the Groom showed suspicion. Her attendants were Tommy Law and Alex. McGlashon, with the usual spectators following in to see the ceremony and to say how lovely the Bride looked. The part of the timid and reluctant Groom was taken by Harry Sager, while his best man was Monty Barlow in the character of Mortimer Snerd. During the ceremony the Groom tried to back out of the dire things which seemed to be coming his way while the usual trouble with a lost ring was experienced, but his overbearing Bride promptly brou ght him to time and at the conclusion of the ceremony triumphantly led him away on a leash. During the signing of the register, Bob Adams sang "The Boss O' the Hoose."

The next number was a song by Reginald Wilson with Mr. Ralph Clapp at the piano. This number was very fine and these young men are going to make their mark in the world.

The Chairman then gave a talk on how to have a successful married life. Needless to say, this also was not exactly true to life and was the cause of much laughter.

Fashion Parade Given

Next came a fashion parade with Art Snare acting as announcer and commentator. He knows his stuff and his comments on the various fashion styles were indeed enlightening, while the fashions shown were of a variety, that was astonishing and of an originality that showed diligence in hunting out the costumes. They varied from the gay past of fifty years ago right down to the modern Miss of 1940. At the conclusion of the parade a number of young ladies were requested to act as judges and eventually Tommy Law emerged as the winner of the show with Monty Barlow running him a close second. Others acting in the fashion parade were Alex McGlashon, Mr. Thompson, Arthur Nayler, Frank Tulk, C. McDonald, Harry Sager, Joe McEwen, Billy Brooks, Bob Adams while the stream-lined figure and Spitfire costume of Everett Liddle brought up the rear.

On behalf of the men, Monty Barlow presented the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Elliott with a gift and then introduced the various participants to her, with appropriate names being given.

At the conclusion of this entertainment, refreshments were served and dancing was then the order of the evening to bring a very successful event to an end.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, November 19

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A PARTICULARLY lively and interesting day, with things taking a sudden and intriguing turn, which may upset all previous plans and tactics, judging by the shrewd and subtle aspects of the planets. All relating to promotional enterprises, new propositions, publicity, writings, renewal of contracts and agreements are to the fore and calling for much discretion, strategy and keen insight in order ta reap the greatest benefits. Be amenable to change should it appear advisable. There may be social reaction rather disappointing, irritating.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively and eventful year, with much commotion and surprise, perhaps intrigue and undercover activities. New matters, innovations, unusual adventures, in which writings, contracts, advertising and promotion have public appeal and deep significance, which call for far vision, cleverness and sublety as well as strategy in order to rise to the ambitious climax aimed at. Sudden or surprising reactions may arise in the personal, social or even affectional relations unless circumspect and rational point of view be maintained. Change and travel are probable.

A child born on this day should be exceedingly clever, resourceful, original and shrewd. It will be equipped for much popularity in any of the professions.

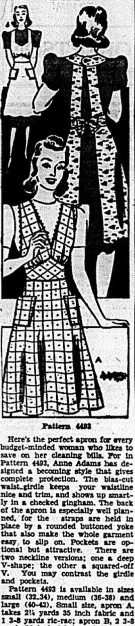
Coventry Congregation Worships as Usual In the Cathedral

London, Nov. 18—(CP)—Destruction of the Coventry Cathedral by German bombs last week failed to keep the congregation from holding a service Sunday morning, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. The congregation met for Holy Communion in the drawing room of the provost, Very Rev. R. T. Howard.

"We are assembled for Holy Communion so that the cathedral tradition may be carried on without a break," the provost said. "The cathedral tradition is with us still. The spirit in which the place was built and cared for will survive, though the stones are gone."

Apron's Novel Back Closing

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4493

Here's the perfect apron for every budget-minded woman who likes to save on her cleaning bills. For in Pattern 4493, Anne Adams has designed a becoming style that gives complete protection. The bias-cut waist-girdle keeps your waistline nice and trim, and shows up smartly in a checked gingham. The back of the apron is especially well planned, for the straps are held in place by a rounded buttoned yoke that also make the whole garment easy to slip on. Pockets are optional but attractive. There are two neckline versions; one a deep V-shape; the other a squared-off V. You may contrast the girdle and pockets.

Pattern 4493 is available in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38) and large (40-42). Small size, apron A, takes 2¼ yards 35 inch fabric and 1 3-8 yards ric-rac; apron B, 2 3-8 yards 35 inch fabric and 1¼ yards ric-rac.

Send TWENTY CENTS (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Beauty on the Open Road

Alice Frost removes cutaneous fringes with an emery board.

By HELEN FOLLETT

You can't afford to skip your home beauty work, girls who go on long motor trips. Fair weather and the open road are all very nice; make you feel grand. But how do you look at the end of the day? Hair flying, skin dry, hands wind burned. Not helpful in the campaign of pulchritude.

Take along a well equipped beauty kit. You can get them filled with just about every thing you need in cute little containers. A thin cleansing oil or a cold cream is a must have. Use one or the other for the purpose of removing makeup. Take along your soap. The kind the hotel has may be all right, but not for you. A change of soaps may raise the dickens.

Pack Your Kit

Don't forget your nail polish-remover, that's the easiest thing in the world to forget. You'll need an orange wood stick, and needle point curved scissors in case you have to snip off a hangnail.

It's a good idea to include a tiny bottle of brilliantine in case your hair goes extra dry from contact with the wind. If you expect to tramp through museums and art galleries you'll need several pairs of comfortable shoes, maybe a footpowder. If you are a curly girl the metal curlers will have to be included.

Mercy on us! What a lot of beauty props we have to have to put up a good appearance.

x x x

Sometimes a girl of fifteen will grow upward for a time and then she'll grow out around, developing the more mature figure. A child of ten may be a plump little partridge at eighteen be slender and willowy.

The mama should see that daughter gets a balanced diet. Youth needs more sweets, starches and fats than adults because youth is active, uses up a great deal of energy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wishes To Resume Friendship

Dear Miss Fairfax:

He was the best friend I ever had, never touched a drop of liquor and never tried to get fresh. He used to put his arm around me in the friendliest way, but nothing else. It was so nice to have him around, and I surely did appreciate him. However, when I left on my vacation, he took me to the train and even brought me a box of candy, but that's the last time I saw him. He hasn't been over to see me in a couple of months.

Do you think there'd be anything wrong in my calling him to find out what has happened? I keep thinking of those wonderful times we had, playing tennis, hiking and going to the movies.

Marge

Your good friend may have come to the conclusion that he was beginning to think too seriously about you and felt he couldn't go on with it. It's so often that way in these days of uncertainty. Young men are timid about going on with friendships that are too alluring.

From my point of view, it would be quite all right for you to drop him a note and ask him to come over and see you. Perhaps he's been waiting for something like that.

Patience Not Always A Virtue

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 19 years of age and have been going around with a boy of the same age. He is jealous of my girl friend's boy friend because he comes to see me occasionally. He tells me I mean more to him than any girl, he wants me to go "steady" and then he says he wants me to go with other girls too. He is leaving it up to me whether he should do this. He seems to think that all the girls will go out with him.

He tells all the other boys to stay away from my house, and takes me every place he goes, but when he is with other girls he snubs me. I can't understand just what he wants of me. Could you tell me how to handle him?

Puzzled Susan

Doubtless you've heard, my dear, that old reliable proverb: "What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander." The young man struts when other boys suggest calling on you. Yet he feels at liberty to go out with other girls. Where is your independence? How he should be handled, you ask? The best method would be to put him in his place.

Prefers Companionship to Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I start going with a girl, I try to make it clear to her that it's a case of friendship only. But she, on the other hand, starts rushing me off to the altar, and I have to run to shelter. I am not in a position to marry, and don't want to waste a girl's time, or keep her from a better chance; therefore, I never go "steady." How can I get around this?

P.Q.

The young ladies you meet are evidently highly romantic, more in love within love than the individual. If you want a real pal, look around for a different type of girl than those you're seeing now. Plenty of young business girls are willing to have the companionship of a young man who has no thought of becoming serious. I know this is true, because they write me many letters.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Anniversary Symbols

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to celebrate my fiftieth wedding anniversary. I wonder if you would compile a list of the symbols for the different anniversaries. We have had some confusion about the different symbols for the different years.

Constant Reader

Lists of wedding anniversaries differ in their assignment for several of the celebrations. Therefore I have compiled a list, with the assignments where they vary.

First: Cotton, Paper
Second: Paper. Wood. Calico
Third: Leather
Fourth: Silk
Fifth: Wood
Sixth: Iron
Seventh: Wool
Eighth: Bronze
Ninth: Pottery
Tenth: Tin
Eleventh: Silk and linen. Leather. Linen
Fifteenth: Crystal Twentieth: China
Twenty-fifth: Silver
Thirtieth: Pearl. Ivory
Thirty-fifth: Coral
Fortieth: Ruby
Forty-fifth: Sapphire
Fiftieth: Gold
Fifty-fifth: Emerald
Seventy-fifth: Diamond

Parents Give Party, Not Fiance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to be married soon and as I am not getting an engagement ring, I would like to know just how to announce my coming marriage. I have gone with this boy for three years. Should I have a party or should he?

2. It will not be a large church wedding. Is it necessary to send out announcements? Only the immediate family will probably be present at the small reception after the wedding.

Puzzled.

1. The fact that you are not planning to have an engagement ring needn't make the slightest difference in the announcing of your engagement. All you have to do, when you decide to make the announcement, is to tell your relatives and close friends, and to write to those who are too far away to be told by word of mouth. By doing this your engagement is announced. Then if you wish — though it isn't necessary — your mother and father may send a formal engagement announcement to the newspapers. They may give a party, as formal or as informal as you and they please, to make the announcement. It is they who give the announcement party — not your fiance.

2. Notes of invitation, written by your mother, are the correct form of invitation for such an informal wedding. Then you may send out announcements, after the ceremony, to those who have not been invited to the ceremony or to the reception.

New Calling Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have calling cards engraved. I do not care for my middle name, and therefore I do not wish to have it on my cards. I do not believe, on the other hand, that it is good form to use just an initial. Also, should Miss preceed my name?

R.

By all means omit your middle name entirely if you don't like it. This is the best chance to do so, on your new visiting-cards. Don't use the initial. There isn't any use of clinging to a middle name that one doesn't like. The sooner it is dropped, the happier one will be!

Yes, be sure to use the Miss. Visiting cards are formal affairs, and titles should, therefore, always be used on them.

Cod-Liver Oil Fallacies

Some people have the idea that cod-liver oil is needed only by children or babies. Nothing could be farther from the truth, for adults get as much good out of it as anyone. I take cod-liver oil myself, and when a doctor takes his own prescription, it must be good.

A great many false ideas have grown up about cod-liver oil. One of these is that it is such vile-tasting stuff that very few people can take it without objectionable reactions. Of course, that isn't true at all. I'll grant you that years ago they hadn't learned as much about refining it as they have now, and then the fishy taste was a little bit overpowering. But now it is different, science has made such strides in the refinement of the product after it is taken from the cod, that today it is almost tasteless.

I think parents, remembering their struggles with this unrefined oil some years ago, often unwittingly turn their children against it. When they give it to the child, they often make an involuntary grimace, or they give a shudder. Children notice these things and are affected accordingly. I have even had mothers write me demanding how we can give that horrible cod-liver oil to the Quintuplets. If we had adopted the attitude ourselves that it was horrible stuff, I don't suppose the Quins would be taking it.

The Quins have had it every day since they were two months old. At first we gave them viosterol, which is a concentrated form of cod-liver oil. A few months later we started giving them the ordinary form of the oil, and now they wouldn't miss their oil. In fact, they will go and take it themselves without admonishing by the nurse. In winter, and fall, they take a tablespoonful morning and evening. In summer this is cut to a teaspoonful. I know some people say that it isn't necessary in summer, but I think it has been beneficial for the Quints.

When we first started giving them viosterol, we gave them a little more than the dose called for. After all, this was no ordinary case, so we adopted extraordinary methods. Months afterwards when we studied the babies' joints under the X-ray we discovered where that extra viosterol went. We found that it had caused an extra amount of calcium to form on the bones, making them stronger. That is one of the things it has done for the Quintuplets.

My advice to parents is to give cod-liver oil BEFORE meals. If the child doesn't like it "straight," then give it to him in orange juice. This will camouflage the taste for him. Another way of getting it down easily is to put a little salt on the tip of the tongue before taking the oil.

Taking of the oil before meals is quite important. The reason is that cod-liver oil isn't digested in the stomach. Like all oils and fats, the digestive processes for it go on in the lower bowel. So, if it is given before food is taken, it goes right to the place of digestion. But if it is taken with food, then it may remain in the stomach until the food is digested and passes along. While it is being held in the stomach, there is apt to be regurgitation, and when this happens, the child tastes the oil again and again.

I have known children who had no difficulty getting cod-liver oil down the first time. But after it had come up on them several times because it was taken after meals, they just couldn't take it any more. So they were turned against one of the best medicines and foods we know.

Anyone who is skinny and run down should take cod-liver oil. It is good for anyone with a chronic lung condition. Those inclined to tuberculosis in particular receive great benefit from it. Even though you feel well and have no colds, it is a great precaution to begin taking cod-liver oil in the fall of the year. It will build you up, keep you from taking most colds, and greatly cut down the severity of the colds you do happen to contract.

Maple Leafs Defeat Canadiens And Boston Over the Weekend To Lead Loop by Two Points

Squad Hands Canadiens a 4-2 Loss on Saturday and Beats Boston 4-1 Sunday Night

STANOWSKI A STAR

Rookie Mowers Scores His First Shutout When Detroit Blanks Amerks

(By Robert Clarke, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Boston Bruins must feel a lot like the man who was unaccustomed to public speaking.

Certainly it is that the Bruins are not playing the role mapped out for them by most observers. With a little more than two weeks of National Hockey League play in the record books, the Bruins find themselves in the embarrassing position of being last in the league.

True, they have only played three games while the majority of the clubs have gone through five contests. But even then their record in their contests so far isn't anything for Manager Art Ross to get enthused about, although at the start of the season Ross pronounced that this was the best Bruin team ever.

All that the Bruins have to show from their three games is a draw with Montreal Canadiens who have been able only to mark up two ties in five games. The other two contests went the way of the opposition with the Bruins being defeated 6-5 by Chicago Black Hawks and 4-1 by Toronto Maple Leafs.

Leafs on Top

The Bruins bowed to the Leafs last night in Boston, giving Toronto its second victory of the week-end. On Saturday night at home the Leafs topped Canadiens 4-2 and now dwell at the top of the standing, two points ahead of the Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings.

In other Sunday night contests the Hawks and Canadiens tied 4-4 while the Wings blanked New York Americans 2-0. The Wings came out of the week-end firing with the second best record, for they played a 3-3 tie with New York Rangers in New York on Saturday night.

The Leafs, who have now won four straight games since being beaten by Rangers on the opening night, were led during the week-end by Defenceman Wally Stanowski. Stanowski, rapidly developing into one of the best rushing rearguards in the league, scored a goal against both Boston and Canadiens.

Others to bag scores against the Bruins, who were held to a marker by Bill Cowley, were Dave Schriner, Hank Goldup and Billy Taylor, Schriner, Lex Chisholm and Syl Apps, besides Stanowski, were the Toronto scorers against Canadiens.

Rookies Score Goals

The other Montreal score against the Hawks went to Tony Demers, while George Allen scored twice for the Hawks and single tallies were run in by Doug Bentley and Mush March. Quilty's goal came with less than four minutes of the game left, giving Canadiens a split in points.

Another rookie goalie, Johnny Mowers—held the spotlight in the clash between Americans and the Wings. Mowers scored his first N.H.L. shutout as teammates Gus Giesbrecht and Eddie Wares fired shots by Goalie Earl Robertson to give the Wings victory.

Wings Gain a Tie

The Wings put on a third-period spurt to gain a tie with the Rangers. The New Yorkers carried a 3-1 lead into the third session through goals by Bryan Hextall, Clint Smith and Mac Colville against a first-period tally by Alex Motter for the Wings. Motter scored his second goal near the half-way mark of the third period while Ken Kilrea fired the tying shot with less than four minutes to go. The Rangers had to fight furiously to keep the Wings from winning in the overtime.

Wally Stanowski, Toronto, who played two standout games during the week-end as Leafs defeated Canadiens 4-2 Saturday night and topped Boston Bruins 4-1 Sunday night. Stanowski got a goal in each game.

George Allen, Chicago, who ran his goal total for the season to five by scoring twice as Black Hawks and Canadiens played a 4-4 draw Sunday night.

Johnny Quilty, Canadiens, who made his first pro goal an important one by drilling home a shot late in the third period to give his team a tie with Canadiens.

Arthur Greenwood Says New Chapter In War Has Begun

London, Nov. 18—(CP) — Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, said in a speech Sunday a new chapter in the war has begun, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

"The past week has been a good week for us and a bad one for the enemy," Mr. Greenwood said. "The punishment we have suffered was nothing to that which we administered." According to the BBC, Mr. Greenwood declared he was "not concerned with killing people in Germany," but was concerned with killing their power to strike at Britain.

"The industrial damage we have done to them, to their great oil refineries, munitions works, power stations and lines of communication, is fifty times as great as that which they have succeeded in inflicting on us," he said.

VETERAN EMPLOYEES RECALL WRECK

Veteran employees of the Canadian National Railway today recalled the Murray Hill wreck that occurred 42 years ago today on the old Grand Trunk Railway west of Trenton when three Belleville men lost their lives.

It was one of the worst railway disasters of its time and resulted from a turned switch, that saw passenger train No. 5 crash into a freight train on the single track west of Trenton. The three Belleville men to lose their lives in the wreck were engineers John Casey and William Brady and Fireman John McDonald, all employees of the old Grand Trunk and in charge of the passenger train proceeding west. Eighteen persons lost their lives in the holacaust.

BARONS, INDIANS LOSE FIRST GAME SINCE OPENING

BISONS LOSE

Buffalo-Philadelphat Game a Stormy Affair With a Free-for-All Taking Place

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons and Springfield Indians have finally been toppled from the American Hockey League's unbeaten ranks.

The Indians had their name sent into the losing column last night, after winning four and drawing three, when they lost 3-1 to Providence Reds.

The Barons, winners of their first five games, ran up against their old jinx—the Indianapolis Capitals—and were set down 7-2 in another Sunday night game. The Barons did not take a game from Indianapolis all last season.

The losses, however, failed to dislodge the Indians and the Barons from the top of their respective divisions. Eddie Shore's Indians, with 11 points, carry a two-point edge over New Haven Eagles in the eastern section. In the western division, the Barons have 10 points while Hershey Bears, Pittsburgh Hornets and Indianapolis are tied with seven points.

Score Five in Third Period

In other Sunday night games Philadelphia Ramblers won 4-3 over Buffalo Bisons and the Eagles defeated Hershey 3-1. On Saturday the Bears walloped the Eagles 5-1; the Barons took the measure of Philadelphia 5-2; Springfield won 5-3 over Providence, and Pittsburgh topped Indianapolis 5-3.

The Capitals scored five goals against the Barons in the third period. Thomson and Joe Fisher scored for the Capitals in the first and second periods respectively, and then in the third Cecil Dillon, Jones, Kilrea, and Bush, with two, were the scorers. The Cleveland goals went to Milford and MacKenzie.

Norm Mann, Bentley and Giroux scored the goals for Providence that meant Springfield's first loss. The lone Springfield tally went to Max Kamisky after the Reds had gone into a two-goal lead.

A Storm Affair

The Buffalo-Philadelphia game was a storm affair, with a free-for-all breaking out that involved every player on both teams except goalie Claude Bourque of Philadelphia. The fight started between John Polich and Loren Mercer. Foster scored twice for Philadelphia while Smith and Lude Wareing got singles. The Buffalo goals went to Bob Gracie, Tony Hemmerling and Shannon.

Marcel Tremblay, Allan Shields and Earl Roche scored for the Eagles against the Bears, whose lone goal went to Roulston.

Bill Summerhill led the Barons in their Saturday victory over Philadelphia, scoring twice and picking up an assist. The other Cleveland goals were scored by Joe Jerwa, Milford, and Cunningham. Wareing got one of the Philadelphia goals and Milford the other.

Myles Scores Single Goal

Mackel, Frost, Bruce, Kilrea and Hamill were the scorers for Hershey against New Haven Saturday night. The single New Haven goal was scored by Vic Myles a little more than a minute from the end of the game.

Eddie Convey and Johnny Sherf each scored twice and Drouillard once as Pittsburgh beat Indianapolis. The Indianapolis goals went to Keating, Jones and Jenning.

Shore's Indians had to come from behind to defeat the Reds on Saturday. The Reds started off the second period with goals by Jack Shill and Platz, but the Indians took the lead on successive goals by Hunt, Thurier, Shore and Thibeault. Windy Steele then scored for Providence but Hunt got his second goal only 10 seconds from the end of the game to put the contest away.

MARTIN BECK, 71, ACTOR-MANAGER, DIES

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Martin Beck, 71, long identified with the theatre, first as an actor and later as a manager and producer, died today from complications following an abdominal operation. A native of Czecho-Slovakia, Beck became an actor after he came to the United States.

Later he turned to the managememnt side and founded the Orpheum circuit in San Francisco in 1903, from which the extensive Radio-Keith-Orpheum enterprises sprang. He built the Palace Theatre on Broadway, and was owner of the Martin Beck Theatre on West 45th Street.

Leads Built Up by Ottawa And Balmy Beach Sufficient To Carry Teams to the Finals

ARGOS ONCE AHEAD

For Two Quarters Toronto Team Much the Better but Faded in Last Half

(By Sydney Gruson Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The conclusion was general in eastern football circles today that the leads built up by Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Rough Riders in the first stage of the playoffs would be more than sufficient to carry them through to the section final. That final was predicted as early as two months ago.

The best in their Unions on paper before the season started, the Riders and Beaches justified the confidence by leading the Interprovincial and Ontario circuits, respectively, in the regular schedules. They swept aside any remaining doubts in the first playoff games Saturday.

The potent combination of Andy Tommy and Tony Golab led Riders to a 12-1 victory over Toronto Argonauts at Ottawa while Balmy Beach crushed Sarnia Battery 12-0 at Toronto. Both series are on a total-points basis.

Had Best of Play

For two quarters Argos had the best of play and a one-point lead over the eastern champions. Annis Stukus kicked them a point early in the game on a play that started out as an attempted placement field goal and became a straight punt when the ball was fumbled on the snap-out.

Then Ross Trimble sent his dynamite twins into action and the tire turned. First Tommy raced 50 yards to set up play on the Argo 20. Orville Burke shot a 10-yard pass to Tommy Daley, and Golab sent Daley around the end for the touchdown, converted by Tiny Herman.

Long-distance kicking by Sam Sward brought three more points and Sward's superior punting eventually carried them into position for Herman's field goal from placement. Argos, unable to cash in during the first half, didn't have the power to do much about it in the second.

Better Reserves

Even an inspired fight such as they put up in defeating Ottawa 11-9 once this season could hardly make up the difference for Argos next Saturday. Ottawa has the better reserves.

The Beach-Battery game was a hard-fought ground duel, featured by the air-tight defence of the Toronto Club. Sarnia had the ball in Beach territory only in the game's dying moments and it required two successive 15-yard penalties to carry them to the Beach 33.

A newly-developed quarterback sneak, in which Beaches fake a plunge off their ace, Frank Seymour, led to the touchdown that sealed the verdict early in the first quarter. Johnny Mason, the quarterback, executed it perfectly and went 34 yards to the Sarnia two, from where he went over on second down on the same play.

Bob Porter kicked a single in the second quarter and, after a long kicking duel, the Beaches broke through to block a punt by Freddy Daws in the fourth quarter. Reg Turnball fell over the line after picking up the ball two yards out.

This was the easiest of the three victories Beaches have scored over Sarnia this season. They should be able to add to their margin next Saturday.

FORMER MEMBER DIES

St. Peter's, N.S., Nov. 16 —(CP)— George W. Kyte, K.C., member of the International Joint Commission since 1928 and former Liberal member of the House of Commons, died at his home in this Cape Breton village today.

Mr. Kyte, 75, first was elected to Parliament in 1908 and sat in the Commons from then until 1925, except for a four-year break. He was defeated in 1917. He represented Richmond County in the first terms and later, Richmond-Cape Breton West.

BALMY BEACH WHIPS SARNIA IN FIRST OF O.R.F.U. PLAYDOWNS

Toronto's Balmy Beach, only unbeaten rubgy team in the east, whipped the 2-26th Battery team from Sarnia 12-0 in Toronto Saturday afternoon, in the first game of the Ontario Rugby Football Union playdowns. Beach carried most of the offensive all afternoon, but ran into a surprisingly tough Sarnia defence with the soldiers keeping the score down until late in the game. This picture shows Don Crowe, triple-threat Beach backfielder, making yardage around the end of the Sarnia line. The teams meet again next Saturday in Sarnia.

CALLING 'EM Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

The major league bowlers at the Recreation Alleys are doing some tall timber toppling this season. With the season only nicely under way the champion Belleville Golf trundlers are messing the maples with consistency and have set up season's records already. For instance one night recently the Tip Top trundlers failed to floor a team versus the Golfers so Joe Legault and company went out and bowled the necesary three-string to win four points. That night the Belleville Golf team rolled a grand total of 3687 for the three string and were paced by Joe Legault 899 and Evan Barlow 819. Brethren the veteran Legault is really hot this season, Joe has an average of 274 for an even dozen games played while his 374 for a single game is also tops at the Recreation and that's pushing the pins around in any bowling loop. In Leo Barrett's ladies' loop Miss Florence Walden is tops with a 669 for an official three-string match.

Employed in the capacity of electric heist operator in conjunction with some construction work with the Canadian National Railways and operating out of Belleville is Johnnie Malley, former Glace Bay, N.S., defenceman, we understand. Charles Tebworth, former local softball maestro, dropped in to say that Malloy is in Belleville and resides on Johnson Street. This should be welcome news to "Speedy" St. Louis and Ken Watt, as they tell us about all their gayly bedecked Reliance puck-chasing squad needs to round out a contending squad is a good defence player and a scoring right-winger. Incidentally we received a letter from Francis J. McCaw, who is at present employed as a garage mechanic at Madoc. Frank wants to try out with the local Intermediate squad and says he tended goal for Barry's Bay last season, a team that advanced to the playdowns in the Ottawa Valley play-offs by the winners of the Ottawa Senior City League champions. McCaw is employed at Smith's garage in Madoc, in case the locals are interested.

The Peterborough Hockey Club held its annual meeting and the genial Rollie Glover, who happens to own the Pete's rink, was again named as President of the club. Outstanding businessmen in the Liftlock City accepted executive positions and Frank Buckland was of course re-appointed as manager-coach. After winning a championship for the Petes last year Frank was the unanimous choice of the players, who also attended the meeting. Blonde Eddie Starr was named as 2nd. Vice-President and "Bun" Kingdom, Secretary. Instead of raising finances through the medium of a souvenir program, the Petes will seek voluntary financial contributions from the hockey-loving public. Although the Petes have lost Frank Jopling and Don Crowe, they've several outstanding juniors coming up this year to fill those gaps. A lad named McGregor, formerly of Ottawa, is a staff member of the military camp at Peterboro and comes to the Quaker Oats Town highly recommended as an outstanding hockey player.

Forty years at the same sports desk is a long time to whack out copy for the same newspaper, but that's exactly what J. P. "Jim" Fitzgerald, sports editor of the Toronto Evening Telegram celebrated over the weekend. It was on Nov. 17th 1900 that Jim Fitzgerald took over the duties he has so ardently filled ever since and congratulations are in order. Jim Fitzgerald took over his duties when a regular sport page was unknown to the general run of dailies and worked with the old school that included the late, Lou Marsh, Eddie Allen and others who have long since passed out of the picture, but like old man river, Jim Fitzgerald just keeps rollin' along.

Do you remember when Bill (Young) Stribling, leading by a wide margin, lost a boxing bout on a foul in the fourth round to Primo Carnera at London 10 years ago tonight. Stribling was killed in a motorcycle accident two years later. Carnera held the world heavyweight title in 1933.

Strangely enough in Eastern Canadian play-off football circles nearly identical scores were reached as Ottawa beat Argos 12 to 1, while Balmy Beach downed Sarnia 12 to 0. Down in the Capital City, however, the courageous Argos were leading the Rough Riders 1-0 at halftime, thanks to some timely hoofing on the part of our Jimmie Follwell, who received honorable mention by the radio commentators Saturday. However, today it looks very much like Ottawa and Balmy Beach in the next round.

Upsets galore marked American football scores over the week-end. Playing a great defensive game the Iowa Hawkeyes capitalized on a fourth-quarter fumble by Notre Dame to win 7-0. . . . Notre Dame was toppled off the unbeaten list, as was Georgetown, Duke and Cornell. Stanford is headed right for the Western conference title and the Rose Bowl game after being the under-dogs along the west coast last year. Minnesota clinched the Big Ten title in the most thrilling week-end of football during the season.

SPORT SPICE—Toronto Maple Leafs are well out in front of the N.H.L. race today as the result of two wins over the week-end. . . . They beat Canadiens 4-2 and hopped the rattler for Boston and a 4-1 victory. . . . They do say this lad Tom Harmon of Michigan is tops in American football. . . . He's only one touchdown away from Red Grange's record and ample time to establish a new scoring title. Harmon has thirty tries to his credit and is going strong. Grange saw Michigan's Tom step around Saturday for the first time and he was admittedly impressed. . . . Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians and Bill Cook's Cleveland Barons are undefeated in the American Hockey League.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Three players—George Allen and Mush March of Chicago and Syd Howe of Detroit—shares first place today in the National Hockey League point scoring race with seven points apiece. Behind them, in another tie, were Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs, who each have six points. Another point away were Bill Carse of Chicago and Pete Langelle of Toronto, deadlocked at five points apiece.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Allen, Chicago	5	2	7
March, Chicago	3	4	7
Howe, Detroit	1	6	7
Apps, Toronto	2	4	6
Drillon, Toronto	2	4	6
Langelle, Toronto	2	3	5
W. Carse, Chicago	1	4	5

Portugal Packed With Refugees Seeking Escape

The struggle of France's war refugees to escape through Portugal is told in the following story by Lloyd Lehrbas, who recently returned from a four months' assignment in France and Portugal.

Washington, Nov. 18 (AP).—Lisbon, bottleneck of liberty, is crowded with hundreds of refugees of all nationalities attempting to escape from Europe.

All hotels, rooming houses and many private homes in the Portuguese capital are filled beyond capacity, and every arriving train, plane and bus brings more.

Every ship and every clipperplane leaving is packed with fleeing Jews, Germans, Austrians, Czechs, Poles, Belgians, French—as well as home-bound United States citizens—willing to pay a good price for a ride anywhere.

Thousands more wait in unoccupied France, and a never-ending stream of men, women and children—mostly the very young and the old—stretches across Spain and Portugal, struggling against innumerable financial and citizenship obstacles, transportation and food difficulties, and racial animosities.

Unofficial estimates set the number of Jewish citizens in France at 400,000, and many of them now want to leave the country—if possible—rather than face new and severe anti-Jewish measures decreed by the Petain-Laval government in Vichy.

Jews in German-occupied France, already living under much more severe restrictions, constitute no refugee or immigration problem, because Jews are not permitted to leave or enter the German-conquered zone, including Paris.

More thousands of foreign Jews, who fled to France ahead of the German armies, have been struggling to flee unoccupied France before the feared German anti-Semitic net could enmesh them. Many must now give up that hope.

An official of a United States Jewish relief organization said that between 30,000 and 40,000 Jewish refugees, chiefly Poles, were in Marseille alone, unable to return to their homes and unable to leave France.

An estimated 20,000, many of whom are Jews, have been held in concentration camps at Du Vernet, Gurs, San Cyprian, and elsewhere in unoccupied France for months. Under new decrees the prefects of departments are empowered to set up more concentration camps for foreign Jews, or designate fixed places of residence for them, similar to German and Polish ghettos.

When nearly 1,000,000 Belgian refugees in unoccupied France returned to their homes they left behind an estimated 40,000 Belgians, including many Jews, who would not or could not return to German-ruled Belgium.

An air-raid alarm sounded at Bitolj early this morning and it is thought that the Kicevo raiders probably passed over that town en route. Kicevo lies about sixty kilometres northwest of Bitolj, which has been the target of four such bombings.

Gardiner Advises Factory Managers To Cease Talk

Ottawa, Nov. 18 (CP).—Canada's Minister of National War Services, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, has warned factory managers who contend they cannot produce to capacity without interfering with the military training of men that they may have to be told they are not good enough managers for wartime.

"I think it would be wise to stop much of this talk against military training for men who are making planes, munitions, arms and ships and remember that in one year from now a man will be needed to use every gun, operate every plane and drive every truck made and in the front line of battle," Mr. Gardiner said last night.

"I heard a very prominent citizen of Britain tell a factory manager that if he could not get the necessary work out of the labor he had it was he who was to blame, and not the government if his production is not up to the minute.

"Factory managers who contend they cannot produce to capacity without interfering with the training of men may have to be told by someone just as they are being in Britain that they as factory managers are not good enough for wartime."

Just Returned From Abroad.

Mr. Gardiner, also agriculture minister, has just returned from a trip to Britain He was speaking on the "Let's Face the Facts" program arranged weekly by G. H. Lash, director of Public Information, and broadcast over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

He said that after seeing Britain in action he thought "it will take much longer to train soldiers than it does to train labor for plants."

Britain, the front line in the defence of democracy, was depending upon the North American continent more than any other part of the world to help her win the war.

"The real battle of Britain is being won or lost in the factories of the democracies," he said. "British factories are working night and day to turn out munitions, arms, tanks, trucks, planes and ships. Ours must do the same."

AT THE McCARTHY

"Girl From God's Country"

The Alaskan story "Girl From God's Country," now playing at the McCarthy theatre, combines the colorful background of the Yukon country with the elements of racey action sequence and unforgettable love story interest.

The stellar cast of this new production is headed by Chester Morris, Jane Wyatt and Charles Bickford, all of them dramatic actors of the highest calibre, who excell themselves in their current portrayals. The story of "Girl From God's Country" is based on "The Saturday Evening Post" story "Island Doctor" by Ray Millholland. An excellent array of pleasing short subjects including "Fox News," a clever new cartoon novelty "The Wild Hare" also Warner Bros. new hit "Pony Express Days" in gorgeous technicolor and in addition "London Can Take It" the greatest film story that has come out of the war over England to date, precede the feature presentation "Girl From God's Country" at all performances.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Trader Horn"

Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's sensational filmization of the famous book of African adventures returns again to the Capitol Theatre, availing the citizens of Belleville their last opportunity to see this great picture, the biggest undertaking in the filming of adventure films in history.

Love in the midst of the cradle of savagery; a romance amid the perils of primeval jungles; spectacle, thrills, wild animals in their primitive state; a girl as savage as the beasts themselves, lured to civilization through love of a man from the outer world — these are some of the outstanding elements unfolded in "Trader Horn," now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Transcribed from the famous book of the old African adventurer and filmed in the heart of Africa's jungles in the greatest motion picture expedition of all time, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production sets a new mark in entertainment. Its drama would make it a powerful thing in itself. Its actual filming and recording of wild animals, savage tribal ceremonies and other detail makes it the most engrossing adventure film in history.

And through all these thrills there runs a gorgeous romance of the boy Peru and the golden-haired "sun goddess" of the savage tribes. Harry Carey, as Trader Horn, utters the author's homely philosophies and gives a splendidly dramatic performance in the title role. Edwina Booth, as the girl, is beautiful and a remarkable actress and Duncan Renaldo plays the romantic Peru.

W. S. Van Dyke put infinite artistry into his direction of the lighter and more whimsical scenes and gained the utmost in thundering drama in the others. Making it was a gigantic task, but the result will long live as the last word in a drama of gorgeous adventure.

The added attraction is the most baffling mystery in many a year. "Inside Story" starring Michael Whalen, Jean Rogers and Chic Chandler.

"London Can Take It." The most amazing pictures to come out of the war! The actual bombing of London.

Two Toronto Men Narrowly Escape Death in Crash

Smith's Falls, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP).—Two Toronto men narrowly escaped death early Sunday and a Canadian National Railways freight train was delayed several hours when the truck in which they were riding left the highway at a double curve across the railway tracks here.

The truck, property of a Toronto transport company (Martin), skidded when it entered the curve, mounted a high bank, dropped into the ditch, climbed to the tracks and came to rest across the rails, badly wrecked.

A train had been cut in two to allow for shunting and it was stranded with one half on each side of the truck until the wreckage was cleared away.

The truck drivers, whose names were not available here, were unhurt.

50 PREVIOUSLY 'MISSING' NOW KNOWN PRISONERS

London, Nov. 18 —(CP Cable)—The War Office's 88th casualty list issued today contained the names of 1,099 prisoners of war, 50 men previously missing and now known to be prisoners, four who are safe, 24 who were killed, 84 wounded, 11 who died of wounds, and 38 who died.

AT THE BELLE

"The Westerner"

Action-filled scenes, suspenseful drama and romance with a punch sweep across the screen in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner" which had a gala premiere over the weekend at the Belle Theatre, where it opened through United States release. "The Westerner" has Gary Cooper in the title role, and the supporting cast features such brilliant players as Walter Brennan, Doris Davenport, Fred Stone, Lillian Bond and Forrest Tucker.

Cooper plays the type of he-man, outdoor role which has made him one of the screen's top-notch actors, portraying quick-on-the-trigger Cole Harden, who drifts into the wild and wooly town of Vinegarroon' in the roaring days of the '80's when there raged a bitter and long protracted battle between the catlemen and the homesteaders. Cooper comes to grips with Walter Brennan, portraying Judge Bean, the vicious "law west of the Pecos."

Directed with pace and tempo by William Wyler, "The Westerner" unfolds a gripping story in terms of visual beauty, gorgeous sequences and thrilling action. Budgeted by Goldwyn to accent showmanship and box-office at its best, "The Westerner" was photographed on location in Goldwyn City, Arizona, so that the picture is brilliantly mounted, exhibiting spectacular outdoor shots of unforgettable sweep and beauty and romance which provides the screen with breath-taking scenes in the old west.

Cooper once again rings the bell as filmland's most outstanding exponent of the outdoor hero — the tall, silent man of the west, who is quick on the trigger, a fast horseman, attractive to women and at-home on the range. His brilliant portrayal is equalled by Walter Brennan's as Judge Bean, the colorful, unkempt, fearless "law west of the Pecos," who administered justice at the point of a gun. Other top-notch performances are turned in by Doris Davenport as the daughter of a hardened pioneer, Lillian Bond as the glamorous and alluring Lily Langtry, Fred Stone as a homesteader and Forrest Tucker as the other man.

"The Westerner" was filmed by Samuel Goldwyn to give discriminating moviegoers the kind of picture that has everything—pictorial beauty and sweep, unforgettable romance, punchy drama and above all, crackerjack entertainment.

The popular Belle Newsreel with its latest World News Events, Walt Disney's cartoon comedy "Pluto's Dream House" and "London Can Take It," the most amazing picture to come out of the war, precede the feature attraction.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Most welcome was the sound of Kilgour's rap on the door.

"You're all ready for the fray, I see," the Englishman grinned. "Looks as though you were grinding for an exam." He pointed to the neat tablets of paper.

"Work sheets," North said and waved his guest to a chair. Kilgour's jovial attitude changed abruptly and he queried, "Something's gone wrong—what is it?"

Forthwith North sketched his adventure with Nadia Stefan and the postscript with Kanamura. To it all Kilgour listened with close interest.

"Smart dodge, that door stunt," the British agent commented. "Must remember it. But I say, old chap, it's a rum go having a woman to fight—blessed if I like it. Disconcerting as the deuce, they are!"

"I'll say so," North agreed emphatically. "And now, if you don't mind, let's get after this cipher."

Knitting his brow, Kilgour reached for the fatal paper while the American watched him curiously. First he held it to the light.

"No," said North. "No watermarks and not a sign of chemical ink."

"It's going to be hard," the Englishman predicted gloomily. "Short messages like this are devilish."

North's features hardened. "Yes, I know; but we'll have to try everything. Suppose you begin, and I'll offer suggestions from the side lines—you're better at ciphers."

Bending his solid bulk over the table, the English agent seized a sheet of paper and swiftly copied off the rows of letters which appeared as follows:

ADXOQDNFQNFM
HCPZQSDDMLOZHLZRS
JDRSQPESL

"One thing's obvious," Kilgour murmured, as though to himself, "it must be an alphabetical cipher of the simpler sort. Facts of the case don't indicate opportunity for elaborate arrangements between Teodora and our Japanese friend."

"Teodora?"

"I think she was the girl who ruined our evening at Kolna. Josef spoke of her, you said."

North pointed out that the letters of the message were hastily drawn.

"It's probably a makeshift," he suggested. "Now let's see what common ciphers there are which only need an agreed code word for operation."

Kilgour nodded without looking up, then his pencil moved over the paper, and he wrote, "No. 2, The Vigenere system. No. 2, the Della Porta."

While a warm night breeze, fragrant with the scene of tropical flowers, beat in through the window, he made preliminary attempts with the two methods, but ultimately concluded, "It's no good, my lad. Ten to one it's the old reliable Playfair."

"I was just thinking that. Suppose you try it?"

Accordingly Kilgour split the message up into groups of two letters each: AD XO QD NF QN FM HC FZ QS DD ML OZ HL ZR, SJ DR SQ FE SL.

Next on his scratch pad he drew a checkerboard containing twenty-five equal squares. At this point he hesitated a little.

"And now the delicate question arises," he remarked to the world at large, "as to what the keyword is? Therefore, Hugh my lad, it becomes important to know whether Kanamura wrote this message, or that unfortunate Teodora."

"I'd say it was the girl," North pronounced after narrowly studying the handwriting.

"Why?"

"Look at the writing—the letters are formed with an Occidental technique," he pointed out. "The Japanese and Chinese generally write with a brush and are very precise in forming their letters—and it carries over into their attempts at Occidental writing. This is written with a pen and is a messy job."

"Correct," agreed Kilgour, who began to follow the prescribed routine of writing down a list of most probable and possible key-words of five, six, and seven letters. For instance, Nadia, Josef, Stefan, Adolf, Munich, Moscow, Rentner, Harbin, Chihli, Oahu, etc.

"Let's try Josef," North suggested, whereupon Kilgour swiftly filled in the name across the top line of his square. Then in the remaining squares wrote the rest of the alphabet in order:

IJ O S E F
A B C D G
H K L M N
P Q R T U
V W X Y Z

AD XO QD NF QN FM
HC FZ QS DD ML
OZ HL ZR SJ DR
SQ FE SL

Frowning, he bent lower over the paper and, selecting the first two letters, set to work while North, puffing steadily at his pipe, looked on.

"'A.' In the Playfair, one always looks to the right of the true letter, so it gives us 'B' to start with."

"D" was next and yielded the letter "G" to its right. "BG" the translation read.

Major Kilgour vented an irritated grunt, and when the letter "X" of the message yielded "Y" in the translation he profanely commented that Josef could not possibly be the correct keyword. "Too bad we haven't enough of a message to apply the rules of letter frequency. You can always break a Playfair that way if you work long enough."

One by one the Englishman's pencil tested all the obvious keywords; then he asked, "I say, Hugh, can you think of any other words suggested by the actors in our local melodrama?"

North frowned. "Rentner—no, we tried that; Kanamura — no, that's too long." Suddenly he slapped his thigh. "Try Hideyo. That's Kanamura's first name."

H I J D E Y
O A B C F
G K L M N
U V X W Z

AD XO QD NF QN FM HO
FZ QS DD ML OZ HL
ZR SJ DR SQ FE SL

"The first two letters are 'AD,'" North announced as he peered over the Englishman's shoulder. "'A,' then, the letter to the right of it is 'B.'"

"'B' it is, my boy," and Kilgour wrote the letter down.

"'D.' Ah, that's better, it's a vowel. You see, there's 'B.' 'BE' so for."

He remained in alert silence while the Englishman commenced filling in letter after letter. Now the yellow pencil between Kilgour's stubby fingers fairly flew over the paper.

"By Jove, that's it! See? Look at this first word—'Beware.' Yes—yes—we've got it—we've got it!"

The intelligence captain nodded tensely. "The right word, yes—but is the message useful? Carry on!"

As though doom were being written on that sheet of paper, North watched Kilgour's pencil flash back and forth, falter, then stop.

"What the deuce?" growled the Englishman. "Gorgon, that doesn't seem right."

"Gorgon?" North repeated. "Not so good. Are you sure about that second 'G'? 'D' would make good sense and a real name."

A quick checking back, however, revealed that "G" undoubtedly was the right letter.

"See? There's the cipher word—'NFQNFM'—it's 'N' in both cases."

Five minutes later the two stood staring at a completed transcription, which read:

"BEWAREGORGONIFOURTEENMAUIMUSTDESTROYTM."

"Oh, Lord, what does it mean?" Kilgour groaned when he had separated the words as follows:

"BEWARE GORDON I FOURTEEN MAUI MUST DESTROY TM."

"Don't know," North said as he studied the translation. "But I'd give a lot to know what 'TM' means by 'Gorgon I Fourteen', or did the writer mean 'TM' must be destroyed?"

"TM? Who would that be?" puzzled Kilgour.

"Teodora M., I suspect," North said, "yet Teodora would scarcely be carrying a message which said she must be killed."

"But, old lad, perhaps she couldn't read the message."

"True," the intelligence captain conceded; then added, "Let's study the rest of the message. 'Maui,' of course, must mean the island by that name. But what in the name of glory does 'Gorgon' mean?"

"Way back there used to be a ship in the British navy called the Gorgon," suddenly suggested Kilgour. "By Jove, perhaps there's one now! I'll look it up in a copy of Jane's Fighting Ships down at the club, and if I'm right I'll cable London; oughtn't to have any trouble finding out where she's stationed."

A faint smile crept over North's rather haggard countenance; he yawned hugely in saying, "I only hope you're right."

"'I Fourteen,' I suppose, represents some spy's number?" pressed the British agent.

"Probably, but we'd better postpone that subject until tomorrow. I don't believe in hammering a fagged brain too long."

"Right-o; agreed." Kilgour then added, "What's on your mind?" when he saw North seated on the bed, his eyes fixed meditatively on the floor.

"I was thinking about Maui — we've had two references to this island. What do you say we go fishing over there tomorrow morning?"

"Right! I know of a speedboat that'll do forty-five in a pinch—shall I charter her?"

"Yes—we'd better pull out about eight-thirty."

North smothered a yawn and glanced at his wrist watch. "Two-thirty," he grunted, then looked up with an apologetic grin. 'Care to go without sleep a while longer?"

Kilgour grimaced, then nodded. "I suppose so, if you need me. What's up?"

North wearily arose and stripped off his dark blue dressing gown. Talking all the while, he began to pull on a suit of dark gray flannel.

"Just remembered something which may help explain some of the obscure points in that cipher!"

"What?"

"As I told you, when I was hiding in the closet of Nadia Stefan's apartment, her side kick, Josef, let something slip."

"Before he realized you were in the place?"

"Yes. The girl, of course, knew I was there from the start, but this Josef started to blurt out something about the Floating Lily or something of the sort. Anyhow, Sister Nadia shut him up sharply."

"'Floating Lily'? Picturesque, eh, what? And, say—" Kilgour's blue eyes narrowed an instant. "Hold on! That sounds familiar. Ah, I've got it! It's a gin mill down at Satan's Half Acre."

"Dive?"

"Plus! It's a honky-tonk and dance hall, but I've heard there's opium and gambling upstairs. Like the sound of it?"

"Not particularly, but Bruce, my boy, I've a hunch it might pay to look in down there. We haven't made much progress in running down Teodora. Let's go!"

Gloomily, the Englishman assented.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER
It may be the cause of YOUR troubles
Buck it up the RIGHT way. Feel grand
Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, supplies new energy, allows proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headachy, backachy, dizzy, dragged out all the time.
For over 35 years thousands have won prompt relief from these miseries—with Fruit-a-tives. So can you now. Try Fruit-a-tives—you'll be simply delighted how quickly you'll feel like a new person, happy and well again. 25c, 50c.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP).—Prices on Toronto Exchange registered slight gains today. Trading was quiet and only 111,000 shares changed hands.

C.P.R., Distillers-Seagrams, British American Oil and International Petroleum posted minor gains, and gains of a point or more showed for Gatineau Preferred, Hamilton Cottons Preferred and Bank of Nova Scotia.

Pamour, Preston, Upper Canada and MacLeod-Cockshutt were gold gainers and in base metals, Smelters and Falconbridge sold down. Steep Rock showed no net change.

WALL ST.

New York, Nov. 18 (AP)—Efforts to put a little rallying steam in the Stock Market today were half-hearted at best.

Steels led a quiet early advance of fractions to a point but dealings dwindled on the rise. Near the fourth hour steels held fairly well although plus marks were trimmed or erased in other cases.

A bit backward were Anaconda, Kennecott, General Motors, U.S. Rubber Common, American Can, Du Pont, Union Carbide and Johns Manville.

Canadian issues moved forward. Dome Mines, Canadian Pacific, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagram gained fractions. Canada 4s, in the bond department, rose 1-4 point.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP)—Dressedweight were down 85 cents at Brantford, down 65 cents at Peterborough, up 10 cents at Hull and steady to 25 cents higher at Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting early today. The Toronto market was unsettled with dressedweight $10.65 bid compared to last Thursday's closing price, at the livestock market, of $11.40.

Dresseweight: Brantford $10 plus transportation, Hull $10.10, Peterborough $10.10 plus transportation, Stratford $10 to $10.25 plus transportation.

Prices were unchanged at Chatham and London. Liveweight, Chatham $7. Dressedweight, Chatham $9.70, London $10.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 18 —(CP)— Cattle trade was fairly active on killers up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Prices were strong on weighty steers and steady on other grades.

No price was established for hogs. Veal calves, lambs and sheep were steady. Unsold from last week was 750 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 6,030, calves 1,760, hogs 1,560, sheep and lambs 2,800.

The cattle supply included 2,000 stockers.

Prices in the cattle section were: Choice weighty steers $8.50-$8.75 with common selling downward to $7; butcher steers and heifers $5.50-$5.75; butcher cows $4-$5.50; canners and cutters $3-$3.75; butcher bulls $5-$5.50; bolognas $4.75; fed calves $8.50-$10.25; stockers slow and easier, good stockers and stock calves $7-$7.50 with other stockers down to $5.

Veal calves sold at $10-$11 for choice with heavies selling downward to $8. Grassers brought $5-$5.50.

Lambs sold at $9.50-$9.75 for good ewes and wethers, $8.50-$8.75 for heavies and bucks and $7.50-$8 for culls.

Sheep sold at $2-$5.50.

Hogs closed last Thursday at $1.40 dressedweight and $8.50 liveweight. This section was unsettled today with $10.65 bid.

Montreal, Nov. 18 —(CP)—Prices were irregular in early dealings on Montreal livestock markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Receipts: Cattle, 1,163, calves 2,687, sheep and lambs 3,672, hogs 2,861.

There were not enough early cattle sales to establish prices. The trend of those sold was higher.

Veal calves were about steady while other kinds of calves sold 25 cents higher. Good veals made $11 with a few tops at $11.50 while medium veals were $10-10.50 and common light kinds down to $8.50. Drinkers brought $5.75-$8 and grassers made the bulk of the offerings ranging from $4.50-$5.25.

Lambs were 50 cents higher than last Monday. Good ewes and wethers drew $9.75-$10. Culls and bucks were cut $2 per hundredweight while sheep made $3.50-$5.50 with most sales between $5-$5.50.

There was a weaker undertone to the hog market. Prices were unsettled and not established.

Reduction of Wheat Acreage Subject of Private Discussion

Ottawa Nov. 18 (CP)—Possibility of steps to reduce wheat acreage in the Prairie Provinces next Spring is the subject of much private discussion on Parliament Hill but today the impression was that the Government will wait until after Parliament's Christmas recess before announcing any policy in this connection.

In his speech last week Agriculture Minister Gardiner quoted in the House figures on which he bases his belief Canada's wheat surplus will be reduced to not more than 100,000,000 bushels in the next five years. Then he said:—

"There is nothing in these figures which should induce Canadian wheat growers to increase their wheat acreage this year.

"As a matter of fact there is much in them upon which to ask farmers at least to go back to the acreage they had in the year previous to last year, which was 2,000,000 acres lower than the land sowed to grain last year.

Trade Minister MacKinnon will discuss the wheat situation when he speaks, probably this week in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The marketing of wheat is a responsibility of his department. However, it is expected he will await resumption of the session in February before announcing the Government's views about acreage reduction.

Improved Trading Aids Top-Grade Eggs

Toronto, Nov. 18—Improved trading strengthened top - grade egg prices during Saturday's short session of the Toronto open produce market while butter showed no material change.

Light arrivals of fresh receipts cleared well under good demand on the egg market, and grades A-large and A-medium firmed 1 cent a dozen in the graded section of trading. Other prices remained steady.

The butter market closed out the week on a nominal price basis. No selling pressure was evident as most holders refused to sell the first grade Ontario product in wholesale channels below 30 cents a pound and only a limited volume was offered at 29 3-4 cents. Good inquiry below these prices was reported but buyers were not willing to pay the range of 29 3-4 cents to 30 cents, although insignificant quantities did change hands at that level.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 18—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 30 1-2c. Receipts for the week, 7,170 boxes, compared with 7,869 a year ago.

Cheese: Western white, current receipt price, 13 11-16c to 13 7-8c; colored, current receipt price, 13 13-16c to 14 5-16c; white and colored, wholesale jobbing price, 14c. Receipts for the week, 13,133 boxes, compared with 12,680 a year ago.

70 to 80-Cent Decline On Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 18—Sharp declines of 70c to 80c a hundredweight occurred on bacon-hog markets reporting Saturday. This was in reaction to an expected further reduction in the export price on bacon, which already has been cut 70c a hundredweight, said the Toronto branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The new agreement between Canada and the United Kingdom calls for shipment of 7,000,000 pounds of bacon weekly from this country, but Canada has been shipping at the rate of 8,000,000 pounds during recent weeks, although not all of this quality was exported under contract, it was reported.

CAR ROLLS OVER AND STRIKES TREE

Struck from behind a motor car driven by Bruce Minns, 8 Campbell Street, rolled completely over and struck a tree at the entrance to the Belleville General Hospital early Monday afternoon. The car driven by Minns and owned by Carl Sills, West Bridge Street, was struck in the rear by another automobile driven by Clifford Poirie, 209 Queen Street, Toronto. Minns told P.C. Arnott, who investigated, that he was slowing down to make a right hand turn off Dundas Street into the hospital driveway to make a delivery, when his car was struck in the rear. The force of the impact bowled the car over and it crashed into a nearby tree. Damage to over $100.00 resulted to Mr. Sills' car as the body was crumpled. Considerable damage to the radiator, front fenders and tire of Poirie's automobile were also reported. Both vehicles had to be towed away. Charges are pending in the matter.

PREPARE NEW

All along the border battlefront, Greek military reports indicated, the invasion of Greece which Italian forces launched three weeks ago today has turned into a desperate defence of Albania from fierce Greek counter drives.

A government spokesman declared Sunday night that Greek mountain troops who seized new heights commanding Koritza, springboard for the Italian invasion toward Phlorina and Salonika, had driven to the very gates of the fortified city.

The Italians were reported fighting a rear-guard action there to cover the withdrawal, under fire, of strong forces which barely escaped being trapped.

Italian troops, beaten back in repeated counter attacks intended to reinforce their weakening grip on the town, were said by the Greeks to be falling back to new defence lines in ridges 25 miles from the Greek-Albanian frontier and 15 miles past Koritza.

The motorized column reported cut off was said to have attempted a "last chance" dash through snow-clogged mountain passes toward the Yugoslav frontier.

New Command Road

Some of the tanks, as well as abandoned war material, were reported in Greek hands, and Greek advance parties were said to have penetrated northeast of Koritza to positions commanding the Koritza-Yugoslavia road which passes between Lake Presba and Lake Ochrida.

In the Pindus mountain sector, north of the Greek town of Konitza, the Greeks were said by a government spokesman to be pushing into Albania.

"Our guns dominate the Konitza-Erseke road in this area," the spokesman declared, "and our troops are mopping up in the Konzita region up to and beyond the frontier. We also captured Italian booty on the road from Konitza to Melissopatva."

He added "We are mopping up the terrain" farther southwest along the Kalamis river front to the Ionian Sea.

(A British communique said Royal Air Force planes, which have dropped bombs repeatedly on Italian communications, with forces in Albania, struck again over the week-end at Brindisi, Italian port opposite Albania.)

The Greek Ministry of Home Security said last night two Greek villages were bombed and machine-gunned by Fascist fliers but that there were no casualties.

(Reports from Yugoslavia told of a third violation of Yugoslav neutrality by four foreign aircraft which crossed the border yesterday, swept through Yugoslav anti-aircraft fire and dropped 26 bombs on Kicevo and two nearby villages 40 miles from the Greek-Yugoslav-Albanian frontier. The planes, which were not identified, were pursued by Yugoslav fighter planes.)

The Ministry of Home Security communique contained a report of Greek naval operation in the Adriatic Sea between Italy and Rumania.

"On Nov. 14-15," the communique said, "a Greek destroyer flotilla under Admiral Kavadias made a raid through the Otranto Channel into the Adriatic Sea. The Greek flotilla steamed as far as the Island of Sasero but nowhere sighted enemy craft and returned to its base."

50 BILLIONS SPENT

four years. Armament budgets of other powers have been changing rapidly.

Reports received by officials here give this picture of the arms budget of major powers, together with available estimates of national income—which are very rough and often not closely comparable — to provide a yardstick for measuring the effort involved:

Countries In Detail.

United States—For the year ending next June 30, total budget $12,058,000,000, armament budget $5,000,000,000. Estimated national income $74,000,000,000.

Russia — Armament budget for 1940, $2,850,000,000, on the basis of what officials say is the actual purchasing power of the ruble. Using the same basis, the national income is placed at $7,000,000,000, according to the official Soviet estimate.

Japan—Armament budget for current fiscal year, $1,572,776,000. Estimated national income, $5,967,000,000.

Italy—Armament budget for present fiscal year, about $2,000,000,000. Government statement on national income, $5,750,000,000.

Germany—No budget published. About a year before the war, German writers estimated informally that the government took 50 per cent of the national income for armament and other purposes. Other sources have estimated that a higher percentage of national effort is now going into the war machine. In the year before the war, the German income was estimated at 75,000,000,000 marks (nominally $30,000,000,000).

United Kingdom — Total budget for current year announced at $13,868,000,000 last July, but present spending rate near $20,000,000,000.

RCAF CONFIDENT

which maintain a protective watch over the Atlantic Ocean and Canada's eastern seaboard, returned from a patrol Saturday night to find its own east coast base and all other maritime airdromes unuseable because of fog and bad weather.

The plane was ordered by wireless to land at Montreal. Before reaching there the crew took to parachutes. The R.C.A.F. did not say so, but it was presumed the extra flight to Montreal exhausted the bomber's fuel supply.

Intensive Search.

"An intensive search by air and ground crews is under way," the R.C.A.F. said in a brief statement at 10 p.m. last night.

Officials in Ottawa were confident they would hear from the missing men some time today or tomorrow. The bomber was abandoned over a desolate stretch of country, sparsely populated and with poor communication facilities.

They pointed out it took Fo. Leblanc many hours to report he was safe, and said it was conceivable it might take the others considerably longer to find a settlement with telephone or telegraph connections.

Details of the search for the big plane's crew were not available immediately. Officials said they thought planes from east coast bases would join others from airdromes in Montreal and other Quebec cities in the hunt from the air, and ground crews also would cover a large area.

Landed Near Lumber Camp

East Lake, Que., Nov. 18—(CP)—Flying Officer U. J. H. Leblanc, pilot of a Royal Canadian Air Force bomber which was abandoned by its six-man crew Saturday night, landed by parachute about fifty feet from a lumber camp, Michel Plourde, owner of the camp said today.

Plourde said the camp foreman reported that lumberjacks in the camp heard the big Digby bomber roar over and, running out, saw the pilot drop down in the snow.

He said there was no word yet of the other five fliers who jumped from the bomber before Leblanc.

Plourde said the camp is about a mile and a half from East Lake which lies in a heavily-wooded and remote Eastern Quebec district near the United States border.

The bomber was heard by the fifty men in the camp "sometime before midnight" said Plourde. He described the weather as clear.

Soon after the lumbermen reached Leblanc, they heard the bomber crash.

Bailed Out After Others

According to Plourde, the pilot told the camp foreman that he had bailed out about ten minutes after the other members of the crew.

First, three of them jumped out then two more. Leblanc told the camp foreman he had cut the plane's engines before leaping overboard, Plourde said.

He added that the pilot had driven 28 miles to Mont Carmel to report to R.C.A.F. headquarters by telegram and had been instructed to return to the camp to help in a search for the rest of the crew.

Plourde said that today Leblanc was back at the camp and R.C.A.F. planes from Halifax and Montreal were expected to arrive to start a systematic search of the thick woodlands about East Lake.

"Any searchers who go out on foot will need snowshoes," Plourde remarked. "The snow in the woods is pretty deep."

He thought the searching planes would be able to use big East Lake as a base for their operations.

Headed For Montreal

The bomber, one of Canada's aircraft on the Atlantic patrol, was headed for Montreal when it was abandoned presumably because of lack of fuel.

Attempting to reach its Maritime base Saturday, it was ordered by wireless to land at Montreal when the crew found its own east coast base and all other Maritime airdromes were unusable because of fog and bad weather.

The five missing members of the crew are Lt. G. F. Clay of New Westminster, B.C.; Fo. J. G. Richardson, Saskatoon, Sask.; Lac. H. E. Howard Aylesford N.S.; Lac. E. J. Benoit, Ottawa; and Ac. Elmer Johnson, Winnipeg.

According to information Plourde received from his foreman, it is just possible that the five who left the bomber before Fo. Leblanc might have dropped down either in New Brunswick territory or near the Maine-Quebec boundary.

East Lake is little more than 40 miles from the western tip of New Brunswick. The camp where Fo. Leblanc landed is less than a mile from the northern boundary of the State of Maine.

NORWEGIAN SKATING CHAMPION FOUND DEAD

Oslo, Norway (Via Berlin)—Nov. 18 (AP)—A post mortem today revealed a bruise on the left temple of skating champion Michael Staksrud, whose body was found in shallow water not far from where he disappeared Nov. 10.

Staksrud, a member of the party of Norwegian Traitor Vidkun Quisling, suffered a broken jaw when he was assaulted several months ago.

CAUGHT IN CRANE

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Caught in a fire in the cab of a crane at the Steel Company plant, Saturday, Kenneth Fullerton, 18, Hamilton died in hospital today of severe burns to the legs and thighs.

The blaze in the cab was caused when paint ignited and trapped the young man.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fullerton Hamilton.

MUSSOLINI

(He said photographic evidence showed that two battleships, one of the new 35,000 ton ships of the Littorio class, and a 23,622-ton battleship of the Cavour class were partly submerged after the attack and the smaller ship was beached. In addition, Mr. Churchill said, a third battleship "probably" was damaged severely, two cruisers were damaged badly, and two fleet auxiliaries were submerged.)

"A strong people like the Italians does not fear the truth—it demands it.

For this reason, he claimed, Italian military communiques record "not only the blows we give but also those we receive."

Mussolini Congratulates Italians

He congratulated the Italians on the spirit with which they bore war-imposed sacrifices, then warned:-

"These sacrifices so far are tolerable, but they may become more severe."

Mussolini told his party chiefs Italian losses in Greece were 372 killed, 1,081 wounded and 650 missing.

"They will be revenged," he shouted, "for whatever happens. I will never turn back."

"We have 1,000,000 men under arms, and we could call 8,000,000 more."

A Furious Attack

Mussolini began his speech with a furious attack on Britain which he claimed was exclusively to blame for the war.

The preparation for war began when the League of Nations imposed economic sanctions on Italy five years ago for the invasion of Ethiopia, he said.

The peace still could have been preserved, he declared, "if England had not rejected every one of Germany's attempts at rapprochement."

It could have been saved, he added, if Britain had not adopted a program of "encirclement" of Germany and if Britain, in response to Mussolini's last-minute attempt to forestall war after the Polish invasion had begun, had not imposed "humiliating conditions that German troops should withdraw from Polish soil."

The Duce said the war, once begun, could be concluded now only "with the annihilation of the modern Carthage—England."

He said Italy's operations in Egypt foreshadowed resumption of the Italian offensive and added that Italian attack on Sidi Barrani "must be taken not as the conclusion but as a premise."

Identity of Views

Mussolini claimed Italy is turning out four times more airplanes than before the war and said: "In a short time, with mass production, our new types will be perhaps ahead and certainly equal to the most modern planes of other countries."

He declared that "from day to day our collaboration with Germany is really comradely and totalitarian. We are marching side by side . . . our identity of views, both for the present and for the future, is perfect.

"My meetings with the Fuehrer (Hitler) are only a consecration of this complete fusion of our conceptions."

The three-hour pact among Germany, Italy and Japan, developments in the Danubian Basin, as well as "the future position of France," resulted from those meetings, Il Duce asserted.

Reason is Mystery to Duce

Turning to the war against Greece, Mussolini said the Greeks "hate Italy as no other people," although "the reason is a mystery."

Greek foreign policy in recent years was based on this hatred, he charged, describing it as a policy of "absolute complicity with Great Britain."

"It could not be otherwise," he shouted, "considering the King is English, the political class is English and the Bourse, in both a figurative and real sense, is English."

Papers allegedly found by the German general staff in France, he declared, showed Greece had offered the Allies all its air and naval bases since last May.

"The rough mountains of Epirus and its muddy valleys do not lend themselves to lightning war," he explained. "I do not believe it worth the trouble to deny all the news given by Greek propaganda and its English loudspeaker.

Denies Claim of Loss

"That Julia Alpine Division which was supposed to have suffered enormous losses, fled and been pulverized by the Greeks, was seen by General Soddu, who after his visit telegraphed me November 12—

"'I went this morning to visit the Julia Alpine Division and must report a magnificent impression was brought back from this superb unit, stronger than ever in its Alpine rocks.'

"With absolute certainty I tell you we will break Greece's back. Whether in two months or twelve months, it little matters.

"The war has barely begun. We have men and means to annihilate all Greek resistance. English aid cannot prevent accomplishment of this most firm proposal.

"To think or suspect something otherwise, means not to know me . .

"We have 1,000,000 men under arms. But we can call 8,000,000 more if necessary . . . Germans and Italians together, we are a bloc of 150,000,000 resolute, compact and firm from Norway to Libya.

"This block already has victory in its fist."

GAMBLING PLACES IN TORONTO AREA UNDERGO RAIDS

BAIL IS GRANTED

Toronto, Nov. 18 (CP).—A flood of money expected to total more than $10,000 poured into city and county courts here today as 489 arrested in raids on eleven gambling houses Saturday night appeared on various charges.

Two hundred and seventy-five persons pleading guilty in county police court to charges of being "found in" and were fined $25 each. Ninety-seven others were to appear in city court on similar charges, and still more were to appear later in county court.

One Operator Pleads Guilty.

One of the thirty-one men arrested on charges of keeping a common gaming house, Fred Picket, pleaded guilty and was remanded for sentence.

Provincial and city police returned to the Combine Club just west of the city limits and began a thorough search of the big club for money they said they believed was secreted somewhere in the building. Police said the $2,000 confiscated in the raid on the club would not be sufficient cash to operate the club.

Provincial officers guarded the club throughout the week-end.

More than 300 of the "found-ins" were taken into custody at the Elaborate Combine Club, formerly the Brown Derby, at suburban Etobicoke. They were released on $50 bail, while $100 bail was required of 78 other "found-ins" arrested in 10 other clubs in downtown Toronto.

Harry Leiberman, who police say was operator of the Combine Club and 15 employees of the club were released on $1,000 bail each. Those charged similarly in the other 10 raids were freed on $500 bail each.

Picked Squad Used

A picked squad of officers drawn from parts of the province as far distant as Barrie and Niagara Falls conducted the Combine Club raid. Using crowbars and sledgehammers they battered down four reinforced doors to reach the gaming room.

Following the raids, Attorney-General Conant said there appeared to have been a "substantial breakdown in law enforcement" in Etobicoke Township. He recalled that in 1939, when a number of complaints were laid regarding the gambling situation in suburban districts, he stated the matter was one for local authorities. At that time, he said, he offered assistance to local authorities on their request.

"No requests for assistance have been received......and I am not aware of any action having been taken by any local police.......Provincial Police have jurisdiction throughout Ontario and they will act......whenever it appears that there is a substantial breakdown in law enforcement......"

fighter command on solving night raid interception and breaking up Nazi bombing of convoys, and possibly to coordinate further United States and British plane production.

The Air Ministry transferred Sir Hugh Dowding from R.A.F. fighter commander-in-chief to special, unexplained, duty in the United States. One source close to the ministry indicated his mission might be to advise the United States of R.A.F. experiences with the view of standardizing United States and British planes, thus facilitating mass production.

Young Leader Advanced.

Air Vice-Marshal W. S. Douglas, 47, was assigned to Sir Hugh's place in one of six advancements of Air Force leaders, all but one under 50.

Air Marshal Sir Arthur Sheridan Barratt, who commanded the R.A.F. forces in France earlier in the war, was chosen to head the new Army Co-operation Command — working with land forces in a close approach to a separate air force for the army.

Some observers took this as a hint Britain is getting ready for a plane-supported land offensive, either next spring in France or in the Near East, where a separate air commander also was named.

Strike Through a Gale

British planes struck through a southwesterly channel gale after dawn this morning for a bombing attack on Cap Gris Nez where German long range guns engaged in a duel across the Strait of Dover last night with British coastal batteries.

Observers on the cliffs near Dover could see the flashes of bombs exploding along the French coast.

The Air Ministry said yesterday that the night-long British bombardment of Hamburg—Saturday night-Sunday morning, the second in two nights on the greatest seaport in Europe—left in flaming destruction targets that ranged from big shipyards to industries producing synthetic "but presumably edible" fats.

Returning pilots said that as they shuttled back and forth over the city with loads of heavy bombs they could see the destruction below clearly enough "to make certain that considerable damage was done."

The Air Ministry reported other attacks on Antwerp, Dunkirk, and airports in German-held territory.

Reports from the African and eastern Mediterranean sectors told of week-end raids on the Italian Adriatic port of Brindisi and indicated that British bombs might have damaged the important railway which links Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, with the sea at Jibuti.

An Admiralty communique yesterday said British light naval units had bombarded the big Somaliland port of Mogadiscio, hitting shipping and targets ashore and escaping damage from shells fired by Italian shore batteries.

TWEED YOUTH RETURNS HOME

Journeys as Far as Kaladar and Spends the Night There

Tweed, Nov. 18 (Special)—Ernest Peterson, 14, of Tweed, who left his home on Thursday evening, returned early on Sunday morning. He had made his way to Kaladar, spending the night in the station waiting-room. On Saturday he played with some children, who invited him in for meals.

Chief Hayes, who was investigating the disapearance of young Peterson, had contacted Jim Hunter of the Toronto Evening Telegram, who in his Saturday evening newscast spoke of the youth's disappearance and broadcast a description.

While he was eating his supper at Kaladar, this broadcast came over the radio of the youth's host. Fearing detection, young Peterson set out on foot for home, walking most of the distance. On arriving at his home, he spent the night in the barn, entering his home early on Sunday morning.

SUNER ARRIVES

Italian Foreign Minister Ciano's arrival came as no surprise following the visit to Hitler in Berlin last week of Soviet Premier Molotoff.

Axis representatives, it was pointed out, always have conferred immediately after conferences with third parties.

Informed sources said that Ciano besides learning all about Molotoff's visit at first hand also can bring first hand information to German leaders on Mussolini's talks last week with Rumanian chief of state General Ion Antonescu.

Ribbentrop met both visitors, Serrano Suner in the Berchtesgaden station and Ciano in Salzburg.

The Italian and Spanish foreign ministers were guests of Ribbentrop at a luncheon in Fuschl Castle, near Salzburg, after which Baron Alexander von Doernberg, German chief of protocol, called for Serrano Suner at his hotel and took him to the Berghof, Hitler's mountain chateau.

Ribbentrop was present at their talks.

High Political Week.

(In Berlin, the German press asserted the conferences were a sign that Germany 'holds all the trumps'. Neither the press nor official sources, however, speculated as to the ground covered. Instead, the press spoke of the beginning of "a highly political week."

(Spain and Rumania are described by the Hamburger Fremdenblatt as "two geographic pillars marking the space within which the great fight of the axis powers against England in the Mediterranean is fought."

(Dienst Aus Deutschland, perhaps foreshadowing a visit by Premier Ion Antonescue of Rumania, says that while talks with Serrano Suner show the diplomatic interest of the axis in western European developments, yet interest "is equally directed towards question of southeast Europe.")

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

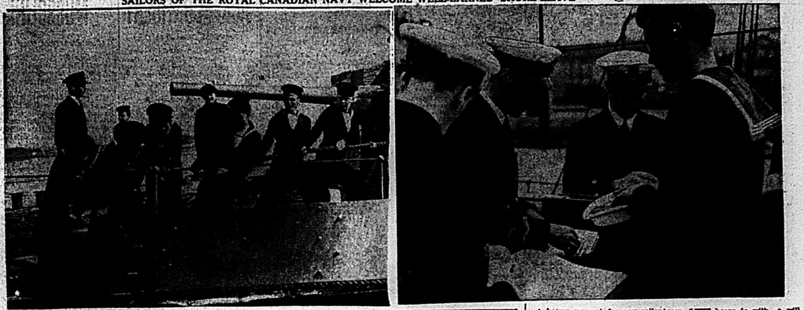
HEROIC WORK AFTER LONDON BOMBING

These three pictures made in the east end of London are typical of the activity throughout the city after every German air raid. In the TOP picture air raid wardens and civilian volunteers are shown carrying a woman from beneath the shambles of her home in which she had been trapped. In the CENTRE is a general view of a wrecked tenement, the midst of which wardens and firemen are searching for bodies and injured. One injured man is seen at the LOWER RIGHT being helped to safety. At the BOTTOM we see an injured man being aided to a first aid station after he had been removed from his wrecked home. His dust-covered face and clothes tell of his lucky escape from death.—(News of the Day Newsreel.)

I SEE BY THE PAPERS—

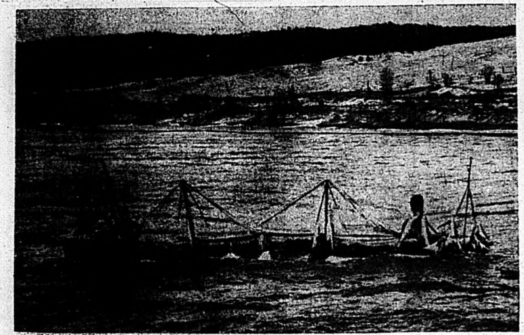
The man on whose shoulders rests the responsibility for Britain's prosecution of the war, Prime Minister Winston Churchill is just another man waiting for a train here. The man who makes news is reading it—for a change.

SAILORS OF THE ROYAL CANADIAN NAVY WELCOME WELL-EARNED SHORE LEAVE



A happy moment for any sailor of the Royal Canadian Navy is when he gets a spell ashore after spending arduous days sweeping the seas in search of enemy shipping and seeing that Allied shipping reaches port safely. There is no fun in shore leave without money, however, and this sailor, RIGHT, is shown receiving his pay shortly after his ship docked.

SEVENTEEN MEMBERS OF FOUNDERED PULP CARRIER'S CREW RESCUED



Seventeen members of the crew of the pulp carrier Novadoc were rescued by a fishing tug after she had gone aground on the Lake Michigan shore in one of the worst gales to sweep the Great Lakes in years. Two members of the Novadoc's crew were swept overboard as the ship struck a reef. Her back broken and with her deck works and superstructure coated with ice, the Novadac is shown, ABOVE, while rescued members of her crew are shown, LEFT, gathered around the stove in the Pentwater coast-guard station. Eighteen Great Lakes' sailors are known to have perished in the gales and four vessels are still missing with crews totalling 69.

Greek Mountain Troops Capture City Monday Eve

Athens, However, Makes No Immediate Claims of Capturing Strategic City

Athens, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Italian troops were reported being forced slowly out of the Koritza zone today— fighting desperately to keep open their road to retreat—after two weeks of increasing Greek battering against the fortified Albanian City.

(Reuters News Agency in a dispatch from Belgrade said the City of Koritza fell to Greek Mountain troops at 1 a.m. today—7 p.m. E.D.T. Monday.)

Greek Military sources, however, made no immediate claim of capturing the strategic crossroads city 10 miles inside Albania, but a government spokesman declared last night that Fascist defenders in the Koritza sector had given up counter attacks and called upon their dive bombers to cover their withdrawal to positions farther back.

Climate of Alaska! Our northern territory, which extends 300 miles northward beyond the Arctic circle and 900 miles south of it to about the latitude of Liverpool, with an east-to-west stretch of about 1800 miles, has at least four distinct climates. There is the warm, moist Pacific coast region, with temperatures much like those of the northwest coast of United States, and the cold, dry interior whose average temperature varies from 61 degrees in July to 31 below zero in January, with only 7.3 inches of precipitation. The Bering seacoast has a semi-ice marine climate, being drier and colder than the Pacific coast. The Arctic coast has an ice marine climate. Point Barrow, the northernmost station, has a 40-day night.

71,749 Tons Shipping Sunk by Enemy in Week Ending Nov. 11

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Thirteen merchant ships totalling 71,749 tons were lost through "enemy action" in the week ending Nov. 10-11, the Admiralty announced today. They included 10 British vessels totalling 61,202 tons, one Allied of 1,930 tons and two neutral totalling 8,617 tons.

The figures included four ships sunk when a still unidentified German raider attacked a convoy of 38 ships guarded by the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay Nov. 5 in the Atlantic and a fifth vessel of the convoy which was attacked later from the air and abandoned.

The Admiralty said that during the week ending Nov. 10-11 Germany claimed to have sunk 140,614 tons of merchant shipping.

The average weekly loss of British, Allied and neutral shipping through enemy action has been 58,575 tons.

The week's total of 71,747 tons was slightly less than the figure of the previous week and far below the record weekly loss in recent months of 198,030 tons recorded in the week of Oct. 14-21.

The week's sinkings raised the weekly average since the war began from 58,575 tons to 58,787 tons, and brought the total sunk since the outbreak of war to 3,644,835 tons.

The enemy, up to Oct. 31, had lost a total of 1,542,000 tons of merchant shipping—a much larger per centage of enemy shipping than British, Allied and neutral losses have been of their merchant fleets.

Canadian First Division Raises $22,500 for Spitfire

Somewhere in England, Nov. 19—(CP Cable)—The Canadian 1st Division's Spitfire Fund went over the top today and the 5,000 pounds ($22,250) raised by voluntary contributions by officers and men will be presented shortly to Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production.

The division is believed to be the first military formation to raise funds for the purchase of an airplane for the Royal Air Force. Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, general officer commanding the division, said "Every unit made a most generous contribution. A great many men gave a day's pay or more."

A huge bottle labelled "a blitz against Fritz" stood in the lobby of divisional headquarters. Passers-by tossed in small change.

U.S. Navy to Rush Construction On Chain of Bases Acquired in Deal

Washington, Nov. 19—(AP)—The United States navy plans to rush construction, informed persons said today, on a $90,000,000 chain of bases for the sites traded with Britain for destroyers in the western hemisphere.

There also were indications that United States naval tenders might move into some of the newly-acquired anchorages immediately and provide temporary base facilities for American submarines and seaplanes guarding the Atlantic and Caribbean approaches to the vital Panama Canal area.

The way to a general start of construction and partial occupancy of some bases appeared cleared by the navy's formal announcement last night that "all the British authorities concerned" had agreed upon sites to be leased by the United States Government in Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica, Antigua, St. Lucia, British Guiana and Newfoundland.

Only at Trinidad, the southern "anchor" of the chain, were arrangements still incomplete. The navy said consultations were continuing on the exact facilities to be granted the United States on that British island possession, off the northeast coast of South America.

The base rights in both Newfoundland and Bermuda were given to the United States by Great Britain without compensation. The other six sites, under a 99-year lease, were obtained in the historic international "swap" involving 50 American destroyers.

American surveying parties already are at work in Newfoundland, northern "anchor" of the new chain, where a major defence post is planned, including an air base and army training ground, a naval base with 1,250 feet of wharfage, and a site of approximately 160

Resignation of the present government headed by Prime Minister Bogdan Philoff, following new concessions to Germany, and a Nazi request for passage of German troops through Bulgaria to Greece were among the possibilities discussed in political circles as an aftermath of the king's visit to Germany Sunday.

Political circles here shied away from the opinion widely expressed in other Balkan capitals that Bulgaria may be preparing demands on Greece for territory in Thrace which would give the Bulgars their long-desired outlet to the Aegean Sea.

Col. Victor Sifton To be Given Post Says Ottawa Journal

Ottawa, Nov. 19—(CP)—The Ottawa Journal in a newspage story said today the appointment of Col. Victor Sifton of Winnipeg, as successor to Philip A. Chester of Winnipeg, in the position of master-general of the ordnance in the Department of National Defence is expected.

The paper said:

"Philip A. Chester, general manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, is going back to Winnipeg shortly to resume that post after two strenuous months in the capital engaged in reorganizing the ordnance branch of the Department of National Defence in the position of master-general of the ordnance.

"It is expected the government will announce the appointment of Col. Victor Sifton, general manager of the Winnipeg Free Press, as Mr. Chester's successor. The two men have been close friends for years and Mr. Sifton came from Winnipeg with Mr. Chester and has worked with him on reorganization plans."

Col. Sifton returned to Winnipeg a short time ago after spending several weeks in Ottawa in close association with Mr. Chester and Defence Minister Ralston, the paper added.

Germany's Ocean Liner Lying at Dock When Hit Says Air Ministry

London, Nov. 19 (CP). — The Europa, Germany's second largest ocean liner, was hit amidships while in dock, at Bremen, the Air Ministry News Service announced today.

London, Nov. 19 —(CP)— Production at the Krupp munitions works at Essen, Germany, has been cut down 50 per cent as the result of British bombing raids, the Air Ministry news service said today.

News reaching London indicates "the growing disruption of industry in cities of western Germany," the news service added.

The Air Ministry said the Krupp works were having great difficulty in obtaining their regular supplies of raw materials "because of transport trouble caused by wrecked railway junctions."

"Three sections of the factory have been hit and put out of commission," the bulletin said. "One particularly heavy bomb penetrated to the underground workshop before exploding and wrecking and wrecking the place. Some departments have been closed and others have had to be moved to other cities."

POWER PREDICTS ULTIMATESUCCESS OF THE AIR PLAN

Minister Says Plan Six Months Ahead of Schedule Set by the Board

Ottawa, Nov. 19.— (CP)— The British Commonwealth Air Training plan has now progressed sufficiently for Air Minister Power to predict "the ultimate success of the plan and the attainment of our common object".

Six months ahead of schedule, the Commonwealth plan will produce by the end of next year twice as many trained pilots and air crews as was originally anticipated for that time, Mr. Power says.

The Air Minister, as his part in the government's review of Canada's war program, reported for his branch of the service to the House of Commons yesterday. Today Navy Minister MacDonald reports for "the silent service", the rapidly growing navy.

International Bridge Takes Definite Form

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Nov. 19—(AP)—The new $3,500,000 international bridge over the Niagara River is beginning to take definite form.

A huge derrick with 140-foot boom has been on the job since last May, when concrete pouring began. This work is expected to be finished in about a month.

The bridge, being built to replace "honeymoon" bridge, destroyed by ice in January, 1938, is expected to be completed for dedication in August, 1941.

Boy, 15, Shoots Thug Holding-Up Parents

Abbotsford, B.C., Nov. 19 —(CP)—Fifteen-year-old Edmund Brier came home last night to find his mother and father being held up by a lone gunman in the living quarters at the rear of their Bradner store, eight miles east of here.

The youngster snatched up his .22 calibre rifle from another room, ordered the thug to hold up his hands. When the robber failed to comply, Edmund shot him in the stomach.

The thug, not seriously wounded, was held until the arrival of police. What appeared to be a gun in his pocket, was found to be a piece of carved wood, blackened to look like a pistol.

RELIGIOUS TRACT, "END OF NAZISM" SUBJECT OF PROBE

Reported Similar to Tract Formerly Circulated by Members of Jehovah's Witnesses

NO ARRESTS IN CITY

By The Canadian Press

Police across Canada are investigating today a flood of religious literature, entitled "End of Nazism" and described as similar in content to that formerly circulated by the Jehovah's Witnesses sect before it was declared an illegal organization under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

The pamphlets were distributed early Sunday morning in dozens of Canadian cities and towns in a door-to-door canvass by scores of men and women. Because in many cases householders were disturbed about 4 a.m. in widely separated communities, police considered there had been a nation-wide plan to circulate homes at the same hour.

Although in many cases the pamphlets were left noislesley and were not discovered until the next morning, with the result that no arrests were made, scores of indi-

Anti-Nazi Student Demonstrations in Paris Disclosed

New York, Nov. 19—(CP)—A dispatch from Vichy, France, to the Associated Press disclosed Monday that there have been anti-Nazi student demonstrations in Paris.

The dispatch discussed negotiations being carried on at Berlin by Georges Scapini, former French deputy, concerning French war prisoners and contained this paragraph:

"Scapini told his government that he had found no resentment in Berlin over the anti-Nazi student demonstrations taking place in Paris the day before he went to Germany and that he had been treated courteously."

Lady Astor Answers Critisicm of Signals

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Lady Astor told 'em off again today in the House of Commons.

The occasion was a request by Sir William Davison for a more musical warning to replace air raid sirens, about which he said numerous women had complained because "they are more depressing than bombs."

"The women are showing more courage than the men," Lady Astor responded, "and I beg the Honorable gentleman not to listen to a few nervous letters from a few nervous women."

The Ministry of Home Security has held that the wailing raid sirens are the best type of warning devices.

BACON BOARD ANNOUNCESPRICES ON BACON GRADES

Provision Made for Three Selections of Wiltshires in Each Grade

24 DIFFERENT PRICES

Officials Give No Estimate Effect of New Prices on Live Hog Prices

Ottawa, Nov. 19 (CP)—Prices paid to packers for Wiltshire sides delivered at Canadian seaboard for export to the United Kingdom under the new bacon agreement will range from $18.10 per 100 pounds for Grade No. 1 sizeable to $12.75 for Grade B No. 3 weighing 70-80 pounds per side, the Canadian Bacon Board announced Monday.

The prices under the new agreement negotiated by Agriculture Minister Gardiner during a recent visit to Britan went into effect on bacon put into cure yesterday. The Board makes provision for three selections of Wiltshires in each grade, with four different weight ranges in each selection.

Canadian Packers therefore will be paid 24 different prices for Wiltshire sides delivered to any Canadian seaport.

Driving at 90 M. P. H. Cop Halts Car With Revolver Shot

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP) — Traffic Officer E. A. Webb, driving at 90 miles an hour in pursuit of a stolen car early today, whipped out his revolver and fired a shot at the fleeing vehicle, bringing it to a halt on the northerly outskirts of Guelph. The bullet landed a few inches below the rear window on the driver's side of the car.

Webb then arrested the driver of the car giving his name as Robert Anderson, 17, of R. R. One, Tweed, and his companion Henry Gassner, 22, Minto, N.B.

The two men are alleged to have admitted to police in Guelph that they had held up an Owen Sound Taxi driver, George Lake, and robbed him of a "small sum of money," and then stole his car, after throwing him out on a country road "a little way" from Owen Sound. The amount alleged to have been stolen was $3, police stated.

Petsamo Nickel Mine Not Producing, Commons Informed

London, Nov. 19 (CP Cable) — Dingle Foot, parliament Secretary to the Minister of Economics Warfare, in a written reply in the House of Commons today said the Petsamo Nickel Mine at present is not producing ore and the Ministry has no reason to believe that any nickel shipments are reaching Germany from Finland.

The Petsamo Mine was developed by the International Nickel Company of Canada. This work was halted when hostilities broke out between Finland and Soviet Russia.)

Many War Prisoners in Germany Lack Winter Clothing, Says Eden

London, Nov. 19 (CP).—War Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons today that many war prisoners in Germany lack winter clothing and that he is using every means in his power to effect a remedy.

The German government has been urged through diplomatic channels to fulfill its obligations under the Geneva convention.

The War Secretary was replying to Sir William Davison, Conservative, who asked if he was aware that many prisoners in one camp had only the battle dress they wore when captured. Sir William added that "many of us get letters from all over the country saying our men actually are too weak to play games because of lack of ordinary food."

Mr. Eden said he was "dissatisfied with conditions, hence representations have been made".

Damage Localized In TNT Buildings Says an Official

Sound of Explosion Heard in Parry Sound, Six Miles Away

Nobel, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP). — A three-way investigation by federal, provincial and plant officials was pressed today into an explosion in the TNT division of the Defence Industries Limited munitions plant which killed three men, injured ten and razed two of the plant's buildings.

Identification of the dead who were taken to Parry Sound, several miles from here, was established today as:

Gerald Hammel, 39, of Nobel; James Pickles of London, Ont.; and Edouard Legere, whose address was not known immediately. Two of the injured were Arthur and George Totman of Parry Sound, suffering from burns and cuts.

Louis Gourdier of Toronto died in a company bunkhouse just about the time of the explosion from the heart attack. It was not known whether the attack was brought on by natural causes or by the blast a mile away from where Gourdier was at the time.

Natural Causes.

A. M. Campbell, plant manager, said the explosion resulted from "natural causes". He added: "There definitely is no question of sabotage."

170 SOLDIERS ILL WITH MILD FLU

Outbreak in Military Encampment at Mulgrave, N.S., Under Control—None in Serious Condition

Mulgrave, N.S., Nov. 19 (CP)—An epidemic of influenza has left 170 soldiers as patients in the military encampment here, but officials reported today the outbreak was under control.

The disease is of a mild type, and none of the soldiers' condition is serious, camp authorities said. All the patients have been isolated.

A half-dozen nursing sisters were brought from Halifax, together with a large quantity of medical equipment, to cope with the cases. About 500 men are stationed in the camp.

HELD CLOSED MEETING

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—Officials of the United Automobile Workers of America Union here said today a closed meeting of members had been held late yesterday but further action relative to the current dispute with management of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada would be postponed until disposition of charges against 47 members of picketing. The alleged picketers appear in court here today.

N. Y. Herald Tribune Says Mussolini "On the Defensive"

New York, Nov. 19—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune, dissecting Mussolini's address yesterday point by point, said editorially Monday Il Duce was "painfully on the defensive."

It concluded:

"One does not infer that the Duce is yet in any serious trouble. One does suspect, however, that he is already faced with one of the grave defects of the totalitarian method. A regime built on lies and propaganda deprives itself of any possibility of telling the bad news when the bad news comes. . . ."

The Times said Mussolini "finds it necessary to shout down the questions rising in Italy," and found it "strange and significant that he should have to work so hard to paint Britain as the 'enemy,' the second Cathage that will be annihilated — but not soon or easily, if the reference to the Punic wars is to be taken literally."

The speech impressed the News chiefly "by its admissions that maybe Il Duce has stubbed a toe somewhere," and as an indication "that all is far from being well with the axis."

Phillip Murray Not a Candidate To Succeed Lewis

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 19 (AP).—Philip Murray, Pittsburgh Labor leader, told the annual convention of the Congress of Industrial organizations today that he is not a candidate to succeed John L. Lewis as C.I.O. chief.

The vice-president of the C.I.O. had been the only person mentioned at the national convention as a possible successor to Lewis.

"I want the convention to know that I have no aspirations," he said. "I am not a candidate for president of the C.I.O. That decision has been reached by me."

FRACTURES KNEE CAP IN HEAVY FALL

While performing on a trapeze, Selburn Sharpe, 19-year-old Frankford student, fell to the ground and sustained a fractured knee cap Monday afternoon. The lad was removed to the Belleville General Hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. G. H. Stobie.

TWO COMMISSIONERS TENDER RESIGNATIONS

Commissioners Thos. Cushing and C. R. Clapp of the Belleville Parks Commission, officially tendered their resignation at the semi-monthly meeting of the Board held in the City Hall Monday evening. Chairman W. A. Woodley accepted with regret the two resignations, he said. The trimming of trees along city streets and avenues was concluded this week, several decayed trees having been cut down in various sections of the city. "These trees will be replenished next spring," pointed out Chairman Woodley.

Those present were Chairman W. A. Woodley, Commissioners Cushing, Clapp, Symons, Callaghan and Mayor Thompson.

COUNTY COUNCIL MEETS DEC. 3RD.

The annual December session of the Hastings County Council will convene this year on the 3rd day of the month and continue until the 6th inclusive. Many important problems will be brought up for discussion as well as the yearly reports of the various committees.

The opening session will convene the day after a number of the municipalities hold their respective nominations, and those officials returned will sit for the next two years. The majority of the county communities hold their nominations in December, and it is expected that the majority of those municipalities who hold nominations in January will change to the earlier date.

DIES OF INJURIES

Injuries sustained in an automobile accident on November 9th proved fatal to Orville Richardson, prominent West Lake, Prince Edward County farmer, who died in Picton Hospital Monday night.

The car Richardson was driving suddenly went out of control when he suffered a weak attack, smashed two mail boxes and burst into flames when it struck a tree. He was dragged from the flaming wreckage by a passing motorist. He was 61 years of age and is survived by his wife and a son, Edwin.

LUCKLESS HUNTERS BUY BEEF QUARTER

"It's the first time in fifteen years that I have come home without the hide or hair of a deer," moaned Carl A. Bryant, Wellington hunter, who with his party passed through the city Monday afternoon en route to his home from the hunting grounds near Weslemkoon Lake.

"The only time we saw deer was on one occasion when we were driving along a road in the car," Bryant said, "and by the time we got the guns out, they had disappeared."

The party decided to satisfy curious spouses with some sort of a bag, and enquired as to where they could purchase a quarter of beef.

'HAPPY GANG' CONCERT NETS ROTARY $425

According to an announcement made at the weekly luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club Monday, the net proceeds of the concert given here by the "Happy Gang" famed Toronto radio entertainers, on October 18th, amounted to $425.00. Rotarian Howard Clarke in charge of the committee, stated that a cheque for this amount had been turned over to the Crippled Children's Fund of the club.

SEEK WHEREABOUTS OF R. E. CLARKE

City Clerk Wilfred Holmes is in receipt of a letter from S. B. Hall, Mocksville, North Carolina, requesting the whereabouts of a R. E. Clarke, or his nearest relative.

According to the letter, Mr. Clarke was formerly a native of this city, and the last letter received by Mr. Hall was sometime in early 1939. He is desirous of learning Mr. Clarke's present address, or in the event of his being deceased, that of his nearest relative.

CONANT TO SPEAK AT STIRLING MONDAY

The Hon. Gordon Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, has been invited to be the guest speaker at a joint meeting of the Belleville, Trenton and Campbellford Rotary Clubs to be held in Stirling next Monday evening, it was announced in Rotary circles here on Monday.

It is expected the local club will attend the banquet and meeting in a body.

Hunters Advocate Higher Wolf Bounty

The hunting district about 125 miles north of Kingston is fast becoming nothing more than a "wolf and bear patch," according to hunters returning from that district over the week-end. One hunter who has hunted in that district every year since 1932 says that this year is the first time he had heard the wolves howling near the camp at night. The general opinion among hunters is that the wolves were coming from the Algonquin Park.

Contention that the bounty on wolves should be returned to the former figure of $40, or at least to $25, is made by hunters from the wolf-infested area who state that once the deer hear the wolves they leave the district. "Department officials contended that the high fee resulted in a lot of wolf pelts being smuggled into Ontario from Quebec, but if there are no deer, the Government is certainly going to lose a lot of revenue when the sale of licences drop off," they argue.

The scarcity of deer claimed by Kingston hunters does not hold with the reports of local nimrods returning from camp, however, as practically all report obtaining their quota with deer being more plentiful this year than for many seasons past.

Salvage Campaign Concludes at End Of This Week

The campaign for scrap metals and waste materials in the City of Belleville and district being sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club will continue for the balance of the week, it was intimated by campaign chairman Ross Stiver today. "Tuesday was originally scheduled as the last day for the campaign to run," stated Mr. Stiver, "but in view of the amount of material which would have had to be collected by the pick-up truck during the last day, it has been decided to continue the campaign for the balance of the week."

The success of the campaign to date has been especially encouraging, according to Mr. Stiver, who says that collections have thus far shown that the general public realize the worthy cause for which the campaign was originated and present indications point to the Kiwanis Club being able to round out a successful campaign.

The co-operation of local purchasers of scrap metals and waste materials has been offered campaign officials and every member of the local service body sponsoring the campaign has worked energetically for its success.

At the conclusion of the campaign all metals will be sold with the proceeds to be divided equally between the British Relief Fund and the Red Cross.

In a last appeal to the public, any residents who have not contributed to the worthy cause and who may have waste materials about their premises, may telephone Mr. Stiver at 2337 for a truck to pick up their waste metals.

OBITUARY

LATE PETER DOYLE

The funeral of Peter P. Doyle took place this Tuesday morning from his late residence, 22 Alexander St., to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G.

Interment was made in St. James' Cemetery; the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father J. J. Collins.

The bearers were Messrs. A. P. Allen, W. J. Cook, George Keith, R. E. Orr, J. D. O'Flynn and Frank Cushing.

LATE MISS KATHLEEN THOMPSON

On Saturday afternoon the funeral of Miss Kathleen Thompson, who died in Toronto on Thursday, Nov. 14th, took place from the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Thompson, 108 Cannifton Road. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church.

The bearers were Messrs. W. Kellar, R. Stapley, A. Lucas, M. Mundell, Bud. Kellar and George Johnston.

MRS. MARGARET CORRIGAN, (Frankford)

Mrs. Margaret Corrigan, wife of Mr. Dennis Corrigan, passed away on Monday afternoon, Nov. 18th, at her residence in Frankford, after an illness of four weeks' duration.

The late Mrs. Corrigan, who was in her 54th year, was born at Frankford, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Gallivan. With the exception of four years spent in Belleville, all her life was passed in Frankford and in the community she was held in high esteem. In religion she was a member of St. Alphonsus Church at Wooler and in connection with the parish she was a member of the Altar Society and the Catholic Women's League.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. Dennis Corrigan, three daughters, Miss Nora Corrigan, nurse-in-training at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, Miss Margaret Corrigan and Miss Theresa Corrigan, both at home, three sons, Vincent, Hubert and Joseph, all at home.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

BY-ELECTIONS BEING HELD

Quebec, Nov. 188 (CP).—Premier Adelard Godbout today sought approval of the policies of his year-old provincial government in two by-elections to fill vacancies in the Quebec legislature.

In the snow-covered Laurentian Mountain county of Terrebonne and in the industrial riding of Megantic south of the river St. Lawrence, the electorate went to the polls to choose between candidates supporting the Liberal government of Premier Godbout and Union Nationale followers of Maurice Duplessis. In Terrebonne, a third candidate was running as an independent.

MRS. JAS. MOFFATT 89 YEARS OLD

Son, Who Has Not Been Home for Fifteen Years, Joins in Celebration

Marmora, (Special)—The homecoming of a son and his wife to visit his aged mother over the week-end created a pleasant time in a Cordova home on Sunday. The lady so honoured was Mrs. James Moffatt who attained her eighty-ninth birthday in March of this year. The son was Peter O. Moffatt who had not been home for fifteen years, five of which were spent in Florida and the remainder of the period in Eureka, California. The scene of the welcome in which many relatives and some friends joined was the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton in Cordova. To add to the joyousness of the occasion and to partake of dinner and tea at the Hamilton home, assembled seven of Mrs. Moffatt's children, two daughters-in-law and three sons-in-law, ten married grandchildren with their spouses, four unmarried grandchildren and nineteen great grand children. The family tree was checked over and it was noted that the absentee list included twenty grandchildren and sixty great grandchildren of Mrs. Moffatt besides two daughters, Mrs. J. Mack and Mrs. William Fletcher of McCreary, Man. Friends joining in this happy gathering were Mr. and Mrs. H. Hamilton, Cordova and Mr. and Mrs. E. Post, Malone.

Trenton and District

Two Trenton Girls Reported Missing

Trenton, — Trenton Police are searching for two girls who are missing from their homes. Jean Monkley, age 15, has been missing from her home since Sunday night and Ruth Thompson, a domestic has failed to return to the home where she has been employed since Friday last.

Jean Monkley is five feet two inches in height, weighs about 130 pounds, was wearing a rust crepe dress with gold belt, brown overcoat, with brown belt, black shoes and she has long curly hair parted in the centre.

Miss Thompson employed as a domestic left the place of her employ on Friday night and has failed to return. The missing lady left all her clothing in the home and has failed to return for the same.

Three Mentioned for Mayoralty

With Nomination Day only a few days off, the prospects of candidates for the Mayor's Chair are still undecided. Three persons have been suggested by the many who are in the know but not one of the three have made any definite statement as to whether they will run this year or not.

Mayor O. Alyea at present is hunting deer and has for the moment dismissed civilization and its political angles and municipal elections from his mind. However, when contacted shortly before he left last week, Mayor Alyea stated that he would make a definite statement on his return.

Ex-Mayor Harry Cory, who was contacted this morning, also refused to give a definite answer at this time. Mr. Cory said "a number of people have asked me to run but I haven't made up my mind as yet".

Councillor Ken Couch has also been named as a possible candidate for the Chief Magistrate but he did not wish to make a definite statement, until it was known whether Mayor Alyea would run for a second term or not.

To Sponsor Teams

Trenton merchants will sponsor juvenile midget and bantam hockey in this town during the coming season in order to provide material in future years for the Juniors.

Leagues will be drawn up in a short time and entries for the teams will be taken, sometime before Christmas. Art Black, hockey mentor for this town, inferred this morning that there was a possibility that a juvenile team from Trenton would be entered in the Belleville Juvenile this year. Later the juvenile team would be entered in the O.J.H.A.

It has been definitely decided to try to enter the Junior "C" in the Lakeshore Group with Cobourg, Port Hope, Lindsay, Peterborough and Oshawa. The matter will be placed before the O.H.A. executive on Saturday in Toronto.

The reason for this change from the Quinte Group to the Lakeshore Group is to give the Trenton Juniors an opportunity of playing more games against teams in the same grouping.

The Trenton Juniors will only lose two of their last year players, Reid and Burtt, both being over age. However Coach Black intends to ice a better team than that of last year by drawing players from the Trenton Airport, along with two new players who have taken up residence here.

TOTALITARIANISM SUBJECT OF TALK BY THOMAS BATA

Head of Frankford Shoe Company Special Speaker at Rotary Luncheon

REVIEWS HISTORY

Totalitarian efficiency is, as some writers think, merely the germs of a disease called Nazism and Fascism, sewn by the Goebbels propaganda which find easy victims in the minds of people the grounds of which have been prepared, Thomas Bata, head of the Bata Shoe Company, Frankford, told Belleville Rotarians at their weekly luncheon on Monday.

All one has to do is to look back at the postwar Germany. After being beaten and starved, there were millions of unemployed, but they had enough to eat. They were not well-dressed but they had sufficient coal to keep themselves warm. Eight years after Nazism, the German people have not enough food or fuel. They are the worst sufferers, Mr. Bata said.

He drew a comparative picture with postwar England. "She had 1 1-2 millions of unemployed but they had a better time than the best employed man in Germany today. They were producing the essentials of life and not guns."

Germany boasted of her achievements. They did not have any great stretches of highways. They merely took pictures of a few miles of new road built under the most terrible conditions, with the fear of the Gestapo at every corner. But Germany did have strong propaganda, which made people believe things were being achieved in the better way.

Must Sacrifice Advantages

If Democracy is to survive, Mr. Bata declared, it must turn a little bit the same way to produce defence implements and by sacrificing some of its advantages for a little while, be able to protect the smaller democracies in the future.

The way to make Democracy safe has been shown in efficiency in democratic principles based on knowledge and education. "More than anything else, the object of education is to build a man's character, because the educated man will become ambitious of his own free will rather than through a whip being laid over his head. He will be muh happier, more contented," the speaker said.

The opposite way to this free education is being demonstrated in the totalitarian countries and will be until they are wiped out forever.

Plans of the totalitarian countries, the speaker quoted a book written by one of Hitler's aides, called for a new social structure throughout the world. The middle classes as well as the working classes will be uprooted. In education and knowledge there are definite dangers and subject alien races will be taught the blessings of illiteracy. There will be a great hierarchy of the better classes, the lower will be converted into modern slaves.

The totalitarian idea of government will not be that as exercised by the British Commonwealth of Nations, where the masses are considered the first necessity, but to grab off everything for a few and force the rest of the world to work for them, Mr. Bata said.

Reviews History

Reviewing the history of his nation, Mr. Bata pointed out that in 1620 the Huns over-ran his country after a terrible defeat of Hungary. The German Army appeared at the gates of Prague and demanded the weapons and equipment of the Czechs. In the ensuing battle all the defenders were killed, and that night before the Prague Townhall, the Germans beheaded twenty of the city's leading educators and nobles. These "celebrations" were held all over the country. Within a few days there was no one left with any influence. Teachers, educators, and others were either executed or banished from the country. Within 100 years, the Czech language became one that was spoken in backyards, and the servants' quarters only.

"That is how deeply the execution and banishment of its leaders penetrated a nation's soul," Mr. Bata declared.

Later new leaders sprang up and by the middle of the 19th century the Czechs were one of the most powerful parts of the Austrian Empire.

With the Great War, every able-bodied man was drafted into the Austrian army. After a brush with the Russians, many went over to the other side and started shooting in the opposite direction. Three hundred thousand Czechs held the Trans-Siberian Railway from 150 miles east of Moscow to Vladivostock after Russia collapsed. In 1931 30,000 all that was left, returned home to find a new country created by the Allies in gratitude for their services.

The Czechs immediately started improvements. In 1918 Slovakia had 300 schools. In 1938 it had 3,000. Roads, factories, highways were built. With the help of France and England, a democratic system was put to work.

Czechs Had 37 Divisions

When war clouds again darkened Czech skies, it had 37 completely equipped divisions, thousands of Bren guns, anti-aircraft and tanks, some of which were used later against the French, and men all of whom had served 2 years in the army. Butter, milk and other foodstuffs were available for it was a democratic country looking after its own people instead of trying to create a caste which would reap the benefit at the expense of someone else.

"Our task now" Mr. Bata concluded, "is to find men to produce war materials. One hundred thousand men must be trained within the next few months to do the things, that are vital to our cause. By good will and hard work, ambitious results will be achieved, but people will have to learn how to do things. I like people who know how to do things."

Mr. Bata was introduced by Rotarian Judge Charles Cameron and club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Oswald Scott. A feature of the luncheon was the singing of "Rule Britannia" by Jack Deacon and a special solo "Grandfather's Clock" by ex-Rotarian Walter Scott now of Windsor, a guest at the luncheon.

Other guests included the Rev. Principal A. Eakin, of Knox College, Toronto; the Rev. W. J. Walker, Belleville; M. Davis, Bata Shoe Company, Frankford; and Rotarians Art Black, Ben Joyce and Arthur Prior of the Trenton Club. President Percy McGuire was in the chair.

Police Blotter

Two churches were entered by sneak thieves in Belleville over the weekend, city police revealed Tuesday. Bridge Street and the Tabernacle United Church rest rooms were entered and personal property ransacked and money removed from the clothing of choir members.

On Sunday morning the choir cloak room at Tabernacle Church was entered by sneak thieves during service. Overcoats and ladies' purses were ransacked and money stolen. The same procedure was put into practice at Bridge Street Church on Sunday night, when the choir cloak room was entered and ransacked in the identical manner, which prompted police authorities to be of the opinion that the same party was responsible for both burglaries.

Automobile Recovered

An automobile, the property of Wm. J. Cook, Belleville, which was stolen from in front of Mr. Cook's wholesale warehouse on Bridge Street one week ago this evening, was found abandoned in Oshawa on Monday night. When discovered by Oshawa police the vehicle was equipped with a pair of Ontario licence plates, which had since been stolen at Kitchener. It was through the stolen licence plate numbers that Mr. Cook's car was recovered.

Pigeons Disappear

A number of valuable Homer pigeons, the property of the janitor at Albert College and which had been reported stolen last week, were accounted for by city police today. "From what we can gather the pigeons were taken by juveniles and sold to a local restaurant, where they were plucked, cooked and eaten," reported Chief Kidd today.

Police Seek Identity

Police are also seeking the identity of a man who was seen taking a dressed chicken from a local eating house on Saturday. A woman had purchased her week end poultry on the city market and left it momentarily in a local restaurant, from whence it disappeared.

Fifteen transients were given warm sleeping quarters at the police station last night, the largest number during the current month.

JUDGE DEROCHE TALKS ON EGYPT TO KINSMEN CLUB

"Most Thrilling Country in History That Dates Back 6,000 Years," He Says

CLUB SERVICE WORK

Egypt, that land of enchantment, shrouded in the mystery of the ages and the oldest country known to civilization, was the centre of a travelogue discourse given the members of the Kinsmen Club at their bi-monthly meeting by His Honour, Judge G. E. DeRoche, of this city, at the New Queens Hotel last evening. In his accustomed and fluent manner Judge DeRoche told of the wonders of Egypt, the Nile River and the oldest workmanship known to man—the Sphinx, in such a graphic manner that the club members could visualize with ease his graphical word-pictures.

"Before actually telling of Egypt, I want to speak for a few moments upon the places we visited enroute to Egypt and which today are affected by the war. There is Norway for instance. I feel exceedingly sorry for the Norwegians as they are a wholesome fine race of peace-loving people.

The Hall of Mirrors

"Then Paris, which brings us to Versailles, where the treaties of peace have been signed before. The palace at Versailles has 1200 rooms which include the famous Hall of Mirrors, one room 242 feet long, 40 feet wide and 45 feet high. It was in this room the treaties of the last war were signed," His Honour stated in part as he touched on Naples, Greece, Turkey and Gibraltar in a word-picture enroute to Egypt. "We were fortunate while at Gibraltar to see both of Britain's fleets in the harbour at one time, both the Atlantic and Mediterranean fleets, and I might say it was a marvellous sight."

Egypt is Coveted

"Egypt is one of the most interesting countries in the world and is eagerly coveted by Mussolini. Early in May the Nile River commences to over-flow its banks and rises to a height of 24 feet at some points and to a width of nearly two miles.

After the flood waters recede fertile soil is left and this strip which is known as the 'green carpet of the desert' provides all of the fertility of the country.

"Of course Egypt's greatness is her antiquity. Her pyramids were built before Abraham. The great pyramid of Egypt is 482 feet high, 764 feet long and it took 20,000 workmen 30 years to complete it. These pyramids and the 'valley of the kings' are all on the west side of the Nile where their kings were seeking eternal rest, on the side of the setting sun. The Temple of Karnak is the largest ruin in the world. The building covers 300 acres, had 134 pillars, which were 66 feet high and 36 feet in circumference, but the mystery of the Sphinx still is kept. They are 6000 years old, the oldest known workmanship in the world" stated Judge DeRoche as he concluded by telling of the wonders of Cairo, Memphis and other well known Egyptian cities visited by himself and Mrs. DeRoche on two occasions.

The speaker was introduced by Kinsmen Gardner Duff and extended the hearty thanks of the club by Kinsmen Gerald Hurley and President Marvell.

Eye Clinic Report

Kinsmen Max Waters, chairman of the Kinsmen Club "eye clinic" reported that during the past 12 months a total of 63 cases have been reported and treated, of which 43 individual pairs of eye glasses were provided needy children and in 18 other cases special lens provided at a total cost of $309.25 to the club for this service club enterprise. The club also voted $25.00 to sports fund of the 3-47th Battery, primarily for the purchase of hockey equipment.

During the evening President Marvell not only thanked Max Waters for the efficient and capable manner in which he had conducted the club's eye clinic activities, but was exceedingly sorry to announce Kinsmen Waters had been moved by his employers to Simcoe. During the evening Harry Knott acted as sergeant-at-arms, Don Roe was song leader and Phil Huddlestone presided at the piano.

WHISTLING ENGINEER DIES

Philadelphia, Nov. 18—(AP)—Tunes from the whistle of a locomotive operated by William Henry Wordhoff no longer will echo over the New Jersey countryside.

Wordhoff, known as "the whistling engineer," died yesterday in Jefferson Hospital after a long illness.

Years ago Wordhoff discovered he could play "How Dry I Am" as he sped through the Jersey pine forests on the Pennsylvania-Reading seashore lines. He experimented—and eventually perfected other tunes.

Member for Hastings-Peterboro Addresses House of Commons In Debate on Throne Speech

Mr. George S. White (Hastings-Peterborough): Mr. Speaker, since the last time I appeared in this house I have been serving as adjutant of the second battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, having enlisted on June 29. Notwithstanding what has been said to the contrary, I did not receive my commission from this government. I received my commission in August, 1930, and since that date I have been actively connected with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. I have held my present rank for over five years and was adjutant of the battalion long before the war. I trust hon. members will pardon me for making these personal remarks, but I do so in order no one in this house will think I have received one of these lightning promotions of which we hear from time to time.

At the time of the formation of our battalion there were two officers at headquarters—the colonel and myself. Since July 1, I have seen our unit expand until at the present time there are over 900 all ranks, without taking into account those who have recently been attached to the unit on paper only from the training centres. During this period I have observed many things first-hand of which the public are entirely ignorant or in connection with which they have been misinformed. I should like to assure the Minister of National Defence (Mr. Ralston) that while some of my remarks may be critical, I offer them in the most friendly manner as constructive criticism. I also hope to be able to offer to him and the government some suggestions which may tend to overcome many of the objectionable things which are now inflicted upon our military forces.

I had looked forward with much interest to the address of the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) which he delivered yesterday because I had hoped to learn more of our war aims, but I was disappointed. As a review of historical events, both ancient and modern, his speech was splendid, but that is not what the people of Canada are demanding today. The people want to be told in plain, simple language the military objectives of this government. They want to know by what plans the government aims to arrive at these objectives. The time has long passed for flowery adjectives and fervent statements of loyalty. Surely it can be taken for granted that every hon. member is a loyal British subject. It should not be necessary for them to try to outdo each other in allegations of extreme loyalty. Let the actions of hon. members speak for themselves. The people of this dominion are quite able to judge whether or not this government is doing all that it should in the prosecution of the war.

Let this government give the public the true facts of our war effort without this continual window-dressing. The Prime Minister is a lawyer, but he had a very poor case to present in his speech yesterday. Like a skilful lawyer addressing a jury, he skated round his subject very carefully. He used eloquent language and made obscure references to the real points of the case. He criticized the leader of the opposition (Mr. Hanson) at some length for his use of the words "lull" and "soothe." Yet the Prime Minister in referring to the manufacture of planes in Canada stated that the output had been increased two or three hundred per cent. This sounds marvellous, but how much better it would have been if the Prime Minister had said that in July or August of this year the output of planes was two, four or five planes, or whatever the correct figure is, and then made the comparison with the output in September or October of this year.

The Prime Minister said a tribute to the non-permanent units, but he failed to give any outline of the future of these units. The rumour persists at the present time that these units are to be demobilized. Their training period will be ended this month. He also paid a tribute to the manner in which the national registration had been carried out. I remember, however, that in June I pressed the Prime Minister on two different occasions to state whether or not there would be a registration before any young men were called up. It was only after this matter had been pressed quite strongly that we were able to get the information that there would be a national registration before any young men were called up under the Mobilization Act.

I say again to the government: Let us have the plain facts. How many divisions is it intended to raise in Canada? What does the government intend to do about altering the present set-up of the training centres? Why not tell the exact truth about the production of war materials? We should be told why we have not the machine guns, rifles, ammunition and the dozen other essential commodities necessary for the training of a 1940 army. If an offensive starts in Europe and our casualties are heavy, have the necessary precautions been taken to supply the first division with trained reinforcements? Every man who has been connected with the militia knows that for each man in the front line there must be five to seven men back to the recruiting office in order to keep him there.

I do not expect miracles to happen in connection with the training of men or the production of equipment. In the short time since I have been adjutant of my unit I have come to realize the many difficulties that beset the officers in forming and looking after a unit of only 900 men. At the same time we must remember that today we are in the fifteenth month of the war, and surely at this date there should be a sufficient supply of the essential war materials. Perhaps the Minister of National Defence will tell us when he speaks just how many Bren guns are being manufactured today and how many have been manufactured to date. This government, and this government alone, must assume responsibility for the present state of equipment of our armed forces. In England Mr. Churchill frankly tells the nation what is being done. He does not paint glowing pictures. Only a short time ago in a speech he offered the British people tears and sweat and dark hours, but here in Canada this government has seen fit to attach to many of the departments highly paid propaganda writers who colour the news and release only comments and opinions which are favorable to the government, so that anyone reading their reports in the press is led to believe that we are making marvellous progress, that there is nothing to fear, that Canada is going in high gear. All I ask the government to do is to present the true picture, to tell us exactly where we stand in the matter of production today.

At the very time our non-permanent active militia units were called up in June of this year, conditions looked very black in Europe. Up to that time there had been no shortage of recruits for the Canadian active service force. In fact a young man who wished to enlist in the Canadian active service force in my county or in this province had to search about for a place where recruiting was going on for the Canadian active service force. Whatever influenced the government to call up the non-permanent active militia units for only thirty days' training a year is known only to themselves. In a very short time, in record time in fact, those units were all over-strength, and recruiting for them stopped on August 15. Yet at the date those units were called up there was no clothing of any kind available for them. There were no rifles, no machine guns or other articles of equipment necessary for infantry rifle battalions. Everyone must realize that you cannot enlist men and keep them doing squad drill forever. It was over two months before the first uniforms were issued to my unit. The issue consisted of a cap, a blouse tunic, a pair of trousers, a shirt, a belt and a pair of boots. This clothing was issued two days before the unit left to train at Petawawa camp. Despite many articles that have appeared in the press from time to time as to the enormous quantities of clothing being turned out, this government was unable to issue more than one shirt to each man. The men had no socks and they have not yet received any socks. They received no underwear. They did not have a greatcoat or a cardigan jacket or a sweater of any kind. As for personal articles they received none at all. What a contrast is the list of issue used in all the non-permanent active militia units and the list of equipment actually supplied at the training camp.

Before going to camp one company of two hundred men of my battalion had no socks and they were unable to obtain them from the government. So I myself wrote to the Red Cross and asked for two hundred pairs of socks, and the Red Cross replied as they always do "Certainly you can have them." Anyone who has trained at Petawawa camp knows that it becomes very cold there at night; yet these men were sent there without overcoats, and without sweaters, just in summer uniforms, and there was not a single place in that camp where there was a fire. If a man got his feet wet, or his clothing was damp, there was no place where he could go to dry himself and his clothing. In my opinion September is far too late to have a camp under canvas at Petawawa. It has been published in routine orders that summer clothing is not to be worn after the sixteenth of September; yet there are many men in my unit who are still drilling in summer clothes because there is not enough serge battle-dress to go round. In one company alone there are eighty men who have no summer clothing. These men are drilling either in civilian dress or in summer denim drill—and this after the battalion had been mobilized for nearly five months.

Our unit was issued rifles two days before going to camp with the 306 Lee-Enfield. Up to that time our company at Madoc had only three rifles, which had been borrowed privately, with which to instruct over two hundred men. There was absolutely no opportunity to train these men in the care and use of the rifle or in musketry before going to camp. I should like to point out to hon. members that there is a great difference between the 306 Lee-Enfield rifle and the rifle known as the short Lee-Enfield which was used in the last war, and which is used today for firing on the ranges. The difference briefly is this. The safety catch is different; the action of the bolt and of the magazine is different; but, most important of all, the sights on the two rifles are entirely different. The point of balance is also different in the two rifles. This may seem a small matter, but in teaching men to slope arms, present arms, port arms and go through other movements you must instruct them in detail just where to grasp the rifle and how.

At camp each man fired a round of musketry with a short Lee-Enfield rifle. When the man was ready to lie down on the ranges he was handed at short Lee-Enfield rifle, and there were just enough rifles to go round, one for each target. The point is this. What is the use of attempting to train men in musketry with one type of rifle and then asking them to go on the ranges and fire with another type of rifle which they have never seen before?

With reference to machine guns, the men in my unit had never seen a machine gun until they went to Petawawa camp, except for the one we carved out of wood. At Petawawa camp there was one Bren gun in the entire camp for one day, and the man who wrote the orders for that day must have had a sense of humour because at the bottom of the order with reference to the Bren gun he wrote, "The gun will pass briefly through your unit."

It was the same thing in regard to gas training. Some twenty-two men from my battalion—and we had 660 men in camp—were given very brief instruction in gas. I realize that gas has not figured to any great extent in this war so far, but at the same time it is essential that every soldier should receive training with regard to gas. But without proper equipment how can we possibly give these men gas training?

I wish to impress upon hon. gentlemen that these matters are no secret at all because every man who attended Petawawa camp, and there were several thousands of them, know the actual conditions. I should like to ask the Minister of National Defence whether the district officers throughout Canada were consulted before these men were sent to camp, or were these men sent to camp purely for propaganda purposes? On several occasions after these camps were closed I saw, in the press, references to the men who had been at the camps as trained men.

Before leaving the question of the non-permanent units I would pay a short tribute to the rank and file. I would point out that many of these men travel up to forty miles at their own expense in order to obtain training. Their pay for one night is sixty cents. Let me give an illustration. In the village of Bancroft, which has a population of about 800, there are over 100 men in the Canadian active service force and over 200 men from Bancroft and the surrounding district connected with the non-permanent unit.

At the present time these non-permanent units are conducting classes for the qualification of junior officers and non-commissioned officers. In my unit we are conducting five separate and distinct schools. Officers and non-commissioned officers attended these classes at night and on Sunday and they are allowed no compensation of any sort for travelling expenses. All other non-permanent units are conducting similar classes. I would make a suggestion to the government. Instead of having thirty or forty or fifty classes conducted in one district, why not have one central class for a period of two or three weeks, where men and officers will be called in to take instruction all day? At the present time the plan of running schools in connection with each battalion for the qualification of officers and non-commissioned officers, in the midst of a war, is almost a farce. Such a course might be all right in a time of peace, but certainly it hardly appears proper in the midst of a war.

Some hon. members who were in France in the early days of the last war will recall the old type of bomb made out of a jam tin. Well, the non-permanent units are today making the same type of bombs. The only bombs we have for instruction are jam tin bombs along with some old Mills bombs brought home as souvenirs and a couple of German potato-masher bombs. We have no Webb equipment in the whole battalion. For example, you cannot instruct a man how to fix bayonets because he has no belt with frog whereby to carry the bayonet. We have no gas equipment of any kind; we have no aim correctors, no landscape targets, no aiming rests. In short, apart from rifles and bayonets we have no equipment except what we have been able to manufacture ourselves, such as home-made bombs, bayonet standards, winter camouflage, barbed wire fencing and so on.

I would say to the Minister of National Defence that if national defence headquarters expect these units to drill and to have the men properly instructed, they must give us the necessary equipment for the purpose. Surely in one unit we could have at least one Bren gun. We could borrow at least one anti-tank gun and we could have a few gas masks and some kind of bombs and grenades. As a matter of fact, we cannot even get sufficient printed manuals. These men in the non-permanent units will have completed their training within a matter of a very few days and, as I mentioned a moment ago, the Minister of National Defence will perhaps make a statement as to what is to become of these units in the future.

I would refer to another matter that affects the militia. If my remarks in this regard are incorrect, or if the matters complained of have already been adjusted, I shall appreciate it if the minister will correct me.

The first battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment is in England. It went to France with the first division. The return of the first division from the front to England and the tragic events that followed are too well known to call for any comment, but many of these officers—in fact all the officers in the first division—lost all their personal kit. Some cabled home for money. I would point out to the government that this loss was occasioned through no fault or neglect of the officers themselves, but no provision has been made to reimburse them for the expense to which they have been put to replace the lost kit. Some such action should be taken. If the government have already remedied this situation, then I commend them for doing so.

I would also call the attention of the Minister of National Defence to the armoury in the village of Norwood. It is a first-class armoury in every respect but one that is not being used at all. In the adjoining town of Campbellford, some ten miles away, there is no armoury of any kind, but there is quartered there a company of the Midland regiment, and yet Norwood, where there is an armoury with fine facilities, is passed up. Surely at this time full use should be made of all armouries.

The leader of the opposition (Mr. Hanson) yesterday referred to training centres. I would add a few remarks. Will the Minister of National Defence tell this house and the country the names of the men or the committees of men who advised the government and recommended this training scheme of thirty days? I remember very well when the mobilization bill came up for discussion last June. In Hansard of June 18, at page 978, the Prime Minister is reported as follows:

> The point I wish to bring home at the moment is this: It is essential that we should let this country know that there is an emergent condition of very grave character, and that not an hour nor a moment should be lost in giving the government all the enabling powers that it may need to deal with this new situation.

In the same speech he said, at the same page:

> ...the time has come when we must mobilize to the full the whole resources of this country.

> What is the sense of introducing any legislation in this parliament if what appears in black and white and in type as a statute of Canada does not mean that the government intends to give effect to what appears in the statute?

One would have thought, listening to the Prime Minister that day, that his government had some marvellous plan which would unfold itself as soon as they received the necessary legislation, but now we see the sad results. The vote on that occasion shows that of the 204 members in the house, 202 were in favour of the plan and only two were opposed. I would ask the Minister of National Defence a further question: Before his department decided on this plan, did he consult the ranking district officers throughout Canada to obtain suggestions and advice as to how the plan should be worked out?

Let us look at the scheme for a moment, a scheme which these highly paid propaganda writers can hardly find enough adjectives to describe. Certainly the artist whom the government employed to draw the comic strip which is enclosed in the registered letter that every man receives when he is called up should at least have a medal struck in his honour. I would suggest that if he draws any further military comics he get a military man to advise him, because he has made several military mistakes. I think I am quite safe in saying that nearly one hundred per cent of the men who took the first thirty-day training had not had any previous military experience. It is a well recognized fact that discipline is one of the first essentials of army training. Hon. members who were in France during the last war can perience many incidences where it was only discipline which saved the occasion. But army discipline is not something which can be crammed down the recruit's throat at once; it enters into all his training. The average recruit going to a training centre needs a course of physical training along with a good diet in order to build him up and put him in physical condition for the hard army training, to be followed up with squad drill, route marches, instruction in the rifle, musketry, machine gun, gas training, military tactics, field craft and all the other work which enters into the training of the 1940 soldier. I understand that the present syllabus of the training centre calls for the recruit to do his first firing in musketry on the ranges after his eighth day in camp. It appears to me, Mr. Speaker, almost impossible that a recruit going into the army for the first time can absorb in a matter of eight days enough knowledge about the rifle and musketry, along with his other training, to obtain any benefit from firing on the ranges. The recruit is hurried from one lecture to another, from one course to another. In my opinion he absorbs only a smattering of many subjects and receives real training in none.

When you are training a large body of men, they can advance only as fast as the slow men in the class will permit. At the end of a thirty-day period the average recruit is only finding himself and is getting into the swing of the army, but he goes off home and the next draft comes in. It was pointed out yesterday by the leader of the opposition that to speak of thirty days' training is not correct, because when there is taken from the thirty days the time allotted to various preliminaries, holidays, and the rest of it, you will find that the recruit has not more than twenty days of actual training period; yet this training scheme costs the Dominion of Canada between fifty and sixty million dollars a year. Under the present plan it is estimated that three hundred thousand men will receive a month's training in the first year. Would it not be better to have sixty thousand men properly trained and equipped than three hundred thousand men with one month's training and only partly equipped? In the event of an emergency, with three hundred thousand men with one month's training, what use would they be? In my opinion they would be only an undisciplined mob, and without discipline the condition is hopeless.

I should like to suggest a plan to the Minister of National Defence, and I sincerely trust that he will give it earnest consideration.

I mentioned a moment ago that the non-permanent units will finish their training within a matter of days. I would suggest that when these recruits are called up, they should be posted to the various non-permanent units for a period of two months. They would be documented, medically examined and outfitted with clothing and equipment. They would take a proper course in physical drill and elementary instruction in the rifle, machine gun and squad drill. At the end of the two months they would go to a training centre where they would train as a battalion. They would there complete their musketry training, run off their proper course of firing on the ranges; they would also fire with machine guns and anti-tank guns; they could take a proper course of training where gas chambers are available; they could take part in battalion manoeuvres and military schemes and do field engineering; in short, they would complete their training. At the end of a four months' period you would turn out a very creditable class of soldier, a force of men who would do more than give a good account of themselves if the occasion arose. The reason why I suggest a two months' period of training with the non-permanent forces is that in that time they could take all the rough spots off these men and get them out of the elementary or awkward squad stage so that when they went to the training centre they could immediately start on intensive training. I earnestly urge on the minister that before next January, when the next class of men is called for training, he will make some modifications in the present scheme.

I wish to make it perfectly plain that I am not condemning in any way the training centre. I approve this training, but I feel that the nature of the training, which is being received is inadequate. Before leaving this topic I have only one further suggestion, namely, that every man who is rejected as medically unfit by the local examining physician should be called in and reexamined by a medical board of at least three men.

I was very much disappointed yesterday at the reply which was made by the Minister of National Defence to a question as to what arrangements, if any, had been made for soldiers' transportation on Christmas leave. It is unfortunate that this government has consistently refused to grant the soldier free transportation. All members of this house and their families, railway employees and their families and many other classes of people in Canada are granted free transportation. Yet the soldier, who is more entitled to it than anyone else, is denied this privilege. Drive on any highway in this province and you will see that hundreds and hundreds of men are obliged to thumb a ride home. A private soldier receives for a thirty-day month $39. If he is married he is obliged to assign $20 to his wife. That leaves him $19 a month for cigarettes, canteen, haircuts, soap and other small articles, and the dozens of other articles on which a soldier has to spend money. Thus, when the time comes for leave, the soldier is not in a financial position to pay his transportation home. At Camp Borden there are many soldiers from the Belleville and Kingston district, and as far east as Brockville. At Petawawa are many soldiers from areas a long distance away. These men are unable to pay transportation home even though they receive at the present time a round trip for the price of a single ticket. What is the result? You find the number of men absent without leave is increasing all the time. You find that discipline is suffering. But the worst feature is the growing feeling of resentment among the soldiers. Surely any man who has grit enough to enlist in the Canadian active service force and is willing to give everything, even his life, is entitled to the very best this country can give him during his training period. I would have thought that this government would benefit by the lesson learned in the last war, because we all realize that in time of war the emotional strain is much greater, and the average soldier will go to almost any length to get home to see his family or his sweetheart.

Another feature I wish to mention is the cheerlessness of such camps as Petawawa. This camp may be all right in the summer, but it certainly is no place for winter training, and yet I understand that there are several thousand men who are quartered there and will continue to be there during the winter months. Petawawa is some fourteen miles from the town of Pembroke. From now on, as the days are getting shorter, the men are off parade at four-thirty o'clock in the afternoon or shortly thereafter. Apart from the Y. M. C. A. and other service club huts there is no provision for their recreation or amusement. Where troops are quartered in towns and cities they have a decided advantage, because they can go down town; they can change their surroundings; there are picture shows and bowling alleys which they can visit and where they can meet their friends. These are simple matters, but they all tend to break the monotony of the soldier's life. But at Petawawa, which is only a sample of such places, there is no such provision, and as I pointed out before, many of the men are a great distance from their homes and unable to pay the cost of transportation.

Apparently the government realizes that this condition is becoming serious, because within the last ten days orders were issued by national defence headquarters that all troops were to be instructed that to ride on rains or use other methods of transportation without payment was an offence and must cease. But this illustrates again the lengths to which the soldier will go in order to get home. I would make the following suggestion to the government, that every soldier be allowed two week-end leaves a month, one leave with free transportation, the second leave at his own expense. The leave with free transportation would be to his own home or, if his home were too distant, to whatever point he would choose. But there should be attached the condition that the soldier would be entitled to these two leaves only if he had committed no offences during the preceding month. I am more than satisfied that if some such plan were adopted, the various commanding officers and others charged with discipline would find most of their difficulties disappear. The soldier then would be more content and his family would more readily accept his absence. But whether or not this plan is adopted, I cannot too strongly urge upon the government the necessity of doing something about free transportation for soldiers, and in particular that they make a special effort to give this free transportation in connection with leave for Christmas and New Year's, which are fast approaching.

Mr. Ralston: If my hon. friend will permit me to interrupt, do I understand him to advocate that there should be one free leave a month?

Mr. White: One free leave a month and one at his own expense.

Mr. Ralston: That would be twelve leaves each year with free transportation. Is that right?

Mr. White: Yes.

Mr. Speaker: I am sorry to interrupt the hon. member, but his time has expired.

Mr. White: I could finish in just a moment if I might have permission.

Some hon. members: Go ahead.

Mr. Speaker: With the consent of the house.

Mr. White: I want to mention just one other matter and then I shall have finished. For many years there has been a great deal of resentment among the veterans of the last war with regard to the manner in which they have been treated by the pension department. I am quite frank in saying that the Conservative party have not treated the veterans any better than they have been treated by the Liberal party. Certain conditions which have existed since the last war must not be allowed to creep into the method of granting pensions in connection with this war, and I would suggest that the Minister of Pensions and National Health (Mr. Mackenzie) seriously consider overhauling his pensions staff and appointing examiners and officials with a little more sympathy for the private soldier than that possessed by a slab of Scotch granite. I have handled many cases for veterans before the pension board, but you soon find out that you are up against a stone wall. The pension department hides behind the old bogy that the injury or condition complained of was not contracted during war service, or could not be traced back to war service, and the entire onus of proving his case is placed on the soldier. The average private soldier has neither the means nor the opportunity to do this; and in any event I can easily imagine the feelings of the average man appearing before this hard-hearted board with all its endless red tape. The pension board takes the position that its officials and doctors are always right, and it pays very little if any attention to the opinions of civilian doctors.

Already the pension board is beginning to operate in the same way with regard to the present war; I might briefly state a case to illustrate my point. This man enlisted on October 24, 1939. He had two medical boards; he was X-rayed and placed in category A. In December, 1939, he proceeded to England, but on account of inferior and ill-fitting boots he developed trouble with his feet. On April 4 he was reboarded, placed in category E and sent home. He was discharged on May 16, 1940, and needless to say has received no pension. The man is unable to stand on his feet for any length of time at work. He applied for a pension but his application was refused. The official letter from the pension board reads:

> This ex-soldier was discharged from the Canadian active service force on account of medical unfitness.

I have applied for a second hearing, and the matter is now pending. Surely these men are entitled to the benefit of the doubt, if there is any doubt. It has been the custom to laud and praise the soldier to the skies, but here we have such matters as free transportation—I was going to mention allowance—and pensions which must be dealt with. Surely it is the duty of this government to see that every last soldier receives everything coming to him.

In conclusion I should like to just pass on a remark made to me a short time ago at Trenton airport. I was speaking to a number of young Americans who had seen fit to come to Canada and join the air force. To one young American coming from California, I said "Just what made you decide to enlist in our army?" His reply was, "We are still brothers under the skin, and I just had to come."

125 Attend Annual Holstein Banquet

Wooler — The fifth annual Northumberland Holstein Banquet was held in the United Church Parlors on Thursday evening, November 14 and tables were laid to seat one hundred and twenty-five people, and the nice sum of forty-nine dollars clear of expenses was realized. There was an interesting program consisting of "The King," "God Save the King." Addresses were given by Messrs. W. Honey, Warden H. Morrow, R. M. Holtby, H. J. Colson, Toronto and others. Community singing was conducted by Mr. John Coggins, who also favored with a vocal solo. The Atkinson Sisters gave two selections and the Wooler Girls' Quartette was thoroughly enjoyed. In closing, all sang, "Auld Lang Syne."

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Way received word that their eldest son, Lieutenant Charles Way, has arrived in England with the Canadian Ordnance Corps. Charles is a graduate of the R. M. C., Kingston. Sergeant Gordon Way of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, who arrived in England previously and Private Donald Way with the Ordnance Corps at Camp Borden, it is reported that the Way family is the only one in this district which has all three sons in uniform.

Mr. Jarvis and Miss Fillman of Burlington spent the week end with Mrs. Charles Jarvis.

Mrs. L. N. Easterly is a guest of friends at Madoc during the week end.

Mrs. Will McAuley and son of Codrington spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell.

Those days are past!

... drug store products
are now PROTECTED

This type of toothbrush buying doesn't happen today. Not very hygienic, was it? It's for just that reason that so many manufacturers now package their toothbrushes, as well as their drugs, cosmetics and other sundries in "Cellophane"—they want to protect their products from dust and the touch of curious hands, for, by so doing, they protect your health.

That's the reason why you find an increasingly large number of products in drug stores health-sealed in "Cellophane", which permits complete inspection of the product, yet seals out impurities, seals in laboratory freshness. In drug stores look for the goods in "Cellophane"—it is your added assurance of protected purity.

HIS NAME WILL ENDURE

Captain Fogarty Fegen, heroic commander of the Jervis Bay, merchant cruiser who fought off the attack of a German armed raider and saved all but several of the ships of the 38-ship convoy and went down with his ship, has been awarded the Victoria Cross posthumously.

That uneven fight between the Jervis Bay and the Nazi armed raider was a battle of glorious victory. Captain Fegen showed his manhood in that hour of his destiny. His action and his death were much more glorious than the achievement of a dictator who acts to destroy. Captain Fegen's passion was to save the British convoy. All he was, all he aimed to be, glowed in that hour. When the time came he was a true sailor and now is numbered with the great and heroic dead who in their lives have kept their hands unspotted and honored the name of their country.

STEPHEN FOSTER IN HALL OF FAME

Stephen Collins Foster, long since dead, is acclaimed in this year 1940 and given a place for his bust in the American Hall of Fame.

Strangely enough, he is the first musician to have been so honored. He has trumphed over the misfortunes of his life and the writer of "negro idioms" is placed with the great. The people, however, have long since given the composer of "Old Black Joe," "Swanee River," "Old Kentucky Home," "O Susanna," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" and other ballads a place in the universal human heart.

Stephen Foster was attacked in his day for his dialect, for his comonplace sentiment, but the "noses-in-the-air" of his time are long since forgotten and Foster's songs are sung today by the greatest following in history.

He has been treated by kindly writers who have explored the days of his brief life.

New York Time's comment is indicative of the viewpoint and sympathy of the people for the name and the music of Stephen Foster: "Let us hope that he had a little of the immense and continuous pleasure that he has given. Against the aged reminiscencers set "Old Folks at Home," "Old Black Joe," and the rest of those sentimental ballads which our wise and pious grandfathers and grandmothers, all too many of them ignorant of the charm of negro ministrelsy, used to warble with tears in their eyes and their voices."

HITLER SNATCHES AT ANYTHING

How ready Hitler was to snatch at anything to bolster up his pet theories or his desire to prove the supremacy of the German people was indicated by a speaker the other day when he said that Hitler's race theories were founded on the writings of a French writer. So the Austrian that was and the now German subject who is Fuehrer and head of the Reich grasped this thread of fiction and exalted the Germans for the purpose of making them abject followers of his mad political dream of a Germany that he is trying to make paramount in the world.

It makes no difference to a man of Hitler's type whether the foundations of his theories are sound or not as long as he can deceive and bluff the people long enough to gain his selfish purpose of wreaking vengeance and hate upon Britain which has stood out against the vileness of Nazi diplomacy. Hitler's animosity to Britain is an insane jealousy and spite with a love of violence. The artist as he thought himself but who was refused recognition by art has vented his spleen upon the world. And if he could not be an artist or architect of buildings he tries to be an architect of a Nazi world which has as its foundations the ruins of everything good that every other culture has produced. Among other foundations are his deceptive untrue Aryan theory and his views of German supremacy.

HOW CANADA HELPS IN MANY WAYS

Canada will supply Great Britain with large stores of foodstuffs, bacon, cheese and other products which this country can produce. Canada, for instance, has agreed to provide 112,000,000 pounds of cheese and more if possible, cheese being given priority next to wheat because of its concentrated value.

These facts show the importance of Canadian agriculture in the war days and also in the days which lie farther ahead.

Canada is peculiarly placed for this task by her proximity to Britain and by nature in that she can produce these foodstuffs in the desired quantities. Canada is on the lifeline of the Empire.

Agriculture is one of the great foundation stones of Canada's national life, which include the rich mine areas, the timber resources, and above all, the people of Canada who aid the British Empire in the fight against aggression.

They're Fearless!

The London CBS man last evening reported that in two R. A. F. Squadron Headquarters there were gay parties in progress. It was the aftermath of the first real engagement with Italians, 13 of which were downed.

The story is told in a copyright British War Artist's illustration of a recent exploit of "Young Mac." He ran out of ammunition chasing a Hun and ordered him down. The Hun refused. "So I got my wing over his tail, rocked the Hurricane and knocked his tail off," was the report verified by eye witnesses. "Young Mac" staggered back home when attacked by two others of the enemy.

There is a repitition of about the same story in yesterday's combats. An Italian was being pursued across Suffolk, and the British pilot ran out of ammunition. He put on full speed, caught up with the Italian and ripped his wing with his propeller. The enemy machine hurtled to the ground, the gunner was killed but five others were taken prisoner. The British pilot got home without a scratch.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Why Cancer Gets Such a Start in the Body

If the early symptoms of cancer came on suddenly with a headache, sore throat, rise in temperature, and prostration, the patient would go to bed, send for his physician and be under treatment within a few hours. And with such early treatment, there would be no deaths from cancer.

Unfortunately cancer does not come suddenly nor does it come with some outstanding symptoms that can be immediately recognized. It comes in a quiet innocent manner on the outside—the skin —of the body, or without any apparent symptom in the inside of the body, some "hidden" spot.

On the outside, some little sore that, without thinking, you may keep irritated by washing vigorously or even picking with your fingers. Perhaps there is a mole or wart present that gets irritated in the same manner. These sores, warts or moles, because they are common conditions found on many people, may be growing slowly or changing in appearance without any pain. They are forgotten until they have developed into cancer. Fortunately, as they are on the skin and outside the body, they can usually be cured by surgery, Xray, or radium.

Inside the body, cancer may exist with such slight symptoms that they are overlooked. However, there is usually some symptom present, though slight, that those of cancer age should keep in mind, and if they do, it may save their lives.

Thus, in women, lumps in the breast due to enlarged milk glands are so common that a woman may think the lump is an enlarged milk gland when it is really cancer. Early removal of a breast cancer prevents spreading to other parts of the body.

In women also any prolonging of the monthly flow should be investigated by the family physician, because many women have this excess flowing as they near the menopause and consider it a natural condition.

In men, cancer of the stomach may give no symptoms whatever but close investigation usually shows that there has been slight but persistent indigestion. Bleeding from the rectum is often the first sign of cancer to be noticed.

In cases where there is gradual loss of weight with slight indigestion, cancer should be suspected.

By removing cancer in its early stage, thousands of lives are being saved, despite the fact that the cause of cancer still remains unknown. Remember, early cancer is curable, late cancer is always fatal.

Duce's Roaring Sounds Hollow

(By Kirke L. Simpson)

Washington, Nov. 19—(AP)—Mussolini's roaring assurance to his people that the Nazi-Fascist bloc "already has victory in its fist" would have sounded more convincing if it had not of necessity been accompanied by an apology for the poor showing of his armies against little Greece.

He explained to the Italian people what had been clearly demonstrated in Greece: that the mountainous Albanian-Greek border did not lend itself to "blitzkrieg" technique.

"With absolute certainty I tell you will break Greece's back; whether in two months or twelve months, it little matters," Mussolini claimed.

Considering the odds against Greece, that boast of her ultimate defeat would seem a statement of the obvious. The declaration, however, that it little matters whether it takes Italy two months or twelve to accomplish her "most firm proposal" against Greece is open to dispute. The time element could make all the difference both for Greece and for Britain.

British war leadership hopes, with United States industrial help, to approach air parity with Germany within six months. There is ample evidence that the Royal Air Force is steadily gaining strength. It is already definitely on the offensive, not the defensive against Italy, and is striking back at Germany. There are many intimations that the British Army in Egypt also is preparing to assume the offensive.

Carry War to Italy

Although Mussolini belittled the raid by British bombers and torpedo planes on Italian battle craft at Taranto, his own words indicate serious temporary impairment of Fascist sea power. His "victory" address also contained a virtual admission of defeatist whispering in Italy.

"To think or suspect something otherwise (than Axis victory and the smashing of Greece) means not to know me", Il Duce shouted.

British strategy from the moment of the Italian attack on Greece has been to seize every opportunity to carry the war to Italy. It is based on the assumption that Italian public morale is the weak joint in the Axis armor. And the Mussolini speech only adds to that impression.

Unquestionably every unit of increasing British air power than can be spared from the home front will be thrown against Italy. British fleet and air bases in Southern Greece and Crete have already changed vital factors in the Mediterranean war theatre in British favor. They have rendered renewal of the Italian drive in Egypt increasingly difficult, and an Italian disaster there might be the straw to break the back of Italian morale.

Hitler Still Boss

Mussolini made the best of a bad job in trying to bolster his home front and stimulate Italian hatred of Great Britain as the war-maker. As he spoke his armies were being ousted from their meagre footholds in Greece. Certainly, if it is to take months to retrieve that reverse, the Axis chances of consolidating Continental victories by smashing Britain will be more remote than they were five months ago when the Battle of Britain began.

Actually, Il Duce's partner, Hitler, held the stage centre for the Axis even as Mussolini talked. It was what might flow out of German-Italian-Spanish politico-military conferences at Hitler's mountain hide-away in Bavaria, not Mussolini blustering, that concerned Britain and the world. Il Duce is still very obviously a tail to the Hitler kite, and a tail with painful Greek-British twists in it.

KEEN INTEREST IN SEA

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—William Jones, 22, Toronto, whose name was among those missing and presumed killed in the Merchant Navy and Fishing Fleet's casualty list issued at London last night, joined the British Merchant Marine at Halifax. Only son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones, he had always shown a keen interest in the sea. As a boy, he spent his spare time building ship models. He served on the Great Lakes as a member of the crews of the Northumberland, Sandland and Maple Bay.

PEPYS, BUILDER OF NAVY

(Montreal Gazette)

Every schoolboy knows Britannia rules the waves. Most schoolboys know that during the reign of Charles II there lived in England a little man named Samuel Pepys, who kept a remarkable diary in shorthand. Very few seem to know there is any connection between those facts — that Pepys was responsible, as much as any individual, for naval supremacy which is now proverbial and seems immemorial.

In these days when the fate of the Empire is once again hanging on that sea power, it is time Samuel got his due. He was a vain fellow and one can imagine his shade writhing in agony as generation after generation grows up to know him as an amorous buffoon, a silly little man whose achievement was to immortalize the phrase "And so to bed." His follies and secret vices are remembered while his life's work, the fame of his mature years, are forgot.

Arthur Bryant, latest and probably definitive biographer of Pepys, believes this oblivion was deliberately inflicted. Eighteenth century historians, he remarks bitterly, were Whigs who "only conferred immortality on such of their defeated opponents as were unmistakably villains." And Pepys was always the Duke of York's man. Thus he remained unknown until 1825, when the deciphered diary broadcast the sins of his youth while his portrait spread the impression these sins were committed by a gouty rake of fifty.

Actually, when that picture was painted Pepys could look back on a record few civil servants have excelled. He began with neither wealth nor influence, a mere upstart who owed his Navy Office post to the fact he was a poor relation of the Earl of Sandwich. But he knew how to work. "Chance without merit brought me in," he remarks in one of those periodic stock-taking passages, "and diligence only keeps me so, and will, living as I do among so many lazy people that the diligent man becomes necessary."

Armed only with that diligence, Pepys saved the navy. When he came to the Navy Office the disgrace of the Medway was fresh in all minds, the Dutch commanded the Narrow Seas. "Rule Brittania" would have seemed bitter irony. Corruption was rife in the navy, as in all Government services, and condoned by custom. Grafting captains were made immune from rebuke by the fact their salaries were months in arrears; unpaid sailors used to riot outside the Admiralty. Purchases on credit made it impossible to obtain good prices, while the fantastic interest rates of the era would double a debt in no time. To top all, the yards were staffed with incompetents. "Good God," cries Pepys in the early '60's, "to see what a great company came to do the work (of warping a ship into dock) when half would have done as well. But I see the King cannot have things done as cheap as other men." Thus it was when he began.

When he left for the last time after the Revolution of 1688, he had laid down 30 first-rate ships of the line, had seen all that work ruined during five years of eclipse, had rebuilt the fleet again from top to bottom in four years more, and had established traditions which have made the Royal Navy a whole Empire's pride. It was he whose matchless technical knowledge defended the service from the bitterest of Whig attacks in Parliament — they never did beat him fairly, but only ousted him on perjured evidence at the height of the "Popery" scare Titus Oates started, when every adherent of the Catholic Duke James was a marked man. It was he who ended the vicious practice of cargoes in the King's ships, which had enriched generations of captains but debased the service. He laid down a scheme for training naval officers the basis of which has never been improved upon. He increased His Majesty's naval tonnage from 62,594 when he started at the Admiralty to 101,032 when he left. So well had he wrought that even the post-Revolution days, when corruption was rife and the infamous Torrington commanded the fleet, never degraded the navy to its Restoration level.

All that was two and a half centuries ago. No one man, nor hundred men, can claim exclusive honors for the splendid thing the British navy has been during those years, for the spirit that won at Cape St. Vincent and the Nile and Trafalgar, and Jutland, and the River Plate. But when Hitler has joined Napoleon in the ranks of illustrious failures, and men say as they will say that again it was the navy that saved Britain and the world, let them spare a thought for the little peacock of a fellow was only two or three times at sea in his life, but whose heroic labors with pen and with tongue went far to make the navy what it is.

TEMBLORS ON THE AXIS

(Christian Science Monitor)

The earthquake in Rumania may go down in the history of the times as symbolic. There are still forces at work in the world which are beyond the control of mechanized militarism.

Rumania has provided a grim reminder of this fact. The Rumanian people would seem to be getting more than their share of trouble: Nazi domination and then an earthquake.

The Nazis shut the small States of Eastern Europe away from the West when they built their Westwall. They made entire peoples prisoners. But even so, the Nazis could not quite have their way in Rumania. It is not yet known what effect the damage to Rumanian oil properties will have on the German war machine; but at least the Nazis have had to divert some effort to relief work and reorganization of non-military phases of Rumanian life.

This is one surprise not prepared in a meeting of dictators. And there have been others. They, too, illustrate how forces may develop which will be as uncontrollable by Axis diplomacy as an earthquake is. The Greeks are reporting amazing successes against the Fascist invaders of the homeland. And out of France's colonial empire come signs of gathering undercurrents that will be hard to stem once they gain momentum. General Weygand evidently has refused to obey orders to return to Vichy from North Africa. Meanwhile, in French Equatorial Africa, the forces of Free France seem to be on the threshold of their first victory over reaction and defeatism.

A cause that entailed only trials for its defenders a few weeks ago may yet enlist supports not even now discernible. History is dynamic with forces which developed in the deep places of moral thought. These became as insuppressible by despotism as is the energy that breaks through earth's crust.

Prisoners of War Entitled to Pay

In "Letters to the Editor" and in Editorials recently there has appeared some criticism of the payment of money to German Officer Prisoners of War in internment camps in this country. This payment is made in accordance with international agreement, and the regulations governing the point are explained in the following statement on the subject by Lieut.-Colonel H. Stethem, Assistant Director of Internment Operations.

By International Convention, German officers held as Prisoners of War in Canada are entitled to receive certain pay which is recoverable from the German government. Similarly British and Canadian officers, held in Germany, are entitled to pay, recoverable from the government in whose service they belong.

The governing International is that relating to the treatment of Prisoners of War ratified by the Dominion of Canada on February 20th, 1933 and agreed to by some thirty-nine of the various powers and states. Article 23 provides that officers who are Prisoners of War shall receive certain pay. From this pay, states Lieut.-Colonel H. Stethem, Assistant Director of Internment Operations, the officers pay for their clothing and food. There is actually no cash transaction, the money being placed to the credit of their accounts, against which they receive Camp token money or make Camp purchases which are subsequently paid for through their accounts. They receive pay according to their rank based on the German rates of pay in Reichsmarks, converted into sterling at a rate agreed on by the Governments of the United Kingdom and Germany, in accordance with Article 23 of the Convention. The rate of conversion from sterling to Canadian currency is that set by the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

Observance of international law in regard to Prisoners of War is insured by bi-monthly inspections made of all Internment Camps in Canada and in Germany by the protecting powers. Canadian interests are represented in Germany by the United States Embassy in Berlin and by the International Red Cross. German interests in Canada are represented by the Consul General of Switzerland and his representatives.

"It must be remembered", Lieut.-Colonel Stethem adds, "that British Officers in Germany are also receiving their pay from the German authorities, and the same is recoverable from the British Government. Furthermore, it must be remembered that, for every German Officer in Canada, there are, probably, four British Officers held in Germany, and the various people who suggest ill-treatment of these Officers do not realize that such ill-treatment would provide an excuse for ill-treating many times the number of British officers and other ranks in Germany.

"The International Convention Relative to the Treatment of Prisoners of War is one of the few international laws relating to warfare which is, at least to some extent, being adhered to in the present conflict, possibly, because its Articles provide for the employment of a protecting power to ensure its enforcement, and, possibly, because the matters with which it deals provide a practical means of retaliation in the event of non-observance."—Director of Public Information.

BRITAIN'S DESERT ARMIES REINFORCED BY EMPIRE AND ALLIES

Reinforced by detachments from many parts of the Empire and from countries whose sovereign territory has been over-run by Germany, the British armies in the Near East are ready and waiting for any Axis drive at the Suez or the oil fields of Palestine and Iraq. At TOP LEFT is a French pilot attached to the Middle East command of the R.A.F. ready to take off in his Morane Saulnier fighter, a machine which he flew to join the British forces when his country's resistance collapsed. At RIGHT, a detachment of Polish motorcycle troops are shown in Palestine. The trim, sturdy soldiers, shown BELOW are part of a Gold Coast unit now stationed in Kenya Colony. They are sturdy and dependable fighters particularly at home in desert warfare.

Strange Tales Come Out of North Woods

"There are strange things done by the midnight sun" to quote a famous Canadian poet, but by the same token there are equally strange things done and seen in the northern hinterlands where city nimrods spend at least a few days of the year looking for venison steaks on the hoof.

For instance there is the story of the boys who sighted a deer grazing with a sprightly fawn on the brow of a hill. A rifle-shot brought down the doe, and satisfied that the lady in question would "stay put" until they captured the youngster, galloped past her prostrate carcass, over the brow of the hill in search of her baby.

But no fawn greeted them as they topped the rise, and their disappointment alleviated to some extent by the thought that luscious doe-steaks awaited their pleasure, the party retraced their footsteps. But here further disappointment awaited them. No doe greeted their astonished gaze as they strode over the hill-top. She had, like the Arabs, 'silently stole away,' apparently only dazed by the erring marksmanship of the forest sharpshooters.

And the moral of this story is—Hunting may be a little deer but always pick up your doe where you leave it.

Another story that comes out of the northland tells of a strange animal shot by hunters that had all the natural characteristics of a two-year-old-doe, but the markings of possibly an Ayrshire cow.

The doe had large white markings at intermittent intervals on her body and the broad back of the domestic cow.

Then there is the story told last year of the hunter taking his first shot at a deer and swearing at the stubbornness of the trigger of his rifle. He pulled once, twice, but nothing happened, and by this time the quarry had departed down a runway. Then as he gazed down at his weapon he realized that he had one finger behind the trigger and another in front of it.

PARTY RESUMES INTENSIVE SEARCH FOR FIVE AIRMEN

R.C.A.F. Planes Hampered in Their Work by Adverse Weather

FLIER DIRECTS SEARCH

East Lake, Que., Nov. 19 (CP).—Fifty lumberjacks and members of the Quebec Forestry Service resumed their search for five members of the Royal Canadian Air Force who bailed out of a patrol plane over this thickly-forested area Saturday night.

While R.C.A.F. planes were hampered in their hunt from the sky by adverse weather conditions, authorities in Ottawa were working through Washington to arrange search parties for the missing airmen in the neighboring State of Maine.

The land esarch was slowed because only 50 men were available in the sparsely-populated district. They were working by daylight only and resting at night because no other men were on hand to relieve them.

Flying Officer P. J. H. Leblanc who landed by parachute about one mile from this village directed the hunt. He said he leaped from the plane about ten minutes after the others.

The plane, a Digby bomber of the Atlantic Patrol, apparently ran out of gas while trying to make Montreal after being unable to land at any airport in the Maritimes because of fog after one of its long patrols. It crashed in the woods soon after Leblanc hopped out.

The missing members of its crew are Flt. Lt. C. F. Clay of New Westminster, B.C.; Fo. J. G. Richardson, Saskatoon; Lac. H. E. Howard, Aylesford, N.S.; Lac. E. J. Benoit, Ottawa; and Ac. Elmer Johnson, Winnipeg.

(According to a statement issued by R.C.A.F. headquarters in Ottawa, the aerial search was hampered by visibility and icing conditions. One of the pilots, however, was able to contact Fo. Leblanc and managed to carry out a 2½-hour search over the area.)

AT THE BELLE

"City For Conquest"

Newest in the line-up of Belle Theatre hit films is "City For Conquest" co-starring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan in a masterful story of the world's biggest city. "City for Conquest" which is based on Aben Kandel's widely read novel of the same name which is the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

New York is the "City for Conquest" and the busy, swarming many-faceted city serves not only as the background—but as a central part of the vitla story, which is told as seen through the eyes of an "Old Timer", a sage roving New York's streets and alleys. His eyes miss little and his philosophical mind leaves little for him to misunderstand about the big city. Frank Craven portrays the "Old Timer".

In the teeming tenement district, a small boy wins a promise from a pretty girl. She'll always be his sweetheart. In another city or town, the two would grow up, marry and live happily ever after and perhaps raise their own children, still in the same neighborhood. But this is New York—where change is the constant factor. For the little girl, the bright lights beckon a welcome, her dancing feet the key that opens the door to a new life for her. The boy wins the Golden Gloves championship and fame and fortune seem to be his for the asking. But instead the boys picks a job as a truck driver, with a steady salary, so that he can realize his dream of helping his younger brother finance his musical education.

Disappointed, the girl is swept off her feet by another young man, who shares her love of glitter. Together, they dance their way to fame, but she doesn't quite forget the boy whose sweetheart she promised always to be.

Seeking to match her new celebrity with his own, the boy turns back to boxing, and his courage and powerful fists carry him rapidly upward. But both the boy and girl find that there is more than glitter and gayety for them at the top —there is heartbreak and tragedy too, until they turn back to the life they know best, satisfied that, for a brief time at least, they have conquered the great city.

To match the fiery talents of the two stars, Cagney and Ann Sheridan, a brilliant cast has been assembled including Frank Craven, Donald Crisp, Frank McHugh, Blanche Yurka, George Tobias, Jerome Cowan, Lee Patrick, Thurston Hall, Joyce Compton, and Elisa Kazan.

John Wexley adapted Kandel's novel for the screen, and Anatole Litvak directed the production. Max Steiner composed a symphonic "Song of the City", which plays an important part.

Gary Cooper

Action-filled scenes suspenseful drama and romance with a punch swell across the screen in Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner" with Gary Cooper in the title role, and the supporting cast features such brilliant players as Walter Brennan, Doris Davenport, Fred Stone and Lillian Bond.

"London Can Take It" the most amazing picture to come out of the war will be exhibited on the same program with a funny Walt Disney cartoon comedy "Pluto's Dream House" and the Belle news of the day.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Girl From God's Country"

Here folks is a grand surprise movie hit "Girl From God's Country" now showing at the McCarthy theatre. The combination of good trouping, direction and production plus a down-to-earth story that rings true makes it ideal screenfare. If you love action and a story with a locale North of the Yukon, "Girl From God's Country" is a picture which you will thoroughly enjoy and will tell your friends about. Chester Morris, June Wyatt and Charles Bickford are the costarring trio and their respective performances are exceptionally well handled. Others in the cast include Mamo Clarke, Ray Malo (Eskimo Actor), Kate Lawson, Eddie Gargan and "Ace" the screen's wonder dog. "Girl From God's Country" is based on "The Saturday Evening Post" story "Island Doctor."

The McCarthy theatre program also includes latest Fox News events, an amusing cartoon, "London Can Take It" the most thrilling war film to date and a new Warner Bros. hit "Pony Express Days" a gorgeous technicolor screen treat.

Women of England Meet Challenge Of Hitler in True British Tradition

Mrs. George Dimsdale Addresses Women's Canadian Club on War Work Done by British Women

FILL MANY POSTS

The women of England are meeting the challenge of Hitler's war on women and children in a way that has won the admiration of the world. Mrs. George Dimsdale of England, speaking to members of the Women's Canadian Club in Christ Church Parish Hall Monday afternoon brought to her audience a picture of women in England organized to the last individual to support their country's fighting men.

This charming visitor from England, in Canada in connection with evacuation of British children, was welcomed by the President, Mrs. C. E. Argue who referred to the speaker as a daughter-in-law of Baron Dimsdale, and sister-in-law of Lord Milford.

Mrs. Dimsdale expressed the pleasure it had afforded here to come to Canada, she spoke in glowing terms of the beauty of the Dominion, and was especially struck by the loveliness of the Canadian maple. The women of Canada were doing fine work and she referred especially to the girls in uniform, doing voluntary service, a service for which the English girls receive pay. Some people found amusement in the fact that the Canadian girls did not march perfectly, but as Princess Alice remarked, when she and Mrs. Dimsdale were discussing this at Rideau Hall, "People always laugh at those who start things."

For the first time since perhaps the War of Roses, war has been brought to England, and women have had a new experience in their part in war work. This has been particularly a war on women. Hitler used women and children refugees to block the roads in Belgium and France and when he had no further use for them he ran tanks over them. Women under the domination of Hitler could not fight back, and many of the French sailors who wanted to fight for a free France had a difficult situation to face. Their women were in the hands of Hitler.

But the women of England could and did fight back. They surged into industry to release men for the actual work of fighting and are doing many jobs with a skill that is amazing. They work tirelessly in munition factories, and when leaving their work to obey an air raid warning would hold up production, they stay at their machines. The mass bravery of these girls is wonderful. Some civilian girls have slept in their clothes for three months, they have slept in cellars where the noise is terrific. Fifty women in one building kept on working although a time bomb had fallen not far away and in a telephone exchange three girls worked while an unexploded bomb lay in the basement. As Herbert Morrison said "England could hardly expect more than that."

Women at Work

As the Land Army, the girls do farm work, and as Auxiliary territorials they replace cooks, orderlies, clerks, telephonists, with the army the "Wrens" do the same for the navy and the WAFS for the air force, some girls working on scientific projects, as teleprinters, operators, mess cooks and to ferry airplanes. One million and a quarter women are employed as air raid wardens, working night and day after the first year of preparation. The more ordinary occupations are followed by The Good Neighbours and the Women's Home Guard who do the little things such as staying with old people who cannot go down to the shelters, dress children, or prepare a cup of tea for the air raid wardens.

That was the reply of the women of England to Hitler. They seem to have adopted a new motto, "Live dangerously." From the Queen to the humblest subject, the women of Britain are measuring up.

And the children are an example to the world. For the first time children were shot down in playgrounds, schools and hospitals and torpedoed at sea. The heroism and discipline of the children especially on the torpedoed boats is a glorious page in history.

The after-war challenge for which women must prepare is a world in which kindness consideration and right have been trampled under foot by aggressors. It lies with the British people to restore the fine ideals, to make their lives an example which will do something to change the terrible views of ruthlessness and cruelty now being taught the young people of Germany.

Closer Bonds

The trouble and adversity that England has known has served to bring her people closer together. Evacuated children of great cities have come to know the children of the country places. Old and young, rich and poor work together, and stand by each other. In the words of Winston Churchill this is England's grandest hour and her people must be worthy of its high honor.

Mrs. Dimsdale told many delightful and intimate details of her family's work in England as an example of what is being accomplished by each individual and at the conclusion of her address graciously answered any questions which members cared to ask.

Mrs. Argue graciously expressed the appreciation of the audience and invited the members to stay for afternoon tea served by the executive.

The Red Cross group under the leadership of Mrs. C. M. Watters, members of which sold tickets for the Helena Rubinstein show at the Quinte Hotel raised sixty dollars for their work. Proceeds of the tickets were generously granted to the group by Helena Rubinstein firm and the group of members enthusiastically participated in the sale of tickets to which the ladies of the city made a splendid response.

Celebrating the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the firm of Superior Cleaners in the city, Alderman and Mrs. H. J. Allin entertained at a delightful banquet held at the Queen's Hotel on Sunday evening, the guests being members of the staff and their friends. Twenty were present. Following the banquet addresses and toasts referring to this very happy occasion and expressing the sentiments of good wishes on the part of management and staff made the evening very interesting.

Members of the Children of Mary held their regular monthly meeting last evening in St. Michael's Academy, a social evening following the transaction of business. Miss Bernice Horrigan, president, was in the chair, and plans were made for the Sodality Breakfast in December. Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G. addressed the members on "The Sacrifice of the Mass". In the social period games organized by Miss Irene Walsh were keenly enjoyed by the girls, working in four groups. Refreshments were served by the executive.

The Quaternion Y.P.U. entertained the young people of Foxboro Monday night in Holloway Street United Church. About 100 young people were present. The meeting opened with a sing song led by the President and Secretary Mr. Bill Brennan and Miss Marion Daniels, with Miss Haight at the piano. The devotional service was arranged by Miss Maude Burke who was assisted by Miss Iva Spencer, Miss Helen Jeffrey, Mr. Ray Gunsolus and Mr. Jack Baxter. The guest speaker for the evening was Rev. E. M. Cooke of Foxboro, who gave a fine lantern slide lecture on "Our Marine Mission on the Labrador Coast". Games were led by Jean Matthews and light refreshments served by the refreshment committee, convened by Miss Betty Redfern. The young people of Foxboro expressed their appreciation of their entertainment by the Quaternions. It was a worthwhile meeting in every respect.

Greek Revival Influenced Building Of Early Houses

Toronto, Nov. 19.— Beautiful houses of Ontario, built between 1790 and 1835, A.D., were described and pictured by lantern slides by Professor E. R. Arthur, professor of architectural design of the University of Toronto, in an address to a large, appreciative audience at the University Women's Club yesterday. To the Greek revival movement in architecture he attributed the building of such churches as St. Andrew's at Niagara-on-the-Lake, recently restored.

Pictures of the Barnum House at Grafton, before and after the restoration under the Architectural Conservancy of Ontario. Built in 1817, the house resembles the old planters' house of the South. After 123 years, repairs needed to the exterior were small. The Barnum house was built over the ruins of a log house accidentally burned, which had been large enough to accommodate troops in the War of 1812. An attempt to reconsruct the life of the family from the lay-out of the interior was a novel feature.

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—Dr. Arthur G. Wallis, former Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Algoma, died here last night. A native of Etobicoke, he practiced here for many years after coming from Northern Ontario.

Roslin P. S. Pupils Entertain Parents With Varied Program

Roslin— On Thursday afternoon in connection with Education Week the teacher and pupils of the Roslin school entertained their friends and parents at the school. with Rev. J. W. MacDonald acting as chairman. A varied musical program opening with the singing of O Canada was given by the children with their music teacher, Miss Robinson acting as accompanist. After the singing of several songs, a recitation by Ted Welsh, and a number by the Rhythm Band, the guest speaker for the afternoon, Mr. J. R. Pickering of Belleville, Public School Inspector for South Hastings, was introduced by the teacher Mrs. Robinson. In his opening remarks Mr. Pickering said he was pleased to see so many visitors present and he felt that people who would take time from their work to attend a meeting in the afternoon were really interested in the work of the school.

Mr. Pickering spoke first to the boys and girls, and told them of the privileges and advantages which are theirs today in comparison with teaching methods used when their parents were attending school. To the parents, Mr. Pickering said he and they had attended school in the country, and though school days may have been drab, all were happy.

"All the world was young,
All the grass was green,
And every goose a swan".

Mr. Pickering closed his talk with a poem entitled "Longing."

Little Misses Eileen and Shirley Reid did a skipping number, to music, also little Misses Mary Bates, Betty Burley and Evelyn Gray. A number of the children took part in a short play 'Little Snow White' A song "The Salute to the Flag" and the singing of the National Anthem brought the program to a close.

Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Beazer both spoke briefly and expressed their thanks to the teacher and children for their entertainment.

Mrs. Robinson thanked all those who had helped towards the success of the afternoon's program. A table of home made candy was readily disposed of, proceeds to go to Red Cross work.

On Thursday evening November 7th, the November meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Kerr with an attendance of twelve. The president, Mrs. Gillespie, was in charge. A hymn was sung. Rev. Beazer led the devotional period. The secretary gave her reports. Miss L. Wilson read the report of the October Board Meeting held in Kingston. A quilting and pot luck dinner was planned.

It was decided to purchase flannelette, which will be made into garments and forwarded to the Dorcas Dept. Mrs. A. Bates was in charge of the program. After the meeting the hostess assisted by Mrs. C. Sullivan served refreshments.

On Tuesday the W. A. held a pot luck dinner and quilting at the home of Miss Emerson. There were 10 present and a quilt which will be donated to the Red Cross was completed.

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Beazer attended an Armistice Day program at Point Anne on Monday and spent the night with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Heaven of Shannonville.

No serious damage was reported as the result of Monday's storm, though some trees were blown down.

The November meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. M. Chisholm with an attendance of thirty. With the president, Mrs. White in charge, the meeting opened in the usual way. The secretary gave her reports. It was announced that about $30.00 was realized from the canvass of the community which was held recently, this money will be used for the work of the Red Cross. The secretary was instructed to purchase yarn for knitting.

Plans were made for an afternoon tea, for which Mrs. White kindly offered the use of her home. Mrs. Gillespie gave a report of the Local Leader Training School for re-finishing furniture which she attended at Melrose recently. It was decided to have a tea and social evening in connection with the next meeting. Mrs. R. Copeland was in charge of the program. All joined in singing "The Maple Leaf" The roll call was "If you could have just one more labor saving device, what would it be and why?" Mrs. Copeland gave a talk on the motto "Let us always try to be well groomed women." Mrs. White read a paper on "Menu Planning". Mrs. Slingerland sang a solo. Mrs. John Hart gave an humorous reading. All joined in a "Menu Contest". The singing of the National Anthem brought the program to a close after which the hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. C. McKean and Mrs. D. Hagerman of Corbyville spent Thursday with Mrs. Russel Reid.

Mr. Fred Elliott and Mr. Harvey Chisholm spent the past week in the northern part of the county, hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Rombough and family of Kingston spent a week end recently with Mr. and Mrs. W. Copeland.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Sayers and Mrs. J. Knight of Napanee spent a Sunday recently with Mr. Knight at Petawawa.

Mrs. Alexander of Moneymore has been visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. Wm. Weir.

A few from here attended the bazaar and supper under the auspices of the Eastern Star held in the I. O. O. F. Hall in Tweed on Wednesday evening. A number of the young people attended the dance sponsored by the I. O. D. E. Group of the Eighth Line in the Orange Hall there on Friday evening. The proceeds of the evening amounting to around $22.00 will be used for war work.

Duncan Renaldo and Edwina Booth in "Trader Horn," now showing at the Capitol, on the same program, "Inside Story," also "London Can Take It."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

His Sister Influenced Him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 26 years old and went "steady" with a certain young man until a week or so ago. It seems his sister has influenced him in some way to give me up, without having a reason for it. This has happened before. We'd go "steady" for a few months and then all of a sudden he'd break with me on his sister's account.

He has told me he loves me and I feel the same toward him, but I just don't know what to do. Do you think it advisable to keep on going out with him, or should I break it off definitely?

Puzzled

More often this apron- string influence comes from a mother than from a sister. But whoever exercises it in a family, it's not an easy thing to get along with after marriage.

The best way for a girl to meet this under-cover antagonism is with a good show of independence. That has the effect of a cold shower, very often, and will brace up the easily influenced young man into realizing the true state of his affection. But it's always a question, to my way of thinking, whether one of these apron-string lads ever really makes a comfortable husband.

Mothers Objects to Girl Because She Boards

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There are three of us girls who go around together. One girl has no relatives here except her father isn't well she boards, but she grandparents. But as her grandlikes the second girl. She said if I continued to go with the first girl she would forbid my going out anywhere at all, and will take away other liberties, including buying some new clothes and a set of bedroom furniture.

I really hate to snub this girl, and the only solution I can see is that I go to another high school. We are all seniors. Shall I change schools or go with this girl against my mother's wishes? We three get along together and never have quarrels.

Helpless

If there is nothing against this girl except that she boards, I must say I can't understand your mother's attitude. Because your mother doesn't want you to have the girl as a friends is no reason to snub her.

If this association could be broken less cruelly by going to another high school, perhaps you'd better take that course, as it's unthinkable for you deliberately to disobey your mother.

My sympathies are entirely with the girl who through force of circumstances, has to board away from her grandfather's home. I wonder if older women, who object to their daughters' friends on seemingly unreasonable grounds, ever stop to think of the effect on the lives and characters of girls treated in such fashion.

Shy Doesn't Want to Meet Girl's Family

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl and I work in the same office, and I like to take her out to dinner and the movies sometimes. But I just can't bring myself to go up to their flat, where she has mother, father, grandmother and three younger brothers, all of the hellion age. I hear they play jokes on callers, like putting alarm clocks on china plates under the sofa, if the caller stays late.

Shy Young Man

You'll probably have to meet this family with its turbulent younger brothers, if you continue to enjoy the girl's friendship. Why not buy them off with a box of candy? Or try something in their line, like saying: "I hear you're great jokesters. What do you intend to do to me?"

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"What Shall I Wear?"

"What Shall I wear"? is a personal question that rears its head over and over again when we receive an invitation to a party. When we go to a party appropriately dressed, we feel at ease; inappropriately dressed, we feel out of sorts with ourselves and out of step with the other guests.

Here are a few guide-posts to answer the what-to-wear questions oftenest asked me:

The first thing is to discard the self-conscious attiture of hesitating to ask a hostess what type of dress you are expected to wear to her party. If, in her invitation, she has given no cue as to the type of dress that will be appropriate, she will be delighted to tell you. Better to do this than to be unhappy after you arrive.

Sometimes the problem rests between a girl and a man. Here again a direct question brings the answer. If, for example, a man has asked a girl to dine with him or to go to a dance, or if a girl has invited a man to dine at her house or to go with her to her club dance, a question from either to the other as to the dress expected is correct and sensible.

To a luncheon, women wear street-length dresses or suits, and they wear their hats during the luncheon whether it is given in a home or in a restaurant Sometimes however, when only a few intimate friends are lunching with a hostess in her home, the hostess may ask her guests if they wish to take off their hats.

At a tea or afternoon reception, women guests wear street-length dresses or suits—the same type of clothes they wear to a luncheon—and hats and gloves. They may leave their gloves with their wraps, if they wish, or they may wear them until refreshments are served. But they should not wear their gloves—and this means both gloves—when refreshments are being served.

While in some communities the hostess at a late-afternoon party may wear a "long" dress. and may request her "deputy hostesses" to wear long dresses, the women guests do not usually wear long dresses to a tea or afternoon reception. Even when the hostess and co-hostesses wear long dresses, these dresses are not of the formal evening type, backless and sleeveless. Most often they are of the ensemble type—long dress with a bolero or other type of short jacket, matching or harmonizing with the dress.

This type of dress —a formal dress with a jacket or with this season's fashionable overblouse (often of a brilliant lame)—is a godsend as an answer to what-to-wear for many occasions. The dress is suitable for formal wear, and, with the bolero or jacket or overblouse, is appropriate for a variety of functions, such as a dinner party or other evening party that you know is not to be strictly formal.

If you wish, you may wear long gloves to a formal party, a formal dance, for example. But long gloves aren't worn as much as they used to be, and if you do wear them, don't ever tuck them in at the wrist. When you take off your gloves, take them off entirely.

If a woman is inclined toward stoutness, she shouldn't wear large-figured prints, satin, or round-about stripes, too much drapery, too many frills. If you're a man inclined to be stout, avoid loud colors, plaid, checks.

A woman shouldn't wear her wrist watch with formal dress unless it is a very small one of the jewelled type, more a bracelet than a watch.

CREDITION MERCHANT PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO SYNTONA

Suffered Constantly With Acid, Upset Stomach; Gas, Nausea and Heartburn. Had Pains in Shoulders and Arms. Nerves were Tense; Couldn't Sleep.

The sponsors wish to acknowledge the many encouraging reports recently received and are happy to know that this great herbal compound is bringing better health and happiness to so many local men and women whom readers of this page know personally. Today, we take pleasure in quoting the experience of Mr. Freeman W. Morlock, well-known shoe merchant of Crediton, Ontario. Read his sincere statement:

"In the past year or so, I suffered greatly with acid indigestion, gas and heartburn. I was subject to sharp cramps and there was almost constantly a full, uncomfortable feeling in my stomach and chest. After eating, there seemed to be a lump in my throat and sour liquids would rise from my stomach and make me feel nauseated. More recently, pains set into my shoulders and arms and my nerves began to trouble me, so I couldn't sleep well.

"I was advised to take a good tonic and having heard about how Syntona helped friends of mine, I began taking it a few weeks ago. In that short time, Syntona has done for me everything that was claimed for it. I can eat heartily now and my food digests without any of the former trouble I got relief from the pains in my shoulders and arms, my nerves are more relaxed and I sleep better. I think Syntona is a grand medicine, and I have already recommended it to many of my friends."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, and a Special Syntona representative is located there all this week.

MISSED ON SPELLING

Ottawa, Ill., Nov. 19 (AP)—The Ottawa High School Band started to form the word "Hello" for the benefit of the visitors at a recent football game. But the boys making up the letter "O" went astray and found themselves on the wrong end of the word. From the stands, it read: "Ohell."

Wichita, Kas., Nov. 19 (AP)—Noticing a steady glare in the rear vision mirror, Emmet Wagner, 40, drove his car to one side of the road expecting another to pass. No car passed. Wagner looked again and saw flames. He jumped out. His car virtually was destroyed by fire, probably caused by gasoline leaking on the exhaust pipe.

Interesting Program Aids Red Cross, Elzevir Branch

Tweed — The Elzevir Branch of the Canadian Red Cross held a social evening at the Log Cabin, Actinolite, on Friday, November 15. There was a good attendance of those interested in the activities of this organization. The evening was devoted chiefly to games of various kinds and a short musical program. Community singing was conducted by Mr. S. H. Connor, Tweed. Musical numbers were contributed by Mr. Jim Corbet and Mr. Ernie Wallace of Sulphide, Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales and Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Connor, Tweed. Mrs. Carman Kleinsteuber had charge of the games. Following this, lunch was served by a committee of ladies.

There was a very fine display of the sewing and knitting of the Elzevir ladies. Many articles had been made for the English mothers and children who are Canadian war guests. A vote of thanks to those who had taken part in the program and to Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Price for their hospitality was moved by Mr. Bert Stewart of Actinolite.

Tweed High School Rugby team lost to Stirling High School on their home grounds on Friday afternoon by a score of 7 to 2. The visiting squad by virtue of a 9 to 4 victory in a previous encounter won the C. H. S. S. Rugby title by a score of 16 to 6 on the round. They are worthy champions and fully deserved their victory. A snow-covered field greeted the teams but the visitors apparently found it to their liking. The score at half-time was 6 to 2. Coach Beach of Albert College, Belleville, officiated as umpire-in-chief.

Nominations for Tweed Village Council will be held in the Township Hall on Friday, November 22. Whatever council is elected will remain in office for a two year period. The present council is composed of Reeve C. H. Kerr and Councillors E. W. Jones, S. B. Rollins, Joe Fobert and S. A. McCarey.

Dr. Sid. Arber, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Arber, Tweed, has joined the Canadian Navy as Surgeon Lieutenant. For some time past Dr. Arber, a graduate of Queen's University, has been located at Port Arthur Hospital. His brother, Jack, is a member of the Queen's Own Rifles stationed in Newfoundland.

A month's course in Agriculture and Home Economics will be given at Tweed between November 26th, and December 20th. Mr. H. L. Fair, B. S. A., is the principal. He will give instruction in certain phases of agriculture. Other instructors are: Hilton Hartley B. S. A., Woodstock; J. E. Bergey, B. S. A., O.A.C. Guelph; W. R. Dunlop, B. S. A., Belleville; W. L. Bishop, B. S. A., Norwich; R. J. Bryden, B. S. A., Guelph; I. C. Marritt, B. Sc. F., Forestry Branch, Toronto; Dr. W. J. Stephen, Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto.

Miss Jean Scott, Port Elgin, will be at the head of the Home Economics Course, assisted by Miss Grace Hamilton, Reg. N. Toronto.

Woes of the School Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Now that your child has been in school for several weeks, it might be well to take stock of him.

How about his health? Does he seem to have grown more excitable and irritable? Does he go to sleep promptly? Is he going to bed early enough? Does he play out of doors every day when the weather is fit?

Is he getting on fairly well with other children? Is he a bully? Has he been worried by bullies who intimidate him at school or on the way? Does he come home promptly from school? Does he get himself ready on school mornings and find his own things or do all the family have to help him?

Know Your Child

Have you had any complaint from his teacher about his conduct at school? Does he seem to be getting on well at school with his lessons? Does he have home work at an earlier age than you think he should? If in the fourth, fifth or sixth grade, does he have long assignments in spelling and arithmetic? Does he get worried over his lessons? When you help him do you grow tense and angry or are you always calm and serene?

So far as the child's behavior at school is concerned, you should try to find out what has happened at home for months and months which might cause such behavior away from home. Then with the aid of the teacher or an expert, try to ascertain what guidance in this child at home might be made during the next few months with the hope of causing after some weeks some improvement in his conduct at school.

Still less wise to command the child at home to pay more strict attention at school or study harder there. Therefore, if your child lags in any or all his school subjects, it is not a matter for you to get mad about or to exhort and scold and punish the child. If you really wish to help him, you will try to find out definitely how, when he tries to study, you can contribute toward his success at it.

The Stars Say

For Wednesday, November 20
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SPLENDID opportunities for attaining high goals are presaged for this day according to the lunar transits. It is an auspicious time for approaching employers, superiors, executives, all those in power and prestige who may be disposed to assist in advancement, in capatalizing new propositions, or otherwise demonstrating signs of confidence, esteem and preferment. If such projects are to be manipulated by group action be tactful and discreet, with, possibly, the intuitions safely accepted for guidance. Shun impetuosity, irritability and headstrong tactics. Placate rather than force issues.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared to seek promotion, opportunity for reaching desired objectives, with the substantial cooperation of employers, superiors and those in authority, whose financial support and personal confidence may be required. But approach these with amiability and poise rather than impetuosity, aggressive and vexatious methods. Shun strife, impatience and dictatorial behavior, especially where the aid of groups may be required. It would not be amiss to be guided by intuitions or subtle leadings.

A child born on this day should be energetic, imperious and masterful, given to turbulence and strife, rather than tact and subtlety, which would serve better in contacts with its superiors, who may be friendly, disposed to promote and favor.

Here's a Complexion Pack Both Neat and Effective

Gail Patrick is noted for her lovely complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE IS one beauty treatment that most women are mad about, and that's the complexion pack; it is such a holy mess they know it is bound to do a lot of good, like bitter medicine that is a sure cure.

Here is a nice one that is just the ticket for the between-season complexion that needs bleaching and toning. Soothes the rumpled epidermis, imparts a velvety smoothness.

Into a small bowl place three heaping tablespoonfuls of almond meal. Add thick, rich cream—the kind the milkman brings—until you have a mixture the consistency of cake icing. Spread on a clean skin surface. Better wrap a large towel around your neck and have your ambrosial locks held confined by a wave cap. Include the neck in the treatment. Necks and faces don't always look alike because necks are neglected as a rule.

Pick up your thrilling novel. lie down, read for half an hour. Wring a small towel out of hot water, fold it in three layers, place the centre portion under your chin, the ends up over the cheeks and forehead. You are going to steam in the meal and cream. Make several applications. Remove the pack with the moist-towel, apply witch hazel with cotton pledgets.

Skinny girls have shoulder blade wings. Not one bit glamorous when the evening robe is worn.

Here is what should be done. Clasp the hands behind the shoulders. You do this by putting the right hand over the right shoulder, the left hand under the left shoulder, touching the fingers together.

Move the body from side to side, pivoting at the waitline, and moving the elbows from side to side. The idea is to fill out muscles and tissues, build a covering.

Keep posture good at all times. If the chest is held high, bones in the back will conceal themselves to a considerable degree.

Fashion Flashes

Indispensible through the winter, at home or down south, is the pastel wool frock. A grand all-day model is in pale blue sheer wool, the bodice pleated except for a small high yoke. The skirt, pleated all the way down, has the pleats stitched to the hips. Antique silver ornament at the neckline.

Bright lights shine on sheer black frocks just now. A beauty of an evening frock is in black silk marquisette, the line long and very slim to the knee, where it breaks into a froth of black lace ruffles. Lace ruffles edge the low curved neckline.

New ideas mark the latest hostess gowns. A smart model has the top of black silk velvet shirred with elastic to give a very snug fit. The wide skirt is of white taffeta plaided in red and black.

It's no use, we just can't get away from leopard this season. A grand coat for general wear is of black nubby woolen with tiny turndown collar and wide plastron of leopard. The plastron tapers from shoulder width to a narrow waist. Black Breton sailor edged with leopard sets off the coat.

First favorite with women everywhere is the pump shoe. One of the best models of the season is of bronze alligator lizard, the beautifully marked leather used for the front quarter and for the heel. Rest of the shoe is of matching bronze brown suede.

Sinus Troubles of Old And Young

This being the season for colds, it is natural that a large outcropping of sinus troubles should begin. This painful affliction is a complication of head colds, and this apparently is the reason why inhabitants of the northeastern section of the country suffer most from sinus trouble. In these localities—particularly around the Great Lakes—head colds are prevalent during a great part of the year.

In general, sinus trouble isn't hard to diagnose. It usually makes itself known by an intense pain either over the eyes or under them. I have had people come in to see me complaining of headaches or that the whole side of the face ached, whom I found to be sufferers of inflamed sinuses.

The word "sinus" means any cavity in the body, but with general use the term has come to refer to the sinuses of the head. The main ones of these are the frontal sinuses over the eyes and the antrums, which are formed by each cheek bone. The middle ear is also a sinus and it too suffers from painful complications as the result of infections in the head.

Normally these sinuses of the head are just empty cavities in the bone. But when some part of the body suffers from infection and part of the discharge gets into the sinus, then we have trouble. Inflammation sets in, pus gathers, the pressure within the cavity grows greater and greater and that is why we get those intense pains. One who hasn't suffered from these pains just can't imagine how bad they are.

Sinusitis may be caused by literally dozens of infectious diseases. The sinuses are connected with the nasal cavity by tubular passages and so any infection in the nose and throat may find its way to them through those passages. That is why we know it most as a disease which follows other infections. A person suffering from any of the following ailments may contract sinusitis by the spreading of the infection to the sinuses: scarlet fever, measles, pneumonia, influenza, typhoid, diphtheria, smallpox, erysipelas, mumps, social diseases, and tuberculosis.

You can see what a common complaint sinusitis is bound to be and how it is likely to affect young and old alike. I have known the disease to strike a person who seemed otherwise quite healthy. Very often in such cases a person with a diseased antrum will be found to have been infected by a bad tooth. This is because the roots of one of the upper teeth reach almost to the floor of the antrum.

In cold winter weather head colds are almost inevitable, and when you do get them they hang on and on. With this infection present so long in the nose and throat, it is just a matter of time before the sinuses are involved

PLAINFIELD W. M. S.

The Ladies of the Plainfield W. M. S. were pleased to entertain a number of members of the Mount Pleasant W. M. S. at their October meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. McCreary on Wednesday, Oct. the twenty third.

The president, Mrs. Harry McCreary, opened the meeting with a reading entitled "Thanksgiving", followed by a hymn. The Devotional period which was based on Thanksgiving was taken by Mrs. Bernice Moore. Mrs. Horace Palmer read the Scripture lesson and Rev. George McKenzie led in a special Thanksgiving prayer.

The study book "Men of Africa" was taken by Mrs. Harry Harrison and Mrs. George McKenzie. Mrs. Harrison gave the work of Dr. Tucker, a Missionary in Africa, and also spoke a few minutes on an address given by Miss Dawson at the training school for leaders at Whitby in which Miss Dawson said,—"We are God's Windows. Does His Light Shine through us for Him?"

Mrs. McKenzie concluded the chapter by telling of the work of the Rev. Sanembelo, native Christian Minister of Angolia, whose life was a bright light for Christ and closed her remarks with the verse, "I would not call him black. He is my Friend".

The Mizpah Benediction and God Save the King closed the meeting.

GILEAD W.M.S.

The November meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Guy Leavens on Thursday the 14th. The President opened the meeting by reading the call to prayer which was responded to by several members. Mrs. Everett Yorke read the 107 Phalm, a hymn was followed by business, roll call and election of officers. The Thankoffering was collected which amounted to $7.30 and collection $2.52.

The following program was given: Olive Ross a reading, "Courage"; Mrs. Fred Yorke a solo "When We Come to the End of the Way"; Reading by Mrs. Bertrand "I Will Not Keep Them Waiting"; Duet by Mrs. Wilfred Clare and Annie, "Make a Little Rainbow of Your Tears," to guitar accompaniment played by Annie. A reading was also given by Mrs. Gerald Swan. Mrs. G. Leavens served lunch. Meeting closed with prayer

Officers for the year 1941 are as follows: President, Mrs. James Huffman; Vice President, Mrs. Orland Bertrand; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Guy Leavens; Treasurer, Miss Florence Huffman; Press Secretary, Mrs. F. Balcanquel; Temperance Secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Clare; Christian Stewardship Sec., Mrs. Everett Yorke. Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Fred Leavens; Mission Monthly and Supply, Mrs. Gerald Swan; Pianist, Mrs. R. Lawrenson; Assistant, Miss Annie Clare. Six Riders, Three Argonauts Picked on All-Star Big Four Team With Coulter Leading

Brilliant Quarter of Argos Secures All of 16 Votes Registered by Experts

A MIGHTY SQUAD

Team Would Have Plenty of Ground Power and Also a Smart Offensive

By Sydney Grlson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Bobby Coulter, the finest little football general of them all in 1936, still is good enough to call them for the experts in the Interprovincial Union after three seasons away from the football wars.

Coulter was the choice of 16 writers and coaches in the Big Four cities as quarterback for the Union's 1940 all-star team, announced by The Canadian Press last night. The voters surrounded him with two teammates from Toronto Argonauts, two of Montreal's stars, Hamilton's great centre and no less than six from the champion Ottawa Rough Riders.

But there was only one other player to receive the acclaim accorded rapid Robert, who won the quarterback berth on the CP'S 1936 All-Eastern and went into retirement after that season. Coulter and the only man who has rivalled his running all season, Ottawa's Andy Tommy, each received 15 of the 16 votes. Here is the 1940 team:-

Flying Wing: Andy Tommy.
Half: Gord Noseworthy, Montreal.
Half: Tony Golab, Ottawa.
Half (Secondary Defence): Sam Sward, Ottawa.
Quarterback: Bobby Coulter, Argonauts.
Snap: Doug Turner, Hamilton.
Inside: Len Staughton, Argonauts.
Inside: George Fraser, Ottawa.
Middle: Bunny Wadsworth, Ottawa.
Middle: Dave Sprague, Ottawa.
Outside: Bernie Thornton, Argonauts.
Outside: Eddie Burton, Montreal.

Fitted Ideally to Lead Team

A mite of a man who is all heart, Coulter is fitted ideally to lead this club which has an abundance of plunging and kicking power to make up for the absence of any outstanding forward passer. Coulter could take up the slack in that department, too, with big Noseworthy to back him up.

On the ground this mystical squad would be supreme. There are no better line crushers in the east than Golab and Sprague, a veteran who has been on every Big Four all-star team since 1936, and there are no swifter and shiftier runners than Coulter and Tommy.

Noseworthy and Sward are two of the best punters, Noseworthy, besides, is a good safety man and plunger and Sward is probably the best all-round footballer in the east. The fellow can run and plunge, he can kick and catch and he is a bear on the defence at pass snatching or tackling.

There was no nip-and-tuck vote battle for any position on the backfield or, for that matter, the line, where seven experienced veterans of the gridiron are assembled.

Sward got nine votes, Golab and Noseworthy seven each. Only Bill Stukus, Argonauts; Bill Davies, Montreal, and Orville Burke, Ottawa, got more than two votes among the Union's other capable backs.

Turner Had Fine Season

Twelve men chose Turner as the team's centre. He has had the best season of a career that was brilliant throughout his University of Toronto playing days. A big man, he is remarkably fast, a good tackler and can size up a play quicker than most men. Jack Taylor of Ottawa was the only other man to receive consideration for the job.

Sprague and Dadsworth received nine votes each, their only competition coming from Tommy Burns who got the eye of five selectors. Staughton had eight for one inside job and Fraser seven. At the ends, Thornton got all but three votes and Burton had seven to five for Len Wright of Hamilton.

Kingston May Secure Franchise In Can-Am Loop

Utica, N.Y., Nov. 19 (AP)—The Canadian-American Baseball League will operate as an eight-team circuit in 1941, with the present Auburn franchise going either to Schenectady or Kingston.

Rev. Harold J. Martin, Heuvelton, League President, said following a meeting here Monday, the circuit would retain its international aspect with a new park in Ottawa permitting that team to play all its games at home instead of alternating between there and Ogdensburg.

Other teams in the league next year will be Utica, Rome, Gloversville, Oneonta, Amsterdam and Pittsfield, Mass., a newcomer. League officers will be elected here Jan. 6th.

SUCCEEDS GABBY

Jimmy Wilson, coach and part-time catcher of the Cincinnati Reds was appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs, being given a two-year contract.

WILSON READY TO HANDLE CUBS

New Manager Figures Team Needs Pitching—Spalding Given Coaching Job

Chicago, Nov. 19—(AP)—Jimmy Wilson hadn't been manager of the Chicago Cubs more than 15 minutes before he let it be known that he is no popoff.

"Why should I start talking right away about what I am going to do?" he asked. "I'm no popoff. I want to look the situation over before making any recommendations."

Wilson agreed to terms in a conference yesterday with James Gallagher, general manager and Charles Weber, vice - president, and signed a two-year contract last night. He affixed his signature to the paper as soon as Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Club to which he belonged, arrived and personally handed him his unconditional release. The salary figure was thought to be about $20,000.

Wilson, however, revealed immediately that he wouldn't back away from any attractive trades for material.

"While I saw plenty of the Cubs last season," he said. "I wasn't looking at them with the same slant I now must take as their manager. But there is one thing certain, I'll listen to all trade propositions. I won't hesitate to act if I can make a trade beneficial to the team. From what little I know at this time I figure the big need is pitching."

Wilson said that one of his coaches would be Charles Spalding who assisted him during three of his five years as the Philly skipper.

MARLBOROS GIVEN GOAL TO BEAT PORT COLBORNE

Tally Scored from Scramble and Goal Umpire Refuses to Flash Light but Referee Sees Play

OSHAWA WINS

London and Oshawa Put on Rugged Display With 12 Penalties Handed Out

(By The Canadian Press)

They're not as classy as the Toronto Goodyears of last season, but Toronto Marlboroughs are in the same position today as the Goodyears were all last winter—first place in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior "A" Division.

The Queen City Dukes edged out a lucky 4-3 victory at Port Colborne over the hometown Sailors last night to vault into a first-place tie with the idle Hamilon Tigers. In the only other game, London Streamliners and Oshawa went into a last-place deadlock with St. Catharines when Oshawa won its first game of the season, 5-2.

The tilts served as a notice that Marboroughs, lacking the playing strength of the Goodyears whom they replaced in the circuit, and Oshawa, late in getting organized this season, are coming along fast. They'll be tough to beat from now on and that makes for one of the best-balanced senior leagues in years.

Dukes Awarded Goal

The Dukes took victory on a goal awarded them in the last four minutes of play. Eddie King was credited with the counter after a shot from a scramble, although the goal judge did not flash his light. After the shot, however, Referee Charles Talbot blew his whistle and awarded the tally.

Rearguard Jimmy Drummond, fast finding his skating legs after a training spell with the Non-Permanent Active Militia, scored the first two Toronto tallies. Lanky Murray Ezeard scored the third after Finkbeiner gave the ports their first goal in the second session. Art Thompson and Eddie Young evened the count in the final frame before the Toronto "victory scramble."

A Rugged Display

London and Oshawa put on a rugged display at Oshawa in a game that saw 12 penalties issued, including 10-minute misconduct awards to Smack Allen of London for shooting the puck down the ice after a face-off had been called, and one to Charley Stapleford for arguing with Referee Ken Holmshaw.

Carr-Harris, a Kingston product who had a trial with Detroit Red Wings; Jimmy Thompson, Gar Peters, Jerry Cooper and Roy Covert were the Oshawa marksmen.

Ilo Marzo, an Acton native, scored the first London goal in the third period after Oshawa had counted four times. Dunc Galbraith snared the other streamliner counter 11 seconds before the final whistle.

Results of the games showed Toronto and Hamilton in the League lead with eight points each, Niagara Falls and Port Colborne tied for second, two points back, and St. Catharines, Oshawa and London in the cellar position with two points each.

ST. PAUL WINS AGAIN

Minneapolis, Nov. 19—(AP)—St. Paul Saints won their third game in as many American Hockey Association starts this season by beating Minneapolis Millers 3-2 last night. Ted Saunders scored all Saints' goals and Tustin both Millers'.

"STINKY" DAVIS LIVES UP TO HIS NAME

O. A. C. Sport Ban May be Lifted

Guelph, Nov. 19—A college ruling which forced cancellation of practically all sports activities at the O.A.C. this fall has brought a strong protest from the students who are anxious to have the restrictions lifted to some extent during the winter months.

Represenations have been made to Dr. G. I. Christie, college president and members of the faculty urging reconsideration of a ruling which bars the Aggies from outside competition in every branch of athletics. The protest points out that other colleges and universities in Canada are taking part in competitive sports, despite cancellation of intercollegiate sports.

Permission, which has been granted the Students' Athletic Association to enter a team in the Guelph City Hockey Association, may be the first step by the faculty to relax the restrictions.

LIONS SCORE 6-3 WIN

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 19—(CP)—Frank Jerwa rammed home two overtime goals here last night as Vancouver Lions took a 6-3 win from the Spokane Bombers in a Pacific Coast Hockey League game Lulu Lennon got the other four Vancouver markers. Glen Vickers and Bert Scharfe scored for Spokane.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 19 (AP)—Jimmy Wilson made the Cubs lay plenty on the line and don't let anybody kid you. He was getting ten grand for coaching the Reds—and no managerial worries.... A formal announceemnt says Max Baer will open in New Haven in "Hiya Gentlemen" on Thanksgiving Day—but it neglects to say which Thanksgiving Day.

Just in case you're wondering, the conductor of this Bureau of Information is down here sitting in on the annual gabfest of managing editors of Associated Press newspapers.... We recall this slick city with mingled grief and pain.... It was here that we were bounced for the first time in our newspaper career.... The Old Evening Post (since deceased) gave us the heave-ho on a cold winter morning in December, 1917.... But it's still Louisville, slick as ever, with just as many pretty dolls and just as many fast ponies—only sometimes they run the wrong way.

Sports Cocktail—

Well, it seems Carl Snavely, leading exponent of football movies, was beaten by same Saturday ... Three of Al Davis' bodyguards, who tried to slug a couple of sports writers after the civic fight, got the works from Johnny Broderick, two-fisted detective ace...... And friends of Burper Dick Shikat, who feared he was in a Nazi concentration camp, will be interested to learn he is groaning and grunting in Buenos Aires, just like there wasn't a war on.

BRUINS BIDDING FOR FIRST WIN OF THE SEASON

Team in N.H.L. Not Nearly as Afraid of Boston as in Years Gone by

RANGERS PLAY

Meet Americans on New York Ice for First Time Since Exhibition Tour

(By The Canadian Press)

Once upon a time teams in the National Hockey League used to quake at the thought of entering Boston for a game against the Bruins. Those days haven't passed completely as yet, but there is a suspicion that the Bruins aren't the terrors of old.

The new Bruins will be bidding for their first victory of the season tonight when they play host to Detroit Red Wings, who have done pretty well in their five contests. Where the Bruins have only one tie to show in three contests, the Wings have won two, tied two and lost only one so far.

The Bruins have always had the reputation of being among the better defensive teams in the League as well as being noted for high scoring, but they haven't done so well on either count so far this season.

Eleven goals have gone by Frankie Brimsek in the three Boston games, while the Bruins have been able to score only seven. Their opponents tonight have tallied only 11 goals in five games, but have been scored on only 10 times.

Only one other clash is on the schedule for tonight and it brings together the two New York clubs—Americans and Rangers—in their first scheduled meeting. In a pre-season series the teams wound up even after six games, with each club winning three.

Rangers are the only undefeated club in the league, with a record of one victory and two draws in three games played. Americans, although they have scored only five goals in four games, have a victory and a draw to make up a total of three points.

QUITS THE YANKS

For 11 years a bench sitter with the New York Yankees, Arndt Jorgens, third-string catcher, finally has decided to quit playing third fiddle and enter business. Jorgens came to the Yanks in 1928. He never won a regular or a substitute catching job, but did the bullpen duty. However, he continued to collect his salary and his several $5,000 world series cuts. Jorgen's last appearance behind the plate was in 1938.

The old Napanee junior forward line of Walt Gerow, flanked by Leary and Currie, sallied out as the starting trio for the 3-47th Battery when the Artillery lads downed the Signals 5-0 in Friday night's Van Horne Memorial cup game. Freddie McGuire and Jack Murray were Belleville boys lined up with the Battery team, with Lum Carson as spare goalie. "Speedy" St. Louis' Belleville Reliance sextette meet the 3-47th Battery in Kingston this Friday. The Gerow-Leary-Currie line is apparently clicking splendidly as "Young Walt" bagged two goals, while Leary notched one and slipped a pass to Gerow for another. The 3-47th Battery team has ordered new sweaters scarlet trimmed with royal blue and gold, the Battery's regular dress colors after being assured by Belleville service clubs that the cost of the uniforms would be met. Incidentally Sergeant Don Thomas is the business manager of the 3-47th team, with Captein Hewitt, former Queen's athlete, acting as coach.

Another attempt to reorganize the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association is on the books for Friday evening at the "Y". President Frank Cunningham announced today the meeting would be wide open and by that he means every person interested in the sponsorship of hockey among the teen-aged boys of the city is welcome and should walk right in and make themselves at home. Sometimes we wonder if more responsibility should not be shouldered by the actual participants of the game. In other centres players attend organization meetings and take active positions in the administration of their sporting ventures. Such has not been the case in Belleville and therefore the players do not quite realize the responsibilities of operation. Not only in the minor series, but in the higher brackets this holds more predominate. In Peterboro, Kingston and Oshawa we note that actual participants take active executive positions in their baseball and hockey clubs, an angle that could be well employed in Belleville.

Pete Morgan former Belleville right-winger who has been playing hockey at Coniston for these few years back, returned to Northern Ontario puck fields last week after spending a month in Belleville. There have been hopes on the part of the local intermediates, that Morgan would remain in Belleville, where he was employed for over a month before returning to the northland. His decision to return to Coniston apparently came rather abruptly, as Pete merely walked into his employer one morning and said: "Thank you, but I'm leaving for the north at noon," and that was that. Incidentally the Reliance team is still seeking a defenceman and a rightwinger to relieve Tabby Gow occasionally. Otherwise they are fairly well balanced for the O.H.A. campaign.

Do you remember when baseball fans stood on church pews in San Francisco's Saints Peter and Paul Church a year ago today when New York Yankees' star outfielder, Joe DiMaggio wed Dorothy Arnold of the movies. The wedding party itself was delayed by the biggest wedding crowd 'Frisco police could remember.

Although he is slightly off key regarding Canadian military training schemes, Joe Williams of the New York World Telegram wonders why baseball players should be inducted into military service in the United States, when it is not at war, and Canada, which is in the war, does not find it necessary to call in its hockey players.

"Baseball owners are resigned to the fact that a certain percentage of their stars will not be available for full time, if any duty next season," writes Williams. "Draft eligibles will simply march off to camp and that will be that. No efforts will be made to obtain deferred service.

"This being so, it strikes us as strange, if not inconsistent, that hockey will probably not lose a single star this season. Practically all hockey players come from Canada. If our understanding is correct, any hockey star who has served a month's militia hitch has done his duty for the time being. We are told all the stars have done this and will be on hand when the ice games start. All of which is fine for the hockey owners, much finer than it threatens to be for the baseball owners.

"What makes this seem strange to us is that Canada is actually at war and America is never going to war. Anyway, it's too delicate a subject for us to rassle with at length. We just can't help wondering about it, that's all."

Big Paul Derringer, ace right-hander of the Cincinnati Reds, is still in Cincinnati, but will leave this week for his winter home in Sarasota, Fla. He has been hunting in Michigan and Ohio since the World's Series and will be joined on the trip to Florida by his wife and baby daughter, who have been staying in Decatur, Ill.

Life begins at 40, or at least Jimmie Wilson, former coach of the world champion Cincinnati Reds, has reasons to believe. Wilson was the No. 1 hero of the 1940 world series with his superb handling of the Cincinnati pitchers. Yesterday Jimmie Wilson was signed to manage the Chicago Cubs getting a two-year contract as a mark of appreciation of his past efforts. Jimmie Wilson once headed the Phillies, but that's nothing to brag about. Today as chief of the Cubs' lair, however, Wilson may find it difficult to name a No. 1 receiver and may be in the same position as he found himself when the 1940 world series opened. Wilson says he will definitely retain Jerome (Dizzy) Dean on the Cubs' pitching staff, which indicates Jimmie knows his baseball color and spirit at least.

Sport Slants — Congratulations to Bill Storms, veteran Belleville hockey player, who deserted the ranks of batchelorhood last evening and is teemed up today.... The bride is Miss Helen Katheline Blake....Six Ottawa, three Argonauts, two Montreal and a Hamilton player were selected for the annual Interprovincial all-star football squad this year.... Ross Clemens, of Hamilton will be declared President of the O.H.A. next Saturday, no other nominations for the office being posted....Leo Goyer failed to to bulge the twine as the Kingston juniors beat Regiopolis 4-0 last night....Winners on Monday of their game of Saturday was the position Dartmouth found themselves in yesterday when Cornell was shorn of their only score against Dartmouth following the showing of the moving pictures of the game....Cornell had five downs on the play they scored on and today the great Cornell team of yesterday had dropped to fifth place in the Yankee football poll....There's a rightwing player in town, in case the local intermediates are, interested.

FEW STUDY GERMAN

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Fewer students are studying the German language in New York City's school system than at any time in the last 10 years, says Dr. Theodore Huebener, acting director of foreign languages. With the beginning of the rise of Hitler in 1934, Huebener said, 22,500 were enrolled in German classes. The figure has dropped steadily until now only 10,241 are taking the course.

SOME BRITISH CAPTURED?

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Belgrade newspaper Vreme carried a dispatch from the frontier today that several British soldiers had been captured by Italians on the Koritza front in Albania. They were said to be members of British North African units sent to the Greek battlefront two days ago.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hem-Rold and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Rold is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Bancroft

Bancroft, Nov. 19 (Special)—An accident occurred Sunday afternoon on the Monk road six miles west of Bancroft when a truck driven by William Switzer and a car driven by Oscar Card became involved. Switzer was proceeding towards town and was just negotiating a sharp bend in the road, when the Card car appeared right at hand. Card apparently applied his brakes which caused his car to skid and the rear of his vehicle crashed Switzer's truck forcing the latter over a four-foot fill, the truck landing on its cab with four wheels in the air. Switzer, his brother and Elvin Bruce were in the cab and they only suffered a few cuts and abrasions. The accident was investigated by County Constable G. P. Wells of Bancroft.

Friday's fall of snow in the village was the cause of another accident on Main Street when a car driven by Leslie Sutherland of Monteagle skidded on the slippery road at Kennedy's corner and shot diagonally across the street and sideswiped Mr. Jack Vance's truck which was being driven by Neil Martin. Both vehicles suffered minor damages.

Miss Colista McAlpine of Elmira, Ont., is spending a holiday with her grandmother, Mrs. E. Kennedy, of Bancroft.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Adams of Deltor were business visitors in Belleville on Wednesday.

Miss Selina Thompson spent Wednesday in Belleville.

The Bancroft Garage on Main St. is altering its front entrance by disposing of the old door and the replacing of a new panelled door which will slide overhead.

Mr. W. J. Davis and Miss Sadie Davis of Maple Leaf motored to Belleville on Friday.

Mrs. E. O'Neill, Miss Colista McAlpine and Mr. Douglas Moxam motored to Belleville on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Deyell left Bancroft Saturday to take up residence in Ottawa. Mr. Deyell has been inspector for this district for some time but has taken a poistion on the staff of teachers at the Ottawa Normal until next summer.

Mrs. Donald Weeks of Toronto is visiting with relatives in Bancroft this week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Moxam of Coppercliff are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Moxam of Bancroft and also with relatives in Monteagle.

Miss Jean Nickle of Belleville spent the week-end at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Follis in Bancroft and also with her mother Mrs. T. L. Nickle who is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. J. Follis.

ASKED TO SHOUT BEFORE SHOOTING

Pittsburgh, N.H., Nov. 19 (AP)—Hunters hereabouts are requested to shout before they shoot—so that if they come across an escaped tame deer named Simon Legree it will have a chance to walk up and "shake hands." Frank Baldwin, Simon's owner, made the request. He said the deer had been trained so that, upon hearing its name shouted, it would advance and extend its right forefoot in friendly greeting.

Picton and District

Picton, Nov. 19 — Due to cold weather during the night on Sunday, roads were very slippery on Monday and several cars were reported to have slid into the ditch. Due to drifting snow on Saturday, cars found the going very heavy in several districts.

The Sir Thomas Picton Chapter I.O.D.E. is expanding their war work program by opening a Chapterhouse in Picton. This will be used as a recreational and entertainment centre for the men in training at Picton Gunnery and Bombing School. The house of the late T. Y. Hess has been rented and will be equipped for the purpose. There is to be a recreation room, reading and writing room, a room where airmen and their families may meet, a refreshment booth and other features. A full time hostess is to be in charge and members of the Chapter will assist in entertaining the men.

The death of Orville Richardson occurred in Prince Edward County hospital here Monday. He suffered severe burns, fractured ribs and a punctured lung in a motor accident on the Picton-Belleville highway on November 9th. He was driving alone at the time when he suffered a heart attack and the car went into the ditch, crashing into a tree and then taking fire. He was pulled from the blazing wreckage by a Belleville trucker. Though severely injured he had seemed to be making progress when he took a turn for the worse. He is survived by his wife and a son Ervine.

The funeral of Rupert Wheeler was held at his late residence Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. F. Reycraft. Interment was in Glenwood Cemetry. Many relatives and friends attended and there were many floral tributes. Though not enjoying the best of health, Mr. Wheeler was stricken suddenly with a heart attack Friday night and passed away Saturday morning. He was in his 58th year and was born in Prince Edward County. He learned the printing trade with the Picton Gazette and later went to Rochester being in the printing plant of the Eastman Kodak Co. He returned to Picton and for several years has been caretaker of the United Church. Surviving are his wife, two children, Mrs. Pat Hodgson and Vernon Wheeler and a sister, Miss Lucy Wheeler, Picton.

The Daughters of Dorcas and the Y.P.A. of St. Andrew's Church held a successful tea and food sale on Saturday.

The 147th anniversary of the United Church was marked on Sunday. Rev. J. F. Reycraft conducted the service and Andrew Johnson, colored baritone of Toronto, was guest soloist. After the evening service three hundred enjoyed a social time with the Woman's Association providing refreshments. M. V. Dow led in singing of favorite hymns.

Several from Picton attended the Canadian Concert Association program in Belleville.

George Cook and M. E. Knox have returned from the north with a fine deer. They were hunting north of Havelock.

Special Services, Banquet Mark 47th Anniversary

J. O. Herity in Special Address Recalls the Builders of Fine Community

SPECIAL MUSIC

Stirling, Nov. 19 — (Special) — Week-end activities at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, were centred about the forty-seventh anniversary of the erection of the present church building. In the morning worship Rev. W. H. V. Walker gave a complete review of the colorful history of the church and challenged the present members to "stand fast in the faith of their fathers." Never before has the need of staunch loyalty been so great, he declared. This fine church created through the toil and sacrifice of our ancestors was left to us in trust. Their theme of life was forward and in loyalty to them we also must move forward.

Continuing the special services in the evening Rev. James E. Beckel, also stressed the great need of loyalty to the church of God in these trying days. The church is the cradle of all things we now strive to defend. It is the mother of democracy and through these difficult days a concentrated spirit of loyalty should prevail in the hearts of all church people of every denomination and creed.

Special music by the large choir under the direction of Miss Grace Pitman, organist and choir leader, included two fine anthems: "I Will Bless the Lord" and "Crown Him Lord of All." In the evening service Arthur Duncan contributed a baritone solo, "Bless This House." Flowers were placed at the front of the church in memory of the late Mrs. F. T. Ward and also Mr. and Mrs. Drewry, parents of Mrs. Mae Nolan.

Banquet Held on Monday

As a further step in the celebration, a congregational banquet was held in the church parlours on Monday evening, Mr. J. O. Herity of Belleville being guest speaker for the occasion and delivered an interesting address which reached into the lives of many present. Mr. Herity, a former pupil of Stirling High School, paid tribute to the men who were responsible for the establishment of the High School in Stirling; among whom was Mr. F. T. Ward who was present and who has served for forty-two years on the Stirling School Board. Other prominent men, many who since have passed on, included such names as Meiklejohn, Parker, Clute, Milne, Faulkner, Craig and others.

The mention of these and others by this brilliant speaker of remarkable memory, pleased many of his listeners. Tempering his review of past events in the history of the village with recitations of various types that embodied human interest of the finest calibre, Mr. Herity emphasized the need of wider public spirit in the smaller provincial towns. In these little towns is found Canadian life at its best and we should all be boosters rather than knockers. "We may travel far away but our home town always remains dearest and nearest to us," he declared.

Mr. H. R. Tompkins acted as chairman for the evening and completed the duties in a very capable fashion. The fine program included vocal selections offered by Miss Margaret Atkinson, music instructor for the Ontario Department of Education. Community singing under the leadership of Art Duncan and Miss Grace Pitman, A.T.C.M., presided at the piano.

Birthday Ceremony Marked

A special feature of the program was the presentation of a large birthday cake through the efforts of Mrs. H. Tulloch and Mrs. A. Hammond. Mr. F. T. Ward, senior member of the Kirk Session, assisted in lighting the candles and the knife was inserted for the first cut by Mr. Robt. Eggleton, also a prominent elder and past superintendent of the Sunday School. Both these gentlemen were present for the laying of the cornerstone of the building forty-seven years ago. Mr. Ward was clerk of session in 1897 and is still active in the life of the church. Both are the same age, eighty-three and celebrate their birthdays within the same week. According to available information the first steps to establish a Presbyterian Church in Stirling took place in 1851 and since that time two churches have been erected, the present one being completed in Nov. 1893. Committee workers made up from the Ladies' Aid under the leadership of Mrs. A. Hammond and newly-formed Get-Together Club under President A. Duncan, Vice-President Mrs. H. Rollins and Secretary Gena Spry were responsible for the arrangements. And the guests seated at the table of honur included Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Tompkins, the guest speaker, Mr. Herity, Rev. and Mrs. W. H. V. Walker, Rev. James Beckel and the following members of the Kirk Session, Mr. F. T. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Eggleton, Mr. and Mrs. Bolter Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Craighead, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Rollins, Mr. Thos. McGee.

Herman Brix, Lane Chandler, Chief Thundercloud and Lee Powell pledge anew their allegiance to the Lone Star State in Republic's latest feature, "Hi-Yo Silver," coming next to the Capitol and on the same program "Queen of the Mob," based on J. Edgar Hoover's book "Persons in Hiding."

NOT SURE HE GOT RABBIT

Jackson, Mich., Nov. 19 (AP)—Benjamin Bailey, 53, agrees the ground is a good place to hunt rabbits. When he climbed a tree to get a better shot at a rabbit, the recoil of the gun knocked him from his perch, and he was taken to a hospital, his left foot fractured. "He's not sure that he hit the rabbit."

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN.

"Nice of Kanamura to leave me my gun," North commented when he slipped on his shoulder holster.

"Come along, old chap—I'm pining for a breath of Hawaii's justly famed pure air," remarked Kilgour as he strolled to the window to look out at the Koolau Range looming black and ragged, save where the moon had silvered certain volcanic peaks.

"My word, look at that moon! Isn't it—"

Kilgour's speech was cut short when a bullet sang through the open window and with a vicious tchunk! buried itself in the bedroom wall, all but creasing his scalp. It had come from a silencered.

The Englishman, who had dropped to the floor, blinked up at North, who was standing alert and sombereyed across the room. Kilgour laughed a particularly mirthless laugh. "I say, old lad," he said, "you surely are in demand."

"The Floating Lily" certainly belied that name when Captain Hugh North and Bruce Kilgour presently halted before it. It was a widefronted, two-storey stucco structure. Once tinted a deplorable shade of pale green, it resembled a lily neither in color, odor, nor purity . . . especially around 3 a.m.

For a few minutes the two men, inconspicuous in their dark clothes, sauntered down the street, surveying with tired disgust a succession of tawdry dance halls, tiny Chinese shops, tenements, and dives.

This quarter had only one thing in common with the rest of Honolulu—its patent excitement over the threatened war. All along the sidewalks knots of loafers — Chinese, Portuguese, Filipinos and Europeans —gesticulated and yelled at one another. The Japanese, who usually crowded this quarter, were noticeably few.

The two intelligence men soon teetered up to the Floating Lily, hats crammed loosely on the backs of their heads, hair over eyes, and otherwise giving a convincing counterfeit of two tea-ed up tourists in search of amusement.

"Hi, Jack," North shouted to two sailors who came reeling out of the Floating Lily. "Anythin' doin' in there?"

"Doin'? Sure! Besh li'l' place y' ever seen—"

"But I say, it's nearly three o'clock." Kilgour had chosen the solemn and dignified drunken pose. "The bally shop isn't shutting up?"

Swaying a little, the two sailors made violent gestures of denial. "Shut up? Now?—don shut up 'til last bozo passes out."

"Hear that swing, will ya? The ban's beginnin' to get hot." The smaller of the two waved an uncertain, tattooed hand towards the Floating Lily. There was no denying that the blaring jazz inside was reaching fever heat.

"C'm on back in, Jack, an' show us the ropes," North invited. "We're new in town—want to see the works —see? C'm on, we'll blow you guys to some okes, or maybe—Say, Jack," North's arm went affectionately about the other's sun-reddened neck, "ever wash your tonsils with a Kanaka Moon cocktail?"

"Cocktail?" The bigger man made that vulgar but expressive noise known as the Bronx Cheer. "Nix, not for baby——gimme straight oke ever 'time. Whaddya say, Gus?"

"Okay, Freddy." Swaying slightly, Gus thrust his arm through Kilgour's. And so the quartet lurched in through a pair of swinging doors.

Like harpies, a swarm of shrill-voiced women flung themselves upon the newcomers. For the most part they were utterly repulsive.

The air was gray with the reek of tobacco. Joss sticks, in holders along the wall, attempted feebly to dispel some of the fumes of cheap perfume and poor liquid.

"C'm on, podner," North's friend insisted, "they's a good table over in that booth. Hi, there. Luisa!"

That frizzed and painted damsel laughed shrilly, "You coma back again?"

Luisa swung near to greet Gus while skillfully making room for the gyrations of other dancers.

"Hey, Soo Lee!" Freddy smacked glass-marked table a whack that made its legs tremble. "Four okes—wiki-wiki diink, savvy?"

A tired-looking Chinese waiter waddled off with the order. Then North shoved a five-dollar bill across to Freddy.

"There y'are, Buddy, slip that to the band. Tell 'em to play 'Sain' Louie Blues'."

"Okay, Buddy!" Joyously the two gobs became lost in the vari-colored crowds of dancers.

"Well, this is sweet-scented!" Kilgour remarked. "I suppose the next step is to meet a couple of baggages so we can ask them if they knew the late lamented!"

"Careful!" North had suddenly let his head sag forward as though drowsy with liquor and was peering between his fingers.

"Ouch, I say!" Kilgour protested when North kicked his shin.

"Look!" hissed the intelligence captain.

Groggily, the English agent turned to observe the door at the far side of the dance hall and saw Baron von Rentner, immaculately cross followed by a servile yellow headwaiter.

"Well, strike me!" breathed Kilgour. "The blighter's slumming too."

"Look!" North's disheveled black head indicated two men who appeared immediately afterwards through that same door. "Take a good look at those two men back of von Rentner — especially the plug-ugly with the big bruise on the side of his head."

While the band burst into the "St. Louis Blues", North watched von Rentner, stiff-backed and coldly disdainful, being joined by two powerful men who had waited outside the door through which the Prussian steel master had appeared. Apparently bodyguards, they immediately fell in to Baron von Rentner's right and left.

On this trio, however, North wasted hardly a second glance. It was on the two seafaring men who followed that he fixed his attention. They were puzzling him for though dressed in grimy merchant officers' serge uniforms, there was in their carriage a hint of drilled stiffness which, as a rule, only military men possess.

The foremost, a blunt-featured giant at least six feet two, was distinguished by bristling blond mustaches which swept off to either side of his broad and shiny snub nose. Never, North was thinking, had be seen blonder hair than that of this stolid seafarer who, strangely enough, walked without the long, rolling gait of a sailor. Moreover, that blond hair was clipped very short, and what particularly interested North was the fact that in several places angry red and blue bruises showed very distinctly through the stubble.

Swiftly he made an accurate mental inventory of the figure: clothes, dark blue serge, gray turtle-neck sweater, both smeared with grease; a sheath knife such as is carried by nearly all non-Anglo-Saxon sailors; heavy, badly made cowhide boots of a sort associated with European peasants. By and large, a very interesting get-up.

North's interest grew apace when he noted on the side of the second man's brutal red face a dark purple bruise; he, too, had recently received a hard bump. How?

Then the blond giant in the lead halted and, narrowing his small, blue eyes, peered through the eddying smoke at North's table.

With evil premonition, the intelligence captain's eyes flickered sidewise to realize that Kilgour had unconsciously exposed most of his face. Breathless, North watched the blond giant's wide features and on them saw suspicion give way to alarm, and alarm to menace.

"Quick!" North muttered. "That big fellow with the bruised head—know him?"

It was already too late for Kilgour to get a good look at the merchant officer, for the latter was lumbering hurriedly after von Rentner who had disappeared through the front door of the Floating Lily.

"Don't think so," said the British agent.

"Too bad, because he certainly seemed to know you," North asserted grimly.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP).—Golds reversed their trend after a firm opening on Toronto Exchange today and during a sell-out which started just before noon and continued in the early afternoon most of the initial gains were wiped out.

Upper Canada, which touched a new high at 1.60, dropped to 1.55 where its gain for the day was only one cent. Kerr Addison touched 3.70 to equal its high for the year and then dropped to 3.55 where it was off 10 cents from the previous close. Other soft spots in the group were Pamour, off 7 cents, and San Antonio, off 4 cents.

Bell Telephone, only industrial to show much change in the morning, dropped part of its initial advance and was selling around 157, up a point. Base metals were unchanged and only a couple of western oils showed on the board.

Sales totalled 133,000 shares, with most trading in the golds.

WALL ST.

New York, Nov. 19 (AP)—Selling was light in today's Stock Market but buyers generally exhibited about as much timidity as in the preceding session.

An early attempt at a rally met with scant response and leaders then dipped fractions to around a point. Dealings slowed on the retreat and a mild come-back got under way before mid-day. Irregularly lower prices were the rule near the fourth hour.

Canadian stocks were easy. McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram dipped trifles while Hiram Walker and Lake Shore Mines held unchanged. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, lost 1-4 point.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 19—(CP)—Cattle trade was slow at generally steady prices up to mid-session on the Livestock Market here today. No price was established for hogs but indications were it would be about steady. Veal calves, lambs and sheep were steady. Unsold from Monday were 3,200 head of cattle.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 1,130, calves 650, hogs 1,170, sheep and lambs 1,360.

Prices in the cattle section were: Butcher steers and heifers $5.50 to $5.75, butcher cows $4 to $5.50, canners and cutters $3 to $3.75, butcher bulls $5 to $5.50, bolognas $4 to $4.75, fed calves mostly $8.50 to $10, stockers slow at $5 to $6.50.

Veal calves sold at $10 to $11 for choice with common vealers selling downward to $6. Grassers sold at $5 to $5.50.

Lambs sold at $9.50 to $9.75 for good ewes and wethers, $8.50 to $8.75 for heavies and bucks and $7.50 to $8 for culls.

Sheep sold at $2 to $5.50.

Hogs closed previously at $10.75 dressedweight and $8 liveweight.

Montreal, Nov. 19 (CP).—Prices ruled steady in early trade on the Montreal livestock markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Today's cattle receipts were made up of common quality cows. A few medium cows made around $4.50-$5 with common butchers at $3.75-$4.25. Canners and cutters drew $2.50-$3.50 while common bulls were $3.50-$4.25.

Veal calves ranged from $8.50-$11 with a few tops at $11.50. Drinkers brought $5.50-$8 and grassers mostly $4.75 ranging from $4.50-$5.

Good ewes and wethers were $9.75-$10, culls and bucks $7.75-$8 and sheep $3.50-$6.

Hogs sold at $10.75 for B-1 dressed, $8.25 for B-1 alive fed and watered and up to $8.35 off trucks. Grade A drew $1 premium with discounts on off grades. Sows brought $5-$6.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Dressed-weight were down 60 cents from the last report received from Barrie Nov. 7 up 15 cents at Brantford and London and unchanged at Chatham, Hull and Stratford in bacon-hog markets reporting today.

Liveweight: Chatham $7.

Dressedweight: Barrie $10.65, Brantford $10.15 plus transportation; Chatham $9.75, Hull $10.10, London $10.15 plus transportation, Stratford $10.25 plus transportation.

PASTOR CHARGED WITH EVASION

Lutheran Minister Refused to Register for U. S. Military Service

Pittsburgh, Nov. 19.— (AP) — Rev. Allen Clay Lambert, who refused to register for military service in the United States and declared from the pulpit that conscription was the "greatest crime against the Republic since its founding", was charged today with draft evasion.

George Mashank, acting United States Attorney, said the 34-year-old United Lutheran pastor in the Central Pennsylvania Community of Sinking Valley will be required to post bond for a hearing before a United States Commissioner.

Mr. Lambert, prior to the draft registration, told his congregation.

"I cannot go along in the greatest crime against the republic since is founding. This whole thing has been mace or less forced on the American people. I am willing to die for my country but not to kill".

HEPBURN IN OTTAWA

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP).—Premier Hepburn went to Ottawa today to attend the nomination meeting for the Ottawa East by-election at which Hon. Robert Laurier, newly-appointed Ontario Minister of Mines, will be nominated as the Liberal candidate. Nominations will be held tomorrow and the by-election on Nov. 27 to fill the seat left vacant by the resignation of Hon. Paul Leduc, registrar of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Strong Demand For Storage Eggs

Toronto — Good demand for light receipts gave further strength to fresh egg prices on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Storage eggs also moved well and there is every indication that these stocks in Canada will be cleared sooner than in former years.

Chiefly because of a heavy export movement during the last month or six weeks, storage egg stocks are in about the strongest position in years. Some storage eggs on previous contracts continue to go for export, but the price obtainable at home is now higher than the export parity and the probability of further sales is remote, says the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Notwithstanding, the department says, it is now evident that Canada will pass the 350,000 case mark in an export way in 1940, and should the price situation reach such a point, there is still opportunity for further sales of eggs for export under the British Treasury sanction, under which eggs have been going forward this fall. The British Ministry of Food will continue to be the sole purchaser of eggs in Great Britain and sales of Canadian eggs to the Ministry will continue to be made through agents of Canadian exporters located in that country, it was stated.

Buyers returned to the Toronto butter market after an absence of several days. Offerings of No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids at 30 cents a pound were easily moved and the odd sale was reported at 30 1-4 cents.

Joint Use of Airfields

These facilities at Newfoundland, Britain's "oldest Dominion", would put shore-based warships and planes on the flank of any enemy fleet which attempted to attack the United States from the North Atlantic without first reducing that stronghold.

Another disclosure made in last night's announcement was that military aircraft of both Britain and the United States would have joint use of airfields established by [illegible] governments on the Island of Jamaica. The statement said this use would be "within the limits of capacity" and that "the controlling authorities" would have the first call on the available accommodation.

The United States also was granted the right to develop resources and facilities for the Port Royal dockyard at Jamaica "under British control for the joint use of United States and British forces".

Navy spokesmen declined to elaborate on the arrangement for joint usage.

The navy's announcement indicated that the most powerful American bases were planned at Newfoundland and at Bermuda.

Sites agreed upon at Bermuda, it was said, included an area for a land plane base, a seaplane base, naval base and garrison are, and storage for explosives in small islands between St. Davis's Island and Hamilton Island along the eastern entrance to Castle Harbor.

In well informed circles it was predicted that President Roosevelt would make available funds for construction immediately from the $200,000,000 emergency defence money placed at his disposal by Congress.

SUFFER AT HANDS OF VICHY GOV'T SAYS DE GAULLE

Partisans of Free France in French West Africa Undergo 'Terrible Oppression'

PUT IN PRISON

New York, Nov. 19 (CP)—Partisans of Free France in French West Africa are suffering "terrible oppression" at the hands of the Vichy Government, Gen. Charles De Gaulle said Monday in a wireless message to Eugene J. Houndry, President of France Forever, an organization of American supporters of the Free French movement.

"The prisons of Dakar are full and Vichy is hastening the construction of new ones," said Gen. De Gaulle in a message from Brazzaville, Middle Congo, French Equatorial Africa. The leader of the Free French forces apparently went to Brazzaville after capturing Port Gentil, in the Gabon territory last week-end.

Gen. De Gaulle's message, in answer to a congratulatory cable sent by Houndry when Libreville was taken by the Free French Forces, said:—(140)

Brazzaville, Nov. 16—I am deeply touched by your telegram. Please convey my appreciation to the committee and all the members of France Forever. I have just seen Gabon being liberated. The immediate rallying of Libreville was checked by the persecutions and arrests of our adherents who had been sent to the Dakar prisons in great numbers. Contrary to the Vichy statements, not one house was destroyed nor a single civilian killed either in Libreville nor its outskirts. Port Gentil yielded without the slightest struggle and greeted us with great enthusiasm.

America should be told what terrible oppression is being suffered by the military and civilian partisans of Free France in all of French West Africa. The prisons of Dakar are full and Vichy is hastening the construction of new ones. In the ancient fortress of Goree, prisoners in large numbers are now being confined in the dungeons where formerly unruly slaves were jailed by their captors.

BACON BOARD

When the Board sells the Wiltshires to the British Food Ministry it receives under the new agreement a flat rate of $15.82 per 100 pounds for all Grade A Wiltshires and a flat rate of $15.06 for all Grade B. In the first agreement which was entered into a year ago and which expired Oct. 31, $18.01 was paid for Grade A and $17.25 for Grade B.

The Board's new price range to the packers is roughly 90 cents per 100 pounds below the prices paid since Nov. 2 after prices were cut 70 cents in anticipation that the new agreement would be at lower rates. Bacon Board officials would not estimate the effect of the new prices on live hog prices in various livestock yards and packing plants across Canada.

The live hog prices would be set by the packers, taking into consideration freight costs to Montreal, they said.

The following schedule gives the weight average under the grades and the price per 100 pounds at Canadian seaboard:

Grade A, Wiltshires.

No. 1 selection or leanest: 55-65 lbs. $16.10; 45-55 lbs. $15.90; 65-70 lbs. $15.70; 70-80 lbs. $14.70.

No. 2 selection or lean: 55-65 lbs. $15.80; 45-55 lbs. $15.50; 65-70 lbs. $15.30; 70-80 lbs. $14.30.

No. 3 selection or prime: 55-65 lbs. $15.30; 45-55 lbs. $15.10; 65-70 lbs. $14.90; 70-80 lbs. $13.90.

Grade B Wiltshires.

No. 1 selection or leanest: 55-65 lbs. $15.35; 45-55 lbs. $15.15; 65-70 lbs. $14.95; 70-80 lbs. $13.95.

No. 2 selection or lean: 55-65 lbs. $14.75; 45-55 lbs. $14.55; 65-70 lbs. $14.35; 70-80 lbs. $13.35.

No. 3 selection or prime: 55-65 lbs. $14.15; 45-55 lbs. 13.95; 65-70 lbs. $13.75; 70-80 lbs. $12.75.

Export cuts will be paid for on a schedule similarly based on the price of $16.10 for Grade A No. Sizeable Wiltshires, from 55-65 lbs., the board said.

Under normal conditions one official said there is a decided preference in the trade for "sizeable Wiltshires" or sides weighing from 44 to 65 pounds. Wiltshire sides of this weight can be processed only from hog carcasses weighing from 143 pounds to 168 pounds, or hogs weighing alive approximately 190 pounds to 224 pounds. The lighter weight Wiltshires weighing from 45 pounds to 55 pounds the processed from hog carcasses weighing from 116 pounds to 141 pounds, or hogs weighing alive approximately 155 pounds to 189 pounds.

65 to 70 pound Wiltshires are from carcasses weighing from 169 pounds to 180 pounds, or hogs weighing alive approximately 225 pounds to 240 pounds. Eighty pound Wiltshires take in hog carcasses weighing up to 205 pounds, or live hogs weighing approximately 270 pounds.

RELIGIOUS TRACT.

viduals were taken into custody and some were charged under the defence regulations after they had been questioned and others were held on vagrancy charges.

Found on Doorsteps

Many of those arrested said they had found packages of the tracts on their doorsteps and they had been so interested with the contents they had felt the urge to go out and distribute them.

The pamphlets attacked the Roman Catholic Church, saluting the flag and the American Legion. Police said they believed they had been printed in the United States.

In the Maritime Provinces there were reports from Saint John, Moncton and Woodstock, and from Charlottetown that the pamphleteers had been busy.

In Ontario activity was reported from several communities. In Toronto 10 persons were taken into custody and eight of them were released after questioning. Two men were arrested in London, two at Stratford, two at Paris and another at Windsor.

Police were also investigating complaints in Sarnia, Tillsonburg, Cobourg, Cochrane, Brantford and Simcoe.

Three men and a woman were arrested in Edmonton and charged with advocating the principles and distributing literature of an illegal organization.

No Arrests in City

Although no arrests have been made in Belleville as yet, Provincial Police today opened an investigation into the flood of religious literature, entitled "End of Nazism," which was distributed around Belleville some time early Sunday morning. In other centres throughout Ontario and eastward to the Maritime Provinces this sudden influx of religious propaganda swept down upon the populace under the cover of darkness. However reports of arrests in other centres, charging persons under the Defence of Canada Regulations, were revealed by Inspector Frank Gardner.

Reports of the pamphlets being left at the homes of citizens in all sections of Belleville were being investigated today, several copies of the literature being handed over to the Belleville and Provincial Police for investigation.

The literature is described as similar in content to that formerly circulated by the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, before that order was declared an illegal organization under the Defence of Canada Regulations.

"The pamphlets were apparently distributed in Belleville in conjunction with a door-to-door canvas that took place before daybreak on Sunday morning. 'We have several copies of this literature in our hands, but have taken no action as yet. The distributing of such literature is an offence against the Defence of Canada Regulations,' revealed Sergeant H. E. Thompson of the Provincial Police.

The pamphlets attacked the Roman Catholic Church, but saluted the flag and the American Legion.

GREEK MOUNTAIN

Even this, it was reported, failed because of counter action by Greek and British aircraft in which, the Greek High Command said today, nine Italian planes were shot down, to two Greek planes lost.

The spokesman reported that "we continue to crush successively the enemy lines" in a squeeze to cut off the Italians' road to retreat.

The Greek Communique today said "fierce fighting" continued in these operations, in which some "stubbornly defended" Italian positions were taken.

The advancing Greeks were said to have taken an unestimated number of additional prisoners and seized stores and war material including 10,000 blankets quantities of grain, 10 field guns, 33 anti-tank guns and 15 mortars.

Large Italian stores were believed to be in Koritza, where Fascist forces were said to have stocked up for months for the frustrated push intended to cut Greece in two with a drive through Phlorina to Salonika.

The communique told of fierce fighting also in the Central and Seward zones of the front, where the Greeks were reported to have taken prisoners and seized Italian supplies in raids into Albania at Erseka and Borova.

The Ministry of Home Security also told today of a Greek "motor launch" raid against one of Italy's Dodecanese Islands, fortified Fascist naval bases in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The Ministry's communique gave this account of the raid:—

"Citizens of the Dodecanese Islands living and working in Greece sailed on the night of November 17-18 with a group of Dodecanesians and others on a motor launch from a Greek anchorage and landed on a small island of the Dodecanese Islands.

"The group attacked the police post and captured the police head and three Carabinieri (policemen) with their equipment. The group further attacked a naval guard and in the fight which followed three naval guards, including the petty officer in charge, were killed.

"The raiders returned with four prisoners and equipment to the anchorage from which they sailed".

BULGARIAN KING

Might Cause Disorders.

Some observers said the public was so thoroughly opposed to war that an ultimatum to Greece might cause serious internal disorders. On the other hand, it was believed that Bulgaria, especially if a new government were formeed, might accede to any German request for passage of troops.

It is believed the present Sofia government may resign after the passage today or tomorrow of a new anti-Semitic bill, agitation for which has puzzled the tolerant Bulgarian public. The new government would be presumed to be flatly pro-Nazi.

(In Bucharest, observers noted Berlin dispatches to the Rumanian press hinting at "a final reorganization of all southeast Europe" and "a great military offensive against Greece, Egypt and Africa by Germany and Italy.")

Before calling in Prime Minister Philoff this morning, King Boris received Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff. Bulgarians did not learn the subject of their talks.

The press has revived discussion of Bulgarian claims for an outlet to the Aegean Sea, apparently in expectation of the backing of 'friends'.

A bare government announcement of Boris' trip was issued only after his return, and all it told was that he and Hitler talked together Sunday.

It was believed, however, the German Minister to Bulgaria accompanied the King. The Minister had been absent since Thursday, when he saw Premier Bogdan Philoff, who in turn, called on King Boris.

Drawing attention anew to Bulgaria's territorial aspirations, the press assured the public yesterday that the Aegean question soon would have a "peaceful, satisfactory" answer. But it did not tell how this might be achieved.

"If our friends advise us to wait longer, we will obey them because we are convinced no fruit should be picked until it is ripe," declared Deputy Sotir Yaneff in the newspaper Douma.

Must Work For Just Peace

"But we must continue to think and work for the cause of a real just peace."

European observers, even before announcement of the Boris-Hitler conference, added up the clues of the newest line of Axis diplomacy to mean an impending "squeeze" on Britain through Greece and Gibraltar, the one possibly through Bulgaria and the other through Spain.

Almost as soon as Bulgaria recovered Southern Dobruja from Rumania with Axis support last Fall, she voiced her hopes for a corridor to the Aegean at the expense of Greece.

Now, with Italy's armies suffering reverses in the Greek campaign, a corridor to the Aegean might be the inducement for Bulgaria to help or, at least, let German troops through to the aid of their allies.

Bulgaria long has been under Axis pressure through efforts of Rome and Berlin to line up the Balkans. Her only coast now is on the Black Sea.

Greece Blocks Route

Greece blocks one Axis route to the Eastern Mediterranean and, in the view of diplomatic sources in Switzerland, Hitler may be shaping an attempt to seize the "gates" of the Mediterranean with a powerful drive toward Suez coupled with a simultaneous attack through Spain against Gibraltar, Britain's rock at the western entrance.

Although neither the press nor official sources in Germany have offered even a guess on any possible new agreements reached by Germany, newspapers have been unanimous in predictions that this will be a "highly political week." One of them, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, mentioned Rumania and Spain as markers of the battlefield of the fight against Britain in the Mediterranean.

Beyond Greece, the next obstacle to an Axis push in the East is Turkey. So far a non-belligerent ally of Britain and a moral supporter of Greece, Turkey has let it be known she will fight if "vitally threatened" and that any movement of Bulgaria against her "would be considered sufficient cause for war."

DAMAGE

Hammell, 39, was doing welding work near the scene when the blast ripped through the acid arrangement section of the division, blowing out windows all over the plant and scattering glass splinters which injured many of the men on the night shift.

Windows Shattered By Blasts.

Charles Miller escaped with minor shock although he was less than 40 feet away from the two shattered buildings.

"Every window in my office was broken by the blasts," Miller said. "There was a single explosion in one building, followed immediately by the second blast. From then on, everything was confused. I saw three men running from the wreckage of one building with their clothing on fire."

He said that the two buildings were "a complete wreck" and that the roof of a warehouse was damaged.

Buildings Separated By Barricades.

"Fortunately," Miller added, "the buildings are separated by barricades built to confine the shock of any explosion to the smallest possible space. Had it not been for that, the entire plant would probably have gone up."

Campbell said there had been only one explosion.

Houses twenty miles from the scene of the blast were rocked by its force.

The second shift of workers went on the job as usual at eight o'clock this morning, and the plant management said there would be no interruption or delay in construction or production.

Three Provincial Police officers under Inspector W H. Lougheed of the Criminal Investigation Bureau arrived here to join Federal investigators and plant police in seeking the cause of the blast. The explosion was the first in an Ontario plant devoted to wartime manufacure.

Guards at the plant turned away residents of the district who rushed to the scene after the blast.

The plant sits in an enclosure four square miles in area, is producing munitions for the Allied Industries Board and the Canadian Department of Munitions and Supply. It is operated by Canadian Industries, Limited, through Defence Industries, Limited.

Buildings Described

The TNT buildings were described as about 30 feet long by 20 feet wide and 50 feet high. They were equipped with various safety devices, including a chute through which workers could make a rapid escape in case of danger.

According to those who have visited the Nobel plant, the buildings are so designed that an explosion in one of them need not set off successive blasts in the others. Each building is sand-bagged on three sides with the fourth side unprotected. This last side faces away from the other units. Should an explosion occur the unprotected side would blow out without endangering other plants.

Latest protective measures are taken, including the supplying of workmen with fresh uniforms daily so that no foreign material may be brought into the units where explosives are handled. Lead piping is used throughout and anyone going through the plant is equipped with rubber footwear.

Police Investigate Blast

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Attorney-General Conant assigned three Provincial Police officers today to investigate the explosion at the Defence Industries Limited plant at Nobel, Ont., where three men were killed and several injured.

Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the Criminal Investigation Bureau was placed in charge of the investigations, aided by Inspector Alex Wilson and Constable Ted Wright, photographic expert.

London, Ont., Nov. 19.—(CP)—James Pickles of London, Ont., killed in a munitions plant blast at Nobel, Ont., yesterday, left London only three weeks ago to work in the air industry factory. He had been employed in this city in a structural steel plant. Surviving are his widow and seven children.

POWER PREDICTS

Two Members Protest

Another angle of wartime democracy was the concern of Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (unity North Battleford) and Clarence Gillis (C.C.F. Cape Breton South), both of whom protested intensely what they claimed were unnecessary negations of practical democracy at home.

"It becomes increasingly evident that under the Defence of Canada Regulations anyone may be accused of being subversive if he speaks or acts against the powers that be in this country", Mrs. Nielsen said.

In Germany it was Jew-baiting; in Canada, red-baiting, when the aim was to discredit someone. There was no provision in the regulations however, for the subversive activities of some financial institutions and business monopolies.

Must Attack Powers of Reaction

"We should not forget the fate of France," she warned. "There were those who were guilty of the downfall of that country, those who stole her democracy and relinquished it to the dictators. . . . I think there is considerable need for the Canadian people to see a parallel of these conditions within our own boundaries. . . .

"All those who believe in democracy and are willing to defend democracy must attack the powers of reaction which are stealing the very bulwarks of our democracy. They must go after the democracy which has been taken from us. There must be freedom of speech, freedom of assembly and the right to a just trial."

In allowing 1,500 persons in Canada to be interned without the laying of any charge or without any trial, Canadians were allowing one of the fundamentals of democracy itself to be nullified, Mrs. Nielsen contended.

The only woman members of the House of Commons said the first line of defence of Canadian democracy was "here and now." While some of the defence regulations were designed to protect Canada against enemy aliens, others were "more calculated to defend from the just criticism of its own people a government which during the last session took to itself almost dictatorial powers."

Blames Police

She said Provincial Police in Saskatchewan had been looking for a pamphlet she had published. The pamphlet consisted mainly of condemnations of her speeches in the Commons. This police action was an example of the way the regulations could be mis-applied.

"If democracy is going to live in Canada then you as members of the House of Commons have the right with me to ask why the voice of one member of the House should be stilled," Mrs. Nielsen said.

Mr. Gillis charged that "the machinery of the state and war regulations are being used to thwart labor organizations and to arrest trade union members." Under the Defence of Canada Regulations "it would appear that everything possible is being done for the protection of those exploiting industry for profit."

Claims "Hitler Tactics" Applied

He claimed "Hitler tactics" were being employed by the Chrysler plant in Windsor, Ont., and by the mining companies at Kirkland Lake, Ont., and that General Motors at Oshawa, Ont., were being given special protection under the Defence Regulations by order-in-council.

Merely to talk about the right of workers to organize, freedom of discussion and enforcement of social legislation, was "not good enough" if the masses of this country were expected to produce the sinews of war and fight this war, he asserted.

The bringing back from England of part of the Canadian officers and men trained now on Active Service there was advised by Alan Chambers (Lib. Nanaimo) as a means of giving troops in Canada the value of experience gained in Britain.

Air Minister Power told the House Canada would have a second fighter squadron in the United Kingdom shortly, as a result of the flow of trained men from the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Commonwealth Air Training plan. No. 112 Army Co-operation Squadron, now in the Untied Kingdom, would become a fighter squadron.

He told the House that Canada would have spent $95,000,000 on the Commonwealth scheme by March 31 next and expenditures during the next year would be much heavier; that the United Kingdom was spending $20,000,000 in Canada on training establishments of her own; that 103 of the projected 104 training schools under Commonwealth plan would be in operation June 30, 1941, six months ahead of schedule, and that adequate training planes would be available unless something unforeseen happens

While it has long been known that the original financial set-up called for expenditure of $600,000,000 on the whole scheme, of which Canada's share was to be $350,000,000, the Minister states that "both Canada's proportion and the aggregate amount will be greatly exceeded before we are through."

The people of Canada insufficiently realized the "enormous responsibility" Canada had to bear in this war. Eventual victory would follow air supremacy and in attaining this Canada was Britain's "mainstay and right arm."

When he declared the Commonwealth Training scheme would be "far more successful" than first anticipated, he assured the House he was not handing them any soothing syrup.

He described in some detail the Training School set-up. Elementary flying and observer schools were operated by civilians. The Air Force was endeavoring to train all its own mechanics and this year recruited 1,500 from the Youth Training scheme, technical schools and the training school at St. Thomas, Ont. Next year 6,000 would be produced from the same sources without disturbing industry.

BOASTS LARGEST SUB FLEET

Moscow, —(AP) — Soviet Russia claimed today to have the largest submarine fleet in the world.

The assertion was made in the government newspaper Izvestia but no figures were given.

"Our submarines are not inferior to the world's best models," Izvestia said. "No doubt our submarines will be able to deal with any enemy who dares attack our Socialist Fatherland".

COULDN'T SLEEP COULDN'T WORK

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning — never comfortable. Half awake days —over-tired, driving body and mind to work when they needed rest. "Try Dodd's Kidney Pills," said a friend — "it may be your kidneys". I'm glad I followed his advice as now I'm sleeping like a top—thanks to 111

SEEN WITH WIFE AT FERRY DOCKS

Toronto Constable, John Agnew, Gives Evidence in Murder Charge Against H. A. Newall

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP)—Evidence that Aircraftman Hugh Alexander Newall, 27, facing a charge of wife-murder, was seen with his wife, 22-year-old Aune, at the Toronto ferry docks waiting for a Toronto Island ferry last Sept. 29th, a week before his wife's strangled body was found in an isolated part of the Island, was before the Court here today as Newall's preliminary hearing entered its second day.

Constable John Agnew of Toronto Police, testified yesterday he had seen Newall and remembered him because he had mistaken him for an old acquaintance because of the Air Force uniform.

Previously Miss Orwakki Hakamies, Finnish woman with whom Aune lived, testified she had not seen Mrs. Newall after she left with Newall for dinner Sept. 29th.

Agnew testified that some days after the finding of the body he had picked Newall out of a line-up of 12 men in Royal Canadian Air Force uniform at Police Headquarters and named him as the man he had seen on the ferry docks. He said under cross-examination he had seen Newall's picture in newspapers previously.

Taken to Island

The constable told the Court he had been taken to an out-of-the-way part of Toronto Island Oct. 6, by Harry Meon, City Parks employee, and first had noticed a woman's shoe.

"About eight paces away from the shoe there was a lot of grass piled up and a dark object looking like a coat beneath it. I lifted it up and saw a woman's bare foot. It was bent backwards. I lifted up the other end of the coat and found the woman's head. There was blood about the mouth and eyes and the face was very swollen."

Agnew said he also found a pink garter, a stocking and other personal articles near the body. Three days later he found a compact and lipstick in a nearby lagoon.

Five Lake Freighters Take Shelter After Warnings Hoisted

Point Traverse, Nov. 19—Hoisted storm warnings and dropping barometers, sent five unidentified lake freighters scurrying for shelter off here Monday, out of a westerly gale that at times reached great velocity.

The freighter Aragon, the vessel that many years ago went ashore on the Salmon Point reef, is riding at anchor in South Bay out of the high winds. The ship put in there Saturday night out of a blinding snowstorm.

A few heavily laden freighters proceeded on toward their destinations, despite great seas that are running on the lake.

Duck islands fog alarms were galvanized into action by intermittent snow flurries, that at times placed visibility over the lake at a minimum.

Warned of impending strong winds, commercial fishermen here, had their whitefish nets removed from shoal waters before the height of the gale.

Tudor and Cashel Reeve Loses Car

Bancroft, Nov. 19 (Special)—James Sprackett, reeve of Tudor and Cashel, and a resident of Gilmour, had his motor car, a sedan, stolen early this morning. Mr. Sprackett had used the car until a few minutes after midnight and left it in front of his gate as he is accustomed to do. When Mr. Sprackett arose this morning the theft of the car was noticed.

During the night the schoolhouse nearby had been entered, one of the windows being forced open and the lock on the door broken. Apparently the intruder or intruders had used the schoolroom as several chairs and an organ stool had been distributed.

A note in chalk was found on the blackboard: "Thanks very much, teacher, for the chairs," and there were two signatures, "H.R." and "R.O."

Jap Warships and Transports Are Reported Off Saigon River

Hong Kong, Nov. 19—(CP)—A dispatch from French Indo-China to the China Mail today reported that Japanese warships and transports had appeared off the Saigon River, the approach to Saigon, Indo-China's chief port.

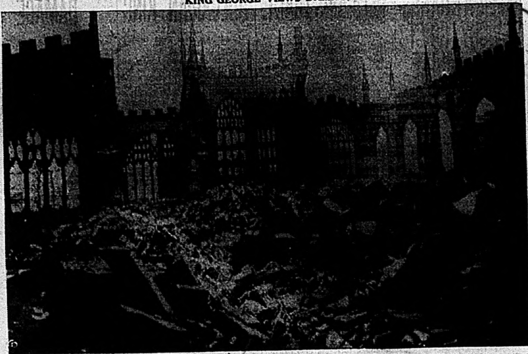
This was said to coincide with renewed Japanese pressure for permission to land troops at Saigon. Such demands have been reported made to Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor-General of Indo-China, who referred them to Vichy. Japanese military leaders were said to have shown impatience over the delay in Vichy's reply.

ST JAMES CHURCH HIT

London, Nov. 19 — (CP) — St. James Church in Piccadilly was struck by a bomb in a recent raid, it was disclosed today.

(The St. James referred to is a Roman Catholic Church built in 1890 to replace the old Spanish Embassy Chapel.)

KING GEORGE VIEWS DAMAGE INFLICTED BY NAZI RAIDERS ON COVENTRY



This is all that was left of historic St. Michael's cathedral in Coventry after German raiders had rained bombs upon the historic city. Dating back to the 14th century and of pure Gothic architecture, the famous cathedral was crumbled on all sides and only its 303-foot spire still stands to defy German raiders.

Only the charred framework remains of this bus, caught in the storm of bombs that German raiders loosed on Coventry, historic English Midlands city, in "revenge" for the R.A.F. attacks on Munich during the beer cellar putsch celebration.

VIENNA SCENE OF CONFERENCE

Hungary's Premier and Foreign Minister Will Meet Von Ribbentrop and Ciano on Wednesday

Budapest, Nov. 19 (AP)—Hungary's premier and foreign minister, Count Pal Teleky and Count Istvan Csaky, will go to Vienna tomorrow to confer with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano, it was offically announced today.

The Vienna conference was assumed to be a follow up of the conferences Hitler has held in recent days with leaders of Bulgaria, Spain and Italy.

Hungarian officials, however, declined to discuss its purposes.

Berlin, Nov. 19 (AP)—Hungary is next on the list for Axis discussions, the German news agency said today, following Hitler's series of conferences this week with Italian, Spanish and Bulgarian leaders.

The German and Italian foreign ministers, Ribbentrop and Ciano, the agency said, left Berchtesgaden today for Vienna, to which Germany has invited Hungarian Premier Teleky and Foreign Minister Csaky. The Hungarians are due here tomorrow.

Yesterday Ribbentrop and Ciano joined Hitler in a meeting with Serrano Suner, Spanish foreign minister who was said to have left Salsburg this morning on his way back to Spain.

First of the Fuehrer's callers, it was said meanwhile, was King Boris of Bulgaria. As with yesterday's talks at the Fuehrer's Berchtesgaden retreat, there was no inkling of what was discussed.

Next to come, it advertised, will be General Ion Antonescue, dictator of Rumania's Iron Guard, pro-Nazi government.

Belleville Car Crashes into Tree Near C.P.R. Crossing

Three people were injured shortly after three o'clock this afternoon when a car driven by Gordon Sanford, Belleville, is said to have gone out of control and crashed into a tree near the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing two miles west of the city on Highway No. 2.

According to information received from the scene of the accident the Sanford car is badly smashed. The injured people are Mr. and Mrs. A. Brock and a Mrs. Blanchard, Shannonville, who were en route to Oshawa to visit a sick relative.

Mrs. Walter Thornton, residing near the scene of the accident, gave the injured people first aid after they were taken from the car to her home. The injuries sustained were mainly from flying glass. All the occupants of the car suffered bruises.

Problem of Night Air Raids "Very Far From Being Solved"

London, Nov. 19—(CP)—Air Marshal Sir Philip Joubert declared today the problem of night air raids on London was "very far from being solved," although the government is "doing its damnedest to find an answer."

"We are hopeful," he said.

At the same time, the Evening News reported a new method of combatting night raiders already was being tried out successfully on a "small scale."

"It is known that points where the new device has been tried," the News said, "have been marked down by the Germans as 'hot spots' to be avoided."

Japan Can Have Peace by Withdrawing Says Dr. Kung

Chungking, China, Nov. 19—(AP) Dr. H. H. Kung, China's Vice-Premier and Finance Minister, declared today "Japan can have peace anytime she wants it by withdrawing all troops from China."

"The Japanese Government probably would like to talk with Chungking, but China is not interested in words but deeds," Dr. Kung said in commenting on unofficial Tokyo reports that Japan would seek by direct negotiations with Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek to end the 40-month-old war.

Time Not Ready For Declaration Of War Aims

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill, asked for a statement of objectives which would make it clear that Great Britain "is striving for a new and better order in Europe," replied in the House of Commons today that "the time has not come when official declaration should be made of the war aims."

Italian Prisoners Say Morale Low

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 19 (AP)—Expecting victory over Greece in two or three days, the Italian Army found handicaps in its motor equipment and low morale as well as the strength of Greek resistance, wounded Italian officers said today.

Asked about the spirit of the troops, Sub-Lieut. Luigi Romano, former law student of the University of Bari, shrugged his shoulders and then leaned over to the floor.

"It is that low," he said.

Captured with sixty of his men, Capt. Alfred Marcone, a First Great War veteran and professional soldier, said the Italians discovered that they could not operate motorized units successfully in the mountains of Albania and Greece and reverted to last-war infantry and artillery tactics.

Captain Marcone said: "My company left Rome Oct. 31. Seven days later I was shot in one leg and captured with sixty of my men at Molesti.

"Italy thought the war would be a matter of two or three days' easy victory," he declared.

Both he and Lieutenant Romano praised the driving power of the Greek infantry.

Leuna Synthetic Oil Works Bombed by RAF

London, Nov. 19.—(CP)—British bombers attacked the German Synthetic Oil works at Leuna near Leipzig, last night, an Air Ministry Communique said today.

Several large fires were started particularly in the northern portion of the target area, the communique said. It described results as "good".

All British planes returned safely.

POPULATION U.S. AND TERRITORIES NOW 150,362,326

Washington, Nov. 19—(AP)—The census bureau today placed the total population of the United States, its territories and possessions at 150,362,326.

This represented an increase of 11,923,257 or 8.6 per cent over the 1930 census, on the basis of preliminary figures.

The population in the territories and possessions, the bureau reported, had increased three times as rapidly during the past decade as it had on the mainland.

The continental United States population previously had been placed at 131,409,881, an increase of seven per cent.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The Axis continued today to exhibit extraordinary caution in an apparent effort to overcome its setbacks in the battle of Britain and the invasion of Greece.

In the last three days the German and Italian High Commands have conferred at Innsbruck, in what used to be called Austria, the Italian, Spanish and German Foreign Ministers have conferred at Berchtesgaden, King Boris of Bulgaria has seen Hitler and Hungarian ministers now are due to see the Germans at Vienna.

Previously the Axis partners interviewed diplomatic chiefs of Russia, France and Rumania in a fairly obvious attempt to insure non-resistance from those countries for whatever they may be planning to hatch next.

The visit of Boris was perhaps the most interesting of the lot. The locomotive-loving monarch of Bulgaria apparently went to Hitler, whether at the German Fuehrer's summons or to protest something was not clear. Bulgaria, however, is considered the natural highway for German troops to go to the help of their hard-pressed Italian confederates.

Travel conditions in Yugoslavia, the other possible road from Rumania to Greece—thousands of German troops have been in Rumania for weeks—apparently are considered too difficult, or the Yugoslavs are too obdurate, for an easy passage.

Not Prepared

Boris, who seldom got into the news even in peacetime unless he drove a train or pushed a baby carriage, did little better in today's news which contained no more than the barest announcement of his visit to Germany.

The need for Axis caution was most apparent in the Grecian war where Italy, trying desperately to stem a Greek counter-invasion of Albania, was meeting with repeated reverses.

Many have said these reverses were due in the main to the poor fighting quality of the Italian soldier, but a lot of the responsbility in the long run must be placed on the shoulders of the Italian High Command.

Italy appears to have gone into Albania which she conquered in a walkover last year with the intention of waging a mechanical war on Greece. The difficulty of the terrain does not seem to have impressed the Italian High Command sufficiently and its troops seem not to have been properly trained for mountain fighting.

After the first few days of their invasion of Greece they have met with consistent defeats, have lost a vast amount of material, a large number of killed and wounded, and a considerable number of prisoners.

Hertzog Deserts Malan Party

London, Nov. 19.— (CP Cable)—The sudden decision of Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog to withdraw his support from Dr. D. F. Malan and the Extreme Republicans who preach independence was described in South African circles here today as bound to assist Prime Minister Jan Smuts directing the country's war effort.

Dispatches from South Africa report speculation whether the former Prime Minister, whose policy of non-belligerency was rejected by parliament at the outbreak of the war, will attempt to form a new party. Such a step would strengthen the government's hand by splitting the Opposition.

Like the late Neville Chamberlain, Gen. Hertzog hoped for peace in Europe. His immediate reaction to the outbreak of hostilities was to seek means of keeping the country from the storm. He offered neutrality, but South Africans followed the internationally minded Gen. Smuts.

Frustrated, Gen. Hertzog forsook Gen. Smuts and joined Dr. Malan, in whom he believed he recognized himself when young. However, a brief period of co-operation with Malan disillusioned him, especially as he saw the Axis armies violating frontier after frontier and threatening the northern territories of Africa itself.

"All that can be said of Hertzog at the moment", said one South African authority, "is that he has been big enough to change his mind after giving the war problems a second thought".

Gen. Hertzog has advised his supporters to back the Smuts candidate in a by-election in Winburg, Orange Free State. However, it is not believed that this is a clear indication of full friendship with Gen. Smuts, with whom he governed jointly for six years after what seemed an implacable enmity sustained for a quarter century.

The gap between them is regarded as only one of political subtleties —the fact was made clearer in a recent Smithfield speech when he warned Germany would not do more to safeguard South African independence than any other country. That seemingly shows that Gen. Hertzog has no illusions about a Hitler overlordship.

LEOPOLD MAY HAVE BEEN VISITOR

Berlin, Nov. 19 (AP)—Reports were current in Berlin today that King Leopold of the Belgians was among those who visited Hitler in the past few days at Berchtesgaden in the Bavarian Alps.

Authorized sources said they had no "instructions" about such a visit, but did not flatly deny it. Leopold has been a virtual prisoner at his castle in Belgium since the capitulation of his kingdom to the invading Nazis last spring.

Survivor Tells Graphic Story Of Gallant Fight by the Jervis Bay

Saint John, N.B., Nov. 19 —(CP)—A graphic description of the battle waged by the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay against a German surface raider, which attacked a convoy in mid-Atlantic on Nov. 5, was given today by Paymaster-Lt. J. G. Sargeant, one of the survivors of the merchant cruiser.

Sargent, who is in Saint John visiting friends, revealed that the Jervis Bay, from her position in the convoy, sighted the enemy raider at a very great distance astern and immediately challenged the raider by signalling it. The raider retaliated by opening fire at extreme range, with the first salvo missing its mark.

"By this time," said Sargeant, "we were aware that this was an enemy warship of greatly superior armament, and we realized that, in engaging the ship, we had very little chance of surviving the action."

Sargeant said that the Jervis Bay disregarded this fact, however, because it was realized that the armed merchant cruiser was in such a position that by turning towards the enemy a good smoke screen could be given the convoy. Sargeant said that the Jervis Bay could, at the same time, join battle with the raider.

"We got up steam and sped ahead of the convoy. Then, turning to port, we made a full turn and headed, full speed, bows on towards the enemy with our guns blazing. By this manoeupvre we were given the opportunity of laying an effective smoke screen to shelter the convoy.

Ships Scattered

"By a pre-arranged signal, the ships of the convoy were scattering. Due to the fact that the H.M.S. Jervis Bay was rapidly closing the enemy, the sea raider was compelled to concentrate her fire on us. The convoy was given a valuable 60 minutes in which to get well clear of the enemy warship.

"Our guns were blazing continually but the greater gun power of the enemy was concentrated upon the bridge and fore-control of our ship, and this section of the ship suffered great damage. Some of our guns suffered direct hits.

"Within 15 minutes of the commencement of the fight, the H.M.S. Jervis Bay was crippled when the engines were stopped by a direct hit. Thereafter, in an effort to sink the ship, the enemy concentrated 45 minutes of pounding heavy 11-inch shells into our vessel, before going in pursuit of the helpless convoy.

"The ship was smashed and blown to blazes. My own post, which was in the fire control (located approximately amidships), was struck shortly after the engagement started. I missed death by a second." He had just stepped out of his cabin when a shell struck the post.

When the ship was sinking he succeeded in getting on a raft, and after more than nine hours was picked up by the freighter that brought the survivors to an East Coast Canadian port.

Lt. Sargeant paid tribute to the "brilliant and daring piece of work" by Captain Fogarty Fegen, who went down with the Jervis Bay.

Rescued After 3 Days

An East Coast Canadian Port, (CP)—Their merchant ship sunk by the enemy raider which sank the gallant Jervis Bay, 12 British seamen are recovering from exposure in this port today after a harrowing spell at sea in an open boat.

The men were picked up at sea by a Greek freighter after three days and four nights in an open lifeboat bobbing on a choppy Atlantic. Their ship was ablaze from stem to stern and sinking when they took to the boat and hoisted "a rag of a sail and headed for England."

Two of the seamen, a Scot from Aberdeen and a Dover man, were wounded and are in hospital here. The others—aside from the effects of the exposure—are ready for sea again.

An Ottawa man, Ordinary Seaman Douglas O'Reilly, and Purser E. A. Warburn, a native of Halifax, were members of the group. Warburn has been following the sea for twenty years and calls Wales his home, while O'Reilly joined the merchant navy in London. He was making his second voyage across the Atlantic.

The men said they were given the best of treatment aboard the Greek freighter. The freighter left the other side as a neutral commerce ship. She arrived here with her national flag painted out and an ally of Britain. War broke out between Greece and Italy while the ship was at sea.

Helpless Ship Shelled

Retelling the story of how the raider preyed on the convoy, the survivors said they sighted the enemy five or six miles away but he did not open fire immediately. The survivors did not see the battle between the Jervis Bay and the raider Beza cause of a smoke screen laid down by the British armed merchant cruiser, but it was apparently at that moment the Jervis Bay closed in for her suicide fight. Her action enabled the convoy to scatter and 34 of the 38 ships escaped.

When the raider turned her attention to the survivors' ship, it was dark. Blinded by the glare of powerful searchlights, they were forced to stand by helplessly while their ship was raked with shells. Fire raged aboard and there was nothing to do but abandon her.

The survivors landed here included the Captain, the Second Officer, the Radio Officer and the Purser. The rest of the crew took to another boat and it is believed they were picked up.

There was no doctor aboard the Greek ship to aid the survivors but a passing vessel was hailed and her doctor treated the wounded pair. The first officer of the Greek merchantman treated the men for the duration of the voyage.

GREECE APPEALS TO 'FREE' PEOPLES TO GIVE HELP

Asks Them to Aid Her Against Italy and Not to be Misled by Current Greek Successes

SEEK SUPPLIES IN U.S.

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The Greek government has appealed directly to the United States government for permission to purchase aviation and other military supplies.

This was made known today by Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, who said the Greek government had been assured that the appeal would receive a most sympathetic response.

Welles said the matter had been referred to other government departments for consideration.

The appeal, he added, was made both through the United States Legation in Athens and the Greek Legation in Washington.

Appeal to 'Free Countries'

Athens, Nov. 19 (AP)—Greece appealed to the "free countries" of the world today to help her against Italy, with the declaration by Theo Nicoloudis, press minister, that they should not be misled by current Greek successes in the field.

He appealed especially to Britain and the United States, in a talk with foreign newspaper correspondents, to send the greatest possible number of planes and compared Greece's present situation with that of Finland in the struggle with Russia a year ago.

"Despite our epic victories, despite our unshakeable faith in our cause which is blessed by God, we appeal with all our force to public opinion of our Allies and of foreigners while there is still time so that aerial support given Greece may be extended without delay."

The Greeks, he continued, are fighting an enemy six times greater in war materials. In the Koritza area, he declared, the Italians are using 400 planes.

STORM HOLDS UP NAZI RAIDERS

London Has Four Night Air Raid Alarms But No Bombings

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Nazi raids against Britain fell off sharply last night and early today as storm winds howled, and London, which had four alarms, reported no bombings at all.

Liverpool was attacked, as were one section in the Midlands and some south coast communities, but a communique today declared "in all these areas damage was slight and the number of casualties small."

Authoritative sources said a "small force" of R.A.F. bombers fought its way through the storm and attacked "an oil target in central Germany."

Visibility at Minimum

This morning a southwest wind had smoothed out the sea in the Strait of Dover, but a sea mist, heavy clouds and rain cut visibility to a minimum.

The night alarms kept Londoners in their shelters, even though no bomb explosions were heard. The high wind drowned the sound of the raiders' motors, and only occasional bursts of anti-aircraft fire were heard.

Raiders also were reported to have been over southwestern England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Meanwhile, from the far fronts of the war, the Air Ministry and Admiralty reported new blows at Britain's foes.

Italian Somaliland Ports Shelled

The Admiralty said last night that light naval units, such as were said to have bombarded the Somaliland port of Mogadiscio over the week-end, shelled Dante, a second Somaliland port, damaging oil tanks and coastal and anti-aircraft batteries.

The Air Ministry said R.A.F. bombers raided Elbasani, an Italian base on the Albanian coast, hitting military supplies.

CO-OPERATE IN BAN ON EXPORTS TO JAPAN

London, Nov. 19 (CP)—Britain is co-operating with the United States in banning exports of aviation gasoline and scrap iron to Japan, Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today.

"We ourselves are not exporting any of these commodities," Mr. Butler said.

He reiterated that Britain and the United States are in close consultation on "all matters affecting supplies . . . To ensure the greatest practicable uniformly of action."

BARGE FLEETS GIVEN PERMISSION TO SAIL AFTER CLOSING DATE

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 19 —(AP)—Five barge fleets in Buffalo have received permission from the State Public Works Department to sail down the State Barge Canal after the closing date, partly because Great Lakes storms delayed arrival of cargoes to be transferred here.

The canal was officially closed to wooden vessels at midnight, and will be closed to steel vessels Nov. 25. Nearly 50,000 tons of cargo were shipped eastward from Buffalo via the canal last week.

Probabilities

Strong southwest to northwest winds; cloudy with light scattered showers; somewhat cooler tonight. Thursday—Moderate to fresh winds; partly cloudy and a little cooler.

RAF Bombers Blast Great Skoda Armament Plant

Fourteen Towns Bear Brunt of Nine-Hour Raid

Five Nazi Bombers Shot Down According To Earliest Reports

London, Nov. 20 (CP).—The midlands dug themselves out today from the debris left by bombs from hundreds of German raiders which carried out a nine-hour attack last night in an evident effort to duplicate the devastation of Coventry.

(The German high command claimed that more than 1,000,000 pounds of bombs were dropped on Birmingham.)

Reports reaching London from one of the hardest hit of some half dozen raided industrial areas said that in the first hours there was no respite from the continuous fall of bombs and crash of anti-aircraft guns. Fires lit up the sky until it was almost as bright as day.

Considering the country as a whole, observers said the raid was likely to prove as heavy, if not heavier, than any attack yet made on Britain.

Planes Operate Lower Than Usual.

Casualties were expected to be comparatively heavy, particularly in two towns. Official descriptions of the damage were confined to statements that it was extensive.

Many raiding planes operated lower than usual. Some 250 concentrated their attack on half a dozen Midland areas. The rest operated in smaller groups or as lone raiders over other districts, apparently to distract the attention of the defenders.

The flag-draped coffins of 172 victims of last Thursday night's raid on Coventry, twenty miles from Birmingham, were buried in a common grave as Spitfires gave chase to a lone raider.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Rainy day. One region is counted wetter than another, not if it has more rainy or snowy days, but if it has in the aggregate more precipitation. Places noted for the large number of rainy days are parts of Chili near the Straits of Magellan, where it rains nearly every day, and parts of Ireland, with 275 rainy days a year. On the extreme northwest coast of the United States and the west coast of Canada rain falls on about 180 days a year. But these places are not the rainiest places. A rainy or a snowy day is defined as one when one-hundredth of an inch of moisture falls.

HEADQUARTERS STAFF OF RCAF REORGANIZED

Air Commodore Johnson Appointed to Newly-Created Post of Deputy Chief of Air Staff

TWO NEW DIVISIONS

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP)—Air Minister Power Tuesday announced an extensive reorganization of Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters—a move intended to decentralize administration of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

The change creates a new post of deputy chief of the air staff, which goes to Air Commodore G. O. Johnson, former member of the air council for organization and training.

A reallocation of duties also adds two new divisions to headquarters and necessitates two additional members of the air council. Air Commodore Robert Leckie becomes member of the air council for training and Group Capt. S. C. Tackaberry, member for supply.

The decentralization of administration is done by reallocating the duties of the air member for organization and training and the air member for engineering and supply.

Duties to be Divided

Organization now will be the responsibility of the deputy chief of air staff while all training activities will be under Air Commodore Leckie, the new member for training. Air Vice-Marshal E. W. Stedman, former member for engineering and supply, will concentrate on engineering and the supply duties will be performed by Group Captain Tackaberry.

Accommodation at Ottawa so Scarce That One Newcomer Lives in Hospital

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP). — It's so hard to find a place to live in wartime Ottawa that one newcomer who isn't sick is living in a hospital.

He is Andy Clarke, former Toronto newspaperman now attached to the Department of Public Information. "They fixed up the hospital office to make a room and it's a pretty good room too," he explained today.

The Y.M.C.A. gymnasium has been turned into a dormitory to help handle the big population increase caused by expansion of most government departments during the past year. "We've been full ever since the war started," an official said, and every week-end we have to turn away as many as thirty."

Newspaper advertisements aren't much help to the room or apartment-seeker, either. More advertisements are inserted by people looking for a home than by people with places to rent, and the demand is so great one advertiser specified he was looking for a "member of parliament or business executive" to rent the single room he offered.

Latest move to help solve the situation was made by the Ottawa Property Owners' Association. It asked owners of large private homes to take in paying guests and more than forty have expressed willingness to help.

Just the same, one of the city's biggest real estate operators is anything but hopeful.

"The situation is getting worse instead of better," he said. "More people keep coming to Ottawa and there hasn't been much building going on. Houses and apartments that are built are rented before they're even completed."

Mayor Stanley Lewis more or less agrees with him. "Everybody knows how hard it's been to get a place to live," he said, "and the prospects certainly aren't improving."

GREEKS LAUNCH BAYONET CHARGES NEAR KORITZA

Counter - Attacking Greeks Drive Deeper Into Albania in Effort to Take Important Base

Casualties in Both Armies Has Been Heavy According to Communiques

Athens, Nov. 20—(AP) — Mass bayonet charges and fierce hand-to-hand fighting have carried counter-attacking Greek troops deeper into Albania in the battle for important Koritza, the Greek High Command declared today.

Italian resistance apparently was stiffened by reinforcements and the machine-gunning and dive-bombing of Greek front line troops.

Chicagoan Must Contribute Blood In Lieu of Alimony

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—Thomas Donohue, 42, must contribute blood in lieu of alimony under the terms of a divorce agreement.

The unusual pact was approved by Judge Joseph Sabath who said yesterday that it would be made part of o divorce decree to be issued Nov. 29.

Mrs. Anna Donohue brought suit for divorce, charging her husband with chronic drunkenness. Her Attorney, Charles Gradman, asked Judge Sabath to order temporary alimony paid at once because Mrs. Donohue was ill and needed a blood transfusion.

Judge Sabath, perhaps the nation's most divorce court jurist, turned to Donohue and said:

"You are a big, strapping fellow. Why don't you be the donor for your wife's transfusion? Besides, it might bring you two together again."

"It would bring them together in body, but not in spirit," commented Attorney Gradman.

"And speaking of spirits," interjected Mrs. Donohue, "I don't want any of his alcoholic transfusions."

Under the agreement subsequently reached, Mrs. Donohue will undergo a transfusion at the Cook County Hospital, drawing on the blood reserves there. Donohue then must donate blood to the hospital "blood bank."

One of Five Airmen Lost After Abandoning Bomber is Found Alive

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP).—One of five airmen, missing after they abandoned their Royal Canadian Air Force bomber by parachute near East Lake, Que., last Saturday night has been located, the Air Ministry announced today.

The Air Force statement said only that the airman had been located from the air in the vicinity of East Lake, roughly 100 miles northeast of Quebec City.

The man was not identified but emergency rations were dropped to him.

Previously the Air Ministry had listed the following as missing from the Atlantic coastal patrol bomber that presumably was abandoned when its gas supply was exhausted:

Flt. Lt. G. F. Clay, New Westminster, B.C.; FO. J. G. Richardson, Saskatoon; Lac. H. E. Howard, Aylesford, N.S.; Lac. E. J. Benoit, Ottawa; and Ac. Elmer Johnson, Winnipeg.

One Rescued Directs Search.

Fo. U. J. H. Leblanc, first to leave the plane, landed near a lumber camp and reported the accident last Sunday. Since then he has been directing the search in the rugged East Lake country.

The Air Force statement issued today said:

"One of the missing airmen has been located from the air half a mile north of the (International) border in the vicinity of East Lake and emergency rations were immediately dropped to him.

"A ground party has been sent in to bring him out."

The Air Force said the weather conditions reported from the area today indicated low clouds and a slight drizzle, "notwithstanding which the search is being pressed with vigor both from the air and ground."

Bad weather prevented the plane from landing at its regular base on the east coast. It was ordered to head inland and although it has not been officially announced it was presumed the machine was out of gas when abandoned by its crew.

U.S. Bombers Assist.

St. Hubert, Que., Nov. 20 (CP).—Nine United States army bombers landed at nearby St. Hubert airport today to take part in the search for the five Royal Canadian Air Force fliers missing in the remote district of East Lake, Que.

The bombers, manned by crews of four or five each, were tied down soon after they reached the airfield and an official said this indicated they would not take off today to join in the search. The ceiling was low in this district and a steady drizzle of rain was falling.

SOCIAL SECURITY SHOULD BE MAIN MOTIVE—BEVIN

British Labor Minister Says Whole Economic Life Should be Devoted to Security for Community as Whole

'NEW FOUNDATIONS'

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 20 (CP). — Ernest Bevin, Minister of Labor, told a gathering of London Rotarians today that his aim is social security.

In the first public declaration by a cabinet minister on his aspect of war objectives, he asserted that at the end of the war, "and indeed during it," social security should be "the main motive of our natural life."

"Begin now," he urged. "That doesn't mean that all profit and surpluses must be wiped out, but it means that the whole economic life shall be devoted to give security, not to a small middle class but to the community as a whole."

Germans 'Pinched' All They Could In Rumania

London, Nov. 20 (CP)—German troops "have pinched as much as they can" of material supplied to Rumania by Great Britain, the House of Commons was informed today by Richard Butler Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

The British Minister, Sir Reginald Hoare, will remain in Bucharest "to protect certain British interests," Mr. Butler said.

His statemen concerning the German troops, who entered Rumania ostensibly to protect her oil fields and frontiers, was made in response to a question by Goeffrey Mander, Liberal.

U. S. MINISTER ORDERED BACK TO VICHY, FRANCE

Officials Believe Marshal Petain Showing Disposition to Go Slow With Axis Powers

REASONS GIVEN

By J. C. STARK

Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 20 —(AP)— Relations between the United States and France entered an apparently new phase today, coincident with the increasing reports that Marshal Petain was showing a disposition to go slow in collaborating with the Axis powers.

First tangible sign of a possible change was the fact that Robert D. Murphy, a veteran of 10 years diplomatic service in France before and during the war, was ordered back to Vichy to take up the duties of Charge D'Affaires. Murphy, formerly counselor at the Paris embassy, has been in this country for several months.

SYNTHETIC OIL PLANTS BOMBED BY BRITISH FLIERS

Shipyards and Docks at Kiel, Hamburg and Bremerhaven Blasted by Bombs

BERLIN OBJECTIVES

9 Italian Planes Shot Down by R.A.F. in Greece Without British Loss

London, Nov. 20 —(CP)— British bombers raided the great Skoda armaments works at Pilsen, Bohemia, last night the Air Ministry announced today.

It was the second time British bombers have been over Pilsen, in old Czechoslovakia.

Munitions stores and other objectives in Berlin also were bombed. Other aircraft attacked shipyards and docks at Kiel, Hamburg and Bremerhaven, causing fires and explosions.

"Among industrial targets attacked with good results were the synethetic oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Hamburg and an important electric power station at Hamburg," the announcement said.

Railway yards and junctions at Bremen, Berlin and Aurich, the inland port of Duisberg-Ruhrort, the naval base at Lorient and the harbor of Harfleur were other targets.

Three R.A.F. craft were lost.

It was also announced that R.A.F. fighter planes in Greece shot down nine Italian planes yesterday without any British losses.

Baby Left to Die Found Alive on Step Of Funeral Home

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20 (AP)—A 12-hour old baby left to die by a woman who described herself as "a broken-hearted little mother" was found alive today on the doorstep of a funeral home.

The infant lay in a green tin took box. With her was a pencilled note that read:

"In God's name, please bury my poor little daughter. I do not have the money to do so and I cannot afford to raise her. God will not want her to live without a home."

It was signed, "a broken-hearted little mother."

The baby, chilled from exposure, was rushed to a hospital where oxygen was administered.

France's War-Wounded Make Pitiful Picture as They Return From Germany

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ, Jr.

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Geneva, Nov. 20 (AP).—On the scuffed plush seats of second-class railway coaches, a melancholy caravan of France's war-wounded passed through Geneva today, bound from German prison hospitals to their conquered homeland.

There were 630 of them, the legless, the armless, the sightless and the sick, but they lifted a thin hail, "Vive La France!" and again, "Vive La Suisse!" as Swiss relief organizations fed and comforted them.

There were tears in many an eye and some of the men wrecked by war stretched in silent wretchedness on the coach seats.

It was the fifth trainload of wounded and sick French soldiers released by the Germans to be routed home through Switzerland in the care of the Red Cross and the Swiss army. Four thousand men now have returned to France but thousands more remain to be repatriated.

In the dimlit Geneva station, in the chill of pre-dawn, there were such tableaux as these:

A young soldier, hopping one-legged, to take a sandwich from a pretty Red Cross girl while he adjusted the beret marking him as of the Chausseurs Alpin, famed mountain unit.

A priest, still wearing the union of an army chaplain, standing at a train window, thumbing a well-worn prayerbook, his face half-smiling as his sightless eyes turned toward the blank wall of the station.

A poignant pause in the journey home. But, for all their sorrows they were glad to be getting home.

They did not talk politics. Neutral Switzerland frowns on such talk. They talked only of France as the home to which they were returning.

Germany Stretches Military Avenue 250 Miles to South

Hitler Journeys to Vienna to Take Part In Celebration

Vienna, Nov. 20 (AP)—Hungary became a full-fledged partner of the totalitarian Axis today by signing up with the German-Italian-Japanese Alliance.

The original alliance, signed last Sept. 27 at Berlin, is a 10-year military and economic treaty which binds its signers to a one-for-all and all-for-one pledge of aid against any new entrant into either the European or Asiatic wars.

Signed By Ministers

A protocol admitting Hungary to alliance membership was signed by Hungary's Foreign Minister Csaky and for the original signers, by German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop, Italian Foreign Minister Ciano and Saburuo Kurusu, Japanese Ambassador to Germany.

There was no intimation from any sources how soon any military operations might follow these Nazi diplomatic strides toward the Balkans, but scarcely an observer doubted such a step would be taken.

U. S. Liners Leave Shanghai for States

Shanghai, Nov. 20 AP)—The United States liners Washington and President Taft left this afternoon with 502 Americans who boarded the vessels here to quit the Orient on advice of the United States State Department.

Aboard the Washington, announced by officials as the last special evacuation vessel, were 436 passengers. Some 700 additional Americans are to be picked up at Manila before the liner heads for San Francisco.

Sixty-six Americans boarded the President Taft here. Others, from Manila and Hong Kong, already were aboard, and more are to be picked up at Kobe and Kokohama.

It is estimated 3,000 Americans will have left China by Jan. 1, but 4,000 to 5,000 will remain.

BIGGER CANADIAN NAVY PLANNED SAYS MINISTER

Will Be Commensurate With Canada's Obligations to Britain and as "Friend and Ally" of U.S.

FORM NAVAL COLLEGE

(By Carl Reinke, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP)—A Canadian naval establishment sufficient to meet Canada's obligations as a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations and as a "friend and ally" of the United States is planned by the Government.

Such a navy, of Canadian-built ships manned by Canadian-trained personnel, was pictured to the House of Commons yesterday by Navy Minister Macdonald, as a prospect of the near future.

2 Crudely-Made Bombs Found Under Bridge In York Township

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—North York Township police said today two crudely-manufactured bombs, obviously made by amateurs, had been found in the last week under the Bayview Avenue bridge over the Don Valley.

Three school boys found the second bomb yesterday. Inside a fairly large tin can were a shotgun shell, a packing of cotton soaked in oil and matches. The boys took the contraption to Sergeant John Harrison of the Township police, who turned it over to Sergeant Veitch of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Another bomb was found near the same spot last Sunday.

Police said neither of the bombs could have done much damage by exploding, though they would have been dangerous if placed among inflammable material.

The boys who found the second bomb kicked at the can before examining and police said they were lucky it hadn't exploded when kicked.

Italian Bombs Kill 52 at Alexandria In Monday Night Raid

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Government announced today that 52 persons were killed and 79 wounded Monday night in a raid by five successive waves of Italian aircraft which smashed 17 houses at Alexandria.

Cairo had three air raid warnings early today, but the raiders were driven off by anti-aircraft fire before they could drop any bombs.

ARRESTED ON CONSPIRACY

Toronto, Nov. 20—(CP) — Police said Dr. Oscar Levine, Toronto doctor and his brother, Benjamin Levine, a druggist, were arrested last night on charges of conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice. They were released on $2,000 bail each. Benjamin Levine recently was convicted on a charge involving the sale of narcotics and his physician brother awaits trial.

STEERING APPARATUS PROBABLE CAUSE OF CAR ACCIDENT

When the steering apparatus of the truck he was driving, apparently went out of control, a large truck driven by Eugene H. Harkins, 53 Geddes St., crashed into the ditch along Highway No. 37, a few miles south of Tweed late Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Harkins sustained a fractured collar bone, dislocated right elbow and numerous lacerations. He was removed to the Belleville General Hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. R. A. Flynn.

The truck, which is owned by Thomas Harris of this city, and driven by Harkins, was badly damaged in the front portion, where the under-carriage was sheered off and the engine driven back beneath the cab as the vehicle dove down a steep embankment after the steering gear went out of commission. Chief J. C. Hayes of Tweed, investigated the accident.

JUNIOR BOYS HOLD INDOOR PARTY

The first indoor party of the season for the Junior Boys' Club of the local "Y" was held on Tuesday evening with a full round of athletic activities being enjoyed by the fifteen teen-aged lads present. The evening's program was begun with a bowling contest in which all the lads took part with Doug Legate being the outstanding bowler of the night. A new game, "Sink the Enemy Navy," was introduced to the members and drew instant approval. The evening's fun was topped off with sandwiches, cake and soft drinks.

MARAUDER MYSTIFIES P.E. RIDGE RD. FARMERS

A mysterious nocturnal marauder which has badly mauled a brood sow and accounted for a fifty-pound pig, is causing farmers living on the Ridge Road, Prince Edward County, some concern.

The sow, the property of George Markland, had the run of the straw-stack in the barnyard where she and her brood of pigs slept. The other morning the badly mauled body of the sow was found near the stack. She was nearly dead but is expected to survive.

The following morning one of the young 50-pound pigs was missing with exception of its head and one hoof. The remainder of the carcass had disappeared. The head showed clear signs of chewing by some animal.

Farmers suspect the presence of a wolf or a bear in the vicinity.

CITY CONSIDERED IN CHOICE OF SITE

Belleville and surrounding district was considered by officials of the Canadian Industries Limited during their search for a suitable location for their new $1,500,000 Nylon subsidiary plant which Kingston was fortunate in securing, it was learned today. The necessity of large amounts of cold water for the operation of the plant was instrumental in the Kingston site being chosen however, as more favourable conditions existed there.

The property of Dr. E. M. Carefoot at Foxboro was first considered by the C.I.L. as a possible site for this plant in this district but the supply of cold water from the mineral wells there was found insufficient to meet their requirements. A total of 2,000,000 gallons of water daily, at a temperature not exceeding 50 degrees Fahrenheit and a reserve of 10,000,000 gallons will be necessary for the company to carry on operations when the plant is constructed. The water of the Bay of Quinte was found to be too high in temperature, testing 75 degrees Fahrenheit.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM "BILL" BOYD,
(Baltimore, Md.)

Word was received in the city yesterday of the death of William (Bill) Boyd, a former resident of this city, who died in Baltimore of a heart attack on Monday. William Boyd was born in Belleville and resided on Yeomans St., before leaving for Hamilton, where he later played hockey with the famous Hamilton Tigers in post-war years. After migrating to the United States Bill Boyd finally concluded his hockey career with the New York Rangers, being one of the originals of that club. He died suddenly of a heart attack in Baltimore.

CALEB WHEELER
(Stirling)

Stirling —(Special)— This village mourned the passing of one of its oldest and most respected residents Tuesday when Caleb Wheeler passed away after a lengthy illness. The deceased was in his eightieth year.

Mr. Wheeler was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. Wheeler. He was born in the house in which he spent his four-score years and in which he died.

He was a member of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, and is survived by his widow, the former Agnes Windsor, and a brother, Harry, of Chicago, Ill. The funeral will be held on Thursday from the late residence.

JAMES F. COPELAND

The late Mr. Copeland spent the early years of his life in Belleville, being a son of the late James Copeland, who at one time was engaged in the harness and leather business here and the family resided on Foster Avenue, south of Bridge Street.

Was a former member of the 15th Battalion, Argyll Light Infantry, Hastings County. Born in Belleville, he received his education at Belleville High School and Ontario Business College.

Formerly employed with the Grand Trunk Railway in Toronto, he later became Secretary to the late Hon. William A. Charlton.

Mr. Copeland was a member of Our Lady of Lourdes Church and was an officer of the Third Order of St. Francis. He was also a member of the R.C.Y.C.

Surviving him are two sisters, Miss Lavinia Copeland and Miss Agnes Copeland, and one brother, Mr. John M. Copeland, all of Toronto.

The funeral will take place on Friday morning, Nov. 22nd., to the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Toronto for Mass at 9.30 o'clock. Interment will be made in Mount Hope cemetery.

6-Year-Old Girl Killed by Car Near Stirling

DRIVER NOT HELD

Stirling, (Special)—Struck by a car said to have been driven by John Dougle, Marmora, six-year-old June Preston, daughter of Lance-Corporal and Mrs. Preston residing on Highway 14, four miles north of this village, was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon when returning home with her schoolmates.

Following investigation, Coroners J. J. Robertson and J. S. Demorest ordered an inquest to be held in Stirling on Monday at 11 a.m.

The dead child is said to have been playing along the roadside just previous to being struck by the car. Dougle was allowed to proceed but his automobile was held for further investigation.

Lance-Corporal Preston who at present is overseas with his regiment, will receive the news of the second death in his family since leaving with his unit for England. A few days after his regiment sailed his three-months'-old daughter died suddenly.

Congregational Rally Of Holloway Street United Church Held

The members and friends of Holloway Street United Church met last night for a congregational rally in the church parlours. The supper, which was announced as pot-luck proved to be a banquet.

After the supper Mr. Allan Lennox, Chairman of the Committee of Stewards, called the meeting to order and the toast to "The King" was followed by the singing of the National Anthem. A toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. Anderson to which Mrs. Sweetman, President of the Women's Association capably responded. The toast to "The Church" was proposed by Robert Mitchell to which Rev. J. A. Dilts, responded in a brief message pleading for a new enthusiasm and zeal for the most vital and worthwhile institution on earth.

One of the "high lights" of the evening was the report given by the church treasurer Mr. Garn Dobbs. He reported that the financial objective $1500.00 recently set by the Stewards had been reached and passed. He thanked the congregation for the loyal co-operation that had been given and paid special tribute to Mr. Allan Lennox who as Chairman had given such splendid leadership.

Mr. Geo. Woodley was called to introduce the speaker of the evening Major B. C. Sisler of the Dominion Bank, who spoke on the subject "Church Finance."

"The spirit of greed selfishness and materialism abroad in the world had of late years made it increasingly difficult to finance the church," said the speaker. He referred to this spirit as the root cause of all our trouble and urged, that all should get rid of that spirit and cease measuring a man's worth by the size of his bank account but rather by his capacity to serve and minister to his day and generation. The speaker declared that he was a firm believer in the weekly envelope system and suggested, that the first call upon the weekly pay should be our obligations to the church.

Mr. Arnold Campbell expressed thanks to the speaker and all others who had helped to make the evening such an outstanding success.

Several members of long standing expressed the opinion that it was the most enthusiastic and largely attended congregational meeting ever held in Holloway Street Church.

Stirling and District

Winnifred Phillips, Stirling Chosen Ont. Dairy Queen

Attractive Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips Will be Officially Crowned at Cheese Exhibition Here Early in December

TORONTO JUDGES MAKE SELECTION

Miss Winifred Phillips, nineteen-year-old brunette daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Stirling, has been selected as the Ontario Dairy Queen by a trio of competent judges, and will be officially crowned at the British Empire Dairy Show and Cheese Exhibition, sponsored by the Central Ontario Cheese Makers Association and scheduled here for December 2nd., 3rd., and 4th., Chief Grader James L. Irwin announced today.

Miss Phillips won the coveted title from a list of twenty-five contestants representing all parts of Ontario. She will be garbed in the "royal" robes and introduced and presented at the banquet which culminates the three-day Dairy Show on December 4th.

The competitors were judged from photographs by Miss Claire Wallace and Rex Cross, Toronto radio commentators, and Duncan R. Cowan, also of Toronto.

The winner will also be the recipient of a handsome cabinet of silver which will be formally presented to her at the banquet. Her photograph, which has become the property of the sponsoring association, will decorate the calendars for 1941 which will be issued by the C.O.C.M.A.

Contestants, to be eligible for the prize and title, had to be daughters or wives of cheese patrons or makers in any part of Ontario. Miss Phillips' father is a patron of the Central Cheese Factory near Stirling.

Entertainment of Men at Trenton Air Station Subject of Discussion

Committee of Representatives of City Organizations Urges Citizens Entertain Airmen at Their Homes

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Winter activities and entertainment for the men of the fighting forces, especially members of the Royal Canadian Air Force at Trenton, formed the basis of enthusiastic discussions at a meeting of the Belleville War Services Committee held at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

President P. C. MacLaurin was in the chair and the city service clubs were represented by Cliff Baragar, Kiwanis; Gardner Duff, Kinsmen; Homer Thomas, Y'smen, and Ed. Bernstein and E. Bassingthwaighte, Rotary. Messrs. Joe Shortt, Howard Clarke and Norman Edwards represented the Y.M.C.A., and Andrew Reekie and Kenneth McAdam, "Y" secretaries at the air base were also in attendance.

Following the presentation by Secretaries Shortt and Reekie of statements resulting from recent conferences, the committee reviewed present plans and was unanimous in the opinion that efforts be made to emphasize the plans now in operation, and to increase the number now being served through the churches, the "Y", the Hospitality Club, and the four service clubs.

Service Club members will be asked to entertain two R.C.A.F. members in their homes for a Sunday evening meal. A good fellowship evening once a week, and an inter-group basketball series were suggested.

Residents of the city will be asked to provide a home touch and a change which will relieve the tension of the daily training grind at barracks.

It was pointed out that any effort in this direction will be greatly appreciated by the airmen and troops from good homes who now miss their familiar home environment, as distance in a great many cases makes visits to their relatives impossible.

Matters of transportation, accomodation, and other details were discussed.

CHAPLAIN NAMED AT PETERBOROUGH

Rev. Verne E. R. Zufelt, B.A., B.D., will be chaplain at the N.P.A.M. Training Centre No. 32 at Peterboro when the next class of trainees go into camp for their thirty days' training on Friday, November 22. Rev. Mr. Zufelt is a former resident of Consecon Lake and is a graduate of Picton Collegiate Institute. Previous to going to Peterboro as minister of the Knox United Church, he was a minister of a Kingston church. He will continue as minister at Knox Church while carrying on the chaplaincy work at the training centre where he has been given the honorary of captain.

Chairman of Public Utilities Commission States He Will be Candidate for Re-election

Cliff Baragar, Chairman of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, ex-president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club and ex-alderman of the city, has announced that he will again offer his services as a commissioner on the Public Utilities Commission. He has served in this capacity for the past two years and stated he is definitely in the field for re-election.

Senior B. Y. P. U. Holds Meeting

The Senior B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church heard an interesting address on Tuesday evening when Miss Beth McKenzie, guest speaker, told of her experiences and impressions at the great Christian Youth Conference which was held in Amsterdam in 1939. There were delegates from seventy-three nations stated Miss McKenzie and those from warring countries like China and Japan and from Czecho-Slovakia, which was then under the Nazi heel, had come in the face of great personal risk. These different races had lived together at Amsterdam during the ten-day conference in perfect harmony, through their common allegiance to Jesus Christ, proving that it was possible for all nationalities to live in harmony in spite of the condition we find the world in today. There were no people other than Christian who had enough in common to be able to promote international peace and justice, the speaker charged. "Though that great conference hall in Amsterdam has since been destroyed by bombs what we did there will always live," said Miss McKenzie.

The service group was in charge of the meeting with Miss Jean Fox in the chair. The scripture lesson from Romans 12 was read by Mrs. Bert Girling. Miss Eleanor Finkle, guest artist, played two very pleasing piano solos. Closing prayer was given by Miss Marjorie Hales.

Police Blotter

Arrested on a charge of intoxication, a man who police say is Thomas G. Cook, of Warkworth, was later identified as the man, who stole a fountain pen from Haines Shoe store over the week end.

Cook was being held in the cell block on a charge of intoxication when local police authorities checked the man's appearance with the description given them by Mr. S. McBride, clerk at the Haines Shoe store, who reported the theft of a fountain pen from that establishmen last Saturday. While in the cell block Cook was identified as the man seen in the Haines store before the pen was found to be missing. Cook was held in custody without bail.

Police Assist in Search

Local police authorities assisted in the recovery of two small children, who had wandered away from their home in the vicinity of the Canniflon Road yesterday. The children were found in another section of the city none the worse for their wanderings, police reported.

Detective Fred Isard recovered a set of keys, which had been reported stolen over the week end. The keys were recovered from a teen aged school boy.

No arrests being necessary in Belleville outside that of Cook, left the cell block available for 14 transients, who sought shelter in the city last night.

MARMORA RESIDENT FRACTURES ARM

Mrs. Cynthia Henderson, 64 of Marmora, sustained a fractured left arm when she fell down stairs at her home on Tuesday. Mrs. Henderson was brought to the Belleville General Hospital where the fracture was reduced by Dr. Taft of Marmora. Her condition was reported to be quite favourable today. Mrs. Henderson tripped on the stairway and fell.

Laval One of Main Advocates For Separate Peace With Nazis

Canadian Correspondent for N. Y. Times in France Says a Few French Leaders Were Convinced Britain Would Fall

VIEW IS CHANGING

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP)— The French people will never co-operate with the Germans against the British, Percy J. Phillip, Canadian correspondent for the New York Times who lived through the fall of France, said in a speech before The Canadian Club on Tuesday.

Basing his conclusions on 24 years spent in France and several weeks there following the Armistice between Vichy Government and the Germans, Mr. Philip said Marshal Petain was a man of honor who would never agree to a dishonorable course for his country.

Petain's prestige and popularity was going up with the French people while that of Perre Laval, vice-Premier, was going down.

Petain and his associates agreed to the armistice because they were convinced Great Britain would soon be defeated also and the chief protaganist of this view was Laval. Now Frenchmen were coming to realize Laval was wrong and as Bitish resistance continued, hope for a British victory revived.

The reason France fell was that the country lost 2,000,000 of its best men in the last war and for a full generation had to carry on with the second best and third best, said Mr. Phillip. The new generation which went into the present war had grown up fatherless in a world seething with new doctrines and ideologies. They lacked discipline and they lacked confidence in authority.

Vimy Memorial Intact

Mr. Philip said he was up at the front when the German machine smashed through and after the battle of the Meuse made his way back to Paris on a bicycle, passing the Canadian war memorial on Vimy Ridge which "still stands high, untarnished and soon again to be rededicated in a restored France with new glory and honor."

The Germans displayed tremendous generalship in their push through Holland and Belgium into France. Mr. Philip said he saw railways and roads destroyed with systematic completeness until there was no way for one French unit to communicate with another.

"We know and should remember," he said, "that that terrific force of men and machines which broke the French and Belgian armies last May and sent us scurrying home from Dunkirk, is still intact, possibly stronger than ever and it is that force which we are fighting almost alone."

When the French position became hopeless, Mr. Philip said the Reynaud cabinet decided to continue the war in Africa. That would have meant possibly greater hardship for the people of France and the loss of more lives but France was bound in treaty and honor to continue the war with Britain until victory or until both agreed to lay down arms.

France's Collapse Deplored

"I need not stress the advantage which there would have been in fighting this war if the French government had kept that treaty," he said. "Greece would not today be fighting for her life for with the French troops in North Africa and the French fleet in the Mediterranean Mussolini's last minute treacherous attack on France would already have been avenged.

"Those in the French cabinet who decided to break the alliance with Great Britain and abandon the war have a terribly heavy responsibility."

Mr. Philip said he was one of a group of newspapermen, all Americans except himself, a British subject, who met Laval three weeks after the armistice. Laval then delivered a vehement harangue against England and declared he did not believe in a British victory. The whole basis of the Vichy government was predicated on the belief of two or three Frenchmen that Britain would lose.

In subsequent weeks Mr. Philip said he noticed a change in that view. It became clear that the Germans paid little or no attention to Laval and his colleagues and that the people did not trust them.

ROOF IN DANGER

With the election past, something still hangs heavy over the heads of members of the United States Congress. Roofs of the Senate and House of Representative chambers, erected 86 years ago, are in danger of collapse. No repairs will be attempted until after the next adjournment. Here the architect for the Capitol, David Lynn, looks over the roof of the House Chamber.

Down 2,500,000 Pounds Daily During Last Week

London, Nov. 19—(CP)—Britain's war expenditures dropped to a daily average of £9,500,000 ($42,275,000) last week, against an average of £12,000,000 for the previous two weeks, exchequer figures disclosed today.

The report showed a deficit of £47,775,074 for the week for all government expenses with revenue of £19,884,048 against expenditures of £67,819,122.

Letters From the Troops

Mr. Frank Foster of Lanark, now with the R.C.A.F. at Toronto, recently received a letter from his brother Lance Corp. Archie Foster, now with the Canadian forces "Somewhere in England." Excerpts from the letter are published below:

Dear brother, sister and all:—

Received your letter of August 25th yesterday and was very glad to get it as I have not heard from you in a long time. You said you sent me a parcel in May and 300 cigarettes. I got one parcel from you but I am not sure of the date. There was a cake in it and it was very good but I have not received any cigarettes yet. I wrote and told you about getting it but maybe you did not get the letter. I still may yet the last cigarettes you sent as they don't come as fast as the letters.

Well, you wanted to hear about what we are and have been doing, so I will try to give you some idea. We went to France about the first of June. We had made a couple of previous starts and came back again but this time we got there. We landed at Brest and the next day started for Paris but Hitler beat us there, so we had to turn back. We stayed in Brest and furnished air craft protection while the B.E.F., R.A.F. and numerous others moved out. Then we boarded ship for England. The only contact we made with the enemy was aircraft. The conditions in France were very bad. I think most people in Canada were very misinformed on the French war material as they didn't have it. In my stay there I only saw one French plane, the rest were all German and their motorized units. What the French did have were lost in the north of France. That Dunkirk evacuation for instance was real hell. Then we were going inland in France. I saw trainloads of civilians coming back from the front area. They were packed in box cars, cattle cars and anything at all. The highways were also so crowded that it held up the motorized movement considerably. The new German tactics of advance with motorcycles and machine guns on them going first, then the heavy tank and then their infantry in truck and bus moved so fast that the French had no chance to consolidate any forces anywhere and they couldn't stop the tank anyway, so it was very easy to break their morale.

We scuttled our carriers on the docks at Brest and it was impossible to get boats enough to bring everything back on. It was during this process that I got my knee hurt—got caught between two of them. They lugged me off to a first aid post and as I was in my shirt sleeves at the time, I lost everything I had. I had some trouble getting on the boat as the rest of my gang had gone on, but by chance I happened to get on the same boat they were on so I got along all right. The boat we came back on was just a channel tug and there wasn't even a lifebelt on it, but luckily we did not need any.

After we came back we just stayed in Aldershot a short time and then moved out under canvas and we are here yet. We are not far from the coast, so we see plenty of air raids and dog fights. They have bombed plenty around here but have managed so far to miss us. It sure makes you swear when you have to get out of the tent in the middle of the night and dive into a trench. We remedied that trouble by digging down a couple of feet inside the tent, so now we don't have to get up. When those bombs come down they sure have a mean whistle and when you hear that whistle you want to duck and duck fast. It is starting to get the wet season now, so I don't know just how long this hole is going to work then. I think we are going out into billets soon and I hope so.

Well, I guess that is enough on the war subject for this time, so I will change to the cost of living. It is too bad you did not have your chickens over here as eggs are 75c per dozen and chickens cost about $2.00 each; stew beef is about 25c a pound and all meat is expensive. We don't eat bad though considering everything. There is lots of work here now but the wages are not as good as they are in Canada.

I was promoted to a L. Cpl. last month so that helps out a little in the pay. If you want to send me anything, I would like to have a quart of maple syrup if you can get some kind of a can to send it in, or cigarettes, as they are very costly here, 35c for 20 Players.

Well I guess I have said enough for this time, so will close. Write often, as I like to get the news from home. Well, best of luck to all from

Your brother,
Archie.

Report Correspondent Of N. Y. Herald Tribune Lost in Bomber Crash

Washington, Nov. 19 (AP)—The United States State Department was notified today that Ralph D. Barnes, correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune, was among four persons killed in the crash of a British bombing plane on a mountain side in Yugoslavia yesterday.

The information came from Arthur B. Lane, Minister to Yugoslavia.

Barnes was an American citizen and had been abroad several years for the Herald Tribune.

Lane said the plane was carrying a large number of bombs and the bodies of the four occupants were found over a radius of 300 metres from the wrecked plane.

His information on Barnes' identity came from the Yugoslav War Office, Lane said.

BEFORE you buy ANY car look at a Dodge—and drive one. Remember Dodge Dependability and low operating costs are not visible on the showroom floor. Mile after mile of smooth trouble-free driving will prove these traditional Dodge qualities to your lasting satisfaction.

The 1941 Dodge models are the most beautiful that Dodge has ever built in its 26 years of making fine quality automobiles. The new radiator grille design emphasizes the low, wide, ground hugging qualities that discriminating buyers demand in a modern motor car.

The famous Dodge Full Floating ride is smoother and more restful than ever before due to further advancements in weight distribution and the use of still softer springs.

Dodge engines for 1941 have new Oil-bath air-cleaners, and floating type oil strainers. Oil filters are standard equipment. A new type of compression ring speeds up the break-in period and reduces compression loss. New bearings have a much longer life.

We sincerely believe that if you check and compare with any other cars you will conclude that, dollar for dollar, Dodge is offering the biggest values rolling off to-day's assembly lines.

A trip to the Dodge showroom and a ride behind the wheel will supply confirmation of every word of this message and will supply an experience no words can convey.

If you want a car in the very lowest price field, drive a Dodge Kingsway. It's a big 88 horsepower beauty and every Dodge Kingsway owner rightly enjoys a fine pride of ownership.

If you're willing to spend a little more, take the wheel of a 1941 Dodge Luxury Liner Special with Fluid Drive—we believe you won't be content until you own one.

MUSSOLINI BLUSTERS TO EXCUSE EVENTS

Mussolini was on the defensive as he spoke on Monday for the first time since Italy entered the war in June of this year. His bellowing was proof of the fact that he was trying to bolster up Italian effort and take the edge off the great British naval victory at Taranto and the Greek army's triumphs over the Italian invaders. The best proof that Mussolini was driven by circumstances to make the speech is his boast that he will never turn back and his declaration that this war is not to be a short one and that the sacrifices to come may be "more severe."

While the voice of the heavy-jawed tyrant thundered from Rome, his Fascist ships were lying in what shelter they can find in Taranto harbor, not daring to come out into the open sea and enjoy the freedom of "Our Sea" as his people call the Mediterranean, the Italian drive remains stalled in Egypt and the Italian legions have been retreating before the victorious sons of Greece.

He was excusing and boasting and endeavoring to minimize the Greek and British successes. He spoke of revenge for the Italian losses inflicted by the Greeks and claimed that the losses amounted to only 372 dead, 1,081 wounded and 650 missing. He had to admit that three of his warships were hit at Taranto but he said none were sunk and said that only one was seriously damaged so that its repair would take a long time. And in the Greek campaign the fact remains that the Italians have retreated before the Greeks and left regimental flags, artillery and guns and other munitions which the Greeks have now taken.

Typical of a tyrant is his promise of revenge on the Greeks for the losses. "They will be revenged for whatever happens I will never turn back." This outburst proves that the heroic achievements of the Greeks have stung the pride of the would-be colossus.

His words with regard to Hitler sound hollow: "My meetings with the Fuehrer are only a consecration of this complete fusion of our conceptions."

Protesting innocence of knowledge why the Greeks should, as he says, hate the Italians more than any other people, he puts it down to a "mystery" and then blames British associations. The Greeks could tell him why, they have seen the false Fascist plotting and diplomacy with which he has tried to wreck the world.

Then Mussolini admits the discovery that "the rough mountains of Epirus and its muddy valleys do not lend themselves to lightning war." He had planned a lightning war in spite of the mountains of Epirus and the muddy valleys and has failed. Now he says it was impossible to do this because of the nature of the country. But as a strategist he ought to have known this. In fact no doubt he did know, but he thought he could intimidate the Greeks and get into the country by his ultimatum.

He becomes naive as he says with pretended disdain for the Greeks, "I do not believe it worth the trouble to deny all the news given by Greek propaganda and its English loudspeaker." But that has irritated him.

Going on with his boasting he says "with absolute certainty I tell you we will break Greece's back. Whether in two months or twelve months it little matters."

This is the first time he speaks of a long war. He admits the war is merely begun and he boasts of the strength of his army and he with words links up the modern Fascists with the ancient Romans. He likes to think of himself as the modern Caesar. But the Fascist soldiers know he is no Caesar and no Alexander they know that the Greeks have driven them back and the Italian sailors are certain enough that they are not masters of the Mediterranean as Mussolini would like to boast.

One of the most fulsome utterances ever recorded of one dictator in speaking of another is contained in his words, "Germany did not need our aid but I am grateful to the Fuehrer for having accepted our aid. This has consecrated our friendship with blood. Our air force and submarines are collaborating with Germany with honor to us." This is a confession that Mussolini really hankered after war when he thought there was little risk in it for him and it is a most disgusting cringing before the Germans. The world wonwers what Germany thinks of the Fascists' aid.

His effort was a poor excuse. His blaming of the war's cause on Britain really is a boomerang and shows the depths to which he had lowered his country by his unwarranted invasion of Ethiopia and Albania. He called the Greeks tricky because they threw back his ultimatum. The Greeks are strategists and have no respect for trickery of the Mussolini type. They had the ability to see through the braggart, boaster and bluffer.

He failed to explain the losses of the Italian navy and the poor strategy and judgment Italy showed in entering the war against Britain and in attacking Greece.

WAS IL DUCE GLAD OF THIS?

Mussolini, whose forces have had to bear shattering blows to army and navy in the past week, must have felt a certain satisfaction in the British raid damage to the Europa, Germany's second largest liner which was hit amidships by British bomber attack while she lay at her dock in Bremen harbor. No doubt Mussolini has suffered from Nazi criticisms over Taranto and Greece and can feel that the scales have been evened a little between Hitler and himself as Hitler has not been able to prevent the bombing of the giant liner. He can say to Hitler, "You can see, Adolf, I could no more prevent the raid on Taranto and the Greek attacks on my army than you could save the Europa from the British." If there any critical Italians Duce could say the same thing to them.

Mussolini is touchy for his pride and arrogance are great and he doubtless feels that he, dictator No. 2, is playing a second fiddle to Hitler, dictator No. 1. Like other jealous men, Duce would no doubt like to see a big rival taken down a peg even if they are confederates and even if just twenty-four hours before he spoke so piously of the German-Italian consecration of policy.

Duck Hawk Believed Fastest Bird

Sportsmen who blaze away without knocking even a tail feather from their quarry, will swear the birds flew off at 100, even 150 miles an hour. Confidentially, it isn't so.

Exaggerating the speed of birds has been a popular pastime, and a comparatively safe one until a biologist named May Thacher Cook decided to stop wondering about it and find out. Results of her close study of the question have been released by the United States Bureau of Biological Survey and are accepted by Canadian authorities as substantially correct.

Undertook Big Task

There has been no separate attempt to establish flying speeds of birds in the Dominion, however, according to Hoyes Lloyd, superintendent of the Migratory Birds Division of the Department of Mines and Resources. For Miss Cooke's was no easy task.

As Mr. Lloyd points out, one of the first problems facing the would-be bird timer is that of identifying his charges. There happens to be some 500 varieties, so the problem isn't a simple one.

Perhaps the most direct way of checking a bird's speed in flight is to pace it by automobile, with a friend beside you either to drive or use a stop-watch. Birds seem to have an affinity for cars, or vice versa, for the slaughter on much-travelled highways is terrific.

Miss Cooke found that a difficulty arose from the dislike of feathered flyers to heading any other way than at an angle to the wind, or head-on. They simply detest downwind flights and will avoid them in almost every instance.

Another complication was the fact that birds have two speeds, one for normal purposes and for migration, and a second for protection or pursuit. In some cases the latter is double the normal rate of flying speed.

The duck-hawk is probably the speediest feathered resident of North America. According to Miss Cooke's investigations, he can hurtle through the air at 165 to 180 miles per hour. The golden eagle, at 120 miles per hour, is no slowpoke either. Compared to these, the Canada goose just loafs along at a modest 44 to 60 miles per hour.

Just for Record

Just for the record, among other air speeds are those of the mallard duck, 48 to 58; sparrow hawk, 22 to 25; wild turkey, 55; plover, 60; mourning dove, 30 to 40; barn swallow, 40 to 45; ruby-throated humming bird, 45 to 55; flicker, 20 to 25; bluejay, 20; crow, 25 to 50; bluebird, 17; starling, 18 to 44; canvasback duck, 72; ruffled grouse, 22, while among the stragglers at 10 to 20 miles an hour are woodcocks, bluebirds and sparrows.—Ottawa Journal.

Bulgaria's Entry Into War Would Expose Oil Field

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.)

Washington Nov. 20 (AP). — Inclusion of King Boris of Bulgaria in Hitler's current conferences with European statesmen may indicate that a new military stroke is in preparation.

A German march through Bulgaria to Italy's aid in Greece could quickly reverse the astounding spectacle of Italian frustration. However, it would open a two-way corridor across Bulgaria, and no doubt Britain would take immediate advantage of it.

Bulgarian entry into the war, actively or passively, would expose Germany's most vital war resource, Rumanian oil to instant British air attack because Britain then would be free to fly across Bulgaria from bases in Greece. And the one obvious and understandable element in Hitler's policy on the Balkan front from the beginning of the war has been concern over security of the Rumanian oil field.

His first move in the East this fall was to achieve that. German troops and air forces were sent to guard the oil. There is much to indicate that Italy's attack on Greece was dangerously delayed to permit that German move to be completed.

If so Italy, has already paid a heavy price for the delay. Weather as well as mountains, helped balk her drive from Albania. The Greeks thus far have not only held their foe, but taken the ball on downs, so to speak.

Use Masedonian Bases

Had Italy struck weeks or days earlier the story might have been different. Snow and seasonal rains in the mountains virtually nullified Italian superiority in numbers and mechanized battle equipment and produced a military miracle.

Britain has had three weeks' time to plant advance naval and air bases on Greek soil. There is nothing in the news to show just where they are; but some of them must be pretty close to Rumanian oil fields. Bulgarian, Yugoslavian and Turkish neutrality make them unuseable for attacks on those fields, but Bulgarian entry into the Axis war orbit would remove that British handicap.

It is to be assumed that British bombers are already operating against Italy from bases in Macedonia. If so, they are within 300 miles air flight across Bulgaria from Ploesti, production and transportation centre of the Rumanian oil industry. And the transportation system by which that oil reaches Germany is perhaps more vulnerable to air attack than the oil wells and storage tanks themselves It has acute bottle necks like the Iron Gate of the Danube River route, mountain passes through which single-track railroads run, pipe lines and canals.

Navy Controls Aegean

The rumored price Hitler offered Bulgaria for war collaboration is an Agegean outlet via Greek territory. That has a pig-in-a-poke look as of this writing. The British Navy, from Greek mainland and insular bases, controls the mouth of the Aegean. It probably can add Italian bases in the Dodecanese Islands to its setup whenever it seems desirable to the British High Command.

Axis conquest of Northern Greece would not change that. Nor can Italy do much to help in a wider attack on Britain's Mediterranean control centres, Gibraltar and the Suez Canal, until she has dealt with problems presented by British sea power closer home.

Britain's navy and air force are attacking her only link of communication with Albania, roving the Ionian Sea and even dipping into the Adriatic to do it. Just what Bulgaria can hope to gain out of siding with the Axis at this stage is far from clear.

Military Prisoners

Somehow, we wish we could share the composure of Lieutenant-Colonel H. Stethem, Assistant Director of Internment Operations for Canada, in respect to treatment of war prisoners. Unfortunately, we cannot be made to do certain forms mans, even though, as he points out, treatment of prisoners is under the supervision of friendly neutral nations.

This matter is, admittedly, governed by strict international law. Soldiers taken captive are entitled to be handled in a certain way, cannot be made to do certain orms of work, and cannot be punished for attempting to escape. The neutrals act in their interests, and in the present war, Swiss consular officials in this country have that responsibility toward German prisoners here, while the United States keeps a watchful eye on the treatment of Britons in German prison camps.

Colonel Stethem seems to think that these safeguards are sufficient to ensure that our men are being treated strictly in accordance with international law in Germany, and that therefore we should be meticulous in our care of German prisoners here. Certainly we would not like to suggest that these men should be treated with cruelty, but we cannot, somehow, forget the gruelling evidence given before the Reparations Commission by Canadians who were in German prison camps in the last war. The same safeguards were in effect then, but the hundreds of thousands of dollars paid to these men in reparation for permanent injuries suffered while in captivity is sufficient evidence of how painstaking the Germans were to observe the niceties of international conventions. And, a Hun is still a Hun.—Windsor Star.

Trailer Travel

Ed. Note: Mr. Arthur Jones, Belleville's perrenial traveller to the land of sunshine, palms and "The Fountain of Youth"; otherwise Florida, has again started his journey southward. From time to time reports of his trip will appear on this page. The first of these follows:

Amity Hall, Clarks Ferry, Pa. — The arrow on the highway always points ahead, so, having made sure that we were on the "right road" (like the arrow) we hurdled all the barriers that are up against Canadians wishing to cross the border into the United States. First the Dept. at Ottawa to obtain a passport, then to Kingston to secure a visa from the U. S. consul, which took two hours of time along with all your finger prints (both hands) and then some. Then to your M. D. to have him say truthfully that a warm climate is better for one's health during the cold season in Ontario. The next step is to your banker. This obliging official will gladly send on your application to the Federal Foreign Exchange Control Board requesting American exchange. This application is on a special form wherein you set out your estimated expenses right down to gas and oil. Of course if your request is granted the banker hands you 89 cents American for your Canadian dollar. You then purchase American funds in Traveller's cheques, taking another three quarters of a cent and tax of your Canadian dollar. This small charge, the bank makes for these traveller's cheques is more than justly earned. The last of the gang is the insurance man. This guy is tough. You have to take it or leave it, no foolin'. Now for the open road after kissing your wife good-bye, back up the car to the old "Cracker Box" make the hitch, then head East on No. 2 for the 1000 Island Bridge.

Splendid Type of an Ontario Soldier

At the easterly limits of Kingston we took on a fine specimen of young Canadian manhood in uniform. We quickly learned from him that his name was Sargent, that he had been in the army some six months, training, that before enlisting he was a transport driver, that his home was in Apple Hill, north of Cornwall and that he had leave of absence and was hitch-hiking to that city. We were now ready to ask an impertinent question: "Private Sargent, please tell me when you joined up did you think you would ever get overseas or did you think the war might be over making it not necessary?

A. "I enlisted to go over to fight and fully expect to go in the Spring.

Q. "Do you fully expect to go over and fight in bloody battle in this terrible war?"

A. "Yes. Our battery will go over fully trained and able to fight against troops of any nation. There will be no better in the world."

Q. "How do you get along with your officers?"

A. "We have fine officers, much liked by all ranks—16 of them."

We were now at Ivy Lea so had to part. Thanking me profusely for the lift he shook my hand with a hearty grip. We wished each other good luck and went our separate ways.

Crossing The Border

We had no trouble with either the Canadian or United States officials as we had everything that was necessary. The American Immigration Officer warned me of a new regulation to the effect that visitors of six months were now required to report at the end of three months of any new address. Report to be made to the nearest Post Office. This courteous official then asked if I had any goods that I was going to leave in the States. With my answer of "no" he then said, "Mr. Jones we will take a look in the trailer." This being done he then said, "Mr. Jones have a safe and joyful visit" and waved me on. Who would not fight to the bitter end for freedom. Fancy being waved on by authority to roam the United States at will.

A Good Omen

As we changed gears to get a run at the steep ascent of the American span of the 1000 Island bridge, from the left a beautiful cock pheasant rose from the tall grass. With a number of welcome chuckles and with the sun shining on his gorgeous plumage and streamlined tail, he flew across in front of me only a few feet away, then gracefully settled in the tall brown, frosted growth on my right.

The last official we encounter is on the bridge road on the American side is the ticket seller and taker. Having handed in our punched crossing ticket we noticed this official was giving me more than the "once over." While pulling on a glove we arrived at a rapid conclusion we had to "shoot" that one down. So we said "Mister would you say it is possible for me to see to drive through the State owing to all the dust raised by the recent election? It's O.K. Canada, we have had a couple of rains, the dust is all settled—you got a GREEN LIGHT, on your way, Buddy! Now that was nice.

An Interview With a N. Y. State Dairy Farmer

At the cut-off we took on a young dairy farmer on his way to Watertown for Saturday afternoon and evening, so we asked, "How are the farmers doing on your State?" "Pretty good," was the reply. "How many cows are you milking and what do you do with your milk?" "We are milking 22 at present and take the whole milk to a dairy where it is prepared, placed in tank cars then rushed to New York City —yes we are doing O.K. My father traps Perch Creek. Last Spring he made $700 from the sale of muskrat pelts. A few years ago he took $3,000 one trapping season from the same source. Thanks a lot," he said as we let him off at the Circle in Watertown. On top of the hills south of Syracuse, N. Y. State has had plenty of the "beautiful". This Trailer Travel was started some 20 miles north of Harrisburg in Pa. It is being finished in Washington, D. C. owing to bad weather conditions. Rain then more rain. While we finish it, it continues to pour. We have made up our mind we will not travel any more in it. Housewives attention. At Frederick, Md., we purchased fine breakfast bacon for 21 cents the pound. So what.

A "New Order" For Mankind

By WICKHAM STEED

World-famous journalist and lecturer on Central European history, King's College, London.

Germany, Italy and Japan have made a pact for the alleged purpose of setting up a "new order" in the world. This "new order", we are told, will bring peace, prosperity, progress and international brotherhood. Japan is to establish this splendid state of things in Eastern Asia, while Germany and Italy establish it in Europe.

What have Germany and Italy so far achieved in the way of a new order in the territories in which they have seized power?

The Czechs, the Poles, the Norwegians, the Belgians, the Dutch, the French, the Albanians, the Abyssinians and the Arabs could reply that the fruits of Nazism and Fascism have been enslavement, torture, murder, massacre and robbery.

But the answer to the question whether Hitler's Nazism and Mussolini's Fascism, should they prevail, would in fact give birth to a new and better order in the world, can best be sought in the record of what they have done to their own peoples.

They profess to be serving the highest interests of those peoples. They say they wish to extend to all other peoples the benefits already bestowed upon their own nations. What are these benefits?

Two Ruined Countries

Italy was once a country of brilliant thought, great art and liberal mind. Her people, having gained freedom and unity, lived in peace and in growing prosperity.

Fascism has extinguished freedom of thought, it has made Italy barren of art, it has killed or imprisoned all men of liberal mind, and it has reduced the Italian people to poverty.

It has taught them, from infancy, to seek greatness in war, and has made them believe that a mighty Empire can be founded on terror and cruelty.

What have Hitler and Nazism done for the German people? Germany was once the home of the deepest thinkers, the profoundest students of science, the most ennobling music, the best-organized industry. Under Nazism the oldest seat of learning in Germany has proclaimed that truth in itself can no longer be the object of study, but only such truth as may serve the German race.

All men of free thought have been killed, imprisoned or driven into exile. All upright religious teachers have been persecuted. All children and youths have been taught to worship Adolf Hitler, and him alone. German children are bidden to spy upon their parents and to inform the secret police if their fathers or mothers or brothers or sisters say a word against Hitler or Nazism.

German boys are made to believe, from an early age, that their chief glory in life must be to die for Hitler in battle. German girls are trained to become the mothers of children who may also die for Hitler in battle.

Hitler himself has written and said that the one means of making Germany great is for her to be "brutal", to gain overwhelming force by brutal discipline, so that none can withstand her. There can be no room in his "new order," he has declared, for pity, compassion or helpfulness to others.

Is it likely that if Nazism has set up this "new order" in Germany, it will be more kindly when the "order" is extended to other peoples? I think not. Nazi Germans have been taught that they are the highest human race, whom other races must serve. The peoples whom Hitler, has, for a time, conquered and subjugated know that the Nazi "new order" is a cruel sham, a denial of every form of freedom, another name for tyranny and slavery.

Can these peoples, bleeding under the lash of Nazism, be mistaken? Let Hitler himself answer. In his "Political Testament" he tells Germans that it is "not alone their duty to prevent by force of arms the existence of any country that might oppose Germany or, if it has arisen, to smash it again to pieces".

This is the essence of the "new order" which Germany and Italy propose to set up in the world. Against its threat to the bodies and souls of men, the nations still free, led by Great Britain and the British Commonwealth, are now fighting and will fight until mankind has been saved from the terror of evil.

Then it will be the duty of the free nations to set up a "new order" from which war shall be banned, and peace, prosperity, progress and international brotherhood shall be established in freedom.—British Ministry of Information.

Stewart Says—

Axis Eyes Portugal, Sensitive Subject To United States

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart

The war may sideswipe Portugal soon, the U.S. state department surmises from reports it receives from Lisbon, the little country's capital, and from other European countries.

It's small but it has strategic importance. It also is pro-British, traditionally so. Dictator Franco's government of Spain, on the Atlantic edge of which the wee republic (nominally a republic; it's a dictatorship, too, in reality) is situated, is pro-Axis, as everybody knows. That of course, is because Franco is under obligations to Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini for helping him to squelch the Spanish republicans. Furthermore, he wants to recover Gibraltar, which John Bull took away from Spain back in Lord Nelson's day. This makes him anti-British.

The Portuguese, on the opposite hand, are under several centuries of obligation to Britain. Mere peewee though their country is at home, its colonies are of major consequence. They include a big chunk of west Africa and several extremely useful islands, among them the Azores, in the Atlantic ocean, and Macao, just off the coast of China. It acquired these possessions somewhere around Columbus' time, when its people were world renowned navigators. In later years they petered out from a maritime standpoint, and stronger countries doubtless would have taken their overseas holdings away from them, except that England ruling the oceans, wouldn't let 'em do it.

They Like U.S. Too

In an indirect way they like the United States, too. They're the folk who settled Brazil, and the tie between the Brazilians and the land of their origin always has been a very close one, much more so than the tie between the Spanish-American republices and the European Spaniards. Now Brazil, of all the Latin New World countries, has been friendliest to Uncle Sam. I suppose the reason is that it produces lots of tropical stuff that the U.S. needs, whereas we turn out plenty of processed goods that the Brazilians require, making for first class trade relations.

Anyway, the U.S. and Brazil are on especially good terms with one another. And Portugal, being strongly pro-Brazilian, is pro-Yankee likewise. It must have been noticed that Lisbon authorities have been particularly accommodating in enabling Americans in Europe to get back to our side of the water. Lisbon, in today's state of European affairs, is a mightily convenient taking-off place, and the Portuguese government has exerted itself to make it all the more so.

As the Axis sees the situation, however, Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini evidently regard Portugal's policy with emphatic disapproval.

It's understandable. With Spain in their alignment, they naturally don't want a pro-British and pro-American Portugal right on the fringe of the Iberian peninsula.

Moreover, they want Portugal's Azores islands. These islets are about half way across the ocean to South America—nearer than any base that the U.S. have got on their own mainland. It's a certainty that they think of them as a vital stepping stone toward the Latin Americas if they win the present war and begin feeling the urge to expand into the western hemisphere.

Italy Suggests Pressure

Accordingly, Virginio Gayda, the Italian editor who's constantly spoken of as Signor Mussolini's mouthpiece, suggests the Axis desirability of bringing what he calls "pressure" upon Portugal to line up with the Hitler-Mussolini outfit.

The Axis can do it all right, if Franco goes in with the combination.

Its forces can slop into Portugal with no trouble whatever, through France and Spain, overland. Sea power won't signify. And the Portuguese can put up no more of a fight than Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway or Poland could.

To be sure, a conquest of Portugal wouldn't establish the Axis bunch on the Azores. That would call for sea power.

Nevertheless, Portugal's a sensitive subject, even to Uncle Samuel.

Besides, Japan would seize the opportunity to grab Macao, which the U. S. do have a decided interest in keeping Portuguese.

In short, there's no place on earth where this war isn't a fret to us.

DEATH DUE TO EXPOSURE

Banff, Alta., (CP)—The body of Bevan Ashton, about 68, chiropractor and owner of the Banff Upper Hot Springs Hotel, was found in snow-covered bushland here yesterday and investigators said death was due to exposure. He had been missing since Monday. While travelling from his downtown office to the hotel, it was believed Ashton's car ran into the ditch and that he began walking to town through bush and became lost.

Eastern Ontario Travellers Hold 6th Annual Banquet

70 PRESENT

C. A. Lawrence is New President for 1941—Other Officers Elected

There were sounds of "revelry by night" and the spacious dining halls of the Hotel Quinte rang to the merriment and genial camaraderie of the "knights of the satchel" last night as the Eastern Ontario Travellers held forth at their sixth annual banquet and election of officers.

Forgotten were the exigencies of war-time business pressure. Forgotten were the day's toil and the endeavor of days to come. They parked the well-known hall marks of their calling, their sample cases and bags in rooms and cars, and gave way to that feeling of good fellowship and happy association that the commercial traveller alone knows.

They went "all out" in the congenial atmosphere that is apparent only when men, who are thrown together occasionally along the tortuous trails of their calling, congregate in a general atmosphere where the stern realities of life are temporarily forgotten.

They forgot in the relaxation of the moment to "talk shop". True, that conventional topic of commercial traveller conversation, "Have you heard this one?" was apparent in many corners and other places where the lads congregated, and many new and old stories once again made the rounds. But it was all in good fun, and added a distinctive touch of true atmosphere to the banquet.

Turkey Dinner

They sat down in an atmosphere reminiscent of Yuletide, to an old-fashioned Christmas dinner, with roast turkey and all the "trimmin's". They ate the plum pudding with gusto, and the soup with gustatory salutations. They interspersed the many courses of the lavish dinner with the old songs sung in lusty voices. They rose and vocalized in true "traveller" manner when Tommy Mason, master of musical ceremonies, assisted at the piano by Corp. Watts, R.C.A.F., a violinist of more than ordinary ability, called upon them individually and collectively. It was a grand party, staged by travellers and enjoyed by travellers and their friends in typical traveller style.

And just to show that commercial travellers are as appreciative of good speakers and outstanding artists as people of other callings, they aplauded generously the fine efforts of the students of the Ontario School for the Deaf, groups of outstanding young dance and rhythmic artists whose efforts in their colorful costumes, not only reflected great credit upon their ability to do those things that people more fortunate can do, but upon their instructors as well. And the "knights" acclaimed in appreciative fashion, the addresses of the speakers, who spoke to them during the course of the evening.

Culminating what was styled by the greater majority of those present, one of the happiest functions since the inception of the organization six years ago, the travellers paid members of the association tribute by electing to office for the ensuing year a brand new slate of officers. Nor did they forget those of their calling who passed away during the past years. They rose and stood in reverent silence for two minutes to the memory of those "knights" who have made their last call.

Fine Entertainment

President Frank Hughes presided in the chair and with him were seated President John Curtis of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada; its secretary-treasurer, Charles E. Fice; the Rev. Major A. Beauchamp Payne; J. Owen Herity, guest speaker, and members of the Association's executive including its past-presidents.

Following a brief address of welcome by President Hughes, the fine entertainment furnished by the O.S.D. students evinced rounds of applause. A brief review of the school's activities and its students was given by Principal W. J. Morrison, and the children, under the direction of Mr. Alec Gordon, their musical instructor, who officiated at the piano, staged their colorful show. A rhythm band; a gavotte, danced by six graceful boys and girls in the period costumes of the early seventies; a Highland fling danced by a young boy and Highland lassie; a Spanish dance by six "senors" and "senoritas" and two tap-dances by eight attractive young ladies, was culminated by the school's own arrangement of "There'll Always Be An England." Miss Keeler, dance instructor of the students, was introduced to the gathering and was warmly applauded.

The Rev. Beauchamp Payne, in a brief toast to the visitors, spoke in humorous vein of the early days when he was a "traveller". He paid tribute to travellers and their calling and without more ado proposed the toast.

President Curtis, C.T.A.

President John Curtis related several humorous stories and spoke of the fine war contributions made by the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada. Over $7,000 will have been contributed by next week to various war charities, he said, besides the gift of an ambulance. During the last Great War, the Association gave over $50,000 to the Dominion's efforts. Secretary-Treasurer Fice spoke of the fine financial condition of the Association, stating it had upwards of four millions in assets. $86,000 of the Association's money has been invested in Dominion bonds through the war loans.

Small Towns Important

In an eloquent address interspersed with typical humor, Mr. J. Owen Herity pointed out to the travellers and their guests the importance of small towns and cities of the Dominion, besides eulogising the larger centres. He welcomed the Association on behalf of the city and hoped the "sixth annual banquet would develop into six times ten."

He related excerpts of an address given to the Toronto Rotary Club by him during his tenure as Rotary Governor of this district. "Toronto is my city and your city," he said, "because it is the capital city of Ontario. In my opinion Toronto is the best large city on the North American Continent. (Cheers).

"In the smaller towns and cities Canadian life is seen at its finest and best," Mr. Herity continued. "They are often the subject of ridicule on the part of the jokesmiths because public opinion there is not what it might be." He quoted General Draper, former police head of Toronto as saying that although the population of Toronto had increased 108 percent. during the present century, its crime had increased by 647 percent. "In smaller towns," Mr. Herity declared, "the law is respected and obeyed, and they have not the tremendous problems facing them as has Toronto. There they have a fair division of the good things of life and comfort and culture is found in every home." He named many great leaders and builders of Toronto who are offspring of the smaller centres of the province.

The smaller cities and towns such as Belleville and Kingston have a distinctive character. Here Mr. Herity spoke in humorous vein of the City of Boston and its Cabots and Lodges, socially elite families whose sphere was once invaded by a family named Goldberg. The resulting effects as related in the Harvard Lampoon and quoted to his listeners, elicited rounds of applause. Mr. Herity concluded his address with a number of sentiments written by outstanding men, principal among whom were Aristotle and the world-famous architect David Burnham. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Payne and thanked by President Hughes.

Officers Elected

The new slate of officers elected at the conclusion of the banquet include: President, Charles A. Lawrence; Vice-President, Aubrey Curtiss; Secretary-Treasurer, Chas. W. Tomlinson; Directorate, Messrs. Harold Osborne, Bert Bates, Fred White and Gordon Sutherland.

Members of the Association and their guests were presented with handsome clothes brushes, the gift of the "Travellers" as they entered the banquet hall.

OTTO OF AUSTRIA SPEAKS ON WAR

Archduke Predicts France Will Re-enter Conflict on Side of Britain

New York, Nov. 20.— (CP) — Archduke Otto of Austria said in an address here Tuesday that when King Leopold of Belgum ordered the Belgium army to surrender last May he believed his Allies knew of his intent and were prepared.

Otto, now staying in the United States with other members of his family, said General Billotte of the French High Command visited Leopold in Flanders at the King's request. Billotte was entrusted with a message which explained the Belgian situation and informed the Allies of the King's intention. On his way back to Paris, Billotte was killed and the message never was delivered, Otto said.

The Archduke said Leopold did not learn of Billotte's death nor did he realize that his Allies were unprepared for the surrender of his army, which cut off the British expeditionary force and France's finest military divisions.

Otto predicted France would re-enter the war on the side of Great Britain.

TRAFFIC SLOWED BY SNOW

Albuquerque, N.M., Nov. 20—(AP)—An early snow blanketed most of New Mexico today, slowing traffic and grounding airplanes. The weather bureau reported up to six inches of snow in the mountains along the continental divide. Albuquerque had a two-inch fall—heaviest November snow since 1934.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

ORIGIN AND USES OF VARNISHES SUBJECT OF TALK

Kiwanian Charles Byford of Toronto Speaker at Local Kiwanis Club

TESTS ARE MADE

A most interesting address on the origin and uses of varnishes was given by Charles Byford, Second Vice-President of the Toronto Kiwanis Club and Divisional Manager of the Martin-Senour Company, at the weekly luncheon of the local club at the Queen's Hotel on Tuesday. "Dick" Flynn presided at the luncheon with Morley Wyman acting as Sergeant-at-Arms and Harold Carruthers as song leader. Leo B. Riggs presided at the piano. Two letters were read by the Secretary, one from Walter P. Zellers, past Lieutenant-Governor of this district, thanking the club for the letter of appreciation for his services during his term of office and the other from St. Michael's Band, thanking the club for the splendid donation to their organization.

Clarence Jewell, chairman of Inter Club relations, read a letter inviting the club to an open night at Kingston Club on December 9th and it is expected a large number of the members will travel east for the festivities. Joe Shortt of the Y.M.C.A. spoke on the work of the Summer Camp, reporting that all organizations using the camp had a most successful sojourn. The speaker of the day was introduced by William Dougherty, manager of the Martin-Senour store in this city and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Fred Lewis. Mr. Byford conducted several tests for the benefit of the members during his address that had them simply gasping. Mr. Byford in part said—

The subject of Varnish in all its phases is difficult to cover in the short space of time I have been allotted and I therefore find it possible to only deal with the subject in a general way but which I trust you will find interesting.

The word varnish is derived from the name of the beautiful Greek, Berenice, Queen of Cyrene, wife of Eugurties, King of Egypt, about 250 B.C. She is said to have sacrificed her wonderful hair in the temple of Venus in fulfilment of a vow for her husband's safe return from a campaign in Asia. It disappeared from the altar during the night, and was discovered by the astronomer Conon, as a constellation in the Milky Way. Amber was later likened by the Greeks to Berenice's hair and called by her name. Hence the Latin word "Vernix" and its later Italian form "Vernice," whence our word "Varnish." The German name for amber is "Bernstein" or "Berenice's Stone."

Varnish is not by any means a discovery of the last few centuries as it was found to be used in the tombs of ancient Egyptians, as lacquer was used by the Chinese thousands of years ago, but no trace has been found of the formulas as to how they were made. According to records varnish was first made in England about 1790.

The manufacture of Varnish is highly technical and complex, more so during the past few years due to the advent of synthetic gums, and for this reason, not being a chemist, I would find it difficult to present the scientific side, as you would find it difficult to understand. Fossil or natural gums used in making varnish are obtained from various parts of the world, the chief sources being Africa and New Zealand. From Africa we get the Belgian Congo Gum Copal. While this gum is a vegetable product — the fossilized resinous droppings from the "copalier" tree makes its extraction essentially a mining process. The tree is found in marshy regions and the gum can be dug only during the dry seasons. The process employed is very simple, the natives use long sticks to make soundings under the "copalier" tree and dig up the deposits located in this way. From New Zealand we get Kauri Gum which is found in a very restricted area. The deposits are often deep down below the surface, occurring in single lumps or nests. The most abundant deposits are on the site of the ancient forests of Kauri, which have long since, disappeared. No information is available as to how long the period of fossilization extends, possibly many centuries. When digging for Kauri gum, the natives use an iron rod and a shovel. The gum digger learns to distinguish between contact underground with hard gum from that with a stone. After a successful boring he digs around in a circle in order to get the gum out. Lumps of Kauri gum may weigh as much as 15 to 18 lbs. Where the Kauri gum deposits are down deep, systematic trench digging is employed.

Many Other Types

While I have only mentioned two types of gum, there are many others which are procured in different forms.

Although natural gums are being displaced by synthetic gums, each has its special properties and varnishes frequently contain several of them, advantage being taken of their peculiar individual qualities that are not yet found in synthetic gums.

The synthetic resin industry, together with the Chemical standardization of the natural resin, has placed at the disposal of the varnish manufacturer the means of producing a wide range of products best adapted for specific requirements. Because of this great diversity it is practically impossible for the non-technical consumer to estimate their properties. Generally speaking, therefore, he must place more reliance than ever before on the knowledge, skill and reputation of the manufacturer, but, nevertheless, still generally speaking, these newer varnishes, for their specific uses, are far superior both in practical results and in service value and therefore more economical than the earlier product which they have largely displaced. Some of these are Amberol, Beckacite, Beckasol, Durex, Gilsonite and many other.

The manufacture of varnish calls for skill and exactness in carrying out the various formulas, there being a different formula for each kind of varnish and there may be a 100 or more.

Oils Used in Manufacture

The principal oils used in the manufacture of varnish are first, Linseed Oil obtained by crushing and pressing the seeds of Flax. The chief value of Linseed Oil is in its drying properties—on exposure to air it becomes converted by oxidation into an elastic film. The next important oil used is China Wood Oil (or Tung Oil) extracted from the nuts grown on the Ying Tung (Apple Fruit Tung) tree. This tree grows to a height of about twenty-five feet, bears large green leaves, small pinkish flowers and large nuts similar to hickory nuts. When war between China and Japan commenced the price of China Wood Oil soared from 8c per lb. in tank cars to over 25c per lb. and the expectation was that a substitute would have to be found. Shipments, however, are now being received in large quantities and the price is almost back to normal.

As a rule the iodine number of an oil gives an indication of its drying qualities, if the number is high it has good drying qualities, if the number is low the drying is poor. The iodine number, or value, of an oil is the number of grams taken up by 100 grams of oil. There are many other oils used for specific purposes, such as Soya Bean cultivated in Manchuria and recently in the United States and Perilla Oil from seed grown in Japan and many others for particular purposes.

The first step is the preparation of the varnish oil. The oil is very carefully heated in a copper kettle over a coke, gas or oil fire to a temperature ranging from 450 to 675 degrees Fahr., according to the kind of varnish to be made. Drying agents are combined in proper proportions and the oil is allowed to body up or thicken. The approximate capacity of the kettle is 125 gallons. The longer it stays over the fire the thicker it becomes and here the expert knowledge of the varnish maker plays an important part in timing the boiling correctly.

Simultaneously with the preparation of the oil, the gums are melted and when the proper time comes, the oil is run into the gum kettle and the combination is carefully cooked and stirred until a complete amalgamation is accomplished.

At the proper time, the kettle is removed from the fire and the contents allowed to cool. When cool enough, the thinners (either naptha or turpentine or a combination of both) are added and stirred thoroughly until combined. On the skill of the varnish maker depends the result obtained.

After the thinning process the varnish is put through the filtering machine and also filter press with cloths, etc. to take out any impurities. It is then pumped into the storage tanks to be used as required.

Methods of Cooking

The following method is used for cooking varnish, using synthetic gum:— The China Wood Oil and Perilla Oil is heated to 370 degrees Fahr. pulled from fire and synthetic gum added slowly while stirring. It is then put back on fire and heated to 450 degrees Fahr. and held at that temperature for 15 minutes. It is then allowed to cool to 425 degrees Fahr., driers are added and stirred in after which thinners are added to bring the varnish to the correct consistency.

The chief characteristics of varnish are determined by physical tests such as Color, Viscosity, Drying time, Moisture-Proofness, Exposure test, Hardness and Elasticity. Half a century ago varnish making was a secret art. Formulas and manufacturing procedure, though comparatively simple, were jealously guarded by their possessors and entrance to the "Stack" was as difficult as entrance to a secret society. The "practical varnish maker" sneered at the chemist and his sneer was more or less justified by the state of chemical knowledge at that time. But it was inevitable that with the advance of organic and especially of colloid and physical chemistry, an industry of such importance should arouse the interest of scientists. The consequence is that today the experimental laboratory dominates the plant and formulas are dictated, after long research and testing by the practical scientist. The old method of "trial and error" is definitely out of the picture. The advent of the "synthetics" in great number and variety has further strengthened the position of the laboratory expert, but has also brought "stack" into closer co-operation with the "lab." The rapid inroad of the "synthetics" on the other hand has stimulated technical research by those interested in the older materials, with the result that the sellers of these have been compelled to improve and standardize them for use in more acceptable form. As a consequence these old natural fossil gums, Kauris, Congos, etc. are rapidly resuming their ancient popularity. Furthermore, the technical men have been busy with the oils used by the industry, with the result that these are now available with practically any required property.

Asks About Future

What of the future? Competition is enforcing constant progress and while it is impossible to predict the improvements science will unfold, it is sure to be in the interest of the industry and the community at large.

WEDDINGS

CHANNEL—MUNDAY

Picton, (Special) —A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Wellington, when Dorothy Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Munday, Wellington, became the bride of Gordon Lewis Channel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Channel, Niles' Corners. Rev. E. N. Grant officiated. White 'mums with ferns decorated the altar and immediately in front of the bridal party was a tall basket of white 'mums. Guest pews were marked by white streamers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, made a lovely picture in her gown of printed organza over white satin, with train. Her embroidered tulle veil which fell to the hem of her dress, was caught with a wreath of gardenias. She carried a bouquet of Killarney roses, baby's breath and fern and wore a diamond and gold dress pin, the gift of the groom.

Miss H. Channel, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid wearing a gown of pink taffeta with blue trimmings, pink and blue flowered hat, and carried a bouquet of Richmond roses, baby breath and fern.

Mr. Norman Murphy was groomsman, Mrs. D. Murphy played the wedding music for the choir and the bridal processions. Ushers were Donald Upton and Donald Baitley.

A reception was held at Fellowship Lodge, Mrs. Munday, mother of the bride, was in navy blue sheer trimmed with white embroidery, and navy blue hat. Mrs. Channel, mother of the groom, wore blue crepe with matching hat. Both wore corsages of Richmond roses and fern tied with silver ribbon. There were about fifty guests. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, white candles in silver holders, with a silver basket filled with pink pompom 'mums and fern. Trailing smilax, pink 'mums and fern were used in decorating all quartett tables. Assistants were Misses Margaret Way, Hilda King, Iola Wright, Mabel Sword, Addie Forsyth, Jean Forsyth.

Gift to the guest man was a leather bill fold; to the ushers, gold tie pin sets, and to the bridesmaid, a gold compact.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Wannamaker, Trenton; Miss Norma Channel, Trenton; George Channel, Port Perry; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Channel, Waupoos; Miss Barbara Anderson, Milford; Pte. Leon Channel, Cobourg; Mrs. Fred Vandewater, Picton. Several who were unable to be present sent telegrams of good wishes and congratulations.

For travelling the bride wore an airforce blue crepe dress, matching boucle coat with mink collar, black hat and accessories. After a trip to Toronto, they will reside at Niles' Corners.

Advice to the Lovelórn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Man's in Love But Doesn't Know it

Some people don't recognize true love when it sneaks up on them with the stealth of a pickpocket. They seem to expect something in the way of the brass band or the blitzkrieg known as love at first sight.

Here's a young man who has fallen for the subtle day-by-day influence brought about by propinquity—defined as "being on the spot". The young man and the girl he has fallen for have been thrown together in the same office for two years. The young man's letter follows:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"All summer I was looking forward to my cruise to see my brother in Florida, where we were going to do some hunting. I didn't stay long and returned in a couple of days for I was disappointed in the whole trip.

"Here's why: A year or two ago a girl came to work in our office. I wasn't a bit interested in her at first. She was reserved, didn't waste much time talking, and did her work very well. She wasn't as easy to get acquainted with as others, but after a while I began to see how beautiful she really was. Her features were regular, she had looked as if it never could say anything cruel or unworthy.

"I didn't realize what a hold this girl was getting on me. I met her at office parties, and she always looked lovely in her fluffy evening dresses and was so nice to me. The day after, when in the office, she'd never refer to the party, but would be the same businesslike and courteous person she always was. I resented this.

"I invited her out several times; sometimes she'd refuse and again she'd accept. I usually had a swell time, but I didn't like the way she held me off. I expected to kiss her goodnight as I do other girls when I take them out. But she just melted away, thanking me for a pleasant evening, but no kiss.

"I kept telling myself I didn't care for this girl, but the truth was I couldn't get her out of my mind. I looked forward to going to the office, and usually went out of my way to say something mean to her. But she just smiled and didn't answer — I just couldn't provoke her.

"I had been anticipating my leave from the office so that I could get away from her, but the loneliness of not seeing her— the flat, stale, profitless task of going through a day without her — was cruel. I stayed only two days and came back. Invited her to dinner and a show afterward. She accepted and I was really happy then.

"She didn't question my coming back sooner than expected; didn't tease me. There's nothing smart Alecky about this girl, thank goodness for that. But I'm beginning to wonder if this is real love at last or is it that diabolical thing called propinquity, that some cynic has called "woman's chief charm"?

"Still, I ask myself the same old question—is this really love or is it fascination? And was the whole thing brought about by being thrown together in the same office?

"B.R."

It seems to me that your name should be "Doubting Thomas". What greater assurance can you have than that you were so miserable when you were away from this girl that you came back to be near her? You love her sweet, quiet ways, and the fact that she's not the come-easy, go-easy type. She fills your life completely —what more do you want?

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Tabernacle Auxiliary was held in the church parlors on November 14. The meeting opened with the singing of the National Anthem followed by prayer by the president. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The treasurer gave a very encouraging report. Funds raised to date compared favorably with last year.

Mrs. Froats, the delegate to the sectional rally, gave a very full report of the morning session. One of the many points noted was the unlimited scope for work for the Associate Helpers in Belleville section, there being over 600 women in the churches who are not W.M.S. members.

The third story of the study for this year was introduced: Miss Shipley of Honan, giving her life and education in Canada and her work in Honan, China. She introduced a phonetic system in her mission, had religious education and Sunday Schools. After two years on furlough she returned to Honan in 1939 and died shortly after her return. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

FASHION FLASHES

Just one perfect dress is the ambition of most of the daughters of Eve. Our idea of perfection is a simply styled evening frock fashioned of heavy blue lame with a raised design of silver roses. Deep decolletage fore and aft, short puffed sleeves.

Wife Preservers

Hospital Auxiliary Plans Busy Season

The Hospital Auxiliary held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, November 19, in the Nurses' Residence with a large attendance. Several items of business were discussed and settled one of which was the changing of the regular meeting from the third Tuesday to the third Wednesday of each month owing to so many Red Cross groups meeting on Tuesday.

The ladies also decided to have their regular Christmas dance which will be held in the Trianon Ballroom during the Christmas holidays. From the enthusiasm shown it appears that it will be as interesting an event as previous Auxiliary dances.

The committee in charge includes Mrs. Jack McIntosh, convener; Mrs. H. Wray, Mrs. G. H. Stobie, Mrs. M. Robertson, Mrs. J. H. Forrester, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Mrs. W. H. Finkle, Mrs. J. W. Imlah, Mrs. R. A. Flynn, Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin, Miss Ivy Dickens.

The buying of Christmas gifts for the indigent of the hospital was also agreed upon with Mrs. J. G. Galloway in charge and her committee assisting her.

Mr. G. A. Friesen, administrator of the Hospital, suggested to the ladies various pieces of equipment needed, one of which was a model for teaching anatomy to student nurses. He also mentioned a battery spotlight for operating and delivery room, in case of emergency.

The meeting closed with a refreshing cup of tea served by Miss Thompson who extends such gracious hospitality to the members at each meeting.

Most Digestive Disturbances Are Due to Liver and Gall Bladder

Some years ago my secretary (nurse) called my attention to the fact that I was finding a sluggish liver and gall bladder a frequent condition among patients who consulted me and also that I seemed to be writing about the liver and gall bladder in my daily articles more than any other one subject about which to write.

You can imagine then how "justified" I felt in spirit when I read in the Canadian Medical Journal an article by Dr. Fraser B. Gurd, Montreal, in which he stated that authoritative figures show that whereas 60 per cent of all complaints made to the physician are because of some digestive disturbance, disease of the gall bladder is the most frequent cause of indigestion. Fifteen per cent of the population of the United States and Canada suffer from gall bladder disease or disturbances, and 30 per cent of the population over 45 years of age.

In other words, if all physicans, including myself, were to tell all patients past 45 years of age that sluggish or diseased gall bladder was the cause of their digestive disturbance, we would be right in about one in every three cases without asking them about the symptoms of their digestive disturbance or using the Xray.

In acute attacks of gall bladder inflammation, the majority of surgeons advise early operation as in acute appendicitis. However, the important point for most of us is to try to prevent acute attacks by keeping our liver and gall bladder properly active.

Let us consider how common gall bladder disturbance is by remembering that three of every four gall bladders examined after death in those past middle age show evidence of disease or disturbance of some kind. This means that while only a small percentage require operation, practically all men and women past middle age should try to keep their gall bladder in good health by doing just two things.

First, eat small meals even if four or even five meals are eaten daily. While fat and starch foods should be cut down, a little fat food is useful to help keep gall bladder active.

Second, try to get a little exercise daily. Bending such as in housework is a good exercise. Walking or deep breathing squeezes liver and helps empty the gall bladder.

AT THE BELLE

"City for Conquest"

A powerful drama of love in the big city is the thrilling theme that will greet audiences at the Belle when Warner Bros. new film, "City for Conquest," starts its local run. The film, starring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan, is as turbulent, exciting and dramatic as New York City, and is now playing.

Cagney plays the part of an East Side newsboy who discovers that one must be hard and tough to make a dent in the town. Ann Sheridan has the role of a girl who finds that the price of success can be very high. Together they plan to accomplish something—to beat their way through the cruel oppression of the town's seven and a half million struggling souls. Ann dances her way to fame while Cagney tries to earn money enough to marry her and send his brother through music school. They find that the city can be conquered, but only if one can face great tragedy and sacrifice. Their's is a story that will never be forgotten.

"City for Conquest" has a supporting cast that is unsurpassed. Frank Craven, fine actor of the legitimate theatre, plays the role of a wise, old philosopher who knows his New York inside out—from the Battery to the Bronx. Frank McHugh lend humor to the film as a typical New Yorker who is never at a loss for words of advice. Donald Crisp, known for his splendid performances, runs true to form as Cagney's unswerving pal. Arthur Kennedy, fresh from the New York stage, is cast as Cagney's brother, who composes a "Symphony of the Magic Isle" that is the soul and tempo of New York.

Also featured in the brilliant cast are George Tobias, Jerome Coman, Elia Kazan, Joyce Compton, Blanche Yurke, George Lloyd, Thurston H . Ben Weldon, John Arledge, Ed Keane, Selmer Jackson and Joseph Crehan. Max Steiner wrote the accompanying musical score.

Anatole Litvak, the fine director who did such grand work with "All This and Heaven Too," has come through once more with a perfect job of direction in "City of Conquest." The film was adapted for the screen from Aben Kandel's best-selling novel by one of Hollywood's most dynamic scenario writers—John Wexley.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Angels Over Broadway"

Out-welleaing the ubiquitous Orson Welles, Ben Hecht brings to the McCarthy theatre screen his thrilling, tender, all too-human dramatic narrative, "Angels Over Broadway." Mr. Hecht wrote the original story for the new Columbia romance, adapted it to the screen, directed INt, produced it with the cooperation of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., acted in it, helped write the musical score, and in general behaved as if he had something to do with the film.

The unqualified applause which has greeted "Angels Over Broadway" is a tribute to the many activities of the many-sided Hecht. According to advance report, Angels Over Broadway" outshines in intrinsic narrative merit even such other Hechtian screenplays like "The Front Page," "Twentieth Century," "Viva Villa," etc.; it is packed with more drama, more honest character delineation and more understanding than any of Hecht's previous pictures. The new film is said too, to possess an atmosphere of brooding restraint, thrilling camera work and thoughtful stirring music. Mr. Hecht, in effect, "went to town" with a vengeance!

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is starred with Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell and John Qualen featured. "Angels Over Broadway" presents them as a boy who thinks he's tough, but isn't; as a girl out of nowhere, hunting her little niche amid the lights of Broadway; a playwright re-writing their lives, trying to play God; a little man whose heartbreak has all but destroyed him. Together, these four share a strange and wonderful adventure between the dusk and dawn of a rain-swept Times Square night.

Lee Garmes' camera work, and George Anthell's musical score, are said to lend added beauty and significance to what has been hailed as a brilliant new contribution to the screen.

Charles Starrett

Charles Starrett, fast becoming one of the screen's most popular outdoor action stars, in his latest musical-western "West of Abilene" will be presented in addition to "Angels Over Broadway" at all performances.

"Girl From God's Country"

The breathlessly exciting adventure story North of the Yukon, "Girl From God's Country" featuring Chester Morris, Jane Wyatt, Charles Bickford and "Ace" the screen's wonder dog, is still on the McCarthy theatre screen in addition to an excellent array of short subjects including Fox News, an amusing cartoon, a gorgeous technicolor hit entitled "Pony Express Days" and the most thrilling war film to date "London Can Take It."

COFFEE REGULATIONS

Mangalore, India, (CP) — The United Planters Association of Southern India will consider schemes to regulate domestic coffee sales so as to maintain price levels. European markets are lost, due to the war.

NOTE CIRCULATION

London, (CP)—Bank note circulation has expanded roughly 20 per cent since the outbreak of war, from £500,000,000 ($2,225,000,000) to £600,000,000 ($2,670,000,000). Demand for silver and copper coins has also increased.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hi Yo Silver"

In the cast of "Hi-Yo Silver" Republic's first full-length feature starring The Lone Ranger which comes to the Capitol theatre next, is the greatest animal actor in the world today. Of course he is Hi-Yo Silver, the most widely known horse in the world.

He is devoted to his master. The Lone Ranger, whose very word he obeys implicity. If The Lone Ranger says "Stay here and wait for me"—he stays there, and no one in the company can coax him to move. Bets have been made repeatedly by horsemen that they could inveigle him away from the side of his master but never yet has he wavered in his loyalty or disobeyed one of The Lone Ranger's commands. There is an absolute coordinance between horse and rider that is uncanny to watch when they are in action. Before the first take, when the Lone Ranger has been told what the next scene is to be, a run-off will take place with no camera grinding and, invariably, the horse will know his routine after the first rehearsal. Deservedly, Hi-Yo Silver is the Ameican boy's idea of all that a horse should be.

Hi-Yo Silver!

"Queen of The Mob"

One of the most exciting, suspenseful crime dramas of the season, "Queen of the Mob" based on J. Edgar Hoover's "Persons in Hiding," No simple outline of the story can convey the action packed into the picture. Murders, kidnappings, robberies cram every foot of the film, as one "Ma" Webster and her gang terrorize the country. When the government men go into action, Ma and her mob, including three of her own sons, flee south, masquerading as society folk. Eventually the trail leads to the midwest, where "Ma" and one of her sons shoot it out with the government men in a thrilling climax.

To complete this great double attraction is the "Universal News Events" and the 7th Chapter of "Tim Tyler's Luck."

Chester Morris who is featured with Jane Wyatt and Charles Bickford in "Girl From God's Country," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and charming Rita Hayworth who are featured with Thomas Mitchell in the romantic drama of strange adventure "Angels Over Broadway" which opens next at the McCarthy Theatre.

If Hair Shows Temperament

Dorothy Lamour advocates daily hair brushing

By HELEN FOLLETT

Every woman has noticed that there are times when her hair is not quite itself. It gets temperamental, goes into a decline, moults a little and lacks luster. This may be its way of protesting against neglect. Or it may be sympathetic, grieving because the general health is not strictly up to par. Worry, loss of sleep, digestive disturbances may put it out of form.

Get out the hair brush, which you probably seldom use because you fear it will disturb the finger wave, and give your tresslocks 100 strokes every night.

Rub It In

Onto the scalp trickle a small quantity of brilliantine, which will not make the shafts oily and sticky as will olive oil. Spread fingers and thumbs over the scalp and massage vigorously for ten or fifteen minutes. Move the flesh about. Keep the fingers still and do a rousing thumbing; send the thumbs in circles and lift up the flesh. Soon you will be aware of a glow, showing that the blood vessels are responding.

It is to be expected that time and money will be spent to sport the chic coiffure, but it is also expected by this pulchritude teacher, that the scalp will receive proper care so that the silky threads will flourish.

Plenty of nourishing, simple food, plenty of sleep, plenty of fresh air make the proper formula for putting curves on emaciated bodies. Girls in their teens are inclined to be finicky eaters, also inclined to overdo. They get around too much, never rest.

The fashionable figure is slender, but not scrawny.

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. When it's the "pain cry" give Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

2nd Thurlow

Second Thurlow — Neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dent met at their home on Tuesday night in honor of the marriage of their daughter Jean and her husband and presented them with a miscellaneous shower. Many useful and lovely gifts were received. An appropriate address was read by Miss Ileen Robinson to which Mr. and Mrs. Morgan made suitable reply. All sang "For they are jolly good fellows". Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Several from this line attended the Institute meeting at the home of Mrs. K. Vivian, Shannonville, on Tuesday afternoon.

Friends and neighbors of Miss Bell Clazy are sorry to know she is ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. Donaldson. All hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. D. Atkins visited with Mrs. A. Mitchell on Thursday and attended the W. M. S. dinner at the home of Mrs. Fred Melbourne. Mr. D. Atkins, Isobelle and Ronald spent the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell also.

Mr. Frank Doxtator spent a couple of weeks in the north country for the hunting season.

Masters Billy and Donnie Leeming spent the week end with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. Leeming.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Mitchell and Mrs. Gummer attended the funeral of a relative at Campbellford on Monday.

Mrs. D. Atkins and Ronald spent Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. A. Barnum.

Mrs. F. Doxtator and Mrs. P. Ray had dinner recently with Mrs. E. Whitman.

Meeting of Hazzard's W. M. S.

The November meeting of Hazzard's W. M. S. was held in the church with a goodly number of members present. The president, Mrs. Philo Harris, opened the meeting with the National Anthem and prayer, then conducted the business period in which it was decided to have a bale consisting of clothing and Christmas articles ready for the December meeting to be sent to Miss Paddock for distribution in that locality.

Mrs. Harry Love took charge of the worship service using as the theme "The Pilgrim Way" and carried it out nicely in hymn singing. Bible reading and prayer. The autumn thank offering was given and dedicated. The program of the meeting was conducted by Mrs. George Harris calling on Mrs. Snelgrove in which she read a letter received from one of our young ministers who went to Western Canada on a mission, telling of his experiences with the people away north of the Peace River district. A few echoes from the Sectional Rally which was held in Eldorado United Church in October 11th, were given by Miss Frances Keene.

Mrs. Geo. Harris gave the story of the Study Book, telling of the life of Miss Shipley, a missionary in Honan, China, who passed away on her own field of labor.

The meeting closed with Miss Shipley's favorite hymn sung as a duet by Mrs. Philo Harris and Miss Alma Keene.

Miss Reta Barry, Tamworth, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barry.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Do As Your Neighbors Do

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

May I ask for your help in a question that is bothering me very much?

I am a stranger in a town of about one thousand inhabitants. It seems that here the women do not call on strangers, but when they give a party, they invite the newcomer either by telephone or in person. They do not first call.

I have always lived in a large city, where it is the custom of the hostess to call on the stranger before extending an invitation to her.

The other day I received an invitation to a card party from a hostess who had not called on me. I did not accept the invitation because I felt that it was not the proper thing for me to do.

Was I right or wrong in doing what I did?

A. W.

Since you have given me the privilege of being completely honest with you, I want to say that I definitely do not agree with what you did in response to this invitation.

Granted that you have been accustomed to a different social point of view, you must realize also that community customs vary tremendously. This question of calling on newcomers is one of the most important variations.

The only sensible rule for a newcomer in a community is, when you live in a certain locality, do as your neighbors do. If you do something that is out-of-step with what you know are the local customs, you won't be able to organize your place in the community social life.

The hostess who invited you to this particular party was doing what she is accustomed to doing, and she thoughtfully and generously offered you her hospitality. If you look at her hospitable invitation both from her point of view and that of the custom she is following, you will agree that it is short-sighted to refuse her kind invitation. You are in the position of knowing more about their customs than they are of knowing about the customs to which you have been accustomed. Therefore they will be in the dark as to how to interpret your refusal of the invitation.

You are faced with these alternatives: either to go on refusing the invitations of these hostesses; or, having "regretted" this first invitation, change your point of view and decide to understand their customs.

Please decide to take the latter course and enjoy the life of your new community and enjoy knowing these kind hostesses.

Date Problems Lead to Divers Questions

One of the questions frequently asked me is,

"What is the most tactful thing to say if you want to refuse a boy a date?"

The answer depends on what you want your refusal to mean.

If, in refusing, you wish to discourage further attempts of the boy, to date you, the most tactful thing to say is, "I'm sorry, but I'm going to be busy on Saturday evening." If the boy continues to ask you for dates and you don't want to go out with him, you'll have to continue to give "busy" as your excuse. Eventually he'll get the point!

But if you don't want to close the door on future invitations from him, then you should give a more specific reason: "I'm so sorry that I can't see you on Saturday. My two cousins are arriving from Chicago on Friday to spend the week-end with us."

This leaves the suggestion of "another time" up to the boy.

Question: "When a boy calls for me at my house, should I introduce him to my mother, or to any other member of my family who happens to be around"?

Yes, by all means. Not to do this shows that your thinking is all wrong, and that your manners are shoddy. Do the young man the honor of introducing him to your mother — always — and to any other member of your family who happens to be around. This is also, of course, a courtesy you owe your family.

Question: "Is it proper for a girl to call a boy on the telephone?"

It is proper for a girl to telephone to a boy if she has a real reason to do so, a really valid reason. But whether girls are willing to admit it or not, men are still old-fashioned about wanting to take the initiative in telephone calls. It's usually true that the girl who wonders about the propriety of calling a boy on the telephone, is the one who is inclined to invent excuses for calling him. The wise girl is the girl who lets the boy do the telephoning.

Question: "Is it the girl or boy who should bow or speak first, when they meet?"

The girl is given the privilege of acknowledging acquaintanceship with a boy. Generally, however when they know each other well or even fairly well, this formality isn't observed, and they bow or speak simultaneously.

Question: "Is it the girl or the boy who suggests that it's time to start home from a dance or other party?"

This is the girl's responsibility, and the boy should immediately follow her suggestion!

Question: "How should a girl acknowledge a compliment from a boy?"

By saying a gracious "Thank you", or, "Thank you very much, Bob. I'm so glad you like it." Her words should be gracious, but a bit on the casual side — she shouldn't appear overwhelmed!

Question: When a boy has taken a girl out for the evening, should he thank her or should she thank him?"

The mannerly boy thanks the girl for the evening, and the mannerly girl expresses her appreciation of the boy's thoughtfulness and of the evening's fun.

She might say, for example, "I've had a grand time tonight, Tom. Thank you so much for asking me to go to the dance", or, "It was a delightful evening, and I enjoyed every minute of it."

COURTESY TIP

The fact that you have paid for a service doesn't mean that you should omit thanking for the service. For example, when a courteous person gives a tip to a waiter or waitress, he or she accompanies the tip with a gracious "Thank you."

Rhythm In Math

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Most of us learned the multiplication tables in groups of 2's, 3's and 4's. We said: "2 times 1 are 2, 2 times 2 are 4, 2 times 3 are 6", and so on. The 9 times was the last one and seemed the hardest. Some of us also learned the tables of 10's, 11's and 12's. Few do nowadays. However most children today learn the multiplication tables about as we did.

There is something about the rhythm and order of these tables that make them easy. But after you have learned a table, say of 7's and know it perfectly you might have trouble on meeting up with a combination out of its order. I remember, for example, that for a long while after I could say the table of 7's rapidly and accurately, I would have trouble when I had to multiply 6 by 7 or 9 by 7. I could not get either one until I had said over all the rest of the table of 7's from the beginning to the combination wanted. Other adults tell me they must do so still with certain multiplication facts. I have found numerous school children who must.

Facts as Facts

It is a much better practice to learn each multiplication fact as a fact alone, therefore, not to learn it in a table of 2's, 6's, 7's and the like. Accordingly, the child would learn, for example, the fact, 2 times 7 are 14, 6 times 4 are 24, then 3 times 9 are 27. This is just as I suggested the learning of each of the 100 addition and 100 subtraction facts. In ordinary experience with numbers we don't stay in the table of any one group. They come at random. Why not learn them so?

A good way is to write down all the tables, then cut them up, shuffle the slips of proper pairs, draw them by chance and copy each combination as you draw it. Then you will have a sheet of all the multiplication combinations which the child will need to memorize.

If you do so, be sure not to have the child attack more than three of these facts at a sitting. The child saves time if right after he memorizes the fact, "3 times 7 are 21" he also memorizes the fact, "7 times 3 are 21." He might know one without knowing the other.

Table Talk

The chances are that your child will have to learn his tables at school in groups as you did. If this is the way it is done at school don't interfere. Encourage the child to go on the school way. You might, however, induce him to practice in any such table by having them cut the pairs up in slips and shuffle the slips and then try himself out on them, being careful to look at each product if in doubt.

Encourage him never to use any multiplication, addition or substraction fact in a problem until he has first memorized this fact. Let him learn by heart each number fact first then use it as soon as possible thereafter.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

SLEEP AND STATURE

We grow in our sleep, all of us, old and young alike, are tallest in the morning when we get up. The cartilege that separates the vertabrae in the spine is soft, and when we go about during the day in an upright position, the cartilage is compressed by the weight it supports, so that our height is reduced perhaps half an inch.

In childhood, another, more real kind of growth takes place in sleep. During the day when they are up and around, their systems are too occupied in supplying physical and mental energy for their activities to spare any material for growth. When they fall asleep there is energy to repair any damage to the body and to develop it.

This is the reason people who are sick nearly always feel better in the morning. For that reason, too, one of the prime rules for a child who wants to grow tall, is to get plenty of sleep. Adults don't need as much sleep as adolescents or children because they have ceased to grow and so the energy that in children produces growth doesn't need to be conserved. Adolescents should have a good nine hours sleep at night and younger children should have more. The amount should decrease from an average of about eleven and a half hours at five years down to nine hours at the age of fifteen. After an especially strenuous day the child should get more sleep, and when sleep is lost one night, it should be made up for the next night. Rest periods during the day are especially beneficial, and a child should rest for half an hour after each meal. Children up to the age of seven should have an afternoon nap.

Mothers have replied that it is easy for me to give this advice, but it wouldn't be easy for me to get the children to follow it. The children will not create difficulties if handled the right way. Most children want to grow "big and strong," in a hurry, and are willing to do whatever they think will have that effect. However, they are adverse to going to bed for naps if the naps are made to seem like punishments, or if the naps seem to make them miss things.

The mother who is in the habit of taking little Johnny with her when she goes out, naturally is going about things the wrong way if she says, "Now lie down, like a nice boy, Johnny, and have a nap while mother goes out for a while." Johnny is given the idea he is going to miss something if he lies down for a nap and would rather not go to bed.

The daily nap is no problem if it is created as a habit in early years and kept up consistently. The child can be made to see that it really feels better and has more energy for play, after on afternoon nap. The trouble is that the mother too often expects Johnny to take an afternoon nap one day, and skip it the next. Or she doesn't insure that the house is quiet during the nap hour. Some children are expected to take their naps during noise that even an exhausted adult couldn't sleep through.

Even adults can increase their stature to some extent. Although the results aren't great, there are plenty of examples of people past the growing age who have increased their height by half an inch or an inch by following a strict program of exercise and rest.

RED WINGS RALLY

Sid Howe Scores Two Goals to Assist His Team in Getting 4-4 Draw

(By Robert Clarke Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Vague but persistent rumors are making the rounds that several secret weapons are under consideration by the enemies of New York Rangers as a means of stopping the National Hockey League drive of Lester Patrick's machine.

One report has been heard that Art Ross, the Boston Bruins' inventive genius, intends to start work shortly on a puck that becomes invisible when it touches a Boston hockey stick. Ross is said to be planning to turn his hand towards this idea once he has taken a few more bounces out of his non-bouncing puck.

Another of the reports, all of which are unconfirmed, is that Manager Mervyn (Red) Dutton of New York Americans is seeking patents on a plan whereby the Americans' goal net jumps behind the goal judge's cage every time the Rangers start down the ice.

Customary Measures Fail

The different N.H.L. leaders are reported to be turning their thoughts to such novel ideas because of the apparent difficulty in derailing the Rangers by ordinary means. The customary measures have failed to bring a defeat to the Rangers in their four games so far this season.

Ordinarily, a four-game undefeated streak wouldn't cause much concern to the other teams in the league. However, all six other clubs remember only too well the time last season that the Rangers set up a record by going 19 games unbeaten. And after all, there has to be a start to such streaks.

The Rangers made it two victories and two draws for the season last night by defeating their city rivals, the Americans, 3-2, before 8,673 fans. The victory gave the Rangers a game lead in play for the McBeth trophy, which is emblematic of the New York city championship. They won the trophy last season, with five victories and a tie in seven contests. Boston Bruins and Detroit Red Wings drew 4-4 in the only other game.

Run Up 3-0 Lead

The Rangers, in remaining the only undefeated team in the league, ran up a 3-0 lead on goals by Alex Shibicky, Bryan Hextall and Alf Pike before Dutton's men found the range. In the third period Wilf Field scored twice for the Americans, who were pressing hard for the tying score as the game closed.

The game was fast, wide open and produced plenty of hard hitting. Art Coulter, a Ranger defenceman, and Pete Slobodian, an American rearguard, suffered injuries in the contest that may keep them out of action for a couple of games.

Coulter injured his shoulder in the first period when slammed into the boards by Slobodian and may have suffered a bone separation in his shoulder. Slobodian is believed to have fractured a bone in his left cheek in a collision with Phil Watson, Ranger centre, whose stick struck the defenceman as they fell.

Wings Made Shots Count

At Boston, the Wings made their shots count in gaining a draw with the Bruins. They only had 13 drives at goalie Frank Brimsek but four of them found the inside of the net. At one time the Bruins held a 4-2 lead and seemed headed for their first victory of the season but the Wings pulled even due mostly to the fine work of defenceman Alex Motter and forward Syd Howe.

Motter made the score 4-3 early in the third period by caging a 30-footer and on his next turn up the ice he fed Howe a perfect pass to allow Howe the chance to rifle home a blazing 50-footer for the tying score. All the Boston goals came in the second period, going to Mel Hill, Roy Conacher, Art Jackson and Herbie Cain.

Howe opened the scoring with a goal in the middle of the first period while the other Detroit score went to Syd Abel. Howe's two goals gave him a record of three goals and six assists in six games and his nine points makes him the leading point scorer in the league.

TORONTO LEAFS TO PROPOSE PLAN

Hope to Retain Berth in International Ball Loop to 1941

Montreal, Nov. 20. — (CP)—The Montreal Herald in a sports page story today says the Toronto Baseball Club will propose a plan at the next meeting of the league executive "which would make it possible for the Maple Leafs to remain in the International Baseball League".

The Herald says that Senator Salter Hayden, president of the Leafs, held a series of lengthy conferences with President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League here during the week-end.

"While the result of their discussions was not disclosed", the Herald says, "it is known that the perplexing Sunday problem seems to be the root of the Toronto Club's financial difficulties".

The Herald, pointing out there were intimation when Manager Tony Lazzeri was released recently that Toronto would not operate in the coming season, adds that "lack of Sunday gates owing to Ontario 'Blue Laws' was then given as the reason for the probable disbanding of the team".

The Montreal paper says that Toronto, by not playing Sunday games at home, thus provides a greater number of home Sunday games to other teams in the league. It adds "it has been suggested in more than one source" that the Leafs should get a greater share of some of these Sunday gates than the regular 19 cents per paid admission as provided in the league constitution.

"The plan will be put up to other clubs of the International League during the December sessions of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues at Atlanta, Ga.," the Herald concludes.

STAR-STUDDED ENTRIES IN OHA PLAY TO DRAW

Hamilton and Niagara Falls Fail to Gain Decision in Their Contest

A FREE-FOR-ALL

Doug Fritz and Hal Cooper Trade Punches but No Damage Done

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP)—Two star-studded entries in the Senior "A" Division of the Ontario Hockey Association—Hamilton Dofascos and Niagara Falls Brights—have yet to prove which is the better team. The one that furnishes that proof is a good bet for the league title.

The two clashed here last night in their first meeting of the season and failed to settle anything—even a fight. They played to a 3-3 overtime draw and Hamilton's The single point, however, raised Cooper swung a few punches to no decision.

The single point however, raised Hamilton to undisputed possession of first place, one notch up on the idle Toronto Marlboroughs. Niagara Falls are third, another point back.

Down 2-1 at the end of the first period, the Falls came back with a rush to score the only goal of the second session and went into the lead early in the third on a tally by Art Stuart. Polly Miocinovich sent the teams into their scoreless overtime session after 13 minutes of the final frame on a pass from Woody Woodward.

Johnny Barlow opened the scoring for Hamilton less than two minutes after the start of the game. Blink Bellinger got that one back on an assist from Bobby Walton. The crack Hamilton line of Fritz, Clarence Shillington, and Dillon Brady, accounted for the second home score.

The Falls marksman in the middle session was Joe Catlin on a solo effort.

Midway through the second period, the bespectacled Fritz, who took punishment from Falls' defenders all through the game, struck Cooper on the face. After a flurry of fists, the pair was sent to the penalty box where they started to battle again. Players from both teams and hundreds of spectators milled about the scene and several blows were struck.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

Deception has always played a major part in football. A squad that can repeatedly, or even occasionally deceive the opposition will ride on to victory and it's through this medium of deception the Belleville Collegiate "scarlet scourge" must place their hopes of victory over Bowmanville High on Saturday. It can now be admitted the local squad was awe-stricken at the first sight of the sturdy Rubber Town squad and that accounts for the failure of the locals to inspire in the first quarter last week. However, the "scarlet scourge" soon learned that size means little, as the local "collegians" ripped and tore through the Bowmanville line until the visitors' board of strategy stood in speechless amazement. The local Collegians proved the Bowmanville line is exceedingly vulnerable and it is at this point the "scarlet scourge" will direct its attack.

Psychology in sport is one of its greatest factors. The "Collegians have been harbouring the thought that without Eddie Schrieder at the helm they were like a ship without a rudder. Although employed at Campbellford, Eddie Schrieder has consented to return and coach the "scarlet scourge" at Bowmanville on Saturday and with Eddie back to give the locals that psychological fortitude there can be no excuses offered now. Coach Schrieder has called a full practice for Thursday afternoon, the boys will have signal workouts on Friday and then it's off to Bowmanville Saturday where they might just as well realize now as ever—their five-point lead means little, as it's victory in the Rubber Town their supporters demand.

Last week was the first time we ever saw Bowmanville's triple threat backfielder, Bill Brown, in action. Brown is just as good as he was heralded and can be looked for to rise to dizzy heights on the home gridiron, therefore it is up to Coach Schrieder's secondary to "stop Brown at all costs." Like Doug Maher in Cobourg, if the "scarlet scourge" will take care of Brown we feel victory will take care of itself, and it looks as though it's the only saying: "As goes Brown, so goes Bowmanville." On the ground the locals are far superior, while Ross Clare out-punted Brown by a goodly margin here, so all the locals have to do is provide defence for the Rubber Town's aerial attacks and look after Brown to assure victory. The winning squad enters the C.O.S.S.A. finals at Toronto and here's the last big chance some of the Belleville players will have at duplicating the feats of Jimmie Follwell, Wally Hilton, Mase Rigby and those other courageous gridders, who not only had plenty of courage, but brought a senior Interscholastic football title to good old B.C.I.

If the local intermediate puck squad is eagerly searching for a right-winger, "Speedy" St. Louis and his cohorts need go no further than No. 16 North Front Street right here in the city of Belleville. At that address resides Don Leary, who played right wing for Eddie Watts' good Napanee juniors two years ago and who was the leading scorer in the junior section of the Kingston League last year. Harry Leary, a brother of Don's and who teamed with the latter last year, has a steady position with the Gerow-Leary-Currie line of the 3-47th Battery, but last year Don Leary, who only wants a trial locally, led his teammates in scoring with Napanee O.H.A. intermediates. On Friday night St. Louis' Reliance sextette meet the 3-47th Battery squad in an important Van Horne clash. With so many Belleville and district boys playing for the Artillery sextette, no doubt a goodly crowd of Belleville hockey fans will be on hand for the meeting.

Do you remember when seventeen years ago today New York State Athletic Commission ruled that a boxer must walk to a neutral corner after knocking down his opponent. The ruling followed protests made when Jack Dempsey stood over Luis Firpo while a referee counted the Argentine fighter out.

That the Cincinnati Reds are entirely "out of the red" was evidenced when dividends of $12 on common stock—nearly twice as large as in 1939—were announced October 24. World's Series receipts offset a decrease in attendance at Cincinnati, President Powel Crosley stated, permitting a larger dividend to be declared than last year, although profits on the season were down $117,553.

Apparently there is little use in playing Saturday's Eastern Canada senior football play-off games. Well—that is taking into consideration the statements of the heads of the Ottawa and Balmy Beach clubs. The Beachers say they want a single game in the Eastern finals, while in Ottawa the Rough Rider moguls are undecided whether they want one or two games. Perhaps some person should tip the Beachers and Ottawa off to the fact that Sarnia and Argonauts are still in the hunt, despite the fact they are far in arrears. In the meantime the Winnipeg Bombers have commenced training under Eastern rules for the proposed east-west play-off game next month.

SPORT SLANTS—Jewel Ens, former manager of the Indianapolis club in the American Association, was appointed coach of the Cincinnati Reds yesterday.... Ens, former Pirate manager, replaced Jimmie Wilson, who was named manager of the Chicago Cubs yesterday...... Port Colborne High School defeated Niagara Falls Collegiate 12 to 0 yesterday to win the Niagara Peninsula secondary school title...... The "Sailors" now meet Orillia in the C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals; playing the same day in a sudden death game that the "scarlet scourge" plays in Bowmanville, in the other half of the C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals...... Ontario's Sunday "blue laws" are said to be the reason the Toronto Maple Leafs are folding up in the international ball loop...... Why not take a leaf out of the Western Ontario diamond booklet, they play Sunday baseball and ask no questions up around Windsor...... The Belleville junior hockey team may be represented in Toronto on Saturday by two local delegates—Bill Cook and Claude Tice—we hear.

Bitter By-election Campaigns Fought in the Province of Quebec

Quebec, Nov. 20 (CP)—The results of two bitterly-contested Quebec Provincial by-election campaigns were locked up in the ballot boxes today, one definitely a victory for Premier Godbout's Liberal Government but the other on the basis of known figures, a gain for the Union Nationale party of former Premier Maurice Duplessis.

Hon. Hector Perrier, recently appointed Provincial Secretary, carried Terrebonne yesterday by more than 1,000 votes over Leonard Blanchard, Union Nationale, but in Megantic Tancrede Labbe, the Union Nationale candidate there, had a 54-vote margin over the Liberal Alphonse Olivier.

Labbe's margin was on the basis of figures gained from what Returning Officer Arthe Dostie termed "the best sources possible." Dostie said it was made on a count of detailed figures for each candidate from 42 polls of the riding's 71, and on majorities reported from others. In some cases he had not heard directly from Deputy Returning Officers. He did not believe the result of the election could be known definitely until Declaration Day, Nov. 26, when the ballot boxes will be opened.

Dostie announced Labbe's majority after a re-check of figures which had been counted earlier to give a margin of 27 to Olivier. Olivier's supporters at the end of the night declared they were "conceding nothing" before Nov. 26 though on "incomplete returns" Labbe "appeared" to be elected.

OFFER WITHDRAWN BY GREAT BRITAIN

Reason Given India Failed to Gain Representative Support of August Offer

London, Nov. 20—(CP)—Britain withdrew today her offer to give India's political leaders greater voice in the executive council and on the war effort, because the offer of last Aug. 8 to give India "free and equal" partnership in the British Commonwealth of Nations failed to gain "sufficient representative support."

The Marquess of Linlithgow, Viceroy of India, declared "We note with regret that India's major political parties are not in present circumstances prepared to take advantage of the proposal."

(The offer was announced in the House of Commons and in India in an appeal to India's millions to aid in the Empire's fight against the Axis powers.)

He said Britain "still is prepared to give effect to them (proposals looking toward eventual dominion status) as soon as it is convinced that a sufficient degree of representative support is forthcoming."

"But as that degree of support has evidently not yet manifested itself," the Viceroy's statement added, "His Majesty's Government have decided that I should not be justified in expansion of my executive council, or establishment of a war advisory council at the present moment.

"I do not wish to conceal from you the keen disappointment I feel at this failurue to secure within the framework of a constitution due expression of the ultimate essential unity in which the hopes and labors of so many of us were founded and on which must depend the future position and influence of India in time to come."

3 RCAF AIRMEN DIE IN ACCIDENTS

(By The Canadian Press)

Investigations were underway today into the two Royal Canadian Air Force plane accidents which claimed the lives of three youthful airmen and two forced landings from which R.C.A.F. pilots escaped uninjured.

The dead: Leading Aircraftman Robert Samuel Watt, 19, of St. Catharines; Leading Aircraftman John Harold Whalen, 18, of Ottawa, and Leading Aircraftman J. A. W. Boyd, 19, of Montreal.

Lac. Watt and Lac. Whalen were on a practice reconnaissance flight from their home base at Camp Borden training centre Tuesday night when their training ship nosed down a few miles from Camp Borden and crashed with terrific force.

They were thrown from the plane by the impact and were killed instantly. Lac. Watt was pilot, according to R.C.A.F. officials at Camp Borden, but reason for the crash was not known. The plane burst into flames soon after striking the ground.

The other fatality occurred late Tuesday at the training centre at Jarvis. Lac. Boyd ran onto the landing field as a training plane had returned from a routine flight. He ran around to the front of the plane and the revolving blades of the propeller struck him.

Boyd, who was training as an observer, was badly slashed and was killed instantly. An inquest was considered unnecessary.

Running short of fuel, one unnamed aircraftman brought his R.C.A.F. training plane down on a farm near the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph. Another airman, whose name was not revealed, was forced to make a landing near St. Thomas because of bad visibility. Neither plane was damaged.

Soviet Newspaper Admits Italians Losing in Greece

London, Nov. 20.—(CP)—The British Broadcasting Corporation Tuesday quoted the Soviet Army newspaper Red Star as saying the start of the war in Greece "cannot be regarded as a success by the Italians".

"The Italians hoped to occupy Greece quickly", the BBC quoted the paper as saying, "but it is already obvious that the Italian command has erred in this respect".

The paper declared that British and Greek bombers are influencing the operations against the Italians the BBC said.

The BBC added that the paper warned against overestimating Greek successes, and said that "despite their disasters, the Italians may be able to start a new offensive".

U. S. Destroyers Examine Ships' Papers Off Tampico

Mexico City, Nov. 19 —(AP)— Crews of the Mexican tanker Cerro-Azul and the Honduran freighter Ceiba said today upon arrival in Tampico from New Orleans that United States destroyers eight miles off Tampico had ordered them to stand by for inspection of the ships' papers.

Official Mexican reports said the presence of the destroyers last Saturday caused one German merchant ship master to scuttle his vessel and three others to scurry back to Tampico for refuge, believing the warships were British.

The Cerro-Azul and Ceiba crews identified the destroyers as the Plunkett, one of the U.S. navy's newest, and destroyers 210 and 233. (Jane's Fighting Ships lists the 233 as the Gilmer and the 210 as the Broome.)

Mexico City newspapers expressed surprise at what they called the unusual vigilance shown by United States ships on neutrality patrol. Universal said the three destroyers inspected the papers of the two merchantmen "regardless of the fact that the Mexican warships Queretaro and G-24 and G-26 were at anchor at Tampico."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop and a paper boy went passed yelling something all his might about the war so people would buy a paper to find out more, and I said, What's he saying, pop?

Nothing cheerful, you may be sure, pop said. Bad news travels lounder than good. We should all feel very humble and grateful to be living in this peaceful part of the world, because all our so called cares and troubles are trifling and significant compared to what people are going through across the ocean. So the next time we think we have something to complain about let us remember that we are comparatively as free as the wind and as carefree as the birds. We can say and write and read what we please, and what elts matters, compared with that? Owtch, confound it, horse blanket to blazes, he said, and I said, What's a matter, pop, have you got something in your eye? What is it, pop, what's it feel like? I said.

It feels about the size of an old fashion rocking chair, only sharper, pop said. Blast it to blazes, he said, and I said, Well jimminy, pop, remember this is a free country and no matter what happens to you, you can say what you please about it.

A free country, dont make me laugh, pop said. Here I am, a taxpayer, walking along minding my own business, and a half a load of coal crashes into my eye. Yes indeed, nobody charges me a cent for it, it's all free because of the broad-minded way this town refuses to disturb the dust in the streets, and I'm not even free to say what I please about it with you standing there gawking, he said.

Meaning I was too young to listen to what he was thinking.

Proving everything seems serious if it happens to you, no matter what elts is happening to other people other places.

Germans May Attempt To Invade Britain At Anytime-Crigg

London, Nov. 20—(CP)—Sir Edward Grigg, War Office Undersecretary, warned the House of Commons today the Germans might attempt to invade Britain "at any time," particularly since their triumphs are beginning to look a little tarnished."

A large part of the Nazi army, he declared, still "stands marshalled behind invasion ports."

Rawdon

Rawdon — The members of Bethel Ladies Aid staged their annual pie social on Thursday evening at Bethel United Church with a good crowd in attendance. Several visitors were present from nearby communities and the ladies realized over twenty-eight dollars.

Rev. J. E. Beckel was chairman for the occasion and Mrs. Will Heath presided at the piano for the opening hymn, which was quite appropriate in these days of stress.

Mr. Bill Jones of Stirling delighted with two musical selections, guitar and harmonica. Mr. Jack Baker of Bonarlaw sang two vocal numbers, Mrs. Harold Elliott as accompanist. Miss Poynter, Mr. Arthur Duncan and Mr. Bill Jones all of Stirling, with the latter playing the accompaniment sang several numbers. Miss Marion Daniels of Foxboro delighted with two readings. Mr. Clayton Tummon of Stirling with Mrs. Tummon as accompanist sang two songs. Mr. Arthur Duncan appeared twice in the program with his usual line of comic stories.

Rev. A. Marshall Laverty, B. A., B. D., of St. Paul's United Church gave a brilliant address on "Britain's part in the war" and said we are waging war in order to insure peace. "We as Britishers prefer to die on our feet rather than to live on our knees" was the words of a noted Englishman. Truly the Democracy's way of life is opposed to Hitler's way of life.

This war is a battle for the soul of man and each individual must help to keep the morale high.

At the close of this fine program the ladies of Bethel served an appetizing lunch of sandwiches, fruit salads, sweet apples, all kinds and varieties of pie, cake, tarts, pickles and coffee to which all did ample justice to such an array of good things provided.

BOMBERS START PRACTICE FOR EAST-WEST GAME

Game Will be Played in Toronto December 7, but Not for Grey Cup

UNDER C.R.U. RULES

Team is Free From Injuries and Would Welcome a Game in East Before Big Contest

Winnipeg, Nov. 20 (CP)—Winnipeg's power-laden Blue Bombers today continued practising for a football game which may never materialize.

Aided by almost perfect rugby weather—cloudy skies and temperatures ranging around 40 degrees above zero—Bombers resumed drills this week, whipping the kinks out of stiff joints as they drove ghost formations across Osborne Stadium gridiron under the watchful eye of Coach Reg. Threlfall.

Champions of Canada in 1939 and winners of the Western Interprovincial Football Union crown again this Fall, the blue and gold warriors are brushing up on Canadian Rugby Union rules. All practices are being held under C.R.U. regulations because if the east-west game sponsored by the Sport Service League of Ontario takes place in Toronto Dec. 7 it will be played under rules of the parent body.

All W. I. F. U. League games were played this Fall under a combination of American-Canadian rules—contrary to a C.R.U. ruling. This cost Bombers a chance to participate in an official all-Canadian final for the Grey Cup they won at Ottawa a year ago.

Free of Injuries

Manager Joe Ryan of Bombers reports that all his players are in good shape, free from injury. In spite of the uncertainty of the east-west picture—Ryan said today he still had received no word from Eastern Canada that the game is definitely "on"—all Bomber regulars are turning out for the scrimmages under the C.R.U. code.

The Bomber manager said no arrangements had been made for an exhibition game here to keep the Winnipeg team on edge. He added, however, that if the squad goes east they will welcome a warm-up contest with an Eastern Club prior to the battle with the eastern champions.

In any event, Bombers would travel a week ahead of the east-west unofficial final date because colder weather might interfere with outdoor practices here.

Last Fall, Threlfall and Ryan scouted the eastern final between Sarnia Imperials and Ottawa Roughriders, but the manager said that so far there had been no talk as yet in the bomber camp that such a scouting trip would be taken this Fall.

The Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press)

Syd Howe of Detroit Red Wings broke a three-way tie for top place among National Hockey League point scorers last night, driving in two goals as the Wings played a 4-4 overtime tie with Boston Bruins. Howe now has nine points to the seven compiled by George Allen and Mush Marsh of Chicago Black Hawks who were idle. A newcomer to the big seven was Defenceman Alex Motter of the Wings, who scored a goal and assisted in another to gain a tie with Bryan Hextall of the Rangers and Bill Carse of the Hawks for the last position.

The leaders:	G.	A.	Pts.
Howe, Detroit	3	6	9
Allen, Chicago	5	2	7
Marsh, Chicago	3	4	7
Drillon, Toronto	2	4	6
Apps, Toronto	2	4	6
Motter, Detroit	4	1	5
Hextall, Rangers	3	2	5
W. Carse, Chicago	1	4	5

N.H.L. STARS

(By the Canadian Press)

Syd Howe, Detroit, whose two goals helped the Red Wings gain a 4-4 draw with Boston Bruins.

Herbie Cain, Boston, who fired one goal and helped in another against the Red Wings.

Wilf Field, Americans, who slammed home two third period goals as Americans lost 3-2 to their city rivals, the Rangers.

Alf Pike, Rangers, whose goal proved the winner against the Americans.

N.H.L. LEADERS

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER NINETEEN.

"What were you looking at so hard?" North asked Kilgour.

"That Charley boy in the red sash and the linen coat over yonder." He pointed to the head waiter who had appeared between von Rentner and the two merchant officers.

The American agent studied the "Charley boy" as Kilgour continued, "Well, he is someone I know, or used to know. That, my good friend, is Lau Yee Foo. Had some er—dealings with the blighter back in Hong-Kong. And," he added grimly, "be ready for trouble—he won't be overglad to see me."

"Why?"

"He knows I know plenty of people who would give a tidy bit to know where he is. Come on, maybe I can make him useful."

"All right—but duck trouble if you can."

Wavering on their feet, the two deserted their table and, after dodging among the dancers, sought that corner of the dance hall where Lau Yee Foo, very suave and alert, stood preening himself before the glass of a chewing-gum machine.

"Pehea oe, Lau Yee?" gently murmured Kilgour.

If a bayonet had jabbed the head waiter he could not have spun about more swiftly.

"Name not Lau Yee," the Chinese almost spat, his jet eyes glittering dangerously. But when he beheld the Englishman's bland expression, his parchment-like features relaxed. "Oh, Misser Inspector!" Fawning, the head waiter bowed low. "In what humble way can a poor worm like Lau Yee be of service?"

"Look out!" North snapped, but the Englishman needed no warning. His hand had shot out and imprisoned the scowling Chinaman's left, gripping the ivory handle of a knife outlined beneath the red silk sash.

"That will do, Lau Yee," Kilgour rapped in tones that were low but effective.

The head waiter hesitated, then glared up into Kilgour's steady blue eyes. "No tell? Plomiss?"

"I promise. But I must have a talk with you."

"You no make trouble for me, sure?" Lau Yee Foo wavered.

"Word of an Englishman," Kilgour said, with that firm arrogance which has won his nation a third of the world. "Now then, my lad, let's be getting out of this hall. This is my friend, Mr. Dent."

"Please to follow—"

Back through that selfsame door which had given up Baron von Rentner and his curious retinue, Lau Yee Foo conducted the two alert, suspicious white men.

"Coming up in the world, I see," Kilgour remarked as he followed the narrow white-clad back down a corridor only half lit by a small Japanese lantern.

"Yess, Honored Sir, me manager, part owner; me good China boy now and business man, too."

"You amaze me," was Kilgour's only comment, for Lau Yee Foo had suddenly halted before the entrance of a small room.

In the apartment there were four chairs and an elaborate teakwood table richly inlaid with mother-of-pearl. On this table several cigarette stubs still smouldered upon a broad brass tray. There was a bright overhead light.

In silence Lau Yee Foo stood waiting while both intelligence men studied the chamber before seating themselves.

Kilgour said crisply, "You may sit down, Lau Yee."

The three men sat in silence for many seconds . . . then the Chinese suddenly made a bow and suggested in abruptly flawless English: "Will the Honorable and Astute Inspector be good enough to tell this insignificant person what it is he desires?"

"Tell me," Kilgour began, "just what you know about a very pretty, blonde Russian girl who used to come here."

Lau Yee Foo's limpid black eyes wavered not at all. "The little friend of Mr. Kanamura?"

Though his features remained impassive, North's heart bounded. Feverishly, he hoped that Kilgour would be quick enough to deny this first identification in the hope of other useful attempts. His respect for the Englishman rose like a skyscraper's elevator when Bruce shook his sun-scorched head.

"Kanamura?" said he vaguely, "Kanamura?"

Lau Yee Foo was evidently very anxious to please. "Does the Most Honorable Inspector by any chance refer to a Russian girl who on occasion has come here with a very beautiful lady and Baron von Rentner?"

"Von Rentner? Yes, that's the girl. When was she last here?"

Lau Yee Foo's features were blank as he replied: "This afternoon past she came in at five o'clock. This worthless person thought she was going to meet Mr. Kanamura—as that is the usual time of their meeting. But the Japanese—may dogs defile the graves of his ancestors—did not come; instead came one who is called Captain Karen."

North had a premonition which was promptly justified when Kilgour inquired, "He was the blond fellow with the mustache and the bruised head who just left here?"

The oil on Lau Yee Foo's blue-black hair glistened as he humbly inclined his head. "Yes, Honorable Sir."

"She seem glad to see him?"

"That would be hard to say, Honorable Sir, but my worthless impression is that she was not."

"What did they talk about?"

"That, Most Worthy Inspector, I do not know," Lau Yee declared earnestly, "since they talked only a little in some language I could not understand."

"You understood absolutely nothing?"

"Once I thought I heard the word 'Kaanapal', though I cannot be sure."

"Kaanapal?" murmured the American intelligence officer, and raised interrogative eyebrows.

"Kaanapal, Sir, is a bay on the island of Maui."

"How long has the German been coming here?" North could have hugged Kilgour for his skillful ambiquity.

"The German, Honorable Sir?" Lau Yee Foo was very suave. "If you refer to Captain Karen, I think he is a Russian."

Kilgour shook his head. "No, I meant Baron von Rentner; how long has he been coming to the Floating Lily?"

Again the Chinese retired into some mental corner to reflect before replying. "I do not recall exactly, but I think it was early last April that the German came here with a very beautiful lady."

"Her name?"

"This least of all creatures does not know it, Honorable Inspector. The German said only that he had some private business to transact and that he wished the use of a room in this place where he would not be disturbed."

"What was the name of the Russian girl who went out with Captain Karen?"

"This unworthy person heard it only once," Lau Yee Foo apologized, and blinked owl-like in the strong overhead light, "but he thinks it was Teodora—Teodora Maxro. She never worked here—only came few times to be with the others and that Japanese—may dragons tear up all his accursed race!"

"Was there ever," North spoke for the first time, "a big American with her? A man with gray hair, pale brown eyes, and a big jaw like that—" He thrust his own jaw far out in reproduction of Abner Polk's prognathous one.

Lau Yee Foo promptly shook his narrow head. "No, Most Reverend Sir, not that my faulty perceptions have observed. I have just told Mr. Kilgour everything I know about the girl Teodora."

"Then she was with this Captain Karen late yesterday afternoon? And she left the Floating Lily in his company?"

"Your words are the substance and the reflection of the truth, Honored Sir."

"Thank you." North felt immeasurably encouraged; then he added casually, "One thing more—I ran across this ideograph the other day. Could you tell me just what this means?"

The Chinaman's fragile-looking fingers delicately revolved the paper. "Your Honor gave it to me upside down," he smiled; then his face tightened when his heavy-lidded eyes studied the symbol North had first beheld scratched on Teodora's neck.

"Honorable Sir," said the Chinaman, "that is a most unpleasant word."

"Unpleasant?"

"Yes. The character is for the Chinese words t'an tzu; though the drawing is somewhat imperfect," he added, and his jet eyes lingered on North's questioning gray ones. "It is unmistakable, however, that this character is intended to be t'an tzu—a traitorous spy."

"Oh."

"You see, Honored Sir," the Chinese explained deferentially, "there are three words roughly similar; t'an fang-ti, which indicates a superior grade of spy—possibly a detective."

North felt, rather than saw, Kilgour's mocking smile, for all his attention was trained on Lau Yee Foo's ivory-tinted face.

"Then there is t'an ma, which is uncomplimentary, but not as uncomplimentary as t'an tzu."

"Thank you, Lau Yee, I am much obliged."

The Chinese jerked another brief bow.

"You have helped us a great deal." Kilgour smiled and reached for his panama.

"And if you should choose to help us still more, you will be well paid," North added as he arose. "Here's a telephone number; if Captain Karen comes in again call it at once and ask for Mr. Dent. Oh,"—he fixed on the Chinaman a lingering regard—"if you should happen to find him sooner—"

That Lau Yee Foo was an essentially practical person was proved as he bent his glossy head ever so deprecatingly and murmured, "And at what trifling sum does this Mountain of Generosity value said information?"

"At least a thousand dollars—American, not Mex. — perhaps much more."

It is proverbial that the Chinese are masters of their emotions; Lau Yee Foo was that as he said, "This Person of no Intelligence ventures that some information may be forthcoming before long."

"This way, gentlemen," murmured Lau Yee Foo and set off down the corridor.

North objected presently. "Hold on, this isn't the way . . . Where d'you think you're taking us?"

"I merely wish to show you something," was the Oriental's reply as he halted before a small jalousie of bamboo. "Pray look out, but do not show your face at the window."

Being on the second story of the Floating Lily, North swiftly perceived that he could see both up and down the street, and then made a second, more interesting discovery.

Neatly posted about the street, four cars were strategically parked before the Floating Lily's entrance, and in each lounged at least one man.

North recognized the one on guard in the nearest car as the merchant marine officer who had been Captain Karen's companion. When this brawny watcher bent to light a cigarette, something glittered significantly in his hand.

"You perhaps would consider the use of a private exit?" was Lau Yee Foo's bland suggestion.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Nov. 20.—(AP)—A little more bearishness seeped into the Stock Market today and leading Industrials backed down on relatively light offerings.

A brief spurt of activity at the opening was succeeded by a slowdown but there was virtually no recovery and losses of fractions to more than two points were widespread near the fourth hour.

Stocks under pressure at one time or another were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, U.S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Texas Corp., General Electric' Anaconda, International Nickel and American Smelting. Rails and Utilities were narrow.

Fractional setbacks were sustained by such Canadian issues as Dome and Lake Shore Mines, Hiram Walker and Canadian Pacific. Distillers Seagram held unchanged while Canada 4s, among Bonds, dipped 1-2 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 20 —(CP)— Prices weakened today on Toronto exchange. Golds dropped 1.59 in the index while other groups had lighter declines. About 200,000 shares changed hands.

East Malartic, Kerr-Addison, Preston, Aunor, Pamour, Pickle Crow and MacLeod-Cockshutt declined 10 to 15 cents. Dome weakened 3-4 to 24 3-4 and Lake Shore 1-4 to 19 3-4.

Nickel declined 1-2 and Noranda was off more than a point. Cheaper Base Metals moved downward. Western Oils were off slightly.

Weakness marked the Steel, Utility, Paper and Building groups. Other Industrials showed little change.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Cattle trade was very dull up to mid-session on the livestock market here today with sales too few to establish prices. Hogs, sheep and lambs were steady. Unsold from Tuesday were 2,600 head of cattle. The cattle supply included 1,100 stockers.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 530, calves 190, hogs 780, sheep and lambs 920.

Common to medium butcher steers and heifers sold at $5.25-$7. Butcher cows brought $4-$5.60. Canners and cutters ranged at $3-$3.75. A few lots of common stockers sold at $5-$5.65.

The calf market was very dull with most supplies still unsold. Choice vealers sold at $10-$11. There were no other sales.

Lambs sold at $9.50-$9.75 for good ewes and wethers, $8.50-$8.75 for heavies and bucks and $7-$8 for culls.

Sheep sold at $2-$5.50.

Hogs sold at $10.75 dressedweight and $8 liveweight. Sows sold at $4.50-$5.25 dressedweight.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—(CP)—Prices ruled firm in early trade on Montreal Livestock Markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Receipts: Cattle 55, sheep and lambs 309, calves 13, hogs 312.

Fair to medium quality steers sold between $6.50 to $7.50 and canners and cutters between $2.75 to $3.50.

Veal calves brought $8.50 to $11 and grassers $4.75 to $5.

Good ewes and wethers made $10, culls and bucks $8 and sheep $3.50 to $5.50.

Hogs were $10.75 to $10.85 for B-1 dressed, $8.25 for B-1 alive fed and watered and $8.35 off trucks. Grade "A" drew $1 premium with discounts on off grades. Sows made $5 to $6.

Hog Quotations

Toronto, Nov. 20 (CP)—Unchanged prices were reported from bacon-hog markets at Barrie, Hull and Stratford early today.

Dressedweight: Barrie $10.65; Hull $10.10; Stratford $10.25 plus transportation.

Chatham, Peterborough and Brantford later reported unchanged prices.

Liveweight: Chatham $7.

Dressedweight: Chatham $9.70; Peterborough $10.10 plus transportation; Brantford $10.15 plus transportation.

U. S. MINISTER

In sending Murphy back to Vichy at this time, it was indicated that the United States Government felt it desirable to normalize relations to a greater extent. The Charge D'Affaires was expected to carry detailed instructions for explaining to the Petain regime the attitude of the United States on numerous outstanding questions.

The impression, meanwhile, appeared to be growing here in government quarters that Petain personally was offering strong resistence to Axis pressure on some points of vital concern to the United States, particularly the use of French naval bases in Africa and some of the French fleet.

Believe Petain Drawing Line

Petain's protest over German exulsion of the French population from Lorraine was regarded here as a sign that the aged Chief of State was drawing a line on the extent of collaboration with the Axis.

One possibility advanced in certain diplomatic quarters here was that, if pressed too hard by the Axis, Petain might decide to fly to North Africa and set up a government of resistance there. This, however, was not regarded as an imminent likelihood.

More immediate diplomatic interest attached to the continued presence in North Africa of Gen. Maxine Weygand, former French Commander-in-Chief and Commander of French forces in the Near East.

He is reported to have resisted efforts of some French officials to induce him to return to France.

France has large forces of professional soldiers still under arms in parts of Africa and in Syria. If Axis pressure on the French should provoke forcible resistance again, these armies might prove a big stumbling block to Rome-Berlin plans for the Mediterranean area.

Fresh Eggs Make Good Price Gain

Toronto, — Continuing the trend under way since last Saturday, fresh egg prices registered gains ranging to 3 cents a dozen on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. Lower grade eggs shared in the advance. Slackened trading kept butter around previous price levels.

Better inquiry was reported on the egg market and undergrades advanced with top-grade as light supplies of fresh eggs were barely sufficient to meet local demand. Advances of 1 to 3 cents a dozen in the retail section corresponded with the increases in the graded division of the market.

The butter market opened at the firmer price of 3 1-4 cents for No 1 grade Ontario creamery solids because the previous day's sales volume had dried up offerings, but slow trading prevailed throughout the session and the market closed in the range of 30 cents to 30 1-4 cents a pound.

Exports of cheese to the United Kingdom last week totalled 13,223 boxes, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Shipments since the first of May aggregated 1,006,389 boxes, as against 880,749 boxes in the like period of last year.

Small Turkeys Bred to Suit Average Pocketbook

State College, Pa., Nov. 20 —(AP) —The Thanksgiving turkey of the future, a bird bred to suit small family pocketbooks, has been developed by the Pennsylvania College Department of Poultry Husbandry.

This new breed is small, under 12 pounds, its growth limited by heredity. It is a cross between wild turkeys and domestic.

It is named the Nittany turkey in honor of Nitanny mountain which overlooks State College.

This experiment in heridity took nine years, first in State College laboratories and then in Pennsylvania farms, until the poultry scientists were sure they had a true-breeding marketable bird that appealed to diners.

Three years after the State College experiment started, the United States Department of Agriculture took up the work as a national need, due to the smaller size of American families and the wish of housewives for smaller and smaller birds.

At that time, the average for small birds was 12 to 15 pounds. The Nittany birds run down to eight pounds. The big birds that run up to 40 pounds are 90 per cent of the present United States turkey crop, and are suited particularly to hotels.

COMMITTED FOR BRIBERY

Calgary, (CP)—William Colpitts, suspended fur farm supervisor for the Alberta Government, was committed for trial yesterday on a bribery charge. He is alleged to have accepted $150 from Harold A. Simpson, Calgary fur store proprietor, in an effort to have Simpson's fur dealer's licence renewed. Simpson was committed Monday for hearing in criminal court.

GERMANY

In the original agreement, Germany, Italy and Japan bound themselves "to assist one another with all political, economic and military means when one of the three contracting powers is attacked by a power not at present involved in the European war or in the Chinese-Japanese conflict."

(Since then, Italy has invaded Greece, contending the Greeks had sided actively with Britain by permitting her use of bases on Greek soil.)

Second Time to Join

The brief proctol merely admitted Hungary to the partnership and stipulated she would be called in for conferences on questions touching her interests.

It was the second time that Hungary had linked herself recently with a Rome-Berlin-Tokyo agreement. The first was when she joined the Anti-Comintern Pact Feb. 24, 1939.

That Hungary, indebted to Germany for getting Northern Transylvania back from Rumania, became a treaty partner was no great surprise since she long had been considered in harmony with the German Nazi rule.

Her purpose, she claimed, is to help promote peace.

"Germany, Italy and Japan," said a Hungarian Government declaration issued here, "concluded the alliance to call a halt to further expansion of the war, which is severely burdening humanity, and thus give the world as fast as possible a lasting and just peace. . . ."

It emphasized the aid of Rome and Berlin in the recovery of Transylvania "without spilling blood and through peaceful means."

"Hungary, thrown to the ground through the unjust, demoralizing Paris peace dictates and during two decades," it said, "turned for help to those powers which were suffering from an equal fate and the same injustices and were fighting for their vital rights. . . ."

Status Remains Unchanged

The declaration asserted that Hungary hopes to maintain good relations "with all neighbors who respect the rights of her historic development" and, in this respect, mentioned "special satisfaction" at "article five of the Berlin three-powers treaty"—that the existing status between Russia and the treaty signatories remain unchanged.

Of Germany and Italy, the declaration said they "have proved through deed that they are aiming at revision with peaceful means wherever the slightest possibility is offered."

"Therefore," it concluded, "they have created a new epoch in the history of Europe's peoples since, in place of a policy of hatred born of bloodshed, they have introduced ....understanding and insight...."

German sources already have indicated that arrangements have been prepared for a gigantic military operation—an attempt to cork both outlets of the Mediterranean at one time by blows in the east against Suez and in the west against Gibraltar.

The visit to Hitler earlier this week of the Spanish Foreign Minister, Ramon Serrano Suner, was followed by hints of agreement on Spain's part in German plans—whatever they may be.

Yugoslavia Next

Hungary's entry into the pact puts an Axis pressure spot now next to Yugoslavia, which Rome and Berlin have regarded as not as warm toward the German-Italian design for a new Europe as other Balkan states.

With Greece at war with Italy, Germany is faced with the potentiality at least of what Hitler has sought to avoid—war on two fronts.

Some sources said it appeared obvious that Hungary's alignment with the Axis was designed to dissuade other Balkan nations from following the Greek example of resistance.

The only publicly - announced movement of Nazi troops southeastward was the establishment of some divisions in Rumania for the stated purpose of training Rumania's army, protecting her oil fields and frontiers.

500,000 Men in Rumania

(The German strength in Rumania has been estimated to be as high as 500,000 men.)

Hungary was the first to be called to sign up with the Axis, Nazi sources sought to explain, because she was the "chief victim of the Trianon and Versailles treaties."

Significantly, foreign correspondents from Rumania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia were invited to go to Vienna for the ceremony along with Italian, German, Japanese and Hungarian newspaper men. Americans and other correspondents were not invited.

German foreign office sources were non-committal as to whether the Rumanian dictator, Gen. Ion Antonescue, would sign up when he visits Berlin in the near future.

Text of Protocol

Vienna, Nov. 20 —(AP)— Following is the text of the protocol making Hungary a member of the German-Italian-Japanese alliance:

The governments of Germany, Italy and Japan on one side and the government of Hungary on the other side acknowledge the following through the undersigned plenipotentiaries:—

Article One:

Hungary joins the three-power pact signed in Berlin Sept. 27, 1940, between Germany, Italy and Japan.

Article Two:

Insofar as joint technical commissions are provided for in article four of the three-power pact dealing with questions touching upon Hungary's interest, representatives of Hungary will be called in for commission conferences.

Article Three:

The text of the three-power pact is added to this protocol as a supplement. The protocol at hand is drawn up in German, Italian, Japanese and Hungarian languages, of which each text is original. The protocol is effective the day of signing.

Japan Gleeful

Tokyo, Nov. 20—(AP)—Hungary's entry into the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance was hailed by the Foreign Office today as a gain in strength for the treaty partners.

"It unquestionably will contribute," a statement said, "toward attainment of the fundamental object of the tri-partite pact and strengthening of the respective positions of Japan, Germany and Italy in East Asia and in Europe."

Hungary Given Definite Role

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 20 (AP) —Hungary by her admission to the German-Italian-Japanese Alliance has been given a definite role in the Axis program in which possible passage of German troops through this country is seen as an important factor in any campaign against Greece and Turkey, informed sources said today.

The joining by Hungary, long pledged to a policy friendly to the Axis, was reported here to have marked the initial step in executing a program of the other partners to bind Southeast Europe closer to their "new order" objective.

Some said they believed Spain, Rumania and possibly Bulgaria would be the next asked to join.

FOURTEEN TOWNS

300 Killed At Coventry.

The Coventry raiders killed 300.

Reports from the hardest-hit areas today, however, failed to indicate any such devastation as was visited upon Coventry.

All areas in a west midlands town were severely attacked, but the main damage was done to residential and business property. A large group of buildings and another of shops were reported in ruins, with huge fires brought under control.

An apartment house was hit in a London raid also, and a large steam crane was put to work this morning to lift debris off a group of persons trapped in the ruins.

Daylight raider activity following the night attacks was on a small scale. One Dornier dropped about twenty bombs over a shopping and residential area on the southeast coast this afternoon, however. There were a few casualties and considerable damage.

MAY REVIEVE BALL LOOP

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP). —Claude B. Davidson of Dennisport, Mass., former president of the New England Baseball League, announced here that plans are under way to revive the circuit in 1941.

Davidson said he had received assurance of support for his efforts from William G. Bramham, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues.

At present, except for the major league clubs in Boston, the Hartford and Springfield, Mass., teams in the Eastern League are the only teams in organized baseball operating in New England.

A government communique said the Midlands bore the brunt of the night onslaught while London escaped with slight damage and declared that although many had been killed, preliminary reports indicated "the number of casualties is comparatively small, having regard to the scale of the attack".

"The attack on the Midlands, which was on a very heavy scale, began soon after darkness and continued for about nine hours, the communique said. "Many incendiary and high explosive bombs were dropped, and extensive damage was done in several areas".

Part of Liverpool

Besides the blows at communities of the great industrial belt across Middle England, the big port of Liverpool, was raided three times after dusk; bombs were dropped on another city in northwestern England, and raids were reported on sections of the southeast, northeast, Scotland and Wales.

Other than the Midlands, the communique said, damage and casualties were expected to be small.

The industrial towns were hit soon after nightfall by the first waves of the Nazi assault which swept across England from the east, 80 to 150 planes at a time, through a cold southwest wind which increased by dawn to almost half gale force.

Some of the attacking planes hit at London, but most of them streaked for the Midlands.

They dived to the attack, one after another, hour after hour, throught the most thunderous antiaircraft barrage yet fired over most of the Midlands towns.

Five Raiders Shot Down

Observers said the pattern of the assault was the same the Nazis followed at ancient Coventry — first flares, then incendiary bombs to start fires and light the way for a shower of explosives.

The communique disclosed damage to "dwelling houses and other buildings" was severe.

At least five of the raiding bombers were shot down.

Fires were under control by dawn.

An Associated Press Correspondent telephoned from one of the Midlands towns that "material damage is extensive and includes a huge block of buildings and another block of stores".

Two large fires there were under control by dawn.

In the other of the two worst-damaged towns, informed sources in London said, the danger of spreading flames were great for a time, but the fires were under control by mid-morning.

At this town the raiders attacked in successive waves of many planes.

Tweed I. O. O. F. Lodge Celebrates 48th Anniversary

Tweed, (Special)—When the history of Tweed Lodge No. 290 I.O.O.F. is written, two dates will stand out as "red-letter" days. They are May 4th., 1892 and November 18th., 1940. On the former date Tweed Oddfellows' Lodge was instituted with forty-two charter members by Cataraqui Lodge No. 10 I.O.O.F., Kingston. On the latter date, Monday, November 18th., Tweed Oddfellows marked their return to their former lodgeroom in the Auditorium by a special observance. Once again the Degree Team of Cataraqui Lodge, Kingston was present to confer the Third Degree of Oddfellowship upon a class of ten candidates, celebrating the Forty-eighth anniversary of the Tweed Lodge's history.

Visiting brethren were present from a number of Lodges of the district, including Campbellford, Stirling, Springbrook, Madoc and Thomasburg. This number was augmented by about forty members of the three Kingston Lodges. Altogether the attendance numbered about one hundred and fifty.

The Third Degree of Oddfellowship or Degree of Truth, was conferred on five candidates from Madoc, three from Campbellford and two from Tweed, in a most impressive manner. The Degree Team was made up of members of Cataraqui Lodge No. 10, I.O.O.F., one of the oldest lodges in Canada, assisted by members of Kingston Lodge, No. 59 I.O.O.F., and Granite Lodge, No. 363 I.O.O.F. all of Kingston. During the conferring of the Degree, a male quartette from Kingston contributed two enjoyable quartettes.

Many Toasts

Following the conferring of the Degree the members of Tweed Lodge and their guests sat down to a banquet served in the new I.O.O.F. Community Hall, by the local members, who were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Potts. This was followed by an excellent toastlist with Noble Grand Thomas Graham of Tweed Lodge performing the duties of toastmaster very acceptably.

Bro. S. A. McCarey, P.G. of Tweed Lodge, proposed the toast to "Canada and the British Commonwealth of Nations". In responding to this toast Bro. Rev. Beazer of Thomasburg Lodge, spoke of the noble part being played by the British Empire today in the struggle for the maintenance of those democratic principles which are dear to the hearts of the English-speaking world. Defining Democracy as Christianity in action the speaker contended that there is nothing greater for which one could struggle. The principles for which the Axis powers stand are embodied in their hatred of the British Empire and everything which it represents. This is not a sudden development, but a steady growth down through the years, especially in Germany where their principles are inculcated in the minds of the youth in German schools.

Referring to Mussolini and his conquest of Ethiopia the speaker predicted that the day would come and was probably not far distant, when Haile Selassie would return to his one-time Kingdom of Ethiopia.

When this struggle is over concluded Rev. Beazer, a new order will appear in which labour will play an important part.

Lodge Opened in 1892

Bro. L. A. Macdougall proposed the toast to the visitors. He complimented the Cataraqui degree team for its able exemplification of the Third Degree. Bro. Macdougall revealed a most interesting bit of history when he made it known that it was a degree team from Cataraqui Lodge which had, on May 4th, 1892, instituted Tweed Oddfellows Lodge. The only surviving charter member as far as is known is Bro. S. B. Rollins of Tweed who has retained his membership in the lodge for 48 years and had been an Oddfellow for 55 years.

In replying to the toast the Degree Master of Cataraqui degree team, among other things, said that we as Oddfellows must if we would not fail in our full duty, spread throughout the world the principles of friendship, love and truth, even towards those who are our enemies.

Bro. S. B. McGee, P.D.D.G.M., proposed the toast to the new members, several of whom responded.

In his motion of thanks to the visitors, Bro. S. B Rollins, P.G., one of the oldest Oddfellows in district No. 45, traced the history of Oddfellowship in Tweed from 1892. He revealed that the chairs used by the Noble Grand and Vice Grand of Tweed Lodge were presented to the lodge 48 years ago by the members of Cataraqui Lodge on that memorable occasion.

The new home of Tweed Lodge was the former Orange Hall, built in 1913 and purchased by the Oddfellows a few months ago.

Bro. James Wallace seconded the motion of thanks.

Bro. Harry Soanes and Newton Foster of Kingston, former Tweed residents, also spoke briefly.

NOT CONSCRIPTION

Hartford, Conn., (AP)—Sign seen on the rear of a ribbon bedecked automobile carrying a couple away from a church here: "This is real love, not conscription."

BIGGER CANADIAN

As the major steps towards that end, Mr. Macdonald announced: Addition of 100 ships to the present 155 ships in Canada's navy and addition of 10,000 personnel to the present 13,000, men by the Spring of 1942.

Early re-establishment of a Canadian Naval College, similar to the one discontinued in 1922.

Development of Canada's shipbuilding industry for the building of destroyers for the first time in Canada "and perhaps cruisers as well." The assistance of skilled men from admiralty dockyards for this purpose already has been asked.

Mr. Macdonald's report to the House on the progress of Canada's naval forces was his first speech since he was elected by acclamation in Kingston city by-election last August, and he was greeted by an ovation as he rose. The report itself drew another ovation as its end for its comprehensiveness, brevity and polish.

Munitions Minister to Speak

Today, Munitions Minister Howe will describe the activities of his department when he continues the Throne Speech debate. Mr. Howe is expected to announce the setting up of a priority committee to supervise Canada's industrial war effort.

One of the other speakers at yesterday's sitting was Angus MacInnis (CCF Vancouver East).

He advised Prime Minister Mackenzie King to review without delay some of the appointments made since the war began to many of the War Boards, "particularly to the appointments made to the former Munitions and Supply Board, most of which have since been taken into the Department of Munitions and Supply.

"I want to say most emphatically that at this moment there are men in influential positions who should be retired quickly," Mr. MacInnis said.

"I am not denying that they may know a great deal about business and industry but they know nothing about democracy.

Know Nothing of Democracy Claim

"Because they know nothing at all about democracy there is liable to be trouble in this country before very long. It may be better to have a little dislocation now than a great upheaval later on."

At another point in his speech, Mr. MacInnis said: "All the Nazi-minded people are not in Germany. Many of them can be found at the head of Canadian industries. I am afraid that a few can be found around the Deparment of Munitions and Supply."

In modern warfare the morale and temper of the industrial workers was equal in importance to the morale of the soldiers, he contended. Relations between employers and workers in Canada were "not good in Canada today and are daily becoming worse."

Take Steps to Remedy Condition Advice

The worker felt the war contractor was making undue profit out of his labor and the distress of the country and felt he was being ignored by the government, Mr. MacInnis said.

"He feels the government is working hand in hand with the employers to prevent his having a say as to the terms upon which he will sell his labor ....

"Steps should be taken at once to remedy this condition if we are not to have unrest very shortly which will reach greater proportions than the unrest at the end of the last war ....

"Employers should be told that the people of Canada pay for these contracts, that these contracts are the result of the determination of the people of this country to destroy Hitlerism, but that in doing so we are not going to allow embryo Hitlers to develop among us."

Urges Revision

He urged revision of the procedure in reviewing internment cases to guarantee that innocent persons were not held.

J. G. Diefenbaker (Con. Lake Centre) disagreed with those who claim democratic rights are being lost today although he said some are being suspended. In wartime there had to be a decree of censorship although in many instances the press was "subject to too censorious a censorship."

He questioned whether the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation had become a "party vehicle" and urged a complete investigation of its administration.

Wants Markets Expanded

Because Britain had to have an export market if she were to continue buying war materials, he proposed expansion of the Canadian market for British goods. British exports last July were 22.7 per cent below those of the previous year and British imports in the same month were down 11.2 per cent he said, and "Britain cannot continue her maximum war effort unless all parts of the Empire increase their purchases from her."

A "buy British" campaign need not hurt Canadian trade. In the last four years British exports to Canada in many lines had dropped while Japan's exports to Canada had increased.

He sharply criticized Agriculture Minister Gardiner for not laying down some wheat policy in his speech last week. Instead, Mr. Gardiner had only voiced a hope that the wheat situation would solve itself in the next five years.

Advocates New Station

Tom Reid (Lib. New Westminster) proposed immediate erection of a short wave broadcasting station as a powerful weapon for counteracting German propaganda which was being poured forth continually in 20 languages.

In his naval review, Mr. Macdonald described the varied duties of the Canadian navy, and said 3,500 ships had left Canada with 21,000,000 tons of cargo since the war began because the British and Canadian navies kept the shipping routes open.

In announcing the addition of 100 ships of various sizes by March, 1942, the Minister said this signified two things:

That Canada was determined to put forth her fullest effort at sea, no less than on land and in the air, and that Canada had to have a navy sufficient to fulfil her obligations and adequate to the needs of a great trading nation.

Canada long had enjoyed the sheltering protection of the British navy, never having had a navy of her own commensurate with her trading position.

"I believe that Canadian pride, Canadian dignity, Canadian consciousness of present greatness, Canadian hope for increased stature among the nations of the world, all demand that we should assume our proper share of the burden of naval service hitherto borne so largely by the Motherland," Mr. Macdonald said.

College is Essential

Canada could not have in the near future a navy comparable to that of Britain or any one of several other great powers, but "in common sense and in honor" Canada had to build a navy not unworthy of Canada and her obligations to the Commonwealth and her close association with the United States in the defence of this continent.

The naval college would be an essential part of this development, devoted exclusively to training naval men in wartime at least. Whether it might be used in peacetime partly for training men for the merchant marine would have to be decided.

At the same time, he said young Canadians who had received naval training in England were "in the very heart of the world's naval life," and he hoped that link between Britain and Canada "will always continue."

The minister stated that on the whole the program of building ships for the Canadian navy was well ahead of schedule, which reflected great credit on the shipbuilders of Canada.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Discussing social implications of the war, he said the greatest arising from this struggle "is the drive for an effort to get rid of that horrible queue outside the labor exchange."

The Socialist Labor minister said one of the biggest contributing factors to this war was the failure after the last one to erect an economic structure based on humanity.

He told a story of one unemployment exchange where the largest room was devoted to paying out the dole while the smallest one was for finding jobs. He said that must be stopped or the entire educational system would be halted because "it is better to leave the masses untaught than to give them double appetite, both of stomach and head, and then not satisfy either."

He feared that unless the community saw the importance of action at the end of this war the country would witness the same story of unemployment which followed the last and said a solution would not be found by merely adding a few shillings to the dole.

"A new foundation must be built," Mr. Bevin declared. "It is no use Britain speaking to millions in Europe and other parts of the world in terms of Gladstone liberty. They must be offered a new feeling of hope.

"Things can never be as they were. The old age has passed. A new age has to be built."

GREEKS LAUNCH

Other gains were disclosed for Greek forces battling for domination of the supply route beyond Koritza.

"Our army ejected the enemy at bayonet point from positions which they had defended fiercely," the communique said. It added that 11 of the large number of Italian planes which attacked Greek troops were shot down, with no Greek planes lost.

Casualties Quite Heavy

(Dispatches from Bitolj, Yugoslav frontier town near the Koritza wing of the battlefront, said last night that casualies had been heavy on both sides in the relentless battle for the strategic city as Italians clung to their positions under steady onslaught.

(Six hundred Greek prisoners were reported taken, including 100 Albanians fighting alongside the Greeks in the belief their exiled King Zog would lead a rising against Italian absorption of his country.

(A member of King Zog's staff in London commented: "The King naturally is following every move in the Greek fighting, but he has not made a decision—yet.")

The Greek Ministry of Home Security poked fun today at an Italian announcement that Fascist "land, sea and air forces chased off the enemy" in an attack on the Dodecanese Islands.

The ministry said the raid was the one it reported yesterday—a "private affair" foray by fifteen persons who live in the islands and work in Greece. The ministry said they hired a motor launch, "raided" one small island, shot three naval guards and came back to Greece with four policemen as prisoners.

Tempo of War Industry Mounts in E. Ontario

Unemployment Dwindles to Lowest Point in Many Years

ALL PLANTS BUSY

The war pulse of Eastern Ontario's industry is throbbing with an ever increasing tempo as factories and shops, many of them hitherto landmarks of a former era of prosperity, are gradually fitting themselves into the Dominion's scheme of war production.

Hundreds of people are now carrying long-discarded dinner pails answering the call of factory whistle and industrial time-clock as the new phases of activity are sending the unemployed indicators down to near-zero levels.

In Belleville, as in other centres of this district, relief costs have shot down to levels unknown since Wall Street laid its famous egg.

In this city black smoke spirals daily into the sky as its war-production centres, some of them working twenty-four hours a day add their quota to the Empire's needs. Manufacturing plants, employing many women, daily send shirts, ties and other army and navy clothing into the hungary maw of governmental demand. Hardware manufacturing plants convert brass and steel into shining parts for Canada's new navy.

Another factory, the wheels of which have not turned in a decade, now hums to the whirr of shining lathes as the vital parts for Britain's Spitfires, Hurricanes and Lockheeds, are turned out daily.

In nearby Trenton, the new Aero Marine Company has already laid the keels of a number of new corvettes and speed-boats which will, in the near future, patrol the English Channel and other important parts of Empire's coastal waters.

Peterborough's Canadian General Electric Corporation has contracts that amount to millions and are sending out daily urgent requests for skilled labor. Oshawa's General Motors is another centre of activity as thousands of workers contribute their efforts to the immediate production of vital wartime necessities.

Skilled Labor Scarce

Skilled labor, as has been before mentioned, is scarcer than Italian gunboats in the Mediterranean. Employment officers are placarded with substantial offers for machinists, tool and die makers, lathe operators and others of the skilled trades. Vocational schools are holding night courses, and sending young mechanic graduates to industrial plants.

Relief costs in Belleville have dropped 29 per cent in the last year. Peterborough has lowered its costs by 56 per cent. Trenton pays only one-third of the relief moneys it dispensed last year. The same condition prevails practically all over the district. Everyone is directly or indirectly contributing to the nation's war effort.

Builds New Addition

Unemployment figures here show a decrease of 70 per cent from 1939. Industrial expansion is reaching dimensions not thought of two years ago. The Stephens-Adamson plant here has recently completed a large addition to its plant to accommodate extended war production work. Contracts in this part of Ontario run into the hundreds of thousands.

In keeping with their industrial brothers, agriculturists in this dairy-producing centre of the province are lending their aid. Cheese production for export to Britain has increased this year by a large percentage. Large shipments leave by rail and boat for Eastern Canada ports weekly. Canning factories are shipping heavy quantities of canned goods.

In the northern districts old mine workings have sprung into almost overnight activity. Near Madoc and other former centres of mining activities, fluorspar mines, long idle, are now bustling with activities. Miners work by artificial light to produce an important ingredient in the manufacture of an important explosive.

80 PER CENT SYMPATHETIC

London, Nov. 20. — (CP) — A source close to Gen. Charles De Gaulle said today that 80 per cent of the French soldiers in Indo-China are sympathetic toward the Free French movement and that if supplies were forthcoming from Britain and the United States it was highly possible some French officer might prevent Japanese from using the colony as a land or naval base.

TWIN BOY DROWNS

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 20 —(CP)— Billy Gorrell, five, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hary rGorrell, was drowned in Anglin's Bay late Tuesday when he fell off the end of the coal dock. Bobby, a twin brother, ran home and told his mother Billy had fallen into the water.

Members of the Fire Department worked over the lad for nearly an hour, but failed to revive him.

SKATER SLAIN

Mikael Staksrud, internationally famous Norwegian speed skating star, who was found murdered beside a lake near Oslo. Police are investigating the theory that Staksrud was the victim of a political plot. He was a member of Major Vidkun Quisling's pro-Nazi party, and was believed to have been kidnapped. Staksrud competed in the winter Olympic games at Lake Placid, N.Y., in 1932.

Suggest Erection Of Sign Warning Of Traffic Light

Trenton, Nov. 20—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held Tuesday evening, it was suggested that a sign warning motorists of the traffic light on Dundas Street West and Dufferin Street be erected at least 1000 feet west of the sign. The new traffic light erected to prevent accidents at this junction of Highways 2 and 33 and motorists, proceeding east on Highway 2, are not warned of the light until they are almost up to it.

Present Chesterfield Suite

The Chamber of Commerce gave a donation for a chesterfield suite which will be presented to the hostess house at the R.C.A.F. station. The suite is being donated by the Rotary Club, the Lions Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

Petition on Boxing Day Closing

A petition requesting the closing of businesses in this town on Boxing Day, signed by all the merchants in Trenton, will be placed before the council at its next meeting.

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce and the election of the officers will be held during the first week of the new year.

Mayor Alyea Returns

Mayor O. Alyea and Mr. Miller returned to Trenton Tuesday after a very successful and exciting trip to the north woods during which they obtained their quota of deer. Mayor Alyea stated this morning that there did not seem to be a scarcity of deer as many other hunters had reported.

"We didn't come in contact with any wolves but we did lose part of a deer to a big black bear. The bear had torn off quite a chunk before we noticed it. We followed it for some distance into the swamp but it got away from us," he stated.

When questioned about the forthcoming elections this morning, he informed this reporter that he hadn't given it any consideration. "I have just been away on a holiday and when I am away try to forget about business and municipal elections. However, I will decide before the end of the week."

Applications Must be Submitted to Rentals Committee

The Trenton Rentals Committee comprised of Col. A. E. Bywater, chairman, Wm. B. McClung and Wing Commander C. J. Duncan, issued an order this week that all applications for variations from the maximum rentals in effect on January 2, 1940, must henceforth be submitted to the committee. The applications should be sent to Col. A. E. Bywater, 23 Dundas St., West, Trenton.

After December 31, 1940, except in the case of new or special circumstances arising after that date, no appeals against the January 2 maximum will be considered from landlords in this area.

Any unauthorized increase in rent over that of January 2, 1940 should be reported immediately to this committee. Notice of hearing will be mailed to lessors and lessees concerned.

Mr. Oscar W. Pierce, Governor of Trenton Lodge, No. 1163 of the Loyal Order of Moose was elected by acclamation to the office of Great North Moose of Ontario Legion No. 187, at a meeting of the second degree of the Loyal Order of Moose, held in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, recently.

This is the first time in the history of the Trenton Order that this honor has been conferred upon one of its members. Mr. Pierce also was elected on September 3rd last as vice-president Centre East of the Ontario Fellowship Association, Third Degree, Loyal Order of Moose.

MUSICAL HORNS OUTLAWED

Oklahoma City, (AP) — Those unsympathetic oldsters who mutter "there ought to be a law," upon being awakened at 3 a.m. by the tootling strains of "How Dry I Am," are gleeful. The city council outlawed so-called musical automobile horns by ordinance yesterday.

TRAINING PERIOD FOR NEW QUOTA STARTS FRIDAY

Recruits Will Report at 39 Training Centres Across Canada

29,600 TO REPORT

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP). — A full quota of recruits is expected to report on Friday at the thirty-nine militia training centres across the country, ready to begin thirty days of compulsory military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Officials at the Departments of National Defence and National War Services said today everything is in readiness for the start of the second training period.

The quota for the period is 29,600 men in their early 20's, 100 more than the final quota for the first period which began Oct. 9 and ended Nov. 8. The additional 100 men will go into the training centre at Huntingdon, one of the English-speaking centres in Quebec Province.

Since district registrars have had more time to compile their lists of men and deliver notices than last time, the War Services Department expects the quota for the second training period will be filled to a greater degree than for the first. Then, 27,559 men of the required 29,500 reported for training.

2,000 Medically Unfit.

Of those who reported more than 2,000 were found to be medically unfit after examination at the training centres, leaving 25,391 to complete the course. The number rejected for medical reasons during the second training period may be lower, it was said, since doctors who made the first examination of men called up may be more familiar with army standard of fitness this time.

Staffs of the training centres have been busy since the first period ended checking over equipment and clothing for the men, and cleaning up the camp premises. Most staff officers and men also were given short leaves during the interval.

Defence Minister Ralston announced in the House of Commons last week that active consideration is being given to advisability of lengthening the training period from 30 days to four months but the change, if it is made, will not affect the period starting Friday or the one scheduled for January.

Col. Ralston is reserving final decision on the matter until after his return from a trip to Great Britain where he will study the British system of military training, particularly in its relation to the labor requirements of industry.

COVENTRY DEAD BURIED TOGETHER

172 of the 300 Persons Killed Placed in a Common Grave

Coventry, England, Nov. 20—(CP) —While anti-aircraft guns barked at a lone German raider over this bomb-devastated city, 172 of some 300 persons killed in last Thursday's night attack were buried today in a common grave in the red clay of Coventry cemetery.

Two Spitfires finally chased the raider from the vicinity of the burial ground as hundreds of mourners for those killed by others of his kind in a single night of horror laid wreaths along the 200-foot long trench dug for the flag-decked coffins.

The coffins, bearing shipping tags in lieu of the conventional name plates, were laid three deep in the trench. Some had been carried there last night.

One after the other the rest were lowered into the earth in a silence broken only by the weeping of women and men.

The Bishop of Coventry, Rt. Rev. Mervin Hay, spoke at the communal grave He pleaded for a better understanding, a closer neighborliness and determination to go on.

The Bishop was pronouncing the benediction when the German raider appeared. The crowd looked up, in anger and defiance. The guns spoke, then the British fighters moved toward the Nazi and he disappeared.

Near the grave is another trench where more of the dead will be buried tomorrow.

C. N. St. Malo Shops Taken Over by Gov't

Ottawa, Nov. 20—(CP) — The Canadian National Railways St. Malo shops have been taken over by the government and now are being remodelled and extended with a view to incorporating them in the Dominion Government's arsenal system at Quebec City, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

This source said however that it would be quite some time before production of armaments would start in the shops.

BERNE HEARS ALARM FOR 15 MINUTES

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 20 (AP) —An air alarm, the first in a week, sounded today in Basel. It remained in force for 15 minutes, from 9.45 to 10 a.m.

Engineer Believes Battle Of Britain is Still The Battle of France

By LEON EDEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 20 (CP).—Eugene J. Houdry, 48-year-old mechanical engineer, and one of the world's foremost petroleum authorities, believes that the Battle of Britain is still the Battle of France, and that victory in the Battle of Britain will prevent the Battle of America.

A sturdy, broad - shouldered Frenchman who was born in the Paris region and is head of a petroleum processing corporation that bears his name, Houdry is the elected leader of the "Free Frenchmen" of the United States, who have banded themselves into an organization known as "France quand meme" which they freely translate "France forever".

In the offices of "France quand meme" high in Rockefeller Centre, amidst a legion of workers, Mr. Houdry explained why he and other French leaders in the United States banded together and signed the charter of their organization last Sept. 28 in Independence Hall at Philadelphia.

His manner was blunt. He spoke emphatically.

"I can explain our aims very simply. They are three-fold.

"First, we want to aid our compatriots, those in France under German domination, those under Vichy, under indirect German domination, those abroad fighting for a free France.

Service of Information.

"Second, we have created an extensive service of information, a press service to fight the lies of Nazi propaganda directed against France.

"Third, we think constantly of national defence, ways and means by which we can aid Gen. de Gaulle; improvement of research facilities, and to contribute our share to United States defence.

"Naturally we are co-operating with Great Britain to the fullest extent possible."

An ex-soldier, lieutenant in the tank corps during the first Great War, who was wounded in 1917 at the battle of Juvincourt, M. Houdry likes nothing better than to cut through red tape and get straight down to issues at hand.

"The first think I'm suspicious about," he said, "is when anyone insists that 'all is going well', that 'things are going smoothly'. We must keep checking, investigating, improving. Things are never perfect; there's always room for improvement. That's the attitude that's needed in defence matters."

Feels For Petain

As a former soldier, he feels deeply the predicament of Marshal Petain.

These are the words in which he speaks of Vichy:

"For us the French Government no longer exists. There remains only in Vichy a very old and tired Marshal of France, who was so greatly beloved by the men who fought under him in the last war. We regret that his conception of loyalty, honor, duty, as well as his wisdom, are the object of a painful discussion and criticism throughout the world.

"We declare that such a government is without a legal or moral authority."

'Most Scientifically-Built Uniform Is Canadian's Battle-Dress

Ottawa, Nov. 20 (CP)—The battle-dress worn by Canadian soldiers is "the most scientifically-built soldier's uniform which ever covered a fighting man" the Department of Munitions and Supply said today.

A statement issued by the Department said assembling a uniform involves 120 operations—and the task of sewing on 40 buttons is classed as one operation. The suit weighs from four to 4 2-3 pounds, depending on the size.

All buttons are concealed to eliminate the chance that a gleaming button might reveal the position of a soldier in action and besides, it does away with the chore of button-cleaning.

At present, 35,000 uniforms are turned out in Canadian factories each week, but the Department quoted one manufacturer as saying, "Give us six weeks to tool up, and Canadian industry could produce 100,000 suits a week."

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The totalitarian "Axis" took over Hungary today in a diplomatic move which indicated Germany might soon move south-eastward toward the Dardanelles and perhaps to help Italy fight the Greeks.

Simultaneously Turkish newspapers warned their readers that war was near at hand and the Turkish Government ordered citizens to complete blackout arrangements by Dec. 1.

Today's Axis stroke showed a new technique in conquest, one which may be repeated later in Rumania, Spain, Bulgaria and possibly Yugoslavia. It was, apparently, a simple case of successful blackmail, requiring not even a soldier to enforce it.

Nearest approach to today's development was the suppression of Denmark which was accomplished with little loss of life but which nevertheless required an army of occupation which is still there. Hungary's "Admiral" Nicholas Horthy, the land-locked nation's regent, apparently took no chances on having Germany's will enforced and he had one reason to be grateful.

Hungary already has obtained a slice of Rumania and a slice of Czecho-Slovakia without having to fight for it. Germany's threats were enough for the administration of former King Carol and it surrendered the territory despite a certain amount of popular indignation.

Whether the Axis gained from its new move is problematical. Acquisition by one virtually bankrupt country of the friendship of another in virtually the same boat is a questionable blessing.

Blockade Still Insoluble

In this case Germany has obtained the allegiance in the so-called "all-for-one-and-one-for-all" "new order" lineup of a country which, like herself, is non-self-supporting. The addition of Hungary to the Axis—no longer a true Axis because it has more than two Poles—brings Germany no closer to a solution of the British blockade.

Hungary, mainly an agricultural country raising wheat and maize, among other things, might be of some value as a food producer for Germany, but she has a fairly dense population herself, more than 12,000,000 in 57,530 square miles.

Industrially Hungary produces coal and recently has experienced miners' strikes. Under a truly totalitarian pattern of government, especially if enforced by the rule of the Gestapo as it almost undoubtedly will be, such a thing could not occur. Germany herself is Europe's largest producer of coal, but she trades much of it for other goods in that complicated system she built up when she found herself unable to pay debts in cash.

Elsewhere on the European scene chief interest centred on France where Pierre Laval's efforts to obtain "collaboration" with Germany appear to have gone decidedly sour. Premier Petain is believed personally opposed to such a move and Gen. Weygand, back in his old African command, appears to have made plenty of people nervous by a refusal to return to Vichy.

Weygand has the huge and powerful French Colonial army at his back and the forces of Gen. De Gaulle ready to help him should he choose to fight any Axis move in Africa.

BOMBER CATCHES FIRE AT TAKEOFF

Two Airmen Slightly Injured at St. Hubert Airport and Plane is Saved

St. Hubert, Que., Nov. 20 (CP)—Two airmen were injured slightly today at nearby St. Hubert airport in the crash of a bomber which caught fire as it was taking off.

An official described the bomber only as "a new aircraft which was awaiting delivery." He said that two of the crew—none of whose names were made public—suffered superficial injuries when the bomber hit the ground.

There were three men aboard the aircraft, which crashed beyond the airport. An ambulance was rushed from the air field to treat the injured men.

The flames were extinguished and the bomber was saved from destruction by fire

COUPLE FOUND SHOT IN HOUSE

Cmdr. Stanfield of R.N.R. and Wife Victims of the Shooting

Southampton, Nov. 20. — (CP Cable)—Cmdr. Wilfred Stanfield of the Royal Naval Reserve, 47, one-time chief officer of the Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Australia, and his wife Louise, 43, were found shot in their home here today.

Stanfield, with a bullet wound in the head, was found upstairs. His wife was found in a dying condition downstairs and died subsequently in hospital.

An inquest was opened and adjourned until Friday. A neighbor, Mrs. C. J. Blake, was in the house at the time. She said she heard a shot and saw Mrs. Stanfield lying in the hall. Then she heard a second shot.

LEWIS TRIUMPHS OVER HILLMAN

Convention Gives Former C.I.O. Head Thumping Vote on His Policy

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 20 — (AP)—John L. Lewis had the laurels of a major victory in the congress of Industrial Organizations Convention over Sidney Hillman and advocates of new efforts for labor peace today.

Lewis was the victor yesterday with an attack aimed alternately at William Green and the American Federation of Labor high command and Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union. The convention gave Lewis a thumping vote on his policy of simply maintaining a peace committee with power to negotiate with the A.F.L.

The Hillman bloc wanted the C.I.O. delegates to consider an immediate move to re-explore possibilities of ending United States labor's civil war. But Lewis replied that there would be no peace until the C.I.O. demonstrated its strength to "bargain on equal terms" with the A.F.L.

Wants Stand Taken

The Hillman group also wants the C.I.O. to take a stand against Communism, Nazism and Fascism.

During the debate on what policy the C.I.O. should follow on labor unity delegates from the Hillman group—the Amalgamated and Textile Workers Unions—demanded a united labor organization movement without, however, surrendering the principles upon which the C.I.O. for five years has waged its militant campaign against the open shop in modern industry.

Lewis, rising to make a "few remarks," said peace with the A.F.L was fine as "an academic proposition" but that it was a waste of time to continue exploring peace possibilites.

In the course of his speech he suggested that any C.I.O. organization that could not go along with the program, could leave and go back to the A.F.L.

Asks for Board In Seniority Dispute

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP) — George Burt, Regional Director of the United Automobile Workers of America, said today he had asked the Federal government to appoint a Board of Conciliation in a seniority dispute between members of his organization and the Chrysler Corporation.

He had sent a telegram to Hon. Norman A. McLarty, Federal Minister of Labor, asking this action following a meeting of Union officials here last night.

The meeting was called after 46 men, all but one of them former Chrysler employees, were convicted under the Defence of Canada Regulations of loitering in the vicinity of an essential war service, and fined $20 and costs each. They were given the alternative of one month in jail. The men were arrested as they marched in a picket line Nov. 8.

The telegram requesting appointment of the conciliation Board as provided under the Industrial Disputes and Investigation Act read in part:

"To prevent picketing on the one hand and at the same time to refuse to grant us a board would constitute the manifest injustice of denying these employees any voice of means of expression."

India Has 60,000 Troops Serving Overseas Says Amery

London, Nov. 20 (CP)—India has 60,000 troops serving overseas and is "rapidly expanding" its army to 500,000 men "trained, equipped and mechanized" on a modern scale, the House of Commons was told by L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India.

In a statement on India's war effort, he said "the battle of Britain is leading to the battle of the Empire."

The British Broadcasting Corporation, reporting Mr. Amery's address, quoted him as saying that India could put many more men into the field than she already has.

"Indeed, some 25,000 of those who have offered their services have been temporarily releted," he said. "Only the other day announcement of 300 vacancies in the Indian army drew 18,000 applications."

Mr. Amery added that the India transport contingent, which gained distinction in France, now was participating actively in defence of Britain and that Indian troops lauded for gallantry in Somaliland were in operation at Galabat.

"There is special interest in the air service among the natives," said Mr. Amery. "With their quick minds and sensitive hands, Indians take naturally to aviation."

Children Carried to Safety

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 20 —(CP)— Agnes Douglas, a maid in the home of G. P. Gleeson, Bursar at the Ontario Hospital here, carried Gleeson's two children, Patrick, two, and Tom, 11 months old, to safety last night when a fire started in their home.

The children were sleeping when the fire broke out. It started in the basement of the house and rapidly ate its way through partitions. Origin of the blaze is unknown.

Unfair Taxation Burdens Property Says Ex-Mayor

Toronto, Nov. 20—(CP)—"Property cannot survive unjust, unfair and discriminating taxation," Jamieson Bone of Belleville, Vice-President of the Ontario Property Owners' Association told a luncheon of the Danforth District Businessmen's Association today, calling for revival and encouragement of the building and allied trades.

To do this, he said, the British system of municipal taxation and education must be followed.

"Property's rights and responsibilities must be plainly defined and adhered to. All other government and municipal expenditures must come from some other source. This includes most of the cost of primary and certainly all of the cost of secondary education.

"Municipal taxation must be levied equally on and collected from both the property owner and the tenant, collections to be enforced against both by distress respectively on property and on tenant's goods, failure to collect from either to result in loss of voting power at all elections."

He said Canada and the United States had been practically ruined by "our particularly low brand of democracy." The system was all right years ago when "only responsible people had the vote, when those who paid the piper called the tune." Now, he said, the franchise had been broadened to include, among others, "jailbirds, crooks, morons and lunatics."

DECLARE TURKEY WOULD REFUSE HER APPROVAL

Ankara Sources State Turkey Would Look With Disfavor on Passage of German Troops Through Bulgaria

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 20 —(AP)— Sources close to the Turkish government said today that Turkey would regard passage of German troops through Bulgaria as harmful to Turkish interests.

They said Turkey would refuse to approve such a movement, even though Germany might guarantee that Turkey would in no way be involved.

Moreover, if Bulgaria herself makes any move toward the Mediterranean Turkey will consider herself bound to "take measures," the sources added.

Italian Paper's Claim

Turin, Italy, Nov. 20 —(AP)—The newspaper La Stampa printed a dispatch datelined Ankara today purporting to quote the Turkish news agency as saying "Turkey would adhere to the new European order." The dispatch, said to have been received yesterday, said "This news created a certain sensation in political circles" because the agency "being official would not publish it without authorization from the Turkish Foreign Minister.

(Views given today by sources close to the Turkish Government on possible passage of German troops through Bulgaria gave no support to the statement made by La Stampa.)

If No Snow Salt Will be Used As a Substitute

Camp Borden, Ont., Nov. 20. — (CP)—There'll be no waiting the weatherman's fancy when the first members of the Canadian army's ski troops begin training at this military base within two weeks. If there's no natural snow, salt will be used as a substitute.

The Instructional School here will open shortly under J. Smith of the Toronto Skiing Club, who will have charge of the picked men chosen to learn the principles of military skiing. The Irish Regiment of Canada, the Grey and Simcoe Foresters and the Canadian Grenadier Guards have been chosen as the units to receive special training.

Snow-shoeing also will be taught at Camp Borden as soon as arrangements for instructors have been completed.

NEWALL HEARING IS ADJOURNED

Crown Closes Case in Hearing of Aircraftman Charged With Murder

Toronto, Nov. 20.— (CP)—Preliminary hearing of Aircraftman Hugh Alexander Newall, 27, charged with the "silk-stocking" slaying of his wife, was adjourned today until Nov. 28 after the Crown completed its presentation of evidence.

The adjournment was made at the request of Defence Counsel G. C. Elgie who asked for time to call some witnesses if he found it necessary.

"Some of my witnesses are in the Air Force and out of the city", Mr. Elgie said. "I do not know whether they will be going overseas before the trial in a higher court."

A.F.L. LEADER SAYS HOPE GONE

Peace With C.I.O. Not Any Closer Claims Vice-President of A.F.L.

New Orleans, Nov. 20 (AP)—Vice-President Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor, casting a gloomy glance at the dove of United States labor peace launched only yesterday from the White House, said today he saw no hope for a settlement with the Congress of industrial organization.

Woll, considered one of the scholars of the A.F.L. in convention here, made the assertion after examining a similar statement by C.I.O. President John L. Lewis, directed at the A.F.L.

At the same time, the A.F.L. resolutions committee considered a measure to increase its revenue for possible use in a labor war.

President William Green called Lewis a "real dictator" after Lewis had told his cheering C.I.O. convention in Atlantic City, "I've done a lot of exploring in Bill's mind and I give you my word—there is nothing there."

Lewis Blasts A. F. L.

Lewis blasted the A.F.L. after President Roosevelt in a message to Green—there was no indication here that a similar message had been sent to Lewis—called upon Labor's leaders "with the interest of the nation at heart" to find a way to peace.

"That is the end of any hope for peace," said Woll in referring to Lewis' statement that 'It would be wrong' to make it appear a settlement was near. "But I never had much hope for it anyhow.

"There may be only one chance, a remote one that I doubt will happen, and that is if Sidney Hillman takes his amalgamated clothing workers out of the C.I.O. The textile and rubber workers might follow."

Hillman's Union, for proposing an A.F.L.-C.I.O. conference on Unity, was scolded by Lewis with the phrase "And now come the piercing walls and laments of the amalgamated, and they say 'Peace, ain't it wonderful'."

Super - Battleships Likely to be Ready 6 Months Earlier

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—Two 45,000-ton super-battleships may join the U.S. fleet a half-year ahead of schedule.

The navy yard announced today the purchase of duplicate machinery for construction of the giants—the New Jersey, whose keel was laid last September, and the Wisconsin whose keel will be laid next year.

Authorities said the new arrangement should mean completion of the New Jersey early in 1944, with the launching of the Wisconsin shortly thereafter. Present schedules call for both to be ready in 1945.

Churchill Foresees Day of Victory, Deliverance

Sovereigns Drive Thru London to Open Parliament

The King Extols Armed Forces, Civil Defence and Tenacity Of Peoples of Empire

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 21—(CP Cable)—The King opened a new session of parliament today, driving with the Queen through the bombed scarred streets of London between air raid alarms to deliver a message of confidence and resolution to his people.

Not even the vicissitudes of war were permitted to interfere with the ancient ceremony although there was less pageantry than a state opening in time of peace. The whole ceremony lasted 10 minutes and no more than 100 people witnessed it.

Assurance of Victory

The speech from the Throne recorded the King's confidence "that victory is assured not only by the prowess of the armed forces of my Empire and those of my Allies but also by the devotion of the civil defence forces and the tenacity and industry of my peoples."

One of the features of the speech was a reference to Anglo-American relations which is said "could be no more cordial, and I learn with the utmost satisfaction of the ever increasing volume of munitions of war which is arriving from that country."

"It is good to know that in these fateful times how widely shared are the ideals of ordered freedom, justice and security," it added.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Windiest hours! Everyone has noticed that the wind is greatest and least at about the same times each day. The windiest hour is from 1 to 2 p.m., and least windy at about sunrise. This is most pronounced in clear weather and in the summer. From 1 to 2 p.m. the convection currents are most active. These, intermingling with the upper and faster moving air, have the effect of bringing the higher speeds to the surface. During the night, when there are no rising currents, the upper layers simply slide over the lower surface layers, leaving them undisturbed.

AIR MARSHAL BOYD IS CAPTURED

Was Taken Prisoner by Italians in Sicily When Plane He Was in Made Forced Landing

London, Nov. 21 (CP)—The Air Ministry announced today that Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, Deputy Chief of the Royal Air Force in the middle east, is a prisoner of war in Italy.

"The Air Ministry announces that Air Marshal O. T. Boyd, C.B., O.B.E., M.C., A.F.C, recently appointed Deputy to the Air Officer Commanding in Chief, middle east command, has been reported missing while crossing the Mediterranean by air

"It is now learned that he is a prisoner in Italian hands".

(The Italian high command indicated Boyd was taken prisoner in Sicily when the plane in which he was flying was forced to land. Four other officers were also taken prisoner.)

Rome, Nov. 21 (AP)—The capture of the new Deputy Commander of the Royal Air Force in the middle east, Air Marshal Owen Tudor Boyd, former commander of the British balloon barrage forces, and six other men, including four officers, were captured in Sicily when a Wellington bomber made a forced landing, its communique said.

He was reported en route from England to take over the post when his plane went down.

(In London it was stated that Boyd has been missing.)

Provincial Constables Under Suspension

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP) — Two Provincial constables who took part in the gambling raid Saturday on the Combine Club are under suspension.

The suspensions were made by Attorney-General Conant after Inspector E. D. L. Hammond, who directed the raiding squads, conferred with Mr. Conant. It is said certain equipment and goods seized in the raid disappeared after the police checked on the goods seized.

Mr. Conant stated he had directed the suspensions believing the officers' conduct "was not in the best interests of the force," and he had directed Commissioner W. H. Stringer to conduct an investigation and report to him.

12,000 Tons a Month Roll Along Burma Road Despite the Bombing

(By C. Yates McDaniel, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lashio-Burma, Nov. 21—(AP)—A stream of military, medical and industrial essentials is rolling along the Burma road into China at the rate of 12,000 tons a month, despite Japanese aerial bombing and strafing of the route which twists and climbs 755 miles from the British railhead at Lashio to Dunming, keypoint of free China's supply system.

The Japanese have bombed a dozen refueling stations along the 635-mile Chinese section of the road, have scored direct hits on several of its 500 bridges, and have strafed truck caravans toiling through the mile-high mountain passes, but traffic never has been held up more than 48 hours.

Almost daily at least 200 trucks leave the Lashio depots of seven different transport organizations in convoys formed according to the Chinese, Indian or Shan (Burmese racial group) nationality of their drivers.

The truck fleets and their loads, preponderantly from the United States, keep China's arsenals working.

I saw plentiful evidence that China is striving to reorganize its export—virtually halted after Japanese entry into the northern part of French Indo-China—and reroute trade to the Burma road. Nearly a third of the trucks which formerly returned empty from Junming now are bringing pay loads to this railhead—wood, oil, bristles, hides, silk and some tungsten.

Burma authorities are bending every effort to speed additional rolling stock to haul China-bound goods and new trucks are arriving by every vessel to increase the road fleet's present 1,000-truck strength.

GREEKS BREAK THROUGH ON TO ALBANIAN GROUND

Central Thrust at Mertgani Sends Enemy in Rapid Retreat

MUCH BOOTY TAKEN

Munitions, Arms, Tanks and Cars, Left Behind by Italians in Large Numbers

Athens, Nov. 21 (AP).—Greek forces were reported to have reached the outskirts of the besieged Italian base of Koritza in Albania this morning.

At the same time, in the coastal sector of the fighting zone, Greek columns were said to be marching rapidly on another important Italian base, Argirocastro, also in Albania.

Italian resistance in that zone was reported to have collapsed almost totally.

Latest information from the front said the Greeks were within six miles of Argirocastro, which is said to rank equally with Koritza in strategic value.

It was on these two towns that the Italians had based their drive on Greece.

A thrust through the centre of the Italian lines, putting the Fascist forces to hasty flight at a point six miles within Albania, was the previous high spot of Greek successes reported today all along the 100-mile front from the Ionian Sea to Koritza.

A Greek government spokesman said the central break-through occurred at Mertzani, Albania, west of the Aoos River and northwest of Konitza, Greece.

Observers in the Koritza sector reported that the Italians were abandoning the city and all outgoing roads were under fire from Greek artillery.

Pilots flying over the coastal sector reported that the Italians were retreating in such haste that none were sighted immediately in the path of the advancing Greeks.

Leaving munitions, arms, tanks, automobiles and laggard troopers behind, the Italians are retreating so rapidly that the bayonet-brandishing Greeks are hard put to keep up with them, we said.

Spitfire Rams Heinkel Bomber, Both Planes Crash

London, Nov. 21 (CP).—In a swift running machine-gun fight, a Spitfire overhauled and rammed a German Heinkel bomber today, causing both planes to crash and killing the four men in the bomber and the Spitfire's pilot. A fireman also was killed by a bomb exploded by fire in the bomber's wreckage.

The fight occurred between Sittingbourne and Faversham in Kent.

Speech From Throne

London, Nov. 21 (CP)—The text of the Speech from the Throne, read by the King at the opening of parliament today, follows:

My Lords and Members of the House of Commons:

My peoples and my Allies are united in their resolve to continue the fight against the aggressor nations until freedom is made secure. Then only can nations, released from oppression and violence, again work together on the basis of ordered liberty and social justice.

I am confident that victory is assured, not only by my Allies, but also by the devotion of the civil defence forces and the tenacity and industry of my peoples. These are now enduring, where they live and labor, the perils as well as the hardships of war.

The staunchness of the men of the merchant and fishing fleets has added lustre to the ancient traditions of the sea.

The resistance of my people has won the admiration of other friendly powers. Relations of my government with that of the United States of America could not be more cordial, and I learn, with utmost satisfaction, of the ever-increasing volume of munitions of war which are arriving from that country.

It is good to know that in these fateful times how widely shared are the ideals of ordered freedom, of justice and security.

Members of the House of Commons:

You will be asked to make further financial provision for the conduct of the war.

My Lords and Members of the House of Commons:

Measures will be submitted to you for compensating those whose home or business property has, at any time since the outbreak of hostilities, been destroyed or damaged by enemy attack, and for extending insurance against risk of such damage to all forms of movable property which are not at present protected.

Further proposals for legislation will also be made to improve conditions of those who may now or in future require assistance from public funds.

Apart from these and such other measures as may be required for effective prosecution of the war, my government will take every possible step to sustain the health and well-being of my people in their ordeal.

I pray that the Almighty may give his blessing to your counsels.

26 LONG RANGE, 4-MOTOR BOMBERS SOLD TO BRITAIN

Sperry Bombsight Also Has Been Released by U. S. Army

3,000 MILE RANGE

Washington, Nov. 21 —(AP)—Huge long range bombers and bomb sights to go with them made up a new installment today in the United States program of aid to Britain.

The army announced that 26 four-motored Consolidated bombers were being made available for British purchase, disclosed that the Sperry bombsight had been released and indicated that 20 "flying fortresses" might be the next installment of aerial assistance.

The Consolidated bombers credited with a 3,000 mile range, would be capable of carrying a full bomb load to almost any existing target area in Europe. From bases in the British Isles, they could strike at any objective within 1,500 miles and then return. Or they could operate on even longer missions by shuttling between airdromes in Britain and British bases in the Mediterranean theatre.

26 Made Available

The release of those bombers was made known by Gen. George C.

Alleges He Was Not Given His Job Back

Montreal, Nov. 21 (CP)—Counsel for Hyde Park Clothes Limited pleaded not guilty today of a charge lodged by J. P. Chartrand that he was not given his job back when he returned from 30 days of compulsory military training. The case will be heard Nov. 28.

In his complaint, Chartrand said that he had been working as a clothes-machine mechanic and contended that when he returned from camp his job was filled by another. He said his employers offered him a job of sweeping in the plant at the same salary he had been earning previously.

50 KNOWN DEAD FROM CLOUDBURST

Widespread Destruction Follows Floods Near Kingston, Jamaica

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 21—(CP Cable)—The death toll in floods that followed a cloudburst last Monday night in north-eastern Jamaica has been set at 50 known dead and is expected to mount as high as 80, newspapermen returning from the stricken area said today.

The sudden deluge swelled rivers and streams over their banks, causing widespread destruction, disrupting communication and transportation lines and damaging crops seriously in the worst floods in this British colony in 50 years.

The cloudburst was so sudden many were trapped while asleep in their homes. More than a score of persons still were missing.

Homes were swept away by raging torrents and approximately 100 buildings were smashed by the force of the surging waters. There still was no trace of one household of 15 persons, while a church at Portland was also reported to have been carried off by the flood waters. Several persons had sought shelter in the church.

Lord Halifax Hopeful Proposal for Trade Agreement With Russia Will Succeed

London, Nov. 21—(CP)—"A message of confidence" in Britain's ability to repel axis invaders in Egypt was expressed by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in a speech in the House of Commons today.

Mr. Churchill proclaimed the government's intention to keep parliamentary institutions "vital and active" even "under enemy fire."

The Prime Minister declared he looked forward "with confidence and hope" to the time "when we ourselves shall be as well armed as our antagonists" and beyond that to the time when "the arsenals and training grounds and science of the British Empire" will "bring victory and deliverance to all mankind."

Mr. Churchill said "The valiant

LABOR LEADERS ENGAGE IN BRAWL

Fight Follows Discussion of an Anti-Racketeering Resolution Before Convention

New Orleans, Nov. 21 (AP). — David Dubinsky, president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, and Joseph Fay, vice-president of the International Union of Operating Engineers, early today figured in a series of fisticuffs following a discussion of an anti-racketeering resolution before the American Federation of Labor convention.

Dubinsky, one of the authors of the measure, said he had three separate fights with Fay in the lobby of a hotel during an argument about the resolution.

He said that Fay, in the presence of Dubinsky's daughter Jean, used profane and insulting language, and threatened him as a prelude to the fight.

In one of the engagements there was a general melee in which several persons were rolled on the floor. Lated Dubinsky went to his room, where he said Fay called him to make amends. Dubinsky's union put a guard on the door.

Fay could not be reached for a statement.

The convention was in recess today over Thanksgiving, it continues through next week.

Rear Gunners Unsung Heroes Of RAF Raids Over Germany

London, Nov. 21.—(CP)—Unsung heroes of Royal Air Force bombing excursions over Germany are the men who keep lone watch in a diminutive glass turret in the tail of the plane—the rear gunners.

"Tail end Charles", they're called by their mates of the bomber command and their job is one of the loneliest in the service. And one of the most important, too.

It's the duty and point of honor of the rear gunner to stay in his turret from the moment he enters the aircraft until the time he comes back to earth.

If he is large, and some rear gunners are large, he and the turret are pretty well all in one piece by the time he has crammed himself in, with all his warm clothing, his flying suit, parachute harness and other equipment.

His freedom of action is restricted to leaning to one side or the other, raising himself a few inches from his seat, and alternately resting his arms on top of or under his guns.

Eight or nine hours of this sort of confinement call for great endurance. Added to which the temperature may be well below freezing—a chill atmosphere that sweeps right through tail end Charlie's assortment of flying suits, scarves, shirts and vests, be they ever so woolly.

Large Scale Attack Is Carried Out By British Bombers

'Many Fires and Explosions Occurred' Says Air Ministry—One British Plane Missing

London, Nov. 21 (CP)—British bombers hammered the German inland port of Duisburg-Rohrort in "a large scale attack" last night, the Air Ministry announced today.

Damage was done to shipping and warehouses, it said, "and many fires and explosions occurred."

Other British air squadrons attacked German air bases and the "invasion ports" of Lorient, Cherbourg, Dunkirk and Ostend, the communique said.

One British plane is missing.

Heavy Channel Artillery Duel

London, Nov. 21 (CP)—A heavy cross-channel gun duel broke out shortly after 9 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT) today despite thick mist which cut visibility down to barely a mile and winds of gale force.

No casualties or damage were reported from the cannonading which continued about an hour, apparently at random, since the visibility was the worst in several days.

Brings Rainfall By Sitting Near Lake in Area

Plant City, Fla., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Miss Lillie Stoate, who claims to be able to bring rainfall by sitting near a body of water, threw two strikes at South Florida's drought yesterday from her bleacher seat beside Lake Walden, and most of the Plant City area perked up under a generous shower.

It wasn't a full blown rain, as rains go, but the dark rolling clouds opened enough to encourage the imperilled strawberry growers, and to allow Miss Lillie to strengthen her claim as a rainmaker.

"It's the beginning", the 69-year-old Mississippian said, who came here at the request of strawberry growers to end a drought. "I'd rather see it come this way than in torrents".

Reports of rainfall in Lakeland, ten miles east and in Winter Haven, farther east, were received here.

The shower came after Miss Lillie had completed 48 hours of Lakeside sitting. She took up her vigil Monday on her arrival from Oxford, Miss., and as she said: "I'm staying until there's a real good rain; one that'll do you folks some real good".

SEARCH RESUMES FOR MISSING R. C. A. F. FLIERS

All Six Left Ship by Parachutes and Two Have Been Accounted For

PLANES GROUNDED

Ottawa, Nov. 21—(CP)—Sighting of two parachutes in the heavily wooded area near East Lake, Que., where search is being conducted for four missing airmen, was announced at noon today by the Air Ministry.

In an 80-word statement the Air Ministry said the two airmen who presumably parachuted to earth from the plane late Saturday night or early Sunday were not to be seen.

"This (the sighting of the parachutes) is regarded as a most important clue and narrows down the search accordingly", said the Air Ministry.

The parachutes were sighted by the crew of a Royal Canadian Air Force twin-engined flying boat engaged in the search for the lost airmen.

Today's statement was the most encouraging word since yesterday's announcement that one of the crew who had been missing since the plane was abandoned had been sighted.

Emergency Rations Dropped

He was not identified but emergency rations were dropped to him and ground parties went into the bush to bring him out.

Six men were in the Atlantic coastal patrol plane when it presumably ran out of gas while heading for an inland landing field.

FO. U. J. H. LeBlanc parachuted to earth near a lumber camp.

Meantime, as the R.C.A.F. pressed its own search of the rugged woodlands around East Lake, about 100 miles northeast of Quebec City, ground parties plodded through the country and United States bombing planes scoured the American side of the border in the area, searching for the men.

An Air Ministry spokesman said that to his knowledge this was the first time that United States planes had come to Canada to engage in such operations.

"It may be said to typify the good neighbor relations of Canada and the United States," an official said.

East Lake, Que., Nov. 21 (CP).—Airmen hoped for good weather today, eagerly awaiting the chance to take to the skies again in their search for four missing members of the crew of a Royal Canadian Air Force plane that crashed near here Saturday night.

Meanwhile, two parties of crack bushmen, familiar with the rugged terrain of this Kamouraska County district, plodded through nine inches of snow toward one of the fliers who was located from the air yesterday.

The plane carried six men when it ran out of gas while heading toward Montreal after a coastal patrol. All six left the ship by parachute, and Flying Officer J. J. H. Leblanc reached safety the following day with word of the crash. Another flier, as yet unidentified, was sighted from the air yesterday, leaving four still to be accounted for.

PARADE COMMITTEE TO MEET AT "Y"

A meeting of the chairmen of the Santa Claus parade which is to be staged in Belleville on Saturday, December 7th, is being held Friday night at 8 o'clock in the board room of the Y.M.C.A.

The meeting will start promptly on time, and in addition to the chairmen of the various committees the meeting will be open to anyone interested in taking part in the project.

Belleville Greeks Contribute $1,000 to Home County War Fund

Loyal Greeks of Belleville, their interest in the war intensified the past few weeks by the invasion of their homeland by the Italian armies, contributed one thousand dollars to the Greek War Services Fund. Headquarters of the fund is in Toronto and the local funds were sent to that place from which amounts of money are sent to the native land at intermittent periods. A cheque for $10,000 was sent to General Metaxas on Saturday, and further amounts will be forwarded as Greek-Canadians rally to the support of their native land.

Of the twenty - five or thereabouts Greeks residing in the city, the greater majority have relatives living in the war-stricken areas. Each day they scan the bulletin boards of this newspaper for news of the Greek-Italian war front.

Not only are the Greeks contributing to their war charities but since the war, they have made large donations to the Dominion's war funds.

Christ Church A. Y. P. A. Donates Money to Help Furnish Hospital Chapel

An interesting meeting of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. took place on Wednesday evening. After the devotional period during which Rev. G. G. Wright led in prayer, much business was accomplished. The association donated a sum of money to the church to help in their share of the chapel in Belleville General Hospital. The objective this year is to replace the worn hymn books and prayer books in the church.

A competition for a name for the quarterly paper was planned. Miss Dorothy Croft is editor.

At the conclusion of business the president, Miss Mary Moult, called upon Rev. G. G. Wright to lead a discussion on "Modern Gods," the principal topic being "humanism." Many different aspects were mentioned and discussed.

POLICE COURT

The majority of cases listed for trial before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in Thursday's County Police Court, were settled prior to the opening of the proceedings.

Harry S. Baldwin, Toronto, Moses N. Baer, Kitchener and W. B. Grieve, Napanee, all were convicted of careless driving and assessed the minimum fines, while Alfred Cowling, Toronto, paid $5 and costs for speeding.

Harry Pound admitted letting a horse wander at large on the King's Highway and was fined $2 and costs, amounting to $4.50 in all. Alonzo Fox admitted a charge of consuming liquor in a public place and was fined $10 or to serve 14 days in default of the payment thereof.

Several barristers, including Mr. I. D. Corcoran of Tweed, were in the court today. Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson conducted the prosecutions, while R. D. Arnott, K.C. and Robert Pringle were representing counsel on a domestic case, which His Worship held in camera.

Arrested on Charge Of Leaving Scene of Accident

Following a hectic police chase over the rough roads of the Tyendinaga Reserve early Thursday, David Brant, resident of the Reserve, was arrested on a charge of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Complaints came in that a motor car had sideswiped a bakery truck east of Belleville and the driver had left the scene of the accident. Provincial Constables Robinson and Grayling gave chase and subsequently arrested Brant on the Reserve. The accused man was held without bail.

Look For Missing Lad

Belleville police were asked to assist in the possible locating of 12-year-old Ronald MacDonald of Toronto, who left his home on Tuesday and has not been heard of since. Toronto police informed Chief Kidd that young MacDonald's father is at present connected with the R.C.A.F. stationed at Trenton and it is believed the lad left home to visit his dad. A description of the lad was provided by his anxious mother.

A few moments after he had reported the theft of a radiator cap from his motor car Manley Belnap, Rossmore, was in possession of the cap, recovered by Sergeant Arthur Booth. Mr. Belnap had parked his automobile near the south end of Foster Ave. and during his absence the radiator cap was taken. Sergeant Booth found the cap cached nearby and returned it.

One inebriate and eleven transients shared the cell block at the police station last night.

OBITUARY

CHARLES W. COLE
(Thurlow Township)

Death came suddenly to Charles Walton Cole on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 20th., at his farm in the 4th. concession of Thurlow Township, near Corbyville. For some time he had been in failing health and while engaged in performing some light work about the barn he was taken with a heart seizure and died. He was alone at the time and his body was found in the barn by his son when he returned home after being absent in town on business.

The late Mr. Cole, who was in his 71st. year, was born in Tyendinaga Township, being a son of Mr. John Cole and the late Mrs. Cole. For the past twenty-four years he resided in Thurlow Township and in the community he was highly esteemed. In religion he was a member of Bethany United Church and fraternally he was a member of Shannonville Loyal Orange Lodge No. 242.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Miss Sabra Minerva Reid; his father, Mr. John Cole; one daughter, Mrs. John Foote, Smithfield; one son, Mr. Grant W. Cole, at home; one sister, Mrs. Robert Miller, Thurlow Township, and one brother, Mr. Earl Cole, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. WILLIAM McMULLEN
(Sidney Township)

The funeral of Mrs. William McMullen took place from the family residence in the second concession of Sidney Township on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 20, and was largely attended. The service in the home and at the graveside in White's Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. J. Scott.

During the service in the home a vocal duet, "City Four Square" was rendered by Mrs. Earl Bush and Mr. Stanley Spafford.

The bearers were Messrs. Stanley Spafford, E. Bush, F. Moon, G. Brickman, A. Sandercock and F. Hamilton.

The floral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

Australian Minesweeper Lost In Collision

All 23 Members of Crew Lost Off Melbourne When Vessel Rammed by Merchant Ship

Melbourne, Nov. 21 (CP).—Navy Minister W. M. Hughes announced today that the 223-ton minesweeper Goorangai was rammed and sunk in Port Philip Bay off Melbourne yesterday with a loss of all 23 members of the crew.

An intensive search for survivors by lifeboats from the unidentified merchant vessel and shore craft was fruitless.

No casualties occurred in the merchant ship, which was outbound, and it returned with a damaged hull. Most of the crew of the minesweeper, which sank immediately, were below deck when the vessels hit. The minesweeper was seeking shelter from a storm at the time.

MOTHER REMANDED ON RECEIVING CHARGE

Hamilton, Nov. 21—(CP) — Mrs. Agnes Weaver, 42, Hamilton, admitted in court today that she received a quantity of sugar, eggs and coal, which allegedly were stolen from a bakeshop here by her juvenile sons two weeks ago. The two boys were remanded to juvenile court. Mrs. Weaver was remanded a week for sentence on a charge of receiving stolen goods.

Accused told the magistrate in her own defence that she received no assistance from her husband and that she was doing everything possible "to stay off relief."

"I have a large family," the woman told His Worship, "and I cannot keep my children any longer without some support."

J. OWEN HERITY SPECIAL SPEAKER

Guest of St. Paul's Laymen's Association, Marmora, at Regular Meeting

Marmora, (Special)—The regular meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening with the president, R. Guy Winters, in the chair. After the singing of the National Anthem, prayer was offered by W. J. Cottrell, lay reader, in the unavoidable absence of Honorary President Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. During the business period a committee was formed to consider the holding of a proposed smoker.

The association was privileged to have as guest speaker J. Owen Herity, Industrial Commissioner of Belleville. In his opening remarks Mr. Herity said he liked the idea of the Laymen's Association as he felt it served a real need in church activities. In his address which followed Mr. Herity in fluent and attractive style touched upon epic events in British naval history, referring in turn to the Jervis Bay exploit of recent date as well as the much earlier exploits of Sir Richard Grenville and Charles Fox and added to these stories descriptions of the expedition into Abyssinia in 1867 and the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria, 1897, to illustrate the nobility of the British character. He also dwelt upon Britain's greatness in her Christian civilization and her choice of a democratic government.

Interspersed with his comments were poetic quotations and the recital of poems such as Kipling's "Lest We Forget." The speaker was tendered a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of his address. The serving of refreshments and a social hour followed the pronouncing of the benediction.

TELLS OF ESCAPE FROM FRANCE

Dr. Bruce Taylor and Wife on Collier With 900 Refugees When Attacked by Italian Submarine Which Missed

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP).—Dr. Bruce Taylor, former principal of Queen's University, arrived here with his wife last night and, in a brief press interview, told of a twenty-day flight from the south of France to London on a small collier jammed with 900 refugees. They left France when Italy entered the war.

Dr. Taylor said most of the 900 passengers slept "right down in the hold on steel". Off the coast of Spain, Mrs. Taylor added, the ship was attacked by an Italian submarine which missed with two torpedoes, one going wide and the other underneath the collier.

Mrs. Taylor was standing beside the ship's gunner when he answered fire. On his second shot, he scored a hit and, turning to Mrs. Taylor, said: "That Italain won't eat any more spaghetti."

The Taylors had been living abroad for ten years and had owned a house near Cannes. They spent eight days in England before returning to Canada. Dr. Taylor was in hospital in Montreal for nine weeks. After a short stay here, they will go on to Victoria, B.C.

More "Over-Age" Destroyers Arrive

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 21.—(CP)—A group of destroyers, part of 50 "over-age" warships of this class being turned over to the Royal Navy by the United States navy, arrived in port today after a run up the Atlantic Coast.

The American destroyers were traded to Britain for naval and air bases in British possessions on this side of the Atlantic.

Boy Pays Smartly For His Rashness

The little wooden puppet had to have hair, and the worried boy pupil of Queen Alexandra School was at a loss to find the necessary covering for the doll's head. He searched the house but nothing was evident to suit his purpose.

His eyes widened with the light of an idea as he came down the stairs and saw his mother's fur stole lying on a chair. A minute later scissors snipped and the puppet had a lovely fur wig.

But still it didn't look right. The hair was too long, so the embryonic stylist decided to give his protege a hair-cut. Again the scissors snipped, and the wooden doll had a modern trim.

Then disaster fell. The maternal wrath descended in a verbal torrent and a red-faced boy was hard put for a satisfactory explanation. "I didn't think a piece off the end of the fur would be missed," he cried. A minute later his mother decided the same reason would apply to her actions.

NO DECISION REACHED

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP). — Naval Minister Macdonald said Wednesday no decision has been reached yet as to location of the proposed Canadian naval college for the training of naval officers.

The former college, established before the First Great War, was at Halifax but it later functioned for short periods at Kingston, Ont., and Esquimalt, B.C., before being closed in 1922.

FORMER PRIME MINISTER IS HELD

Bombay, India, Nov. 21—(CP)—Former Prime Minister Bal Gangadhar Kher of Bombay province was arrested today under Defence of India Rules.

(In Oct. 1939, while still head of the provincial government, Kher took a stand similar to that of Mohandas K. Ghandi, leader of Indian Nationalists, by offering a resolution in the Bombay state assembly calling on Britain to regard India as an "independent nation.")

More Power to 'Em!

"Never, in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Three Canadian fighter squadrons already in the thick of it. The Royal Canadian Air Force, with 25,000 officers and men to take up the task so gallantly begun.....6,000 in training under the Commonwealth Plan—2,000 more to be enlisted almost at once.

Faster...faster the wheels of industry turn to provide the machines so urgently needed now. Orders for aircraft, totalling $100,000,000 already placed. More coming.....

The price of freedom comes high.....in lives, in personal sacrifice.....in hard cold dollars. Canadians gladly pay that price.

At this proud hour it is the plain duty of every working Canadian to save, that he may be prepared to lend his savings to the nation when the call for money comes. For come it will if Canada is to play her part worthily in this struggle for freedom and human decency.

Build up your savings now.....Keep at it.

POLISH RACE AND THE WAR

The Polish people have already won glory in this war by their stubborn resistance with all their might against the Hitler invasion. The spirit of Poland and Poles where they can be organized stay in the war until the last vestige of Hitlerism and Mussolinism will have been destroyed, root and branch from the world. They have in London their government in exile, they are fighting for their freedom as they serve with the British forces.

The service which they render gives Britain aid in men and in spirit to carry on in her path to victory over the enemy.

The Polish-language weekly newspaper "Zwlazkowiec" (Alliancer) published in Toronto last month tells of the Polish mission abroad. "The aims of the present war are crystallizing with an increasing clarity," runs the translation of an article. "Territorial disputes over this or that province have moved to the background, the basic goal, the great idea for the realization of which the world has plunged into the war storm, coming prominently to the forefront. The war of 1940 is a struggle against barbarism and tyranny, for the preservation of the civilization and the Christian culture, the rule of law and justice, for the freedom of nations and individuals."

The Polish newspaper has every right to feel pride in what Poland has done. Poles will persistently fight on, "wherever that fight will be required for the achievement of a complete victory. Polish troops have become, in these circumstances, a storm column of all races and nations, which love freedom above all. In the Polish army there is place and space for all Poles, those from Poland and other parts of Europe and those living in America."

This is a powerful plea for Poland's cause and is directed to the Poles wherever they may be.

Canada may well be proud of the members of the Polish race in Canada who see the responsibility resting upon them in this new country of preserving liberty in the world by supporting the Allied cause with all their might and soul. The vitality of the Polish people throughout the world is one of the signs that liberty is the birthright of all, that liberty wherever it develops produces a culture and civilization which enables people, wherever they may go in the world, to fit into the public life of any free country as the Poles have fitted into Canadian life as worthy citizens and defenders of liberty and Canada's political ideals. The nations which have known liberty are one in spirit, and this tie and link will prove in the end more potent than all the fetters Hitler and Mussolini can weld, all the armies and air forces these aggressors can organize. The reason is clear. Tyranny stunts the spirit, the two worst examples in the history of centuries being present day Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

LETTER WRITTEN BY LATE NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

Mr. J. E. Baxter of Bloomfield, who, on Oct. 9th., sent former Prime Minister Chamberlain a letter with the clipping from a newspaper and signed himself "one of your ardent admirers and just a plain Canadian manufacturer who stands one hundred per cent behind the old Union Jack" was rewarded with a letter in reply which was signed by Mr. Chamberlain on October 28th., and which arrived after the death of the British statesman which took place on November 9th. Mr. Baxter treasures the letter as it is one of the last expressions, if not the last, of Mr. Chamberlain on the war. It is a memorable document for another reason too that Mr. Chamberlain, though on the bed of illness from which he was not to rise, had the courtesy and interest to read the letter from Mr. Baxter and a clipping from a Toronto paper and to send a letter in reply. Here stands revealed the attention with which the late former Prime Minister read his correspondence. There was also, as he said, something in the letter from Bloomfield which cheered the ailing statesman.

Mr. Chamberlain's signature is on his letter in reply. He said:

> "I read with the greatest pleasure the letter which you wrote to me on October 9th., in which you enclosed a clipping from a Toronto paper, of which I can only say that it shows an understanding of my position far deeper and more complete than I could have ventured to hope.
> "It was, indeed, a source of profound satisfaction to me that since war had to come it found the British Empire united, for if we had gone to war without the approval of the Dominions that would have meant the end of the Empire.
>
> "Now we are feeling confident of ultimate victory since we have behind us the heart as well as the material resources of the great Dominions.
> "For myself, I deeply regret having been obliged to give up my share in the direction of this country's fortunes, but since that cannot be helped, I am satisfied to leave my career to the verdict of history. Your letter has fortified he in the belief that this will not be unfair to me."

This letter contains much, the profound conviction of the uprightness of the British cause, the pride in the unity of the Empire, the confidence in Britain's ultimate victory, "since we have behind us the heart as well as the material resources of the great Dominions," a sense of profound sincerity, and of a deep love of country, and the regret that he could not live to see the certain triumph of the cause of democracy for which he, like other patriots, would be content to "absent themselves from felicity awhile" in order to see the vindication of humanity in the successful termination of the war.

The letter is in the way of becoming a historic document as an utterance of the late Mr. Chamberlain on Britain's cause. Among his last written words, these contain no boasting, but they are the words of a man with a very human heart and a very sincere patriot; to whom had fallen the task of guiding Britain in the trying first stages of the war.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 21st., 1920.

A reception service was held at Bridge Street Methodist Church Sunday evening when forty five persons by profession of faith and by letters from churches in other places united with the local congregation. This is an exceptionally large number to be received into the church at one time. The service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Cleaver, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Baker, the Rev. W. P. D. Wilson and the Rev. Prof. Mains.

The Albert College students were entertained last evening at the Y. M. C. A.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K. C., is in Ottawa attending the Supreme Court.

Capt. and Mrs. Hunter will leave to morrow for Florida where they will spend the winter.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 21st., 1910.

Mr. Hugh Walker, License Inspector for West Hastings, to day handed to Mr. David Price, City Treasurer, a cheque for the sum of $2,261. which is the city's share of the license fees for the half year.

The local committee governing the Boy Scout movement in Belleville elected the following officers at a recent meeting: President, Chief John Newton; Vice President, A. Marsh; Secretary-Treasurer, G. I. Sovereign.

Messrs. Charles Dolan and W. Wims went to Peterboro to day where they will represent the Belleville Total Abstinence Society in a debate with representatives of the Total Abstinence Society in that city.

Mr. T. W. R. McRae of Montreal, formerly of Belleville, is spending a short time in town.

Pact of Vienna Is Just Stage Setting by Axis

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP).—Coercing of tiny, landlocked Hungary into a formal but unrealistic partnership with the German-Italian-Japanese axis would represent a minor development on the war stage if that was all the Pact of Vienna involved.

Hungarian collaboration with the axis under duress was as much assured without the sealing of a four-way covenant as with it. Yet Nazi showmanship carefully built up the scene at Vienna. It even brought the axis oracle, Hitler, to spotlight by his presence a small step in axis grand strategy.

Hungary's formal entry into the tripartite alliance ratifies a developing axis encirclement of neutral Yugoslavia, separating that Balkan State from her historic and racial big-power affinity, Russia.

Inclusion of Rumania, already Nazi dominated, and Bulgaria, more Russian than German in sympathy, in the made-in-Germany arrangements seems the next step. This would isolate Yugoslavia from Russia and remove her from British influence except from the limited Yugoslavian-Greek common frontier overlooking the Italian-Greek battlefront.

The obvious purpose of the Hitler gesture at ienna is to impress both Yugoslavia and Turkey with the notion that Moscow has been won definitely to axis planning for southeastern as well as western Europe. Russian assent for the driving of a German diplomatic or military wedge across the Balkans to the Aegean, if not to the Dardanelles, was Hitler's prime need. He designed the pact with Hungary to convince all interested Balkan onlookers that it had been obtained.

First Turkish reaction to the move seems to question Russia's actual place in the axis scheme of things. Hostility expressed there to formal engulfment of Hungary by Germany took the form of warnings to the Turkish people to be ready for grave developments in Bulgaria and in Macedonia, if not at the Dardanelles bridgehead.

It seems certain that the Hitler-Molotoff conversations have not yet precluded Turkish entry into the conflict. The test of that will come if Germany thrusts through Bulgaria to aid Italy in Greece and pave the way for joining in the Italian attack on Britain in the eastern Mediterranean.

It may depend upon the exact formula reached by Hitler and Molotoff. There have been hints that Hitler exchanged a pledge of non-invasion of Turkey for Russian agreement to stand aloof and urge Turkey also to stay out of a fight involving only Greece and the Aegean Sea avenue to the Mediterranean.

Air Force Needs Cooks

Skill with a skillet keeps the Royal Canadian Air Force functioning, for aircraft and appetite go together. The calory mechanics as cooks are known in the Air Force contribute as much to keep the R. C. A. F. in the air as the mechanics wielding spanners and oil cans.

The Air Force needs cooks immediately to cope with the lengthening line of hungry airmen at the cookhouse door. About 75 are required immediately and another 300 early in the New Year. Experienced cooks and butchers aged between 18 and 50 are directed to apply to the nearest R. C. A. F. recruiting centre for trade testing and medical examination.—Director Public Information.

Not So Reliable

"Elmer Davis with the news," is something heard over the CBS broadcasting chain. He is very cold and strictly objective, but even so, this does not prevent him from handing out what sometimes is quite false. The other night he referred to the attack on a British convoy in the Thames Estuary. He referred to the Nazi claim that 34,000 tons of shipping had been sunk and remarked: "Evidently the Germans did plenty of damage." The final and official report on this was that no ships were sunk at all and two damaged were able to reach port. This is submitted to show what unreliability there is over the United States radio. It is not at all an isolated instance.—St. Catharines Standard.

UNDERWATER BEARDS

(Manchester Guardian)

From what a submarine commander has told a correspondent, life under water, except when sudden developments occur, is quiet and is occupied during the waiting hours in conversation and the cultivation of the beard.

"We all grow beards," he said, "because it is an experiment with a lot of us. Once when I got into harbor I was very proud of my beard—secretly, of course—and I was unexpectedly asked to go on the quarter-deck. It was then that I found that the engine-room artificers had decided to award me the prize for the best home-grown beard in the flotilla. The award took the form of a razor about a yard long, a huge piece of soap, and a brush with which you could have lathered Neptune. It cost me about £5 in drinks; and then they insisted on shaving me. I have the prize at home now—it is a great treasure."

Britain's Air Aces From Skies of World

By JOHN CASHEL

Many are in the regular squadrons of the R.A.F. Others are in special R.A.F. squadrons manned entirely by men from one part of the Empire, or are with detachments of Dominion Air Forces on service in Britain.

But there is still another group; the men from overseas who are civil pilots in British Airways.

With their English colleagues these fliers are keeping going the Empire's air lines, despite the difficulties of civil flying in war time.

The feats of these civil pilots are less known than those of the combatant aviators. Their praises are seldom sung. But they are doing plenty to earn places of honour with "the few to whom so many owe so much."

Every week Captain Bruce Middleton, a Canadian from Vancouver, takes off from Britain in a giant American-made air liner and, with passengers and important mail, flies to and from one of Europe's leading capitals.

The British bombers that gaily defy enemy fighters and "ack-ack" defences on their night raids over German-occupied territory at least are armed.

Middleton does it unarmed, uses no wireless, and must rely on oxygen-breathing for most of the journey.

Comrades of his flew the so-called "stratosphere" plane regularly from this country to Norway, Sweden and Finland earlier in the war.

Others during the Norwegian campaign took the famous Atlantic air liners Cabot and Caribou on perilous secret mission, from which they never returned.

Supplies For The Troops

Still others transported urgent supplies to British troops fighting a hard-pressed rearguard action in Northern France.

Five of their monster machines landed in a field near Lille and while unloading ammunition and other supplies were both bombed from the air and attacked by Nazi tanks. One plane was destroyed. The others got clear, having fulfilled their task.

One, with its tail and undercarriage shot away, made a miraculous "pancake" landing on the Kent coast. That required some doing. It was like the others, a 40-passenger, 20-ton plane.

They share, too, the perilous job of flying in broad daylight from this country to Lisbon, taking passengers and mail over the Bay of Biscay, which the Nazis claim to control!

They are serving on the great horseshoe Empire route from Durban to Sydney, and generally helping to keep going the Empire air lines.

Today these airlines still serve twenty-four countries and five continents and cover 30,000 miles a week, only five per cent. less than in peace time.

One pilot of the Empire airlines recently encountered a swarm of Messerschmitts over the English Channel. He was unarmed, but immediately "attacked".

His bluff came off. The surprised Nazi turned tail and fled, hotly chased till they escaped over the French coast.

Empire Air Fighters

So much for the daredevils of the Civil air-lines. Now let us consider the men of the Empire serving with the Air Forces.

These overseas pilots, forerunners of thousands more to come under the Empire Training Scheme, are winning new glories for their own countries, as well as for the Empire as a whole.

Take the New Zealanders, for instance. New Zealand has a population of only 1,626,486, less than that of Germany's Hamburg, and one-fifth that of London.

Yet, at the moment of writing, twenty-eight New Zealanders have won the Distinguished Flying Cross, three the Air Force Cross, two the Distinguished Flying Medal.

Among them, Acting Flight Lieutenant Alan Christopher Doere, though not so well-known as that other brilliant New Zealander, the late "Cobber" Kain, has a notable record. He recently added the bar to his D.F.C. He has destroyed eleven Nazis and shown conspicuous bravery by pursuing several of his victims across the Channel in order to shoot them down.

South Africa has two pilots in the R.A.F. who have won the D.F.C. and bar. They are Flight-Lieut. A. G. Malan and Pilot-Officer A. G. Lewis. Canada has a D.F.C.-and-bar pilot in Pilot-Officer W. L. McKnight, Burma another in Acting Squadron-Leader P. W. Townsend, whose squadron attacked 250 enemy machines over the Thames estuary and shot down ten, Townsend himself accounting for three.

Canada has fighter squadrons of its own serving in Britain with the R.A.F. and an Army Co-operation Squadron with the Canadian Corps, each with its own reserves and mostly with Canadian ground staff.

It was a Canadian fighter squadron that destroyed every Nazi bomber that sneaked through London's outer defences in the first raid on Croydon aerodrome.

Australia has a Sunderland flying boat squadron attached to Coastal Command. It is doing a "dull, routine job" in patrolling the Atlantic and convoying shipping, yet it has accounted for at least one U-boat and three of its pilots have been honoured.

One of them, Flight Lieutenant J. A. Cohen, D.F.C., was chosen to fly Lord Gort and Mr. Duff Cooper on their historic trip to Rabat, North Africa, a few hours before the Petain Government capitulated to the Nazis.

Australia also has an Army Co-operation squadron operating in the Middle East.

New Zealand has a Wellington Bomber squadron in Britain, which has blasted many a hole in Hitler's Reich. Its chief is Squadron Leader C. E. Kay, O.B.E., D.F.C.

These "Dominions' Own" squadrons are now about to be augmented by many more to come under the Empire Training Scheme. They are blazing a brilliant trail of high example, as are their still more numerous compatriots in the R. A. F. itself.—British Ministry of Information.

How a Famished Army Was Fed

At a time when large bodies of people are being moved from bombed areas to safer homes in the country it may be useful to recount the story of how the evacuated B. E. F. from Dunkirk was fed. It is an aspect of that legendary achievement that was hardly touched upon at the time, and represents a triumph of improvisation by a small supply depot of the R.A.S.C. across whom I came during a tour of the outposts on the Channel.

Out of the blue on that undreamed-of day in May men of the Allied armies began to pour into the Channel ports in their hundreds of thousands, famished with hunger and in some cases near starvation. They had to be fed somehow as countless troop trains carried them to their bases, and for a long time there was only this R.A.S.C. unit to tackle the job. It was the most formidable task that the corps had ever faced, and their discharge of it has its place in the history of Dunkirk.

For 12 almost sleepless days and nights men from every cookhouse, workshop, and station company in the area, with welcome assistance from A.A. batteries—they had little to do in those days—fought the physical problems of food at the centres established at Headcorn, Faversham, and Paddoc Wood. An average of 100 trains a day passed through. They halted for about eight minutes, and in that time every man—there were sometimes as many as 800—was roused from exhausted slumber and fed through the windows of the compartments. After the confusion of the first day's experience the carriage doors were kept locked.

At three hours' notice the depot baked 60,000 lbs. of bread a day in their Aldershot ovens at Shorncliffe in place of the normal 20,000 lbs.; another 50,000 lbs. was provided by private contractors. Meat was cooked over trench fires on long spits hurriedly improvised for the purpose by the workshops; there were mountains of bread and butter on the platforms; men made tea and cut sandwiches for 24 hours a day; and, in the words of one of their officers, they knew what it was to see 5,000 eggs at a time and cook them. There were all sorts of unprecedented problems. At first, for instance, tea was provided in china barrack mugs, but it was soon found to be no joke to have them sailing from the carriage windows as the trains moved off, and canning tins specially fitted with handles, or paper cartons, bought up in the stores and dairies, were substituted.

It was soon found that preserved meat and biscuits, about all the unit could normally provide, would not meet the needs of the men of Dunkirk, who had been living on biscuits for days. Headquarters rose to the occasion. "The sky's the limit", they said, and "dynamo" became a magic password that made all purchases possible. There was astonishingly little wastage. Great stocks of cigarettes, chocolate, and fruit mysteriously arrived; the problem of a suitable menu was solved, and by its good sense saved many lives. Cigarettes and fruit were found to be the first need of these hungry men, who sometimes would stand with a mug of tea and a sandwich in their hands, physically unable to swallow them.

Other units and civilian bodies in the area handsomely subscribed to the effort. Officers' messes, men's stores, and N.A.A.F.I. supplies were laid bare, and they had their reward in the whistling, contented trainloads that had drawn in so grimly.

Nor was that all. There was the problem of supplying the body of the B. E. F. that still remained on the Dunkirk beaches. The historic flotilla of small boats that brought them back went out laden with provisions and water stored in petrol cans — and, as a captain responsible for the task said, it was no simple matter to go down to port and fill 3,000 of these cans each night in the dark. Such is the bare story of how the R.A.S.C. fed the men of Dunkirk; and at the end of it all one officer received a certificate from a stationmaster that the station was in as proper a state as when he moved in.—London Times.

Why Heart Patients May Live for Many Years

Notwithstanding that heart disease stands at the top of the list as a cause of death, there are thousands of men and women with heart disease who will live as long, or nearly as long, as they would if they had a normal heart. Just as it has been found that patients with diabetes can be kept alive by insulin, and pernicious anaemia patients by the use of liver extract, so can patients with heart disease—failing hearts—be kept alive by following the directions of heart specialists or their own physicians in regard to their health habits—food, rest, exercise—and in some cases the use of a heart stimulant or regulator such as digitalis.

In the treatment of these cases of failing heart, physicians simply call to their aid the help provided by Nature. We all know how generous is the friendly force behind mankind. We have two eyes, ears, kidneys, lungs; a stomach that will hold many times what we can eat; a small intestine that has a surface 20 feet long to enabel us to absorb the nourishment from the food eaten. It is this overflowing generosity of Nature that enables the heart patient to continue to live for many years if he lives as advised by his physician.

I have used the illustration before of the bridge. It was built to carry a load of ten tons. It has been put under the strain of heavy loads, or perhaps its supports have been weakened by floods. The time comes when it cannot support ten tons. But it can support five tons. Similarly with the heart, it has been put under the strain of worry and work, and its lining has been inflamed by infections in the body. It cannot do the work it formerly did but it can do enough work to enable the individual to live for many years and earn his living.

We must not forget that the heart pumps blood all the time, even when we are asleep, and pumps much more blood when we are doing hard work. This shows how it is equipped to meet all our needs.

When the body is at rest, the heart pumps blood at the rate of 90 gallons an hour. During hard work or exercise it pumps about 500 gallons an hour.

Somewhere between complete rest and hard work the heart patient can live safely.

"Travel to Canada"

"Travel to Canada" is the editorial advice to Americans in large display type contained in the New York Daily Mirror.

"It is generally agreed that most Americans want to knit the nations of this hemisphere in a solid bloc that can resist any attempted invasion", says the Mirror. "It is further agreed that most Americans want to aid England in any way short of war.

"Best way to contribute to both these ends is to spend your 'travel dollars' in Canada.

"Alarmists should not be permitted to fan rumours about border inspection into foolish fears that will keep Americans from planning a trip to Canada.

"The simple fact is that no more identification than a voter's registration certificate or membership in any automobile club is needed for entry into Canada, or return to America." — Director of Public Information.

THERE IS MALTA

Why hasn't Hitler, with ten times as many airplanes at his disposal as the British had in the Mediterranean, bombed the British fleet out of existence long ago? One answer would presumably be that the Italian ships at Taranto were at anchor and made a perfect target, while the British fleet keeps moving about. But then we have to explain away a stationary target like Malta.

Malta is a British stronghold not much more than fifty miles from the coast of Sicily and only two or three hundred miles by air from this very naval base at Taranto. By all the rules of logic—or in any case armchair military logic — Malta should have been blasted out of existence by Mussolini's airplanes long ago. But when Malta appears in the news it is a story of more British troops landing on the island instead of fleeing from the island in panic.

And so the quiz masters now have a great naval victory won by planes against ships to place by the side of the famous case of a fleet captured by a troop of cavalry.— N. Y. Times.

WALKS OVER TIME BOMB

London, Nov. 21—(CP) — The street was unusually empty as Lord Trenchard, former commissioner of London police, walked down it.

"When I got to the end," he recounted today, "a policeman saluted me and said: 'you walked over a time bomb, Sir.'"

"Why didn't you stop me?" Lord Trenchard asked.

"Oh, we recognized you, Sir," the policeman replied.

U.S. TECHNICIANS GIVEN RIGHT TO SURVEY ISLANDS

Experts Only Allowed to Work in the Daytime by Bill Passed

99-YEAR LEASE

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 21 (CP). —To facilitate the start of work on United States defence bases in Bermuda, the House of Assembly Wednesday gave third reading to a bill authorizing U.S. technicians to survey the islands for six months.

The bill, permitting the U.S. experts to work only in the daytime, was passed as an interim measure while the House debated a resolution aimed at safeguarding Bermudian interests in the establishment of bases.

The resolution under debate provides that the House concurs in the sites proposed for the naval and air bases subject to such modification as survey and subsequent negotiations may develop and recommends appointment of a committee by the governor to investigate the problem of obtaining new homes for any dispossessed persons and compensating any persons "prejudicially affected" by the establishment.

(The U.S. navy announced in Washington Monday night British authorities had agreed the Bermuda land base would be on Long Bird island, while part of St. David's island and certain small islands off its south shore would be used for a seaplane base, naval bases and garrison area.")

Loan of the Bermuda bases for 99 years was a gift to the United States from Britain. Other sites were made available in exchange for over-age destroyers.

N. H. P. Vesey, a House member who took part in the debate yesterday, declared the setting-up of the bases could transform Bermuda into a "second Heligoland".

Members generally agreed the colony's first concern was the war effort, and everything must be subjugated to it. But it was emphasized the colony was unwilling to have its British status impaired.

The resolution itself expressed the hope the move would "strengthen the ties of friendship now existing between the peoples of the United States and the British Empire."

Don't Be Mistaken About Constipation!

A great many people, when they are constipated, open the medicine closet, take a purgative, and try to forget—until the ailment returns. And generally it comes back—more and more often—until you find the cause.

If, like most people, you eat bread, meat, potatoes—the cause of your ailment is probably lack of "bulk." And "bulk" does not mean quantity of food, but the kind of food that is incompletely assimilated and leaves a soft mass in the bowels that helps the bowel movement.

If that is the reason for your ailment, eat a good bowl of Kellogg's crispy All-Bran for breakfast. It forms the necessary "bulk", and contains Vitamin B₁, the natural intestinal tonic.

Eat some All-Bran every day, drink lots of water, and become "regular." Made in London, Canada, by Kellogg. At all grocers.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W. M. S. of the United Church of Shannonville was held at the home of Mrs. Sam Elliott on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 7.

After the opening hymn Mrs. Everett Stratton offered prayer. The President, Mrs. Frank Doxtator welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Stanley MacDonald was appointed to take in old silk stockings and underwear to be sent to the Labrador mission to be made into rugs. It was decided to have a quilting and pot luck dinner in the church hall on our next meeting day.

Mrs. Lorne Lazier, Group leader, then took charge and after the next hymn led in prayer. Bible verses were read by Mrs. A. Houston, Mrs. Orval Stratton and Mrs. K. R. Vivian. Mrs. A. Greatrix read a poem "What prayer may mean to others." Mrs. Harvey Shetler favored with a lovely solo and played her own piano accompaniment. Mrs. Archie Greatrix gave a report of the Sectional Rally held at Cannifton Oct. 11. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Greatrix for her very full and interesting report.

The closing prayer for missionaries was given by Mrs. Robertson. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Elliott for opening her home for the meeting. After the closing hymn all repeated the Mizpah Benediction. Attendance 19. Regular collection $3.15 and for flower fund 95c. The hostess and group leader and their assistants served delicious refreshments and a social time was enjoyed by all present.

SHANNONVILLE W. A.

The W. A. of the United Church of Shannonville held an all day meeting and pot luck dinner at the Melburne home on Thursday, Nov. 14th. Over thirty enjoyed the delicious meal served at noon. Sewing was continued during the afternoon meeting which opened by singing the theme song. After the opening hymn, Mrs. Fred Melburne read the Scripture lesson from the first chapter of first Corinthians. The president, Mrs. Sam Elliott, led in prayer and a reading entitled "The strength of the weak" and also spoke a few gracious words of welcome to the visitors. A letter of thanks for card of sympathy sent at time of bereavement from Mrs. J. F. MacFarlane was read by Mrs. Robertson. A letter of thanks was read by Mrs. O. Stratton expressing thanks of the Salvation Army for quilts and other donations from our W. A. Plans were made for the annual bazaar.

A vote of thanks was given the ladies of the home for their kind hospitality. The meeting closed with a hymn and the W. A. Benedicition. Proceeds of dinner $5.30.

Battle Dress of Canadian Troops Is Truly An Amazing Garment

When Johnny, the Soldier Boy, goes marching past, take a second look at his battle dress. It is an amazing garment. There is more to it than appears on the surface. It is the most scientifically-built soldier's uniform which ever covered a fighting man.

Battle dress is made of drab serge which weighs between 21 and 22 ounces to the yard. The average soldier requires 3 1-8 yards. With this must go 2 1-8 yards of lining, two rubber and 38 metal buttons and two pairs of hooks and eyes. Then, there is collar canvas, thread and a few other odds and ends to make it complete. The suit weighs from 4 to 4 2-3 pounds, depending upon the size, and in the Canadian army there are 21 sizes to fit soldiers of every height, weight and shape.

A finished suit contains 99 pieces of cloth and lining, 46 in the tunic, 53 in the pants. There are just 120 operations in the making of a uniform . . . and the task of sewing on 40 buttons is classed as but one operation. All buttons are concealed. This serves the dual purpose of eliminating the chance that a gleaming button might reveal the position of a soldier in action, and of doing away with the arduous task of button cleaning.

SEARCH RESUMES

Poor weather conditions hampered searching planes yesterday, and a short time after one of four planes had sighted the man on the ground, the weather grew so bad that the search had to be abandoned temporarily. All through the night, a high wind washed waves against the rescue planes beached at Escourt, near here, and extra lashings were needed to keep the planes close to shore.

Expect Reinforcements

Meanwhile, reinforcements to the searching force were expected during the morning. Nine United States bombing planes were ready at St. Hubert Airport, outside Montreal, to join with R.C.A.F. planes in the search.

A Maine camp supervisor between East Lake and Rocky Mountain on the northern tip of Maine also reported that a flier had been sighted, but it was not clear if this was the same man found by the searching planes, or one of the four still unaccounted for.

Squadron Leader R. C. Gordon, observer in the plane that sighted one of the men, said that the planes' crew first caught a glimpse of a parachute waving from the branches of a tree. When the plane swooped lower, they saw the flier, waving his hands, and apparently unhurt.

Emergency rations were dropped, and then the plane was forced back to its base by the increasingly-dirty weather. Two ground crews, each made up of experienced bushmen who said they would not stop going until they had reached the flier, set out immediately.

Those missing were listed by the Air Ministry as Flt. Lt. G. F. Clay of New Westminster, B.C.; Fo. J. G. Richardson of Saskatoon Lac. H. E. Howard of Aylesford, N.S.; Lac. E. J. Benoit of Ottawa; and Ac. Elmer Johnson of Winnipeg.

LaFLECHE'S SALARY

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP).—In answer to a question from Robert McGregor (Con.-York East), Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of National War Services, told the House of Commons Wednesday that Maj.-Gen L. R. LaFleche, is employed as associate deputy minister of his department at a salary of $9,000 a year, and that he received a disability pension of $1,260 with dependents allowances of $774.

FORMER FIGHTER STATE SENATOR

Featherweight Champion of Two Decades Ago to Battle With Words

Cleveland, Nov. 21 —(AP)— Johnny Kilbane, world featherweight champion two decades ago, is going to fight again—with words.

The silver-haired Irishman, still as trim as a college half-back, will start his "comeback" in January when he enters the Ohio legislature as a state Senator.

"Before, I was fighting for myself—to eat, to get some place in the world," the Clevelander said today. "This time I'm going to battle for the people—especially the underprivileged and the youngsters.

"Some people think it's funny a prize fighter should become a senator. Why? I came up from the bottom. I know our problems and I am going to keep swinging until I help those who need help."

Kilbane won his boxing title in 1912 from Abe Attell and lost it to Eugene Criqui in 1923. He has spent most of the ensuing years in physical education work.

Now, 51, Kilbane was elected on the Democratic ticket, but "I have just as many friends who are Republicans," he observed. "I think they'll help me with my welfare program too after I sell them on the idea."

"I didn't have much of a chance when I was a kid and the boys today deserve a better break. We need a broad physical education training program in schools. State institutions are overcrowded . . . and the old people deserve comfortable pensions too."

Premier Hepburn Warns People Not To Take War Lightly

Ottawa, Nov. 21 (CP).—Premier Mitchell Hepburn last night told a political rally in support of Hon. Robert Laurier, Ontario Mines Minister and Liberal candidate in next Wednesday's Ottawa East Provincial by-election, that the Hepburn government had effected many economies and placed Ontario, financially, in "the most enviable position of any province in the Dominion."

When he came into power in 1934 Premier Hepburn said the government faced tremendous financial difficulties. One hundred million dollars worth of municipal bonds were in default and all taxation sources had been tapped.

The government nevertheless had sought to effect economies. He mentioned the closing of Ontario House in London, the closing of Government House in Toronto and the sale of a great many government automobiles as measures that had been taken to save money.

There was also a battle with the banks in which the government finally was able to save Ontario "millions upon millions as a result of forcing interest down, he said.

Nominations for the by-election closed yesterday, only three candidates — Mr. Laurier, Aldege Scott, Independent Liberal; and Pte. Alex Denomme of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, Social Credit — entered the field.

Turning to the political field, Mr. Hepburn said that it was necessary to uphold the great names of history, and he has every confidence Mr. Laurier, nephew of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, would do this.

The premier also warned his listeners "not to take this war too lightly." He asked them what would happen if the British fleet were lost.

"We are still vulnerable," he said. "Don't you think we should work three shifts of eight hours each for seven days a week?"

Provincial Treasurer Opposes Wheat Acreage Reduction

Calgary, Nov. 21 (CP)—Cutting down on production of wheat at a time like this would be a "criminal action," Hon. Solon Low, Alberta Provincial Treasurer, told 200 delegates at the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts annual convention here yesterday.

(Possibility of steps to reduce wheat acreage in the Prairie Provinces next year was the subject of private discussion at Ottawa earlier this week. It was believed the Federal government would wait until after parliament's Christmas recess before announcing any policy in this connection.)

"The Provincial government has done everything that lies within its power to get for the farmers a just return for wheat," Mr. Low said. "Every sane man must realize that there are limits to what the government can do. There are some things that lie within the powers of the Federal government that we cannot touch—the price of wheat is one of them."

Mr. Low described the economic set-up of the Bank of Canada, and the gold reserves on hand. It was not necessary to sell the gold to balance trade, he said, claiming it would have been possible for the Bank of Canada to expand internal credit to four times its status without seriously dislocating the value of the dollar.

Had the gold been in Canada the government could have bought the entire wheat crop, he said.

Few Weeks On Syntona Made Big Difference In This Lady

No Longer Suffers With Stomach Pains, Acid Indigestion, Gas, Dizzy Spells and Sick Headaches. Could Not Sleep; Felt Nervous and Rundown.

MRS. ERIE COSBY

All around us are grateful men and women who have used Syntona and found it to be just what they needed to put new energy in their sundown systems and to relieve common ailments of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Syntona produces these results by cleansing the system of excess acids and poisonous waste matter and by promoting assimilation of food to build strong, healthy nerves and sound bodies. The following report of Mrs. Erie Cosby, Smithville, Ont., is a typical example:

"Three or four years ago my stomach started giving me trouble, and, although I used many different medicines, I kept getting worse, until almost everything I ate would sour in my stomach and cause gas and cramps. My stomach got sore and painful and for weeks at a time I was hardly able to eat or sleep. I was subject to spells of dizziness and sick headaches. My nerves were bad and I felt tired out and rundown.

"I kept reading about Syntona and finally decided to try it and it has helped me wonderfully. Now I have a keen appetite and I can eat what I like without any stomach distress afterwards. All that gas and indigestion is gone. I can sleep soundly once more and I feel rested and better able to do my work. My nerves are better and I am free of those sick headaches."

Let this grand herbal tonic help you, as it has hundreds of other local men and women. Syntona is pleasant to take and it contains no harmful drugs or depressors.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at Dolan's Drug Store. Get yourself a week's treatment or a month's treatment today. Ask about the special introductory offer.

SEARCH CONTINUED FOR MISSING COUPLE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police today concentrated their search for Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk of North Bay, Ont., missing since October 4, on areas around this city.

Inspector A. H. Palmer of the Toronto office of the Provincial Police said, however, no clues had yet been uncovered to the whereabouts of the missing couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk were last seen by a friend in Sudbury whom they told they were travelling to Winnipeg to visit their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. George Price, guests for several days of the latter's sister, Mrs. D. M. Farrell, and Mr. Farrell, have returned to their home in Mount Albert.

Squadron Leader V. H. Patriarch of Trenton was in Ottawa, for a short visit with his cousin, Lt.-Col. A. V. Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Morgan and daughter, Joan, formerly of Toronto, are making their home in Belleville and are residing at 240 East Bridge Street. Miss Joan Morgan is attending Albert College.

Miss Helen Harris has returned to her home at 5 South Park Street, after recovering from an operation at the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. W. Porte Marshall, Colborne, is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. O. A. Marshall, following a week end spent in Kingston with her husband, Dr. Porte Marshall, who is with the C.A.M.C., Barriefield.

Tabernacle Mission Circle met Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. J. W. Moore, 24 Ridley Ave. The presentation of the Life and Work of Miss Minnie Shipley, known as The Pilgrim of the Honan Road was directed by Mrs. G. Stanton assisted by Gladys Pomeroy, Mrs. K. Fashion Flashes

NICEST TIME of the year for the country. Made for brisk country days is a grand coat of natural colored llama tweed with taupe brown, pale blue and rust plaid. Bloused back, collarless neckline straight sleeves, wide at the wrist.

Almost more fur than cloth seems to be the formula for this year's coat. Done in beige, brown, dark green or black woollen, one model has the entire bodice and wide tuxedo panels on the skirt, of somali leopard or of nutria. Gauntlet cuffs of fur too.

Universally becoming to all types and ages is the tricorne. A forward-tilted model in black velvet has three tiny ostrich plumes at the left brim, which stands higher than the right. The plumes are in pale blue turquoise and smoke blue. Lacy veil.

If you like color then you'll dote on some bright Irish tweeds that have been made up into country suits. One model is a plaid in bright yellow, brown, beige, salmon pink and lavender on a taupe ground.

Leisure hours are even nicer when one wears a smart, pretty and comfy houserobe. A beauty is done in velvet in that tawny leopard print. Brown satin girdle and facings to the easy surplice closing. Side drapery. Wide cuffs lined in satin.

An easy transformation is effected from evening to dinner clothes, with the aid of a jacket. The shops are showing tailored jackets in sequins that are ideal for this purpose and are nice with black afternoon things as well.

OPPORTUNITY DAY IN YOUR KITCHEN says Mary Blake

Any day you have Carnation Milk on your pantry shelf, is Opportunity Day in your kitchen—with scores of opportunities to save money, to create new, exciting dishes, to improve the flavour and texture of favourite dishes.

Yes, Carnation Milk does these things. It's the modern form of milk—much more widely useful than milk in its ordinary form. It keeps indefinitely unopened; it is rich enough to use in place of cream (even for whipping); it gives a smooth texture and richer flavour to cooked dishes and to milk drinks; it is always the same whenever, wherever you buy it; and it is economical.

Carnation is pure milk—nothing added. It has all these special virtues because it is evaporated to double-richness, homogenized and sterilized, and treated with ultra-violet rays to give it extra "sunshine" vitamin D.

Get a few cans of Irradiated Carnation Milk. Try it in cooking or for creaming. Get the beautifully illustrated Carnation Cook Book. 15¢ (postpaid). Try some of the dishes suggested below. Carnation Company, Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

The Gals Who Fear to Smile

Jacqueline Wells Takes Care of her Beautiful Teeth

(By HELEN FOLETT)

GIRLS WITH discolored or defective teeth don't do much smiling; can't bear to display them to a critical world. No smiling and a girl might just as well trot out her little ladder and get up on the shelf.

Dental science has made big strides; there are few defects that cannot be corrected. It is well worth while to cut down on grand dry goods and beautifiers, seek professional attention for biters that do not qualify. Sound teeth are necessary for health, are an important factor in good appearance.

Roll Along

When brushing the teeth groom the entire dentine surfaces, front, back and sides. Sweep away from the gums with a rolling motion. Never use a brush after the bristles have softened; it is worthless. A good dentifrice is necessary for thorough cleaning and to impart a polish.

Calcium is necessary if teeth are to be in good condition; it is found in milk, orange juice, carrots, eggs, celery and cheese. Lap up your orange juice every morning, take milk with your meals; this habit may save dentist bills. Cod liver oil is rich in vitamins that help.

Tartar is a menace. Must be removed every six months by the dentist, who will hack it out with his little pick-axes.

In infancy much can be done to correct bow legs; special treatments are given and prescription shoes are worn. After full growth is attained nothing can change the shape of the bones, the source of the trouble.

Knock-knees come from walking on the inner sides of the foot. Not as disfiguring as bow legs, but a handicap just the same. When walking point toes straight ahead, place the weight evenly on the soles of the feet.

The best cure for fatted calves is a jumping rope used with plenty of zip and action.

Annual Bazaar A Fine Success

An air of festivity prevailed in the Oddfellows' Hall, Wednesday afternoon when annual bazaar of Belleville Chapter No. 55 O.E.S. an eagerly-anticipated event, was held with gratifying success. The many guests were received by the Worthy Matron, Mrs. Maude Elliott, Mrs. Hazel Baragar, wife of the Worthy Patron, and Mrs. Thelma Liddle, Grand Electa of the Grand Chapter of Ontario". Arranged in artistic fashion about the room were the various booths which contained everything to appeal to the visitors in the way of dainty merchandise. Mrs. Grace McEwan, P.W.M., convener and Mrs. Dorothy McGlashon, co-convener, were in charge of arrangements for the bazaar and the enthusiasm shown by the members ensured the success of the event.

The fancy work table, smart with its decoration of red and white contained lovely examples of practical needlework. Mrs. Stella Hogle was convener, Mrs. Ethel Adams, P.W.M., co-convener, and Mrs. Sara Morgan, Mrs. Ida Forsyth, Mrs. Mildred Douglas and Mrs. Lena McFarlane assisted. An endless variety of aprons, the envy of any homemaker were displayed in the apron booth, a pretty picture in blue and yellow. Mrs. Susie Pigden, convener, and Mrs. Ila Clapp, co-convener, were assisted by Mrs. Rhoda Sager, Mrs. Annie Scott, and Mrs. Mary McLean.

In its decorative scheme of chartreuse green and rust, the mystery table provided many surprises with its star decked parcels which the visitor chose at random. Mrs. Edna Morden was convener, Mrs. Margaret Shaw, co-convener, and the assistants were Mrs. Emma Dowsett, Mrs. Martha Howie, Mrs. Kathleen Adams, and Mrs. June Muirhead. Balloons in gay profusion made a colorful setting for the candy booth which was in charge of Mrs. Edna Wonnacott, convener, Mrs. Thelma Liddle, G.E., co-convener, Mrs. Margaret Oliphant, Mrs. Nellie Brown, Mrs. Muriel Smith, Mrs. Margaret Cherrie and Mrs. Nora MacDonald.

Against a background of deep blue, gold and silver chain motifs made a striking picture of the novelty table for which Mrs. Mae Black is convener, Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, P.W.M., co-convener, Mrs. Ethel Sandercock, Mrs. Olga MacDonald, Mrs. Myrtle Vivian, Mrs. Signe Orne and Mrs. Luella Wallace assistants. The home cooking table enjoyed its usual popularity and had an attractive air with its green and white decorations. Mrs. Elsie Harrison, convener, with Mrs. Annie Adams, co-convener, Mrs. May Elliott, Mrs. Sarah Bowyer, Mrs. Frances Nunn and Mrs. Ruby Tufts were in charge.

The grocery contest was followed with much interest and was in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth Holst, convener, and Mrs. Evelyn Warham. The winners of the baskets were Mrs. Phyllis Barlow, Mrs. Maude Elliott and Mrs. Annie McGee. The Business Girls conducted a draw on a lovely spread. Misses Irene Hallam, P.W.M., and Mary Carmichael were in charge. Winners of various contests at the different booths were Miss Nita Bush who won the candy booth drawing, Mrs. A. Murray who was the winner of the centrepiece drawn for at the fancy work booth and Mrs. T. Lynch who won the knitting bag on which tickets were sold at the novelty table.

Among those who assisted greatly with the afternoon's arrangements were Clifford Baragar, W.P., convener of the men's group, Tommy Law, co-convener, Clinton MacDonald, P.W.P., Harry Sager, P.W.P., Bob Adams P.W.P. The advertising and distribution of tickets were in charge of Mrs. Ada MacDonald, convener, and Mrs. Ada Thompson, co-convener, while the treasurers were Mrs. Margaret Green, convener, Mrs. M. A. Phillips, and Mrs. Grace Badger.

The tea room was arranged in the Upper Hall which presented a most inviting appearance. Union Jacks formed the centre of the decorative scheme and this was particularly fitting in that the Chapter devotes so much of its time to Red Cross Work and to the patriotic projects of their own Order. The tea table was lovely with its lace cloth, centrepiece of crimson roses and tall red tapers. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. Lillie Law, P.W.M., convener, Mrs. Flossie Smith, P.W.M., and Mrs. Susan Chesher, P.W.M., co-conveners, Mrs. J. W. Barlow P.D.D.G.M., Mrs. Beatrice Embury, P.W.M., and Mrs. Aletha Cornish, P.W.M. Mrs. J. W. Barlow, P.D.D.G.M., Mrs. Elizabeth Reid, P.W.M., Mrs. Mary Lewis, P.W.M., Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor, P.D.D.G.M., and Mrs. Clara Williamson were in charge of replenishing the tea table and serving were Mrs. Marienne Arnott, Mrs. May Stortts, Mrs. Margaret Hallam, Miss Nita Bush, Miss May Tuck, Mrs. Mary Thompson, Mrs. Violet Doig, and Mrs. Mae Snare.

Assisting in arrangements for the tea were Mrs. Florence Varley, convener, Mrs. Pauline Wesley, co-convener, Mrs. Thursa Green, Mrs. Annie McGee and Miss Marion Varley.

The proceeds of the bazaar were most gratifying.

His Own Playroom

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

A great many young mothers fret because they cannot have a separate playroom for the child from one to five. Perhaps some impractical child experts have been responsible for this foolish notion.

If such an expert were only to observe the toddler in the average home, he would discover that the little tyke will not, of his own accord, stay long at a time in his own playroom alone. Even when this youngster has playmates, he and they prefer to spend most of their time where the other members of the family are. The separate playroom, so far as the toddler's preferences go, is impractical, except as a place to store playthings.

The tot wants to wander about the house with his mother. He wants to see what she is doing, now and then imitating her. He wants to talk to her and have her talk to him, especially to answer his questions unendingly.

Fortunate the tot and his mother if he as soon as he has begun to toddle, has learned the meaning of NO, has learned there are a certain few things he must not do or have, but hundreds of others that he may do. Fortunate if his mother and father never weary of answering his questions, listening attentively to what he has to say, explaining things to him, taking the time and patience to show him how to be careful in the use of new things. The little child should have, of course, a place or corner of a room with low boxes and shelves in which to keep his playthings.

Older Child Needs Room

The child over five or six may profit greatly by having a separate playroom, even if it must serve also as a bedroom, where he can continue at building and creating things over periods of days at a stretch, with assurance that his things won't be disturbed.

It's the boy or girl over eight or ten who needs a room of his own, especially the 'teen-age boy and girl.

For general health, children should have separate beds, even if only a very inexpensive cot. Children sleep better when alone.

When two children share the same bedroom they may keep each other awake at bedtime or waken each other too early in the morning; but on the other hand, they may profit from conversation. In case they cannot be disciplined effectively, let one go to sleep in an adult's room, to be carried back to the children's room when the adult retires.

Plenty of Fresh Air

Even with some crowding, if there is ample fresh air, the children through wise management by their parents may gain something in character through making the necessary adaptation because of the necessity of "doubling up". Yet one cannot understand how best mental health, personality and character can develop with a family crowded into a few rooms, as so very often is the case. Some of us little realize the handicaps some children and their parents must endure from congested housing.

Solving Parent Problems

Q.—Should an employed youth, living with his parents, receive and use his own pay check?

A.—As a rule, yes. But he sho pay a regular amount of board.

Q.—At what age can a child assume responsibility for making and keeping his own engagements at the dentist?

A.—I know three children who, soon after entering school, began to take on this responsibility and were proud and happy to do so. They first visited the dentist at about two years of age.

Farewell Gifts Are Presented to Fox Family, Burrs

Burrs — Wednesday evening, Nov. 13th, about fifty friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mrs. Geo. Fox to bid farewell to her, Irene and Howard, prior to their removal to Hillier village.

The early part of the evening was spent in visiting and a short program of music, readings and community singing was enjoyed. Mr. Joe Moon then asked Mrs. Fox, Irene and Howard to the dining-room where they were seated at the table. Mrs. Clifford Hough read a brief address and Mrs. Murney Parks placed a lovely set of dishes on the table for Mrs. Fox and Irene, while Mrs. Tom Morden presented Howard with a gentleman's toilet set in a leather case as an expression of good will and appreciation to them. Each of them thanked their friends and invited all to visit them at anytime in their present home. Mrs. Fox has lived on the fifth concession of Hillier for twenty-nine years and will be much missed as she has always possessed a kind heart and a willingness to help in every way she could. Refreshments were served before all left for home wishing for them much happiness in their new home.

Mr. Howard Fox has secured a position at the Trenton Airport.

Mrs. Lorne Burr arrived home from Peterboro Sunday afternoon, after a pleasant visit with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble who accompanied her home and will remain until Wednesday.

Several ladies from this neighborhood were present at Crofton Aid at the home of Mrs. Victor Bongard on Wednesday when their annual meeting was held.

Mrs. Ross Burr has been spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Mark Werden, who has been quite ill and suffering with neuritis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ignatius Nightingale of Massassaga were Sunday callers on their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. George Huffman. Mr. Russel Campbell called at the same home on Monday afternoon.

A large number of members and visitors attended Burr's Ladies' Aid on Thursday at Mrs. Cyrus Fulford's. The annual money bags were handed in and the sum of $15.00 was realized.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr and Ronald, Alan Werden and Mrs. J. E. Moran were guests on Sunday of Mrs. Earl Anderson and Mr. Douglas Anderson, Belleville.

The M. B. B.'s held their regular meeting on Monday night at Allisonville Hall. After the usual routine of business, Mr. and Mrs. Warner McFaul, a recent bride and groom, were honored with an address read by Mr. Don Johnson and presented with a silver cake dish by Miss Zelda Carter on behalf of the Young People's Club. Mr. and Mrs. McFaul graciously thanked them for their lovely gift. Refreshments were served, after which they enjoyed a recreation hour of games.

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers of Eldorado were dinner guests on Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harris.

The Allisonville W. E. C. met at the Allisonville Hall on Tuesday.

Miss Doris Blakely spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Blakely.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Reynolds entertained company recently from Cobourg.

A surprise party was held on Saturday night at the home of Mr. Harry Dafoe in honor of his son, Carmen and Mrs. Dafoe who were recently married. The large attendance showed the esteem in which Carmen was held in the neighborhood. A kitchenette set was presented the happy couple for which they thanked their friends in a few well chosen words. The evening was spent in social intercourse and at the end refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reynolds spent a week ago Sunday in Napanee.

Miss Emily Morrison and Mr. Byrle Howes attended the Fraser-Von Volkenburg wedding on Saturday in Cannifton United Church Parsonage. A reception was held afterwards at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Von Volkenburg of the 4th line.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guay attended the Bedore-O'Brien wedding at Brighton last week.

A great many from here took advantage of the best chicken supper of the season held in Plainfield Orange Hall on Nov. 13th. After they did ample justice in the dining hall they proceeded to the Church across the road where a good program was enjoyed in an overflowing church.

The Red Cross meeting was held in the Church on Wednesday, Nov. 13th, at which new officers were elected.

GOLF FOR RED CROSS

Johannesburg, (CP)—A. D. (Bobby) Locke, South African open golf champion and Bert Thomas, Transvaal professional, raised £1,000 ($4,450) for Red Cross funds by touring the union playing exhibition matches.

Belgium's Surrender Known to Allies Five Days Before Happening

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—King Leopold of Belgium surrendered to Germany because "he knew he would be guilty of homicide if he asked his exhausted soldiers further hopeless resistance," John Cudahy, United States ambassador to Belgium, said last night.

"The King's lips are sealed," he declared in a broadcast address. "He can say nothing. He was made a prisoner of war . . . and stands convicted by accusation."

For five days, Cudahy asserted, Belgium's forthcoming surrender was known to the British and French military commands and to King George of England in a letter sent him by Leopold May 25—three days before the final capitulation.

He listed these events as reasons for the Belgian King's surrender:

The "fatal order of Gamelin," commander of Allied forces in Belgium, for abandonment of the "iron wall"—the little Maginot Line.

The "crushing defeat" of the French seventh army in Holland, the capitulation of The Netherlands armed force and the "collapse" of the French ninth army on the Belgian-French frontier "from Sedan to Dinant on a front of nearly 50 miles."

The defeat of the French first army and the failure of the Allied counter attack.

"Already the British, realizing that their only escape lay in reaching Dunkerque, had started for that port, destroying what equipment and munitions they could, and with them went the French," recalled Cudahy.

"Where could the Belgains go in such a crisis? National self-interest and national self-preservation determine actions and decisions."

ANTI-COMMUNIST GROUP OF C.I.O. WANTS SHOWDON

Draft Resolution Against Philosophy of Communism, Nazism and Fascism

READY TO VOTE

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 21 (AP)—A declaration against the philosophy of Communism, Nazism and Fascism was reported drafted and ready for a vote in the Congress of Industrial Organizations Convention today.

For a week there has been open agitation for C.I.O. action on such a policy and for a showdown between so-called left and right wing groups.

Proposals calling for the adoption of this policy have been under consideration in the Resolutions Committee since C.I.O. members gathered here in their third convention to determine policies they would follow after John L. Lewis retires from C.I.O.'s presidency.

Since Lewis and a group of labor leaders established C.I.O. here five years ago to engage in a militant campaign to unionize big industry there have been charges that adherents of Communism had obtained a foothold in the new movement and were active in organizing work.

Major Activity

During the past week the drive to bring about a showdown on C.I.O.'s attitude toward the thorny issue became one of the convention's major activities.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union headed by Sidney Hillman, labor member of the National Defence Commission, played a leading part in the drive, supporting a resolution to condemn Communism, Fascism and Nazism, and also a proposal to put into C.I.O.'s constitution an amendment which would make members of any of the isms ineligible to hold paid jobs in C.I.O. offices.

The Communist issue has been described by well-informed labor men as one of the problems involved in the consideration of Philip Murray as Lewis' successor in the C.I.O. presidency.

Britain Will Surely Win the War But It Will be Long, Grim Business

Former Head of N.Y. Times Paris Bureau, P. J. Philip, Speaks Confidently of Victory

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)— Percy J. Philip, Ottawa correspondent of the New York Times, began his address to Toronto Empire Club today with the "flat statement" he was sure Britain would win the war, but he added: "It is going to be a very long, grim business."

Mr. Philip, for 20 years head of the Times' Paris Bureau before he went to Ottawa, said there still is "a long hard road in front of us until we can rid the world of this nightmare in which we are all living and restore decency and freedom.

"We are going to have many heartbreaks and sorrows. We are going to have to be very patient.

"But when we feel impatient and despondent I want you to think of those other peoples who have already lost the war—of those Poles and Danes and Dutch people and Belgians and Norwegians and French who are living, starving and still resisting under the heel of the Nazi oppressor....Let us thank God daily that we are still free."

Mr. Philip, a Briton, said Hitler has announced that he is "the toughest leader the world has ever known" and it was probably true.

"His is the toughness of the deformed—the vitally deformed," he continued. "And he is surrounded by tough men—Goering, Himmler, Hess, Goebbels and all the rest of the Nazi bandits.

"He is followed by tough men.... terribly tough. They are worth fighting and beating."

Then Mr. Philip said he would let his audience in on a secret—Hitler's followers were not all tough; there was a weak streak in the rank and file, the weak streak of a subject people.

"But we Britishers, Canadians, Autralians, Afrikanders and New Zealanders are tough all through," he said, "from Prime Minister Churchill down to the little cockney children who brag to each other that the bomb that fell in their street was the biggest ever."

Says French Were Licked.

Mr. Philip said he had found a tendency to ascribe the fall of France to "fifth column work and treachery", but he believed the French were "licked, absolutely and completely licked" in May and June. In the confusion of it all a few men seized the government and made an armistice with the Germans because they believed that Britain, too, would fall within a few weeks.

Pierre Laval was the man who persuaded Marshal Petain, the hero of Verdun, to vote at Bordeaux against continuing the war, Laval would "sacrifice the last shred of his own and his country's honor and independence to satisfy his hatred of the British and his cock-eyed belief in himself as a great statesman."

"The French may have been overwhelmed but they aren't beaten. They may have been compelled to lay down their arms but they aren't conquered.

"And we shall need them . . . we shall never win the war without the sympathy of the invaded peoples, without the possibility of their ultimate revolt."

Mr. Philip told of a dream that had come to him twice during the past year or so. He was at Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat. He watched Hitler open the drawer of a desk, pull out a revolver and raise it to his temple, and "then of course I woke up—one always does in dreams just before the bang comes.

"Now, I don't believe much in dreams or omens, but I do believe in subconscious foresight and I am telling you of that dream quite seriously because I believe that it will be in that way this war will end."

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

While the sapper guarded a crater where a time bomb awaited "attention," a constable asked permission to look down the big hole. As he walked to the edge, the sapper warned against kicking dirt down "because my mate's having a sleep."

Rays of a torch showed the soldier sleeping beside one of the biggest bombs the constable said he ever saw.

One London motorist who gives office workers free rides home turned up with this note on his windshield: "Lifts given to men only. Meeting the wife."

A woman warden in north London warned an old lady, on her way to return a library book, to take cover because planes and gunfire were heard overhead. The old lady retorted she couldn't possibly stop as she had the book out a fortnight already.

These air raids are turning things topsy-turvy all right. One London dance hall introduced a morning jam session so soldiers and their girls could dance without risking the dangers of going home in night raids.

A high explosive bomb wrecked all of one London house except one room. That was the one where the Pascoe family sat.

Sample of a weather report sent to London from Dover—only place in England where weather can be mentioned: "Wind southwest. Light sea—smooth. Low heavy mist mid-channel. Starlight overhead. Quiet."

"PHYSICALLY PERFECT" MAN

Low First Cost and Low Operating Costs

PRICES AS LOW AS $1010 DELIVERED IN BELLEVILLE

BEFORE you buy ANY car look at a Dodge—and drive one. Remember Dodge Dependability and low operating costs are not visible on the showroom floor. Mile after mile of smooth trouble-free driving will prove these traditional Dodge qualities to your lasting satisfaction.

The 1941 Dodge models are the most beautiful that Dodge has ever built in its 26 years of making fine quality automobiles. The new radiator grille design emphasizes the low, wide, ground hugging qualities that discriminating buyers demand in a modern motor car.

The famous Dodge Full Floating ride is smoother and more restful than ever before due to further advancements in weight distribution and the use of still softer springs.

Dodge engines for 1941 have new Oil-bath air-cleaners, and floating type oil strainers. Oil filters are standard equipment. A new type of compression ring speeds up the break-in period and reduces compression loss. New bearings have a much longer life.

We sincerely believe that if you check and compare with any other cars you will conclude that, dollar for dollar, Dodge is offering the biggest values rolling off to-day's assembly lines.

A trip to the Dodge showroom and a ride behind the wheel will supply confirmation of every word of this message and will supply an experience no words can convey.

If you want a car in the very lowest price field, drive a Dodge Kingsway. It's a big 88 horsepower beauty and every Dodge Kingsway owner rightly enjoys a fine pride of ownership.

If you're willing to spend a little more, take the wheel of a 1941 Dodge Luxury Liner Special with Fluid Drive—we believe you won't be content until you own one.

NAVAL ACADEMY TO BE LOCATED NEAR VICTORIA

R. W. Mayhew, Member for Victoria, Makes Announcement on Authority of Parliament

IDEALLY LOCATED

Ottawa, Nov. 21. (CP). — R. W. Mayhew (Lib.-Victoria) told The Canadian Press today he was authorized to state that the new naval academy, announced in parliament by Navy Minister Macdonald this week would be located at Hatley Park near Victoria.

The government, he said, will take over the 600-acre estate of the late James Dunsmuir, one time lieutenant governor of British Columbia.

Mr. Mayhew said Hatley Park was ideally situated for a naval college with a palatial residence which could be used for classes and several other buildings which would be suitable for college purposes.

The location is on tide water close to the naval dockyard.

The first naval college in Canada was established in Halifax before the first great war. It suffered in the 1917 Halifax explosion and functioned later at Kingston, Ont., and Esquimalt, B.C., before being closed in 1922.

Predicts Next Century Will be Era of Peace and Good Will

Mexico City, Nov. 21 (AP)—United States Ambassador Josephus Daniels declared his belief today that "in history as in nature the darkest hour is just before the dawn and that the coming century will witness more miracles for human well-being than in any 10 years which have preceded it."

The world of 2040, the Ambassador asserted in a Thanksgiving Day address prepared for delivery at a church here, will be a world without "a King or Queen or Emperor holding power by right of inheritance or life tenure" and without "any dictator seizing power by force or holding it by denial of the popular will."

In this world, he continued, there will be no strikes , no need for standing armies, great navies or militarized aircraft, beyond an "international police force," and "every man who tills the soil will own the land he cultivates."

Milk Distributors Discourage Action On Higher Milk Prices

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—In a resolution adopted at the annual meeting here Wednesday night, the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association declared "that at least for the near future, and in the best interests of the industry, we should discourage any action leading towards the raising of milk prices."

Another resolution adopted again requested the Ontario Government to establish a minimum quality for milk, and to place all equipment used in its production and the inspection of farms, for the production of fluid milk, under the control of the Department of Health.

Retiring President J. I. Flatt, of Hamilton, was given a silver tray. The presentation was made by George Gillespie, of Peterborough.

The proposal to sell milk in larger quantities as an element in reducing deliveries and lessening cost didn't get far.

Consensus was that larger containers would require enlarged plants, additional equipment and increased help and that any move without serious condition and united action would result in "breaking down the price structure." The matter was sent to the executive.

Outnumbered 4 to 1 British Fighters Down 11 Italian Planes

London, Nov. 21—(CP)—Royal Air Force fighter planes shot down ten Italian fighters in Eastern Libya yesterday without loss to themselves, the Air Ministry announced today.

The battle was between fifteen British fighters and sixty Italian craft.

German Propaganda Activities Published in White Paper by Dies Committee of U.S.

Washington, Nov. 21—(CP)—The Dies Committee on Unamerican Activities published today a white paper describing the German propaganda activities of the Transocean News Service and linking Transocean in some of its activities with the Transradio Press Service that operate in Canada and the United States.

The committee said it had "documentary evidence to the effect that Transocean News Service has been the chief propagandising agent of the Nazi government in Guatemala, Mexico, Havana, Ecuador, Argentina and Brazil." From Berlin, it said, about 10,000 words of "information and messages" are transmitted daily.

"The evidence indicates that the material sent from Germany to the South American countries is violently anti-American and that Transocean News gives free distribution of its material to the newspapers in South America," said the white paper.

The white paper included correspondence which the committee said was exchanged by Manfred Zapp, named as Transocean representative in the United States, and Transradio Press. It dealt with the reception of short-wave broadcasts of Transocean News in South America.

Reception Seen Fixed Up

"In the event that the South American reception was faulty", the report said, "Berlin immediately advised Zapp in New York. Thereupon Zapp took this matter up with the Transradio Press Service which service appears to be not only the receiving agency for Transocean but also the Transmitting agency .

"This fact is further substantiated from an examination of the Transocean financial records in which it is disclosed that for the period from January 1, 1939, to August, 1940, Transocean News Service paid Transradio Press Service the sum of $44,367.91.

"The certificate of incorporation of the Transradio Press Service, Inc., filed with the State of New York, bears the name of Arthur M. Quisenberry as a member or the Board of Directors of the said corporation. The list of employees of Transocean News Service, as contained in the file of this organization, indicates that an employee Arthur Quisenberry, was entered on the rolls as of April 12, 1939."

Report Included Letters

The report included a letter to the German Embassy in Washington concerning attempts to disseminate the Transocean News Service.

Dated October 19, 1939, the letter was over the name of Zapp, whom the committee said was "sent to this country from Berlin for the express purpose of increasing the scope of Transocean 'News' effectiveness not only in the United States but in Canada, Mexico, Central America and South America".

The report said the Service was developed during the first Great War and later made by Hitler into a propaganda agency.

The letter was addressed to the Counsellor of the Legation, Herbert Von Strempel, German Embassy, Washington, and said:—

"At your suggestion we have sent Transocean News for one month to the 'Cleveland News', 'Press', and 'Plain Dealer'.

"After the dispatch of trial copies the representative of the 'Cleveland Press' came here to New York and inquired after our service and discussed it and showed himself willing possibly to take our service. As you know, however, he went to the 'World Telegram' (New York World-Telegram) and there published everything which he had been told. Thereupon Herr Tonn stopped trial copies to the 'Cleveland Press' for one can not co-operate with people who are so dishonorable".

The letter added that a month's trial service was being continued to the two other papers, but did not indicate what was planned thereafter.

The report published a letter from Ludwig Schmitt, editor of the Cincinnati Freie Presse, to the German Consulate in Cleveland asking the Consulate to use his influence in securing Transocean News Service without cost.

"As you know, the Freie Presse is in receivership," said the letter.

The paper was advised later, said the report, that "Mr. Schmitt had no reason to be upset and that he would be supplied with the services of the Transocean News Service."

The 500-page report, which Chairman Martin Dies, Texas Democratic member of the United States House of Representatives described as a white paper, was documented with the testimony of scores of witnesses and with letters, telegrams and other exhibits seized by committee agents in raids, mostly in New York City.

George of Greece, President Roosevelt, Exchange Telegrams

London, Nov. 21.—(CP)— Telegrams exchanged between King George of Greece and President Roosevelt were published in Athens today, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported.

The telegram from the President expressed "deep appreciation" of congratulations sent him by the king on the occasion of his re-election to the presidency. It also spoke warml yof the "spirit of spoke warmly of the "spirit of the BBC added.

Two Killed in Training Plane Near Moose Jaw

Moose Jaw, Sask., Nov. 21—(CP)—Two men were killed today when a training plane of the Moose Jaw Flying Club crashed just north of here.

The dead: Jack Scott, instructor of the Moose Jaw Flying Club and a pupil named Maguire.

Finance Minister Warns of Optimism

Ottawa, Nov. 21—(CP)—An "excessive and dangerous" optimism as to the outcome of the war exists in Canada, Finance Minister Ilsley warned today.

"Instead of being conscious, every waking moment, of the deadly peril of a powerful enemy, many of us have a feeling that the battle of Britain is won, that all is well."

The war was not won, he declared. A far closer engagement with the enemy would be necessary long before victory was achieved.

"Not only must our fighting force engage his, we must engage him in our civilian activities—by the making of sacrifices, the foregoing of pleasures, the devotion of our substance to the common cause," he said. "In these ways must all of us engage the enemy.

Italian Seamen Found Wearing Lifebelts Marked "Vulcania"

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 21 (AP)—Reports from Dubrovnik (Ragusa) on Yugoslavia's Adriatic Coast, said today the bodies of three Italian seamen wearing lifebelts marked "Vulcania" had been washed ashore near Dubrovnik.

There have been no reports, however, of any mishap to the big Italian liner Vulcania.

(The Vulcania, 24,369 tons, formerly in the New York-Italy service, made a fine voyage to South America just before Italy entered the war, reaching a home port June 10.)

Text of Speech Of Prime Minister Winston Churchill

London, Nov. 21—(CP Cable)—The text, in part, of Prime Minister Churchill's speech in the House of Commons today follows:

The House will forgive me if I do not attempt today to deal with the war situation. I do not feel that this is the moment when it would be convenient to make a statement on the war in the Mediterranean theatre.

There are two wars going on there, in both of which we have the very greatest interest. There is the defence of Egypt and the Canal against greatly superior numbers of the enemy. This defence some months ago looked a rather difficult and doubtful affair but at the present time we have confidence that we shall be able to give a good account of ourselves when the invading forces fall upon us.

Valiant Uprising

Then there is the valiant and sudden uprising of the Greek nation, who, though taken by surprise and struck a violent blow, have already almost entirely purged their soil of the conscript invaders who have been launched upon them upon an enterprise which cannot be described as other than pure and unmitigated brigandage.

We have both these theatres to consider and I can only say that we shall do our best. I feel that deeds and not words are what are expected of us, and I certainly hope that we shall be able to give from our resources, which are always heavily strained, a helpful measure of assistance to the Greeks and that we shall be able to discharge our responsibility to Egypt in defending its soil and guarding the vital artery of the Suez Canal. . . .

Admits Lagging of Bill

The War Damage Bill has perhaps lagged somewhat behind our hopes in its preparation. It is a Bill of great complexity and difficulty, but I can assure the House that every effort will be made to bring it before Parliament at the earliest moment, and it will be a measure of amplitude and scope which will deal effectively with the damage which falls now here, now there, upon individuals throughout the country. There must be equality of risk and equality of treatment in respect of damage done by the fire of the enemy. . .

I do feel that because one man's home is smashed, that should be no special misfortune to him, and that all whose homes are not broken up should stand in with him as long as the trouble may last, and even if the whole of the homes of the country are levelled, then we should all be found standing together to build them up again when the fighting is over.

Balm of Confidence

Then there is also the Means Test Bill. This measure does attend to a very large extent to a question which has been the subject of controversy between the parties, but I think it would undoubtedly take a step forward into those regions of social justice which are mentioned in the gracious speech from the Throne . . .

This time-honored ceremonial and procedure in which the Crown and parliament played parts today carry with them to anxious minds the balm of confidence and certainty.

Touching Old Traditions

When our Beloved Sovereign and Queen come from their battered palace to this building which is not without evidence of the strokes of war, when the Sovereign comes to open Parliament in person and calls his faithful Commons to discharge their duties, we touch at every step, in every measure, in every formality, in every resolution we pass, we touch customs and traditions which go back far beyond the parliamentary conflicts of the 17th century.

We feel the inspiration of the old days and feel, too, the splendor of our political and moral inheritance.

We are frequently asked to make a declaration about our war aims. Some may think example better than precept and that actions speak louder than words.

Keep Traditions Vital

Today, in inaugurating this new session of parliament, we proclaim the faith and sincerity of our resolve to keep vital and active, even in the midst of our struggle for life, even under fire of the enemy, those parliamentary institutions which have served us so well and which the wisdom and civic virtue of our forebears shaped and founded, and which have proved themselves the most flexible instruments for securing, amid unceasing change and progress, that while they throw open the portals of the future they carry forward also the traditions and glories of the past which, in this solumn moment of world history, are at once our proudest assertion of British freedom and the expression of unconquerable national will.

New Session in Goodwill

The government enters upon the new session with the general goodwill of the House. Immense surrenders of our hard-won liberties have been made by the British people in order in time of war to serve better the cause of freedom and fair play for which they will keep nothing back. Parliament stands the custodian of those ancient liberties and its most sacred duty will be to restore them in their fullness when victory has crowned our exertions and perseverence.

We have a long road to go and I have never concealed from the nation or the House the darker side of our dangers and burdens, but it is in adversity that British qualities shine brightest. It is under these extraordinary tests that the character of our slowly wrought institutions reveals its latent, invincible strength.

Up to the present this war has been waged between fully armed Germany and half armed or quarter armed British Empire We have not done so badly.

I look forward with confidence and hope to the time when we ourselves shall be as well armed as our antogonists and, beyond that, to the time when the arsenals, training grounds and science of the British Empire shall give us that material superiority which, added to loyalty and constant hearts, will bring victory and deliverance to all mankind.

Red Dutton's Amerks Lose Important Cogs of Machine Before Playing Leafs in N. Y.

Goalie Robertson Suffers Bruised Shoulder and Defenceman Slobodian a Fractured Cheekbone

CALLS UP ROOKIE

Bruins and Canadiens Have Yet to Win a Game This Season

(By The Canadian Press)

From a distance, one can almost picture Red Dutton brushing off the blackboard in New York Americans' dressing room. If things keep up, Red might need his famous old sign: "Keep punching, boys!"

The Americans' hated city rivals, the Rangers, gave the Duttoneers a 3-2 beating Tuesday night, and Monday the doctors gave Red an even worse mauling by telling him he had lost Goalie Earl Robertson for one game at least and defenceman Pete Slobodian for a month.

The losses hit Dutton just when he needed the players most—on the eve of the season's first engagement against the happy warriors of Happy Day whose Toronto Maple Leafs are flying high in front of the National Hockey League. They play at New York tonight in one part of the three-game program.

The Ranger-Americans clash was anything but a tea party. Robertson suffered a bruised shoulder and Slobodian a fractured cheekbone while the Rangers' Dutch Hiller had a bad ankle cut and Art Coulter a fractured shoulder bone. Coulter also will be out of the game for a month.

Rookie Called Up.

In the crisis, Dutton had to call on a raw rookie to fill Robertson's place. Charlie Rayner, who starred with Kenora's amateur Thistles last season, will be brought up from Eddie Shore's Springfield club, and Hooley Smith will fill out the defence.

The Leafs are rolling on four straight victories, with a one-point edge on the surprising Detroit Red Wings who are at home to Montreal Canadiens tonight and a two-point edge on Chicago Black Hawks, who entertain Boston Bruins.

The Bruins and Canadiens still are the league's only winless club. Their defences have been reeling in the early games and Boston could not protect a 4-2 lead against the Red Wings in the third period Tuesday night. Their third-period wilting in two straight games, including a 4-2 loss to Toronto Sunday night, indicates the Bruin powerhouse hasn't yet the staying power and late speed of the lighter clubs.

The Canadiens will have big Jack Portland in uniform tonight to aid their back door. Purchased from Chicago last week, Portland's experience may give Bert Gardiner in the Canadien goal some greater measure of protection.

Certain it is that he needs it. The opposition has fired eighteen goals against the Canadiens in five games.

INDIANS, BARONS ARE STAGING RUNAWAY RACES

Each Team Has Tasted Only One Defeat So Far This Season

HERSHEY PLAYS TIE

Bears Are in Undisputed Possession of Second Place in Western Section

By The Canadian Press

Early as the season is, Springfield Indians and Cleveland Barons already are threatening to stage runaway races in their respective divisions in the American Hockey League.

Both the Barons and the Indians have tasted only one defeat, Springfield is leading the eastern section with a record of five victories and three draws in nine starts while Cleveland has six of their seven games in the western section.

Both clubs enhanced their records in last night's games. The Indians defeated Pittsburgh, 2-1, while the Barons turned in a 4-3 victory over New Haven. In the only other game, Hershey played a 5-5 tie with Philadelphia.

Cleveland went into overtime at home to defeat New Haven, second place club in the eastern section. Jake Milford's goal nine seconds after the start of the extra session broke a 3-3 deadlock and gave them the victory.

Cleveland had run up a 3-1 lead in the first period on goals by Deslets, Adolph and Summerhill against one by Peggy O'Neil of New Haven. The Eagles got goals from O'Neil in the second period and Mancuso in the third, however, to force the tie at the end of regulation time.

At Pittsburgh meanwhile, the visiting Springfield squad took a one goal lead in the second period when Len Halldorson scored on a pass from Lloyd Finkbeiner. Freddie Thurier made it 2-0 unassisted in the third period, while Eddie Convey averted a shut-out for the hornets with only two seconds of play remaining.

Hershey Bears moved into undisputed possession of second place in the western section by coming from behind at Philadelphia to force a tie with the Ramblers, tied for last place in the eastern section. The Bears rammed in two goals in the second period and two more in third to overcome their 3-1 first period deficit.

The Ramblers' scorers were Lude Wareing, Bob McCully, Ab Collings and Stan Smith, who bagged a pair of tallies. For Hershey, Gordon Bruce, Howie Mackie, Roger Jenkins, Gordon Pettinger and Bobby Kirk each tallied.

REINSTATED AS AMATEURS

Montreal, Nov. 21—(CP) — Two former National Hockey League players, defenceman Moe Croghan and Winger Rod Lorrain, signed Wednesday with Quebec Senior Hockey League teams after being reinstated as amateurs by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Formerly with the old Montreal Maroons, Croghan played with Montreal Royals last night in the opener of a twin-bill which they lost 5-2 to Montreal Canadiens. Lorrain, last season with Canadiens in the N.H.L., has lined up with Concordia but did not appear in the lineup of the Montreal team, which bowed 6-1 to Verdun in the nightcap.

ACTION DURING MIDGET CAR RACE.

When Bud Sennett, in the white No 38 car, started to skid in the seventh lap of the midget race at Ascot speedway, at Southgate, Calif., he started something! Ed Davis, in No. 24, skidded around him safely, but Bob Packard, in No. 64, at extreme RIGHT, smacked into Sennett and bounced high into the air. Packard was uninjured.

ON EARLY RECORD DAY LOOKS LIKE COACH OF YEAR

Toronto Leafs Heading Parade and Skating Fastest of Any Team in Loop

FINE COMBINATION

Coach Day Insists That Team Plays Two-Way Hockey

(By Dick Sheridan, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP) — For a fellow who claims he's only trying to make the team himself, Clarence (Hap) Day is doing all right in his first try at coaching. His Toronto Leafs are leading the National Hockey League and on his record to date he looks like the coach of the year.

The Leafs lost their first game to New York Rangers and then won four straight, beating Detroit, Canadiens twice and Boston. One of the last to start pre-season training, the team seems to have been the first to hit its stride.

Day, a defenceman and league linesman before he embarked on a tutoring career, lays claim to no new ideas. He does emphasize two-way hockey, however, and his team is skating faster, perhaps, than any other club.

Team Combining Well

The players are also combining with the result there has been a remarkable distribution of scoring power. All but three are listed in the scoring records and one of these, Bob Davidson, is on the injured list.

Gordie Drillon and Syl Apps have six points each; Nick Metz, Wally Stanowski and Hank Goldup four each and Pete Langelle and Billy (the Kid) Taylor three each.

Aggregate points of the 13 players reaches 40, an average of eight points for each of the five games played.

These factors, along with the good work of the younger members of the team, have helped Day to a good start. Stanowski, Taylor, Goldup and Langelle are playing effective hockey. Day, however, doesn't take credit for the work of these sophomores.

Juggles His Lines

But he'll have to accept credit for one thing—the juggling of his lines. When Davidson hurt his knee and disrupted the team's most effective scoring unit, Day brought in Nick Metz to play with Apps and Drillon.

This line has worked so well, Davidson is expected to have trouble regaining his old berth. Metz, with his speed and ability to score, has taken a lot of opposition pressure from the starry Apps and the high-scoring Drillon.

When the shift was made Taylor and Don Metz were left without a left-wing so Day took the veteran Schriner and plunked him alongside of these youngsters. The team work of the cagey Schriner and the shifty Taylor has been a feature of recent games.

Day isn't even thinking of the Stanley Cup so early in the season but it goes without saying that he would like to present it to his boss, Conn Smythe, sometime next Spring. Then he would be the coach of the year.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati, Nov. 21—(AP)—Five clubs are bidding for Eddie Miller, star shortstop of Boston Bees. . . Those who ought to know say the Texas Aggies haven't been unwrapped this season. . . . Georgetown has given up hope of getting a Bowl bid and will settle for a post-season game with St. Mary's in San Francisco.

The cocktail hour:

Best line of the week was banged out by the fellow who called Clark Shaughnessy a "refugee from a string of Chicago goose-eggs." . . . Gus Sorais, Detroit University coach, has joined the select circle of coaches who have won 100 football games for their schools. . . . Benny Leonard, the ex-lightweight king, is getting ready to take another fling at the restaurant business in New York.

Heart throbs:

Robert Taylor plays tackle and Dick Powell is in the backfield for the Michigan City (Ind.) Highs.

CANADIENS BEAT ROYALS BY 5 TO 2

Winners Really Hit Their Stride for First Time This Season

Montreal, Nov. 21 (CP)—Verdun Red Devils and Montreal Canadiens moved up to a third-place tie in the Quebec senior hockey league standings Wednesday, with wins over Montreal Concordia and Montreal Royals.

Canadiens really hit their stride for the first time this season in the opener, as they defeated the highly-rated Royals 5-2, while Verdun had no trouble disposing of the winless Concordia sextet 6-1 in the nightcap.

The win moved Verdun and Canadiens two points out in front of the Royals, and left them a single game behind the second-place Quebec Royal Rifles.

The Smiley Meronek-Hubert Hardy-Alex Smart line was reunited for Canadiens in the opener, and it provided the best offensive of the game. Meronek picked up two of Canadiens three first-period goals, with Tomalty getting the other. Ramsay banged in two for the winners in the third, offsetting Royals' goals from Heffernan and Acheson.

Outcome of the second game was never in doubt. Laforce opened the scoring for the winners half-way through the first period. Concordia got that one back on a goal by Jotkus before the period ended, but had no answer for the Verdun goals in the second, and three more in the third.

The loss was Concordia's fifth straight, and left them pointless in the league cellar.

FINE AT 71

Washington, Nov. 21 (AP) — Clark (The Old Fox) Griffith was 71 yesterday.

"I'm feeling fine," said the president of Washington Senators, "except I've got a touch of lumbago."

At 71, Clark Griffith has spent fifty-four years of his life in baseball.

Ever since Jimmy Foxx announced he would do no more catching the Red Sox have been after Frank Hayes of the Athletics, but Connie Mack won't talk business. . . . The "Swedish Angel" was such a flop that Louisville fans pitched seat cushions at him.

CASTOLDI LEADS PONY LEAGUE IN HURLING

Won 18 and Lost Seven for Earned Run Average of 2.84

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 21 — (AP)—Pitching honors for the 1940 Pony Baseball League were divided between two young hurlers, Johnny Castoldi of Batavia and Frank Rumanski of Olean, according to official averages announced today.

Castoldi was the leading pitcher on an earned run basis with a mark of 2.84, and won the most games, eighteen, while losing seven.

Rumanski, in his first year of pro ball, had the best won-and-lost percentage with a mark of .833, winning ten and losing two.

Another first-year man, Tom Hammil, Olean's leading lefthander of the circuit, pitched in the most games, forty, and finished the most games, twenty-one.

Dick Schmidt, husky righthander who wore three uniforms during the season with Olean, Niagara Falls and Jamestown, was the strikeout king with 173.

An all-star team of the best defensive players, based on the season's fielding records, would include: First base, Sam Dretto, Batavia, .932; second base, Bill Burich, Olean, .959, third base, Bob Blanchard, Niagara Falls - Jamestown, 932; short stop, Tom Kister, Bradford, .916; outfield, Harold Kallenberg, Bradford, .978; Andy French, London, .976 and Bill Newman, Niagara Falls-Jamestown, .967; catcher, Mel Reed, Olean, .986; pitcher, Bill Kell, Batavia, 1.000.

ONLY A "PIPE DREAM"

London, Nov. 21—(CP) — Earl Winterton, Conservative member of the House of Commons, told that body today "It is only a pipe dream that we shall see American ships and American troops fighting in Europe."

He made this statement as he urged the raising of an additional 500,000 troops in the colonies.

TORONTO MARLIES LOSE TO OSHAWA ON HOME ICE

Motor City Squad Scores 4-3 Win in Overtime With Thompson Firing the Winning Counter

LONDON WHIPPED

Roy Heximer Paces St. Catharines Attack With Two Goals

(By the Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros today aren't boasting of their home ice record in the still young Senior Ontario Hockey Association. A glance at their record in games away from home is more cheerful—to the Marlies.

Raring to take over the league leadership from Hamilton Tigers, Marlboros had the lowly Oshawa club as guests last night and muffed their chances with a 4-3 overtime loss. It was their second loss in three tries on their own ice, the other game ending in a deadlock.

The loss still left Toronto in the runner-up spot, one point behind Hamilton and one point up on the idle Niagara Falls team. The other game on the two-match program saw St. Catharines whip the cellar-placed London streamliners 4-1 at London.

Don Dunbar sent Toronto into the lead two minutes after the game opened on a pass from George McNamara and that ended the first-period scoring.

Regina Tisdall made it 1-1 early in the second period on a neat passing play with Cooper and Durling. Danny Daniels made it 2-1 for Oshawa on a pass from Ritchie and Kirby evened matters before the period ended with Ezeard and George McNamara getting assists.

Ebby Edmison shot the visitors in front at 14.05 of the third period and McNamara, playing his first game of the season with Marlboros, deadlocked the count at 17.13. Johnny Thompson fired the overtime clincher.

Roy Heximer paced the St. Catharines attack with two goals—one each in the second and third periods—and an assist. Rudy Pilous scored the first St. Catharines goal early in the first period on a combination play with Pete Backor and George Hastie scored the other with Heximer assisting.

The London goal came in the final period when Bobby Hales netted on a pass from George Legg.

Coach Jerry Laflamme took Tommy Dunn out of the London nets in the final minute of play and the Londoners swarmed around Ran Forder in the St. Catharines goal but couldn't score. Heximer broke from a ganging attack and made it 4-1 with only one second to play.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

With Sam Curry beating the hockey drums in the Tweed News, his adopted community of Tweed is expected to operate either a juvenile team in the O.J.H.A. or a complete juvenile hockey loop this winter. Sensing the value of the sponsorship of sport among the youth of the community, Sam has induced several Tweedites to join the merry throng of minor league mentors. If a Trent Valley juvenile group can be organized the Tweed interests will climb aboard the band wagon. If, however, a district loop does not function a four-teamed juvenile loop will be organized in Tweed and like Belleville of last year, an all-star squad sent out into the O.J.H.A. playdowns.

All across Canada, with the possible exception of Belleville, hockey mentors realize the value of minor league hockey sponsorship during the war period. Northern Ontario abandoned senior hockey in favor of juvenile sponsorship, all through Western Ontario and even in the Prairie provinces juvenile hockey is booming. Secretary Stafford of the O.J.H.A. informs us there will be over 100 juvenile hockey clubs operating in Ontario during this winter's hockey campaign and why Belleville mentors are so lax in seeing the light is beyond comprehension. However, an effort to reorganize the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association will again be made at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night. There is little use in the continual beating of the juvenile drums by this corner, as it seems to be a wasted effort. However, the meeting is open if interested parties wish to assist.

Do you remember when University of Toronto won their second consecutive intercollegiate rugby title at Toronto seven years ago today when they defeated Queen's 10-3 in a playoff. The teams had finished the regular season in a tie. Jack Sinclair, Toronto backfielder with a six-pound 13 1-2-

Ival Goodman, veteran right fielder of the Cincinnati Reds, has been passing out cigars. Mrs. Goodman presented the Redleg outfielder with a si-pound 13 1-2-ounce baby boy.

It couldn't happen in this neck of the woods—"Sports Editor Robbed of $5,850," was a heading seen yesterday in a Chicago newspaper. It seems Lloyd Lewis, sports editor of the Chicago Daily News, told the Windy City constabulary that two men, armed with revolvers, took jewellery and furs valued at $5,850 from him and his wife near a southside residence, where they had been visiting a University of Chicago professor. There seems to be two separate quirks to the story. Firstly any sports editor possessing that much jewellery and fur deserves to be robbed and secondly it serves him right for hobnobbing with university professors, as they might become so absent-minded as to walk off with the valuables in the proverbial "absent-minded professor" manner. At any rate Mr. Lewis is anything but happy and threatens to leave the missus home when he accompanies the Cubs south for spring training, because furs and jewellery are very essential on such jaunts. Or are they?

Nick Paithhouski, former Queen's University snapback who played for the Sarnia Battery in the O.R.F.U., was chosen as the most valuable player in the senior O.R.F.U. for the current season. Incidentally Gordon Meikle, former Cobourg triple threat backfielder in the days of the "Galloping Ghosts" and now with Camp Borden, was one of the chief runners up trailing Paithhouski. It marked the fourth time a Sarnia player had won the award. Former winners are: Norman Perry, Sarnia, 1934; Hugh Stirling, Sarnia, 1935; Syd Reynolds, Balmy Beach, 1936; the late Orme Beach, Sarnia, 1937; Johnny Ferraro, Montreal, 1938; Eddie Thompson, then of Balmy Beach, in 1939.

The standing of the Van Horne Memorial puck series as of Tuesday night reads:

The major league baseball heads are preparing for their annual meeting next month. There was talk that the Brooklyn Dodgers were for sale recently, but that was only a publicity stunt. However, the Boston Bees will doubtless change hands during the off season and it is expected that Jim Farley will head a syndicate to buy the New York Yankees.

SPORT SLANTS—Cornell did not have to relinquish their 7-3 win over Dartmouth, as the referee's mistakes cannot be rectified after the game. . . . However, the Cornell heads, after seeing the moving pictures of the game, announced they would not accept a victory under such circumstances and disclaimed victory. . . . It marked the first time in three seasons Cornell had been defeated. Delegates to the annual meeting of the O.H.A. will be given two tickets to the Ottawa-Argo game on Saturday afternoon and ducats to the Chicago-Toronto N.H.L. match at night. Now they're calling an amateur "a player who has not or is not engaged in organized professional hockey." . . . S. R. "Sandy" Burrows has been nominated to the executive of the O.H.A. again, as a matter of fact five have been nominated, with four to be elected.

Shower is Held For Popular Young Wallbridge Couple

Wallbridge — On Saturday evening last about one hundred friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Moore (nee Miss Minnie Acker) who were recently married gathered at the Town Hall here. After some time spent in social intercourse, Mr. Wm. Woods very capably acted as master of ceremonies and called for some community singing led by Mrs. C. Smith at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore both thank- asked to take chairs at the front of the hall and Miss Margaret Wood was called and read a short address expressing the best wishes of all for a long and happy voyage on the sea of matrimony. This address was signed on behalf of the neighbors and friends by Clarence Wood, Mrs. H. Yateman, Earl Cooney and Wilfrid Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Moore were presented with a miscellaneous shower of very beautiful and useful gifts displayed on a table on the platform.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore Both thanked their friends for their gifts and the audience united in singing—"For They Are Jolly Good Fellows".

Speeches were made by several prominent members of the community, all wishing the newlyweds the best of happiness in their life together.

After examining the presents, dancing was indulged in for a short time after which lunch was served which brought to a close a most enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris spent a few days of last week with Mr. and Mrs. H. Pound of Thurlow.

Reprisals Promised If De Gaulle Followers Sentenced to Death

Vichy, Nov. 21 (AP).—The Vichy government announced tonight receipt of a telegram from General Charles de Gaulle—whom it has sentenced to death in absentia as a traitor—warning that "eight men of Vichy will pay with their lives for any attempt on the lives of Free Frenchmen" held by Vichy authorities at Dakar, Senegal.

He said the reprisals would be carried out at Gabon, French Equatorial Africa, which is in his hands.

The Colonial Ministry announced that no reply would be made and that the French government would apply its laws and "render justice".

Free French adherents were taken prisoner in de Gaulle's recent abortive attempt to seize Dakar, chief port of French West Africa.

The message mentioned the names of eight officers who, "I hear", are to be tried by court martial at Dakar and "are in danger of their lives."

De Gaulle added that he was holding at Gabon General Marcel Tetu, Vice-Governor-General of French Equatorial Africa, two colonels and a major.

"I propose an immediate exchange," de Gaulle wired.

HOWE INDICATES

manufacture of new models of a wide range of equipment and appliances, Munitions Minister Howe announced to the House of Commons yesterday.

"By thus avoiding the economic wastage of machines and men, which were whims, fads and fancies of fashion often produce, the ingenuity of a number of skilled artisans and highly trained men will be directed toward the work of winning the war", he said.

Comprehensive Review

In a comprehensive review of the state of Canada's wartime productive effort, the Munitions Minister warned that added restrictions doubtless would be imposed on the ordinary citizen as time went on.

The Minister brought the House up-to-date on the activities of his department, said contracts had been let in Canada for war orders to a total value of $849,000,000, reported on the progress in Canada's various war production fields and climaxed his review with the assertion the Dominion should be producing its maximum of war materials in another eight months.

The next eight months not only would witness a rapid expansion of employment and industrial activity but would be "a testing time for the morale of the Canadian people", Mr. Howe said.

Major Items Mentioned

"I have no doubt that our industry and our men and women will justify our confidence in the productive capacity of this great Dominion", he added.

These were among the major items mentioned by the Munitions Minister:—

Appointment of a Wartime Requirements Board, headed by H. R. MacMillan of Vancouver, also Timber Controller to see that war needs are given priority over all other needs and minimize disturbance to the Canadian economy.

Completion of arrangements with the United Kingdom for the building in St. Lawrence River and Pacific Coast yards of eighteen large merchant ships for Britain.

Industry Profits Lower

Maintenance of war industry profits at levels "much lower than in peacetime".

Reorganization of Canadian Aircraft production and production-line basis. The government also is studying the possibility of making airplane engines in Canada.

Automotive orders now on hand to keep Canada's automotive industry at maximum production up to September, 1941, the rate soon to reach 600 units a day.

Expansion of explosives and shell plants so production will be at least 2,000,000 shells a month.

Arrangements made to produce the new Anglo-American tank "in a very substantial way".

Practically every type of gun used in this war to be produced in Canada within short time.

Contracts Increased

The Minister reported that the letting of war contracts had increased from 1,910 per month in the first quarter this year to 7,500 a month in the third quarter, with the result that at Nov. 11 Canadian orders had been placed totalling $540,000,000 and British orders totalling $309,000,000.

Exports to the United Kingdom for the first nine months of this year totalled $380,817,000, compared to $242,725,000 a year ago, an increase of 56 per cent.

The government's system of financing plants where this could not be done by private industry had resulted in $225,000,000 being invested in production premises and machinery, he said. Of this sum about 30 per cent was on behalf of the Canadian government, the rest for the British government.

While some members of Parliament had raised the question of the distribution of war orders by provinces, Mr. Howe emphasized that the question of distribution was secondary to efficient production and ample hydro-electric power was essential to low-cost production. Large blocks of surplus power were available only in Quebec and Ontario.

3 Reasons Given

Mr. Howe gave three major reasons for the setting up of wholly-owned government companies to co-ordinate and administer industry and obtain supplies:—

"(1) The opportunity it gave of getting men of known organizing, construction and production ability to assist us in our war effort.

"(2) The opportunity it gave of decentralizing, with all the attending advantages that accrue from decentralization in an operation such as this.

"(3) It has been proven that the corporate method of administration has been successful in the management of industries and business men understand such administration."

T. L. Church Critical.

T. L. Church, Conservative-Toronto Broadview, said the government had given the House no information regarding the war effort, despite the lengthy reports of some cabinet ministers. The government apparently believed that the pen was mightier than the sword.

The government talked of 1943 and 1945. He wanted to know what the situation was at the moment.

The series of weekly radio talks entitled "Let's Face the Facts", had dealt with half-truths, not fact. He also criticized the large proportion of Americans invited to speak on that series.

(The series is arranged by G. H. Lash, director of public information, and broadcast on Sunday evening over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.)

W. F. Rickard (Lib.-Durham) said that while Ontario farmers were not getting enough for their produce, they were getting more under the present government than under the last Conservative government.

Farmer Entitled to Fair Return

He was glad to see labor getting a better deal in industry's wartime activity, but the farmer also was entitled to a fair return.

Hundreds of farmers were leaving their farms to take jobs in industry where they would make as much in two weeks as in three or four months on the farm.

There was a surplus of many farm products now but if the present situation continued, there would be no surplus. There might even be a shortage.

Mr. Rickard was not at all satisfied with the bacon price established in Agriculture Minister Gardiner's new agreement with the United Kingdom but if it was to be a stable all-year price it might not be so bad.

H. & P. E. Regt. Overseas Makes Appeal for Band Fund

Residents of Hastings and P. E. Counties Asked to Contribute

NEED FIFES, DRUMS

Trenton, Nov. 21 (Special)— The officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, 1st Battalion, now serving overseas with the C.A.S.F. are making an appeal to the Counties of Hastings and Prince Edward for assistance in forming a band. The appeal was made in a recent letter received by Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan, E.D., Officer Commanding the Second Battalion, of the H. & P. E. Regiment.

"One thing perhaps you can help us with," read the letter. "We want to get a band going, bugle and fife. So far we have issued to us only sixteen bugles and cannot get drums (a) no money (b) none available. We want five kettle drums and a dozen or so fifes."

"Do you think any organization or group of citizens can do anything for us. Sometimes, I think the grand old counties of Hastings and Prince Edward do not realize or appreciate the fact that their regiment is holding a high and enviable place in the First Canadian Division. When one sees and hears of what the 48th and the Toronto Scots and other units get from their city it makes us feel like orphans."

"We are now in comfortable winter quarters for the most part in fine old English homes and clubs somewhere in England."

Lt. Col. Donnan in an interview stated that the First Battalion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment with its fine complement of officers and its splendid young men has progressed to the point where it is conceded that the unit is at least equal to the best in the C.A.S.F. now overseas.

"Lt. Col. Howard "Doug" Graham now in command is fully qualified for his job and I am sure has the admiration and respect of all ranks but he will have to look to his laurels if he ever comes into competition with the Second Battalion Regiment," stated Col. Donnan. of the Hastings and Prince Edward

"It seems a pity that these boys of ours should have reason to feel that we have neglected them," said the Colonel. "We will do something about it. They will have their band there for I am sure, that a number of societies and organizations throughout the counties will make donations of the necessary fifes and drums."

All donations should be sent to the Madoc Armouries in care of Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan E.D.

Bancroft

Bancroft, Nov. 21—(Special)—The result of a bottle of illicit liquor found in one of the cars involved in an accident Sunday evening in Faraday township resulted in the arrest of Marshall Hayes, a resident of that district. An investigation conducted by W. Beattie of the R. C. M. P. of Belleville along with Provincial Constable S. W. Palmateer and County Constable G. P. Wells of Bancroft on Tuesday on the premises of Marshall Hayes revealed an illicit still in the bush on the back part of his premises which still was seized by the Mounted Police. Hayes was charged with keeping illicit liquor for sale and remanded and will appear in Bancroft police court November 26.

Gordon Robertson and R. A. Pringle of Belleville, accompanied by S. W. Palmateer had a real successful day hunting in Lake township south of Bancroft, when they bagged a hundred and eighty pound buck and a cub bear. Mr. Robertson laid claim to the bear, which he will transform into a rug for his home as a rememberance of their hunt.

Monday evening "A" company in Bancroft had quite a change from their regular routine of drill. They assembled at the Community Hall where a series of motion pictures were shown covering military tactical moves which in all proved successful to the local boys as they were more able to grasp the ideas which in the past have been taught by their instructors. It is contemplated that other series of pictures will be forthcoming for instructive purposes.

MISSIONS IN CHINA AND LABRADOR ARE DESCRIBED

Dr. R. B. McClure, F.R.C.S., and Rev. Mr. Burry Speak to Ministers and Laymen of Belleville Presbytery

NEEDS OF MISSIONS

Inspiring stories of the splendid work being accomplished by missionaries of the United Church among the unfortunate people of far-off war-torn China and among the inhabitants of Labrador along the desolate coastal stretches and in the interior of that country, were heard on Wednesday evening as ministers and laymen of the Belleville Presbytery met in Bridge Street United Church and listened to two outstanding speakers relating their experiences in spreading the gospel of Jesus Christ and healing the sick in the outposts of civilization.

Dr. R. B. McClure, F.R.C.S., termed the "Scarlet Pimpernel of the Orient", in a well-delivered address which sparkled of the wit and humour characteristic of his mooted namesake, proved his popularity as an after-dinner speaker in relating with that flare of realism which adds spice to a story, inspiring tales of the church in action, and of hospital work on the battlefront and elsewhere in China, in that land where the destruction of the war monster, is rampant and where poverty and life in darkness go hand in hand. The second speaker of the evening was Rev. Lester Burry, B.A., who, in a running commentary with the showing of explanatory lantern slides, gave a vivid account of the hardships encountered by the inhabitants of Labrador and of his own experiences during his nine years of missionary work in that district.

Work in Labrador

With colored lantern slides depicting vividly the contours of Labrador where for the past 115 years the church has operated mission posts, Rev. Mr. Burry described life as it is for the 5,000 inhabitants who make their living through fishing along 1,000 miles of coastline and by hunting and trapping in the desolate interior. He told of their lack of wealth which existed only in material things, as they are a people rich in a bounding faith and hungry for the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Generosity of Labrador Folk.

Rev. Mr. Burry described the arduous 700-mile trip into the interior by dog team which he and Mrs. Burry take every winter to visit the people of their mission and also the cruises up the coast of Labrador by mission boat during the summer months. He stressed the splendid generosity of the people of Labrador which is evidenced by their willingness to share with others the material things with which they are blessed. He related the suffering sometimes endured by people because of inadequate clothing, insufficient food and the absence of proper medical care. "One of the biggest problems confronting missions in Labrador is supplying the people with sufficient clothing," stated Rev. Mr. Burry as he urged a greater generosity on the part of those in more fortunate circumstances in donating additional clothing and other articles which are so much needed and appreciated by the deserving people of Labrador.

Builds Radio Sets For People.

One of the most interesting highlights of Rev. Mr. Burry's lecture was his explanation of how, through the co-operation of a resident mining employee at Northwest River, headquarters of United Church missions in Labrador, he was able to build short wave receiving sets for members of his mission. By means of these radio sets he was enabled to talk to isolated families spending the winter months in the interior on trapping lines and they were likewise enabled to hear the comforting words of the regular church services held at the mission church.

Dr. McClure brought the program to a close with a few concluding remarks saying that international friendship bewteen nations would only be attained through the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Commercial contracts and diplomatic relationships have failed in this end, he declared, and urged that we "streamline our brains, our thoughts and bring them up to date. The international bridge is the Gospel of Jesus Christ. What other method can we use to attain international friendship?" he asked in conclusion.

Over 250 ministers and members of the Belleville Presbytery partook of a sumptuous repast served by the ladies of the congregation in the school room of the church. Mr. E. L. Fraser of Trenton acted as master of ceremonies for the supper program which in addition to Mr. McClure's address included a solo by Mrs. George Stobie. Dr. McClure was introduced by Rex. Dr. J. Semple and Rev. Mr. Burry was introduced by J. T. Blanchard. At the conclusion of the supper program a vote of thanks to the ladies of the congregation was tendered by the chairman, Mr. E. L. Fraser.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading his paper and ma was reading hers, saying, Well imagine that, Willyum, they've caught that Bannister man.

Serves him right, any adult who hasn't overcome the urge to slide down bannisters ought to be caught pop said, and ma said, Dont be rediculous, Willyum, I mean Westfall D. Bannister whose wife was poisoned by degrees.

De grease from her own bad cooking, proberly, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum, even if you only read the papers to the extent of the headlines you must know about the Bannister case. Of course I must admit I dont have any great overplus of simpathy for the intelligence of any woman who feels herself growing unaccountably weaker and weaker with each passing day and still doesn't listen to the voice of her own sispicions, she said.

Who's been acting like that, one of the naybors? pop said, and ma said, Of course not, I'm talking about Mrs. Bannister, or rather the former Mrs. Bannister.

Oh, has she remarried? pop said, and ma said, She doesn't exist any more, she went to her last resting place, what was left of her. Westfall D. Bannister is the one who remarried right away without a second's grace. That's what first centered sispicion in his direction, dont you remember, he married that red haired mystery woman, Mrs. Bannister's so called closest friend. How's that for a fine friendly act, to gobble up your friend's widowed husband after helping him mix the slow poison? she said.

Perhaps she found this bannister slider more appealing than she found his late wife, pop said, and ma said, For land sakes is that any ethical excuse to commit murder and practical bigamy? Willyum Potts, are you just being contrary so I'll let you read your own paper? she said, and pop said, I'll neither confirm nor deny.

Meaning yes.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goodfellow called on Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bell on Sunday night.

Most of the hunters have returned home. Mr. Hugh Gainsforth got his quota.

Mr. and Mrs. Knowlton Wright, Stirling, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Ireland.

The car driven by Mr. Clarence Cole's son, returning home on Sunday night, near the vicinity of Stockdale crashed into a telephone pole breaking it off, also broke the guy wire. The car careened into a deep ditch turning over but resting on its wheels when stopped. Considerable damage was done to the car, but its driver received merely a shaking up.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hi-Yo Silver"

When "Hi-Yo Silver", (now playing) Republic's first full-length Lone Ranger feature starts at the Capitol speculation as to the identity of the actor who portrays The Lone Ranger will once again be rife. Since his first appearance on the screen, newspapermen, feature writers, and even filmdom's famous columnists and radio commentators have tried in vain to solve Hollywood's most famous mystery.

Peculiarly enough, the qualifications of the Lone Ranger role are so exacting that the usual first choices (or guesses) of the majority of people are immediately proven false when they are checked against the numerous activities that the actor is called upon to perform on the screen.

First of all, The Lone Ranger is a superlatively fine horseman—a daring, saddle-wise and resourceful rider. Add to this the unquestioned athletic ability; his quiet, unassuming manner in ordinary conversation scenes; his forcefulness in action; his pugilistic ability in his rough-and-tumble fights; his expert marksmanship and his ability as a roper—and it assumes the proportions of a major mystery. But men, women and children throughout the country are still playing the fascinating guessing game, "Who is The Lone Ranger?"

"Hi-Yo Silver" is presented by a cast of well-known Western favorites, including Lee Powell, Herman Brix, Chief Thunder Cloud, Lynn Roberts, Stanley Andrews, George Cleveland, William Farnum, and the wonder horse, "Hi-Yo Silver". The added attraction is

"Queen of the Mob"

A reign of terror, brought about by a ruthless mob, led by a woman who is a strange combination of maternal sentiment and diabolical shrewdness, is pictured in "Queen of the Mob", the new Paramount drama now at the Capitol Theatre, with Ralph Bellamy, Blanche Yurka, J. Carrol Naish, Jean Cagney, William Henry and Richard Denning among the performers featured. Based on J. Edgar Hoover's "Persons in Hiding", the story unfolds an exciting pattern of robberies and killings, with FBI men on the trail of one "Ma" Webster and her killers, hounding them from city to city, picking up clue after clue until they trap the mobsters in a small town.

To complete these two great smash hits is the Universal Newr events of the Day and the seventh chapter of "Tim Tyler's Luck".

AT THE McCARTHY

"ANGELS OVER BROADWAY"

Now playing at the McCarthy Theatre, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell and John Qualen in "Angels Over Broadway", a story written, directed and produced by Ben Hecht, who knows his broadway as few men have ever known it, comes this strange and wonderful romantic drama of four people in search of a "break" . . . a girl out of nowhere . . . a boy who trims "suckers" and thinks he's tough—but isn't . . . a playwright trying to play God . . . a little man seeking the end of disaster . . . their story could happen only in New York, but you will feel it might have happened in Belleville to you. Do not let anything stop you from now enjoying this exciting and thrilling novel screen production at the McCarthy Theatre. The program also presents Charles Starrett, ace of exciting action, in his new musical western, "West of Abilene".

AT THE BELLE

"City For Conquest"

The powerful magnitude of the world's greatest city is the vital dramatic force which motivates the action of the Belle Theatre's new dramatic hit film, "City for Conquest.' With James Cagney and Ann Sheridan heading a sterling cast of players "City For Conquest" moves right up into the front ranks of new season film fare.

Aben Kandel, on whose novel the film is based, has written a solid American story that faithfully mirrors the stark tragedy, the lusty humor, the abject loneliness and the heart-warming friendliness that go hand in hand on the city streets. John Wexley's screen adaptation has shaped the story into expert cinematic form, with pungent dialogue that fairly crackles from the screen, and Anatole Litvak's direction has given the film story the fluid ebb and flow of life itself.

There is Cagney, as Danny, the stocky slum boy, who tries to conquer the city with his fists. There is Ann Sheridan, as his girl, whose dancing feet carry her to fame and fortune. There is his brother, played by Arthur Kennedy, a musical genius who tranlates the noises of the city into a wonderful symphony. There is Danny's pals of boyhood, played by Elia Kazan, thwarted, embittered product of the slums who seeks to conquer with stiletto and Tommy gun. And then there is Frank Craven as the Old Timer, omniscient, ubiquitous, who roams the city's streets, watching over them all and weaves their stories into one symbolic voice of the city.

Performances are uniformly excellent with Cagney and Miss Sheridan setting the pace for the rest of the cast. As they demonstrated so ably in the recent "Torrid Zone," Cagney and Sheridan are a perfect screen team — Cagney's hard-boiled pugnacity and straightforwardness being perfectly offset by Miss Sheridan's volatile spirits and colorful vivacity.

Frank Craven's masterful handling of the "Old Timer" role marks another triumph for this seasoned performer. Arthur Kennedy, a film newcomer, who plays the young musician, and Elia Kazan, of the Broadway stage, both do standout jobs in featured character roles as do Donald Crisp and Frank McHugh.

"City For Conquest" is that very rare thing, a motion picture without a dull foot of film. Moving along at a swift and satisfying pace from fade-in to fade-out, it is an exciting human interest story of wide appeal.

Matty Malneck and his orchestra presenting a smart musical revue and a gorgeous color parade novelty "Men Wanted," precede the feature attraction.

James Cagney and Ann Sheridan in the sensational and masterful story of the world's greatest city, "City for Conquest," now at the Belle Theatre.

Dr. Dafoe's Column on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Cars and Children

A few days ago there was a rather terrible accident a few miles from my home. A young couple were speeding along an open highway to the city in their car with their two young children in the back seat.

The youngsters, both boys, were wrestling and rough-housing as children will, when one of them fell back against the door of the car. His shoulder caught the door handle, the door swung open, and the child was thrown out onto the cement pavement. By the time the father got the car stopped and went back to the spot where the body lay, the child was already dead, his skull fractured in several places.

Auto doors cause a surprising number of injuries to children and for that reason children should be considered when a family is acquiring a car.

Couples with children are wise to stick to coach models—those cars with only two doors. I know it may not be as easy to get in and out of the back seat, but while it may be a bit inconvenient, it is also a blessing.

I recall the first and last motor trip I had with the Quintuplets. It was the day we went to Toronto to see the King and Queen. We were all in one big sedan, the children, the nurse myself. I remember as we were driving along, the children were jumping around, too excited to keep still. I suddenly thought how easy it would be for one of them to fall against the door, unlock it and fall out. So right then, I told the nurse to watch one door and I watched the other.

I know one man who has three children and drives a sedan. He has removed the door danger in this way: He uses a leather strap that stretches from one door handle to the other. If one of the children does unlatch the door, it can't come open unless the strap breaks.

However, whenever there are children riding in the back seat of sedans, one of the parents or some other adult should ride in the back seat with them. I know it is much more fun for parents to be up in front seat together but just remember how terrible you would feel if an accident did happen for which you were partly to blame because you didn't take proper precautions. Remember, too, that while the long motor trip is fun to you adults, it may be a bore to the youngsters. They're not as interested in the scenery as you are, and the chances are that you don't include them in your conversation. They tire more easily than you do, and their nerves will get on edge quicker. If you must take them on long motor trips, devise means of making the time pass more pleasantly for them. If they are being amused or occupied, they'll be less likely to do the "fooling around" with door handles that cause accidents.

Persons who usually travel with children in cars should get in the habit of taking special precautions about closing doors. Never shut them carelessly. I have seen a shocking number of cases of smashed fingers and amputated fingers due to auto door slammings.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New blows on Germany may be expected soon from twenty-six huge bombing aircraft turned over to Britain by the United States in the current 50-50 apportionment of war supplies manufactured in the American Republic.

These machines, the biggest military planes aloft, carry a "useful load" — as aeronautical engineers term it—of five tons, fly with four engines for 3,000 miles, enough to bomb anything in axis territory from England and return.

These great sky-riders will add their force to the many smaller machines that America's John Doe can see being loaded at many foreign trade zones aboard big grey British liners and scruffy-looking little grey tramps which dare Nazi raiders on the wide seas.

They will help repay Germany for raids on Britain's midland civil population and the raids that have smashed many fine landmarks in London.

Coventry has buried its dead and swept up its debris but many leadened hearts remain and more have been created by new German raids on unidentified midland towns.

Just as the "middle classes" have been called the spiritual "backbone of Britain" so could the midlands be called the "manufacturing backbone". The Nazis, in striking at the midlands, had a sound idea of destroying industry, but they seem largely to have missed their presumed objective and killed civilians and smashed cherished buildings.

Many Englishmen will describe the Midlands as "hideous" but if you sit beside the little river where Tom Brown fished when he went to Rugby School, drive through Banbury Cross, the place to which you could "ride a cock-horse" in your Nursery rhymes, or paddle down the river Avon at Stratford where Shakespeare was born, you can work up quite a case of sentiment about them.

Most Britons were resigned to what they regarded as inevitable attacks on London and the killing of women and children there. They did not seem to be resigned to bombing of outlying sections.

London, whacked and bruised day after day for weeks, still had a thought for its fellows in Coventry when the blow fell there and London's Lord Mayor was able to send money to help those people who had been bruised for the first time.

Members requested to be at his late residence, 4th. Concession Thurlow Township, at 1.45 p.m. Standard Time. Funeral service at Salem United Church at 2.30 p.m. Standard Time.

By order of the Worshipful Master,
N21 CLAUDE N. CLARKE.

GIRL IS SLUGGED BY UNKNOWN MAN

Police Comb Woods in Search of Man Known to be in Neighborhood

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 21—(CP)—Police combed the thickly-wooded area along the Speed River today for a man who slugged Joan Dunlop, 17, late last night and threw her down a 20-foot embankment into the river.

The girl told police a man crept up behind her and put his arm around her as she walked down Eramosa Hill. She said he dragged her across the road and attempted to force her down the embankment.

When she screamed, the man struck her on the head with a blunt instrument and pushed her down the steep embankment into the river.

James Turton heard the scream and ran to the spot in time to see the man racing down the railway tracks. He gave chase but was unable to catch him.

He found Miss Dunlop wading in waist-deep water in the river.

Union Leaders Held in Camps Without Trial Says C. C. F. Member

Oshawa, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Clarence Gillis, C.C.F. member of parliament for Cape Breton South, charged in a speech before members of the United Automobile Workers of America here last night that 70 Canadian Trade Union leaders have been lodged in "concentration camps" without trial.

"These leaders may be detrimental to Canada's war effort and again they may not be," he said. "But at least they have the right that belongs to every Britisher—to have a fair trial before being interned."

Mr. Gillis said he feared that the Defence of Canada Regulations would be administered by Provincial authorities to "trip up" the trade Union movement, and he claimed the arrest of 47 members of the U.A.W.A. for picketing the Chrysler plant in Windsor was an illustration of how the regulations could be used to prevent peaceful picketing.

Mr. Gillis charged that a "mine owners' secret police" is in operation in Kirkland Lake, "organized to protect the mining industry from the trade Unions that are being forced in that section of the province."

Unions, he said, are the bulwark of democracy, "and unless Trade Unionism can be built up in Ontario without fear of hindrance, the road ahead for this province is going to be tough."

"We find today in Northern Ontario the complex being developed that because of the war the present is not the opportune time for the organization of unions. The mine unions in Nova Scotia were organized during the last war and today we see exactly the same propaganda being used as was employed at that time."

1ST DIVISION PRESENTS CHEQUE TO BUY FIGHTER

Canadian Soldiers' Admiration for R.A.F. Prompts Gift

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 21—(CP Cable)—On behalf of the Canadian 1st Division RSM. R. L. Dale of Red Deer, Alta., and Private P. A. Tremblay of Verdun, Que., today presented Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, with a cheque for £5,029 ($22,379) raised by Divisional Spitfire Fund to buy the Royal Air Force a fighter.

Lord Beaverbrook said the public will be "delighted and pleased beyond measure by this contribution." The division is believed to be the first military formation in the Empire to raise funds for the purchase of an airplane for the R. A. F. Many of the men of the division gave a day's pay or more to the fund.

In Admiration of Valor

Dale read a message from the division which said the cheque was given "in appreciation and admiration of the valor and heroism of the R.A.F. which we have so often witnessed."

He added that "the 1st Canadian Division will follow the career of this airplane with pride, for they feel sure that it will become a scourge of the skies for Hitler's Luftwaffe and Mussolini's vultures."

Lord Beaverbrook assured the delegation that the insignia of the 1st Division will be carried on the fuselage of the plane.

MRS. ROBT. GIBSON 93 ON FRIDAY

Events Transpiring Three-Quarters of a Century Ago Vividly Recalled

Hale and hearty on the eve of her 93rd birthday, possessing still an active and shrewd mind, a keen memory, almost perfect hearing and with only slightly impaired vision, Mrs. Robert Gibson, 24 Hillcrest Ave., will on Friday, November 22, receive the congratulations of a host of well-wishing friends in Belleville and district as she quietly celebrates her 93rd natal day.

Events transpiring three quarters of a century or more ago are still recorded vividly in Mrs. Gibson's memory while the current events of today are mirrored with a remarkable clearness and she converses freely with any chance callers or with neighbours who might happen to visit her. Blessed as she is with all her faculties, Mrs. Gibson is living every day a record to be proud of and her accomplishment of still transacting her own business and operating a rooming house, she is possibly the oldest woman in Canada earning her own living.

In Belleville 60 Years

For the past sixty years Mrs. Gibson has called Belleville her home, coming to the city shortly after her marriage. Her maiden name was Miss Annie Weese, being born on the first concession of Thurlow of United Empire Loyalist stock of which she is exceedingly proud. Of a family of three girls and one boy, Mrs. Gibson is the only one living, her brother and sisters having died several years ago. Her family, however, have been noted for their longevity, with her grandfather, Col. Huyck, living to attain an age of 96 years and was at the time of his death the oldest Mason in Ontario. Mrs. Gibson's husband died in 1921 and since his death she has lived at her present residence on Hillcrest Ave., formerly known as the Robinson property.

One son Charles, now deceased, was born to bless the union consummated over sixty years ago and Mrs. Gibson is proud of the fact that her son did his bit to help maintain British justice and to aid in preserving democracy. Charles Gibson first saw active service during the American Civil War and his army career was marked by his rapid rise in the ranks to the commission of Sgt. Major. Sgt. Major Gibson also served with the Canadian forces in the Boer War and was invalided home from France during the Great War as the result of wounds suffered and passed away in April, 1918.

Retains All Her Faculties

Mrs. Gibson still attends church occasionally and on bright Sundays she may be seen in attendance at Christ Church on Coleman St. "Of course," Mrs. Gibson laughingly confides, "I do not attempt to walk that distance to church," and then she adds in a more serious tone, "but I am deeply grateful, however, and I do thank God, that He has permitted me to retain my mental faculties and good health. If I did not have them I would not wish to be here."

Collegiate News

B. C. I. V. S., Nov. 23, 1940.

Last Friday a rugby Victory Tea Dance was held in the boys' gym. The school orchestra was in attendance and favored the gathering with many much-appreciated pieces. There was a large crowd, and it was a very successful dance.

The spice was added to the entertainers by Bill McBride and Bernice Saunders; Georgia Scott and Allan Argue; and Claude Mulholland and Margaret Cole, all of whom excel in different types of jitterbugging. Wonder how they do it—The hero in the play which was enacted Thursday and Friday evenings told us privately that we were not to be surprised if he turned up with his hair in an awful mess as he was trying to induce it to remain in a disarranged state for the play, where he was evidently supposed to represent a very bewildered person. Mr. MacLaurin surprised the assembly last Monday morning when he suggested that county students invite city ones to visit them and city students ask county ones to visit them—learning to understand how the other half lives—an aid to Canadian unity— In senior girls' volley ball the Spitfires suffered what was, I believe, their first defeat this season when they were defeated by the Hurricanes.... We want to apologize for a misstatement we made several weeks ago. We said that Marie Duesberry was in charge of a Grade 10 newspaper although it is really a Grade 11 paper and we similarly insulted Gordon Bankier when we claimed his was a Grade 9 paper instead of Grade 10—We humbly apologize.

The Collegiate Inspectors, Mr. Husband and Mr. Anglin, have been visiting us this week. — The Stamp Club held a meeting last Monday which was spent in trading and discussing stamps. The meetings are completely informal and all stamp-collectors are welcome. War Sacing Stamps continue to be sold at the rate of $100.00 worth a day. The total is now over $5,500.00.

This one is really too good to keep to ourselves! Last Monday a certain Grade XIII boy was asked by the French teacher, "A qui pensezvous?" (Whom are you thinking about?) and he must have been a born diplomat because he arose, cleared his throat and replied, "Je pense a vous." (I am thinking of you.)— There are rumors in the air that a Camera Club is in the offing which will chiefly comprise upper school students although several famous (oh very!) younger photographers will provide the club's backbone. Long may it stand! All amateur photographers are invited to join this club—further particulars later!

WIFE OF PREMIER SPEAKS TO INDIA

Mrs. Winston Churchill Says Britain Asks Not Sympathy but Understanding

London, Nov. 21.— (CP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill, inaugurating a series of weekly broadcasts to the women of India today, said "we ask of India, not pity, but understanding and the sympathy which comes from understanding".

It was the first broadcast made by the wife of the Prime Minister.

"We know that you have given of your wealth, that Indian soldiers are helping to fight our joint battles all over the world", she said.

"I sometimes hear it said that it is hypocritical of the English to rail at tyranny in Europe and to refuse freedom to India. But in any case you in India can have no conception of the tyranny that would overtake you if the British were beaten in this war".

All in Front Line

Noting that "we are all in the front line", she said that "none of these hideous events have touched you yet".

Despite the horrors of bombing, she said "I find life in England today absolutely thrilling and I am glad to be alive at this great moment of our history".

"We are quite literally living under the shadow of death", she continued. "We can still say that 999 out of every 1,000 people are unharmed. All the same there is a chance that death by violence may come at any moment to any one of us and that is what I mean when I say that life is thrilling—not physically enjoyable".

Mrs. Churchill concluded that Britons are "fighting and working in a great cause in conviction of the truth of the Prime Minister's words: "We shall not flag or fail. We shall go on'."

108 Italian Troops Killed

London, Nov. 21 —(CP)— The British Command in Egypt announced today that 108 "enemy" troops were killed in an engagement in the western desert Tuesday at "small cost" to the British forces.

Five Italian tanks were destroyed and six severely damaged, a communique from Cairo said.

BOMBS ARE REPORTED DROPPED NEAR BRUSNIK

Bitolj, Yugoslavia, Nov. 21 —(AP)—Six bombs were dropped near the village of Brusnik, south of Bitolj, today in the fifth bombing of Yugoslav territory since Greek-Italian hostilities began. The planes were not identified. No damage was reported.

PAIR FOOL AUTHORITIES

London, Nov. 21.—(CP)—Nobody knew two soldiers had been veterans of the Boer War until Arthur Cranney, 68, gave evidence at the inquest of his 71-year-old friend, Hugh Cochran, killed in a traffic accident. Cranney said they wanted to do their bit and nobody suspected their ages because they could do their duty as well as anybody else. On enlisting, they had given their ages as 53 and 54.

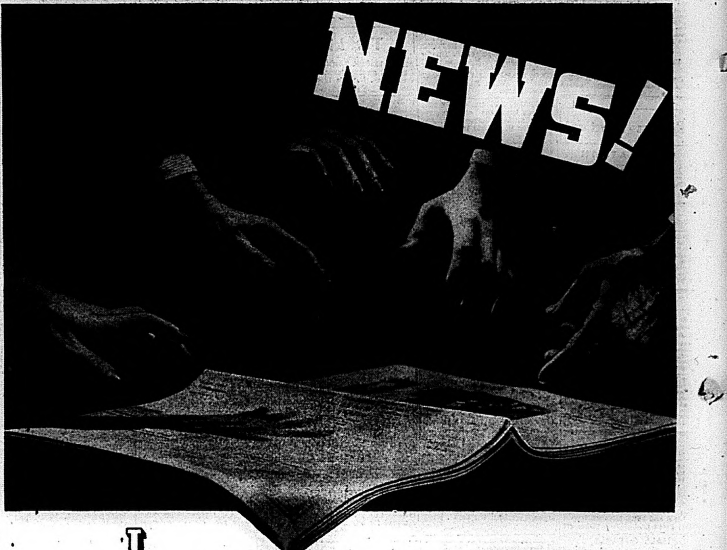
THE NEW 1941 PONTIAC

All styled in the Torpedo manner, Pontiac for 1941 offers five series of cars — the Fleetleader Standard, the Fleetleader Special, the De Luxe Six and Eight, and the Streamliner Eight. The new models are graceful and arresting in appearance, longer in wheelbase and designed to provide outstanding all-round performance. Shown above is the striking new low priced Fleetleader 4-door sedan.



It's deep-rooted and ever-present and universal...this craving for the news. We give it direct expression every time we greet a friend with "What's new?" We let it have full reign when we reach for the daily newspaper.

What's new? What did the school board decide last night? Did Mrs. Taylor get her divorce? How was the concert? What's going on in Washington? London? Berlin? Moscow? Tokyo? Rome? Who was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary? What did the raiding bombers do today? Did copper go up or down? Who won the game?

What's new?...in politics, business, foreign affairs... in society, sports, fashions...in music, art and the theatre? We want to know...because we are curious by nature, because we like to be well-informed...and because we realize that each day's events may affect our welfare and our happiness.

Only in newspapers can we satisfy this constant hunger for the news. Only in newspapers can we get a quick, complete and accurate account of happenings at home and abroad.

And today, when the news is so vitally important to all of us, we read the newspaper more eagerly, more thoroughly than ever before..That's why the newspaper, which has always been a profitable medium for advertisers, is a more profitable medium today than ever before.

NEW YORK
(Closed, Thanksgiving Day.)

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 21. —(CP)—The Toronto Stock market showed practically no change in the average at early afternoon today. Industrials were slightly higher at noon but the gains were off-set by mild weakness in the Mining groups. Trading was reduced to a dribble and only 76,000 shares changed hands in the first three hours. The New York Market holiday helped to dampen trading enthusiasm on the Toronto mart.

Bralorne, San Antonio and Macassa posted small declines and narrow gains came out for Kerr-Addison, Chesterville and McKenzie. Smelters, Ventures and Jack Waite were weak Base Metals.

Industrial groups were mainly steady. Imperial Tobacco Pfd. advanced a point to 8 and Bell Telephone was down a point to 158.

In the Western Oils a gain of five cents for Home Oil and small losses for Davies and Foothills were the only changes.

Four Charged With Conspiracy to Import Bonds Illegally

Montreal, Nov. 21 (CP)—Numerous cheques were entered today as exhibits in the trial of three Montrealers and one resident of Toronto charged with conspiracy to illegally import $315,000 worth of Dominion Bonds into Canada from the United States.

The accused are Ernest Stanley Dallman, A. W. Glover and Joseph C. Rigler, all of Montreal, and Rolf C. Pichon of Toronto.

The trial continues.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP)—Cattle trade was very dull up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. There were no sales of killers other than canners and cutters steady at $3-$3.75. The stocker market was slow and weaker at $4.50-$6.50 with a few stock calves at $7.25. Hogs, lambs, sheep and veal calves were steady. The holdover from Wednesday was 2,100 head of cattle. The cattle supply today included 800 stockers.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 60, calves 20, hogs 290, sheep and lambs 230.

The few calves offered sold at $8-$10.75 for vealers and $5 for grassers.

Lambs sold at $9.50 for good ewes and wethers delivered by truck with a few choice Southdown at $10.25, heavies and bucks at $8.50 and culls at $7-$8.

Sheep sold at $2-$5.50.

Hogs sold at $10.75 dressedweight, $8 liveweight. Sows sold at $4.50-$5.25 dressedweight.

Spain and Russia Baulk at Joining Pact Experts Believe

(By J. C. STARK)

Washington, Nov. 21 (SP)—Hungary's admission to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance was looked upon by informed diplomats here tonight as a possible indication that other countries involved in talks with Germany, notably Russia, had baulked at formally joining in the triple pact.

Some insignifance was attached by these sources to the fact that out of all the negotiations going on in Germany and elsewhere for some time, Hungary should be the first to become a full-fledged partner since Japan joined the Axis.

Hungary was a member of the original German-Italian-Japanese anti-Comintern pact which Germany promoted against Russia before those two countries were reconciled in 1939, and long has been regarded as an obedient associate of Germany.

The Vienna ceremony which took Hungary into the pact was interpreted here also as a probable forerunner of a German military move southeast to help the Italians against Greece.

But diplomats speculated on way such formal display was considered necessary to permit this.

It thus was regarded as a sign that Russia and possibly Spain, might have demurred at joining the alliance and that Germany, wanting something to display as a diplomatic achievement, had chosen Hungary for this immediate rule.

It was pointed out in these quarters that in the week since Russian Premier Molotoff was in Berlin the only public announcement of the results of his talks was the non-committal communique that "mutual accord" had been reached "on all important questions of interest" to both countries.

Not Ready Yet

Spain's Foreign Minister, Ramon Serano Suner, has made two recent trips to Germany in circumstances which indicated the Axis is seeking to bring Spain into the war, or at least into the Triple Alliance, but no change in its status has yet become apparent.

Diplomatic quarters explained that both Russia and Spain appeared to be co-operating with the Axis and might yet become more active partners, but they considered it possible that neither is ready yet for such a development.

Spain's internal situation and especially its lack of food was given in these quarters as a reason for that country's possible reluctance to enter a more active relationship with the Axis.

In the case of Russia, diplomats here said there appeared to be no advantage to be gained by that country in joining the Triple Alliance or otherwise assuming a more important role in Germany's "new order."

Ontario County Debenture Debts Greatly Reduced

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP).—Ontario County debenture debts were cut almost in half over the five-year period, 1939-1940, while rates outstanding and levies in component municipalities were substantially reduced, Hon. Eric Cross, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs and Public Welfare, announced today.

County debenture debts totalled $9,979,211 in 1939 against $16,515,072 in 1939. In the same years, total rates levied by County Councils were $9,369,922 and $10,871,165, respectively.

Arrears of rates were reduced from 4,402,799 in 1934 to 1,613,830 in 1939.

CAN BE SHOT ON SIGHT

Leyden, The Netherlands, Nov. 21 (via Berlin)—(AP).—Because a potshot was taken at a German sentry Tuesday night, the Chief of Police today ordered all inhabitants of this famous university town to turn over all firearms by 10 p.m.

Aoyone found in possession of arms after that hour will be shot on sight, said the official decree.

It is not known whether the German sentry was killed.

Slight Decrease In Fresh Eggs

Toronto, Nov. 21—With the edge off demand, fresh egg prices to shipper slipped back slightly on the Toronto open produce market yesterday. No material change was reported for butter.

Fresh receipts managed to keep clear in less active trading in the morning on the egg market, but dealings slowed to practically a standstill later and prices paid to shipper on grades A-large and A-medium closed nominal at a shade lower levels. The retail section was unchanged.

Light offerings and slow demand were about balanced on the butter market. Top grade Ontario creamery solids sold in wholesale channels at 30 1-4c a pound, compared with the previous day's range of 30c to 30 1-4c.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 21—(CP) — Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture follow:

Chatham and London later reported unchanged prices: Chatham, liveweight $7, dressedweight $9.70; London dressedweight $10.25, plus transportation.

Ickes Says Lindbergh Is Foe of America

New York, Nov. 21—(AP)—Harold Ickes, United States Secretary of the Interior, said today that "roughly speaking, the United States harbors four large groups that are subversive to our institutions and openly hostile to democracy itself."

In an address at Town Hall, he said that "first there are the native Fascist groups such as the Silver Shirts, the Knights of the White Camelia, certain Ku Klux Klans, the Christian Front, etc.".

"While in general these groups, terrible as it is to say it, are composed of native-born Americans, they may also include American citizens of foreign birth such as Father Coughlin", Ickes said. "In the ranks of the native Fascists one may even discover such an individual as Colonel Lindbergh, a busy appeaser who would surrender voluntarily his sword even before it is demanded . . . ."

Ickes characterized Mervin K. Hart, President of the New York State Economic Council, as "another native Fascist" who "misses few occasions to sneer at democracy".

Referring to subversive organizations, Ickes said that "most, perhaps even all, of these groups are instrumentalities of foreign intrigue. Most, perhaps even all, are financed by funds from abroad".

In addition to the "native Fascists groups" Ickes named:

". . the German American Bund which is Hitler's chief organization in the United States. . .

"Third in line are the Italian Fascists. Most Italians, it is my pleasure to inform you, like the overwhelming majority of our citizens of German birth or descent, are loyal to the United States . .

"Finally, there are the Communists and their fellow travellers", he said.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN 32 STATES

President Roosevelt Carves Turkey at Family Dinner at Hyde Park, N.Y.

New York, Nov. 21—(CP)—Headed by President Roosevelt who returned to his home at Hyde Park, N.Y., United States citizens in 32 States celebrated Thanksgiving today.

The 16 other States will observe Thanksgiving next Thursday, on the usual last Thursday in November.

Stock and commodity exchanges were closed throughout the country. People attended church services and held quiet home dinners.

President Roosevelt carved the turkey at a dinner attended by Mrs. Roosevelt, the President's 86-year-old mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, his son and daughter-in-law, Franklin Jr., and Ethel, and the widow of his half-brother, Mrs. James Roosevelt.

5 YEARS GIVEN ON THEFT CHARGE

Ernest Pilon, Montreal, Charged With Breaking Into Cornwall Home

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Ernest Pilon, 37, of Montreal, was sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty in County Criminal Court here today to a breaking, entering and theft charge. Sentence was imposed by Judge F. T. Costello.

Pilon was charged with breaking into the home of E. W. Hodge, Cornwall, in May, 1938, and stealing a quantity of jewelry and silver. He was arrested by Cornwall police a week ago after he had completed a two years sentence at Bordeau jail, Montreal.

INTERNATIONAL AT A GLANCE

By The Canadian Press

London—Viscount Halifax tells House of Lords there is possibility Russia may accept British trade proposals; Prime Minister Churchill in Commons reaffirms Britain's intention to aid Greeks and declares he is looking forward confidently to time when Britain will be as well armed as enemy; speech from throne declares Empire will fight until freedom is made secure.

Col. E. C. G. Chambers, Director of Engineer Services is Dead

Ottawa, Nov. 21—(CP)—Col. Edward C. G. Chambers, director of engineer services, Canadian army, died today at Ottawa. He was 53.

Col. Chambers had a service record of more than 25 years and became a director of engineer services last July 24. Recently he had been on sick leave.

Born at Shortlands, Kent., Eng., Col. Chambers became a member of Canada's non-permanent active militia in 1914 and was mobilized for active service with the 2nd Field Company, Canadan Engineers in July, 1915, with the rank of lieutenant.

Subsequently he was appointed to the Canadian Engineers Training Depot, Toronto, early in 1916, and went to France with the 10th Field Company, Canadian Engineers.

50 Senior Officers Of Italian Army Lose Their Posts

London, Nov. 21 (CP Cable) — Fifty senior officers of the Italian army in Albania were removed after Mussolini's campaign against the Greeks bogged down, it was learned reliably today.

These changes were in addition to the shake-up which sent Gen. Ubaldo Soddu to take command of the Duce's army.

The sources believed the Greek campaign was planned by Italian politicians instead of by the military and that these men were made scapegoats for the failure.

It is thought that their return to Italy may create friction.

GREEKS BREAK

The Greek high command listed 200 automobiles among the booty captured. The Athens radio predicted a decisive phase of the war was imminent.

In the north, the Greek command also announced, its hardy mountaineer soldiers had won the summits of the Morava range southeast of Koritza and were pressing down the western slopes on that besieged Italian base.

On the southermost front, near the sea, the only place where the Italian invaders remain on Greek soil, successful progress was reported without details.

The forceful Greek counter-offensive in the centre, along the only road in that region, was declared to have followed the virtual cessation of Italian air bombardment which previously had slowed the Greek advance.

The Greek command said the Italians bombed two cities in Epirus and Thessaly yesterday, killing a few persons, but that was all. The Greeks' own aviation was asserted to have bombed and strafed the Italians and to have attacked the airdrome at Argyrocastro, deep in southern Albania.

British Royal Air Forces which are aiding the Greeks reported that they alone had shot down 11 Italian planes in 24 hours.

(It was reported in the Yugoslav border town of Bitolj that British planes also bombarded Koritza while Greek field guns maintained a terrific fire into the town and that the Italians appeared ready to abandon the place.)

The Greek spokesman also said the Italians were having difficulties with the conquered Albanians. A battalion of Albanians in the Italian central forces revolted and had to be disarmed, he said.

VALIANT, SUDDEN

and sudden uprising" of the Greeks had already "almost purged their soil of an attack which he described as "pure and unmitigated brigandage."

The Prime Minister expressed the hope that Britain would be able to give from her resources, "always heavily strained," a "helpful measure of assistance to the Greeks" and that "we shall be able to discharge our responsibility to Egypt in defending its soil and guarding the vital artery of the Suez Canal."

'We Shall Build Them Up'

"Even if the whole of the homes all over the country are levelled," Mr. Churchill said, "we shall still be found all standing together and we shall build them up again after the fighting is over."

He urged the House of Commons not to lose sight of its Democratic duty of "giving guidance to the nation and, if necessary to the executive."

Soviet Relation

In his speech in the Upper Chamber, Lord Halifax said proposals have been made for "a compromise settlement arising out of Soviet annexations of territory" with regard to British obligations. Friction had arisen out of Russia's absorption of the three Baltic States last summer.

Other proposals "of a general character" have been made, he added, "to establish greater confidence between the two governments in the political sphere."

Hitler's Cajolery, Brutality

Hitler, the Foreign Secretary declared, is pursuing "his usual policy" of "combined cajolery and brutality" with France.

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 21—(CP Cable)—Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax told the House of Lords today that he had "some reason to believe" that British proposals for a trade agreement with Russia would succeed while in the House of Commons Prime Minister Churchill reiterated Britain's determination to assist the Greeks.

General debate on many aspects of the war began simultaneously in the two houses of parliament after the formal opening of a new session by the King.

Greek and Egyptian Areas of War

The Prime Minister said that in helping the Greeks it was necessary to keep in mind the need of defending Egypt and the Suez Canal against superior numbers of Italian forces.

"We have both these theatres to consider," he told the House. "I can only say that we shall do our best."

On the broad subject of war aims, Mr. Churchill said that many believed that "example is better than the precept that actions speak louder than words."

Safeguard Parliamentary Institutions

But one pledge he could make. That was to safeguard parliamentary institutions and keep them vital and active, even under enemy fire, so that the hard-won liberties of the British people, voluntarily surrendered for the period of the war, could be restored to them in their fullness "when victory has crowned our exertions and our perseverance."

"Up to the present," Mr. Churchill declared, "this war has been waged between fully armed Germany and a half armed or a quarter armed British Empire. We have not done so badly.

Forsees Victory and Deliverance

"I look forward with confidence and hope to the time when we ourselves shall be as well armed as our antagonists, and beyond that to the time when the arsenals, training grounds and science of the British Empire shall give us that material superiority which, added to loyalty and constant hearts will bring victory and deliverance to all mankind."

SOVEREIGNS

Duke of Kent in air force blue and the Duke of Gloucester in the khaki of the army.

The Queen sat on one of the twin thrones dressed in a plum-colored ensemble trimmed with grey fur at the neck. She wore a triple row of pearls and a wide halo hat matching her dress.

Wartime Scene

The peers were in morning attire or uniform, without their scarlet and ermine robes. The Bishops wore black and white canonicals instead of their mauve robes and lawn sleeves. There were no peeresses in the gallery and no flashing jewels to catch the light. There were no diplomats and no members of the public. It was the ancient ceremony made to coincide with the grim realities of war.

The King walked into the Peers' chamber holding the lavender gloved hand of the Queen, preceded by the Lord Great Chamberlain, the Earl Marshal, and the Garter King-at-Arms, each walking backwards. Various court officials, who in peacetime would be wearing ceremonial costumes symbolical of the distant past, ranged themselves at the side of the dais.

The King Reads in Clear Even Voice

The King read it in a clear even voice, seldom hesitating and his words carrying far into the corners of the chamber. At the end of the speech Their Majesties rose, bowed to the assembly and walked hand in hand from the chamber to drive away under lowering clouds through the streets, unrecognised by the passing crowds.

At prorogation ceremonies yesterday the speech from the throne, which was read by Lord Simon in the King's absence, declared that "we shall not falter or lay aside our arms until the high purposes to which we have pledged our faith are achieved."

The prorogation speech, like the speech at the opening today, stressed the note of confidence in ultimate victory and expressed gratification at the transfer of 50 destroyers by the United States government, which were exchanged for naval and air bases in the western hemisphere.

It said that "frustration" of German invasion plans, added to the "firm defence" of the Sudan and Egypt and the "successful attack" upon the Italian navy, justified "our confidence in final victory."

Wireless Air Gunners Class Graduates At Montreal School

Montreal, Nov. 21 (CP). — Air Minister C. G. Power inspected a graduating class of wireless air gunners today at the No. 1 wireless school here of the Royal Canadian Air Force and congratulated the men in a brief address on the completion of their training.

"I am sure you are conscious of your duties and of the functions you will have to fulfill," Mr. Power told the graduates in a ceremony in the big sun-lit parade grounds of the school, on the slopes of Mount Royal.

Then the minister addressed himself to Australian and New Zealander airmen on the ranks, saying: "We greet you from the bottom of our hearts and hope that you will be happy here with the Canadian people."

None of the Australians or New Zealanders was among the graduating men, who now go to the R.C.A.F. schools at Jarvis, Ont., and Moss Banks, Sask., to study bombing and gunnery.

Revenues From Sale Of Liquor, Gasoline Up Over 1939

Toronto, Nov. 21—(CP)—Ontario Treasury officials said today that revenues from the sale of liquor and gasoline have increased so far in 1940 in comparison with 1939 revenues. They said the increases were due to an "improved national income due to war activities".

The improved conditions may mean an increase of $2,000,000 over anticipated revenues from gasoline taxation and revenue from the Liquor Control Board, it was said. Revenue from Succession Duties and Corporation Taxes also are expected to increase over budget estimates.

The Government budgeted for $24,000,000 from the gasoline tax this year and for $9,500,000 from liquor taxes.

2 Daylight Raids On London of Short Duration

Government Describes Raids as "Intermittent And on a Minor Scale"

London, Nov. 21—(CP) — London's sirens sounded two daylight alerts in quick succession today shortly after raiders were reported over scattered towns in England.

The raiders defied a gale over the channel to make their daylight stabs at Britain, and as they crossed a heavy-cross channel gun duel raged below them in spite of low visibility.

The first two daylight raids on London were of short duration.

A southeast England village turned out en masse to help firemen control fires caused last night by hundreds of incendiary bombs dropped by Nazi raiders.

In the London area a high explosive bomb killed a family of four, the parents and two daughters.

Terrific anti-aircraft fire was reported to have taken the sting out of the Nazis' second successive night of mass attack on the midlands and the government described the raids as "intermittent and on a minor scale."

Swarms of Raiders Seen

Apparently trying to strike another blow similar to that at Coventry a week ago, swarms of raiders poured over an east midlands town during the night but were dispersed by ground guns after less than two hours of incendiary bomb-dropping — first step in the technique of total air war.

A communique said: "A number of people were killed and injured" in the midlands where "fires were started and high explosive bombs demolished some houses and damaged others" in several towns. Attacks on other parts of England, including London, were labelled "generally ineffective" and the toll of dead and injured was reported to have been small.

Royal Air Force bombers, authoritative sources in London reported, carried out overnight attacks on air bases in German-occupied territory, on a Nazi freight yard and on the submarine base at Lorient, in occupied France.

Night Attacks Not Widespread

The all-clear sounded in London a short time after dawn, ending a night of light raids marked by long intervals without any Nazi air activity.

Although the night's attacks were not so widespread as the assaults Tuesday night, when a nine-hour raid left a dozen midland towns strewn with wreckage and dead and wounded, observers in the east midlands sector said during the early night hours that the raid was the fiercest ever made on that area.

The government said bombs also fell in the London area, at one point in southern England, in the northwest and in South Wales.

Police of an important industrial town in the midlands said last night that a day of digging through ruins left by the nine-hour raid the previous night so far had disclosed less than 29 known dead.

"SCOTTY" ALLEN ON SECRET MISSION

A West Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 21 (CP).—Arriving here today was G. U. (Scotty) Allen, noted aviator who flew across the Pacific with the late Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith.

Allen is connected with the oldest established airline in the world, he said—the Quantas Empire Airway which has been operating since 1920. He carried the first airmail between Australia and New Zealand and back again and has charted various air routes in the southern areas.

Allen is en route to Vancouver, but declined to say what his mission was.

26 LONG RANGE,

Marshall, army chief of staff, at a press conference yesterday. He announced that the 26 bombers originally ordered by the United States Army from the Consolidated Aircraft Company at San Diego, Calif., were being made available for purchase by Britain as fast as they came off the production line.

It was his understanding, he said, that the first of these planes was delivered last Saturday and that the others would be turned over at a steadily increasing rate between now and March 1st.

Marshall revealed at the same time that the United States Army had made available to Britain the Sperry bombsight—a mechanism used by the United States Air Corps before the present jealously guarded Norden bombsight replaced it. Some military sources describe the Sperry sight as very efficient equipment, although it does not match the high efficiency of the newer Norden sight.

Won't Have Modern Sight

Marshall said flatly that no bombers released for British purchase would have the Norden sight, which has been developed by the navy and subsequently adopted by both branches of the United States armed services.

The Chief of Staff then announced that the negotiations were under way for the release to Britain of 20 B-17C bombers—the long distance "flying fortresses" made by the Boeing Aircraft Corporation of Seattle, Wash.

Asked if these planes fould be ones already delivered to the United States army or others scheduled for delivery in the near future, he said that would depend upon whether it was faster to substitute the Sperry for the secret Norden bombsight in existing planes or in machines still on the production line.

Receive Engines From England

In his announcement that Britain was being given priority on first deliveries of B-24 bombers, the four-engined ships just beginning to come from the Consolidated Aircraft plant, Gen. Marshall said that the United States was receiving in return sufficient engines to equip 41 of the Boeing B-17C "flying fortresses".

Britain ordered these engines from an American plant early in the war, he explained. Unless the army obtained them, he said, it would have no power plants for the 41 "flying fortresses" recently delivered without engines or to be delivered before Jan. 1.

From the viewpoint of the United States, Gen. Marshall said, the primary purpose of releasing the "flying fortresses" was to obtain "an actual service test" of the B-17C. In addition, he added, this government would receive "at least the equivalent of these planes".

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES

Athens, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Alfred Leacock, 72, of Jasper, native of Frankville, died Wednesday night in the Smith's Falls hospital as a result of a car accident last Sunday. With his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ennis Leacock and grandson, he was motoring to Kingston when the car was ditched and the driver was fatally injured in the head. His widow and one son survive.

SOLDIER SLUGGED, ROBBED

Toronto, Nov. 21 (CP)—Private David Matthews, Camp Borden, a member of the Canadian Active Service Force, was slugged and robbed of $7 on a Toronto side street early today when he stopped to give alms to a beggar. Matthews told police he was attacked when he took out his purse in response to a request for "two bits."

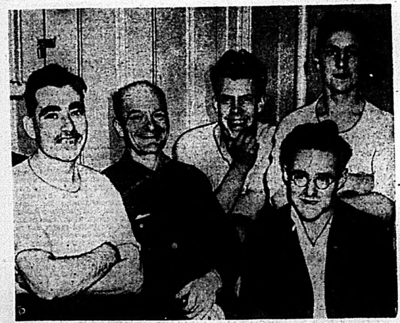
PRIME MINISTER INSPECTS POLISH FORCES

Prime Minister Churchill is pictured with Gen. Sikorski as they reviewed Polish troops in England. Many of these soldiers escaped from Poland after Germany's victory over their native land and travelled to England to again take up arms against the Nazis.

EXPLOSION WRECKS THIRD PLANT IN A WEEK

An unexplained explosion, the third in a week in a plant of the American Cyanamid and Chemical Corporation, caused this damage to one large building at the corporation's Bridgeville, Pa., works, injuring two men. Hardly a window remains. The plant was one employing the catalytic oxidation of napthalene process to manufacture phthalic anhydride, a raw material used in chemicals, especially for synthetic resins. The plant manager said the corporation did not have national defence contracts. Explosions at the company's plants in Bound Brook, N.J., and near New Castle, Pa., took four lives.

RESCUED AFTER FOUR NIGHTS AND THREE DAYS ADRIFT



Adrift four nights and three days after their boat had been sunk while in the convoy that the Jervis Bay went down to protect, these five sailors and seven companions were rescued by a Greek merchant vessel. Douglas Michael O'Reilly, of Ottawa, the only Canadian in the crew, is shown THIRD from LEFT.

FIRST GROUP OF NEW TYPE BOMBERS FOR BRITAIN

Poised at a California airfield, these new type Douglas DB-7A bombers are shown ready to leave for New York, where they will be delivered to British representatives.

AFTER B OMB BLAST

This picture, passed by British censors, shows all that remained of a London public hall following a recent German air raid. The archway over the platform and the well of the stairway are all that remain upright. A.R.P. workers probe the wreckage for victims as curious London youngsters watch.

ANOTHER THOUSAND "REFUGEES" ARE SAFE

W. N. Rollason, LEFT, and C. B. Jackson, Miami nurserymen, shown unpacking and examining the thousand "war refugees" which arrived in Miami from Britain recently. The "refugees," snugly protected by moss and excelsior, packed into 15 cases, constitute the orchid collection of the Duke of Westminster, and were sent to the U.S. "for the duration." A bomb hitting these plants would end strains which have required generations to produce.

DEFENCE BOARD AT VANCOUVER

Mayor Fiorella L. La Guardia, of New York, and Col. O. M. Biggar, K.C., United States and Canadian chairmen, respectively, of the permanent board on defence, are shown as they mounted the city hall steps at Vancouver, where the joint board held a conference during its tour of the U.S.-Canada Pacific coast. On hand to greet them was Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, joint secretary of the board for Canada, shown with back to camera.

SULTAN WEDS ENGLISH GIRL

The Sultan of Johore, 67, and his bride, the former Marcella Mendl, 25, raise glasses to drink a toast after their recent marriage in Londno. The Sultan was mourning the death of Lydia Hill, 27, an English show-girl who was killed during an air raid on Canterbury last month, when he met Miss Mendl.

Governor-General Inspects Australians

Accompanied by Sir. William Glasgow, Australian high commissioner to Canada, the Earl of Athlone made a tour of inspection of the quarters being used by the Australians being trained under the commonwealth air training scheme near Ottawa. With Sir William and the Governor-General is Group Captain Frank McGill, O.C. of No. 2 Service Flying Training School.

LEWIS GREETS LIKELY SUCCESSOR

Sober-faced John L. Lewis, former head of the C.I.O., is pictured here as he shook hands with Phillip Murray, steel workers' organizing committee chairman, at the C.I.O. national convention at Atlantic City. It was at this convention that Lewis resigned as head of the C.I.O. Murray may succeed him.

Representative Dies is reported to have said that Fassbender had promised to reveal the entire network of the Nazi espionage in the United States.

Heads Fighter Forces

Air Marshal W. Sholto Douglas has been appointed commander-in-chief of the R.A.F. fighter forces. He succeeds Air Chief Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, who is being sent to the United States on a special mission.

ORDNANCE CHIEF

Victor W. Sifton of Winnipeg has been appointed as acting master-general of the ordnance branch of the defence department, succeeding P. A. Chester, who will return to his post as general manager of the Hudson's Bay Co. Mr. Sifton will serve without salary and, like Mr. Chester, will serve as a civilian in the defence department post.

BABY HAS MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

TO REQUISITION SHIPS

Hong Kong, Nov. 21 (AP) — All British merchant ships with home ports here and at Singapore which have not been taken over by the Government will be requisitioned shortly, it was announced officially Wednesday.

Ships belonging to two companies were requisitioned last May, but scores of others so far have not been.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER TWENTY.

Revelling in the early-morning fragrance of the palm-shaded hotel patio, Captain North, alone at his table, sat sipping coffee while his eyes wandered over certain black headlines. None of them was reassuring—quite the contrary.

"SENATORS DEMAND WAR," one newspaper proclaimed. "NATIONAL GUARD PREPARES FOR QUICK MOBILIZATION." "PRESIDENT URGES CALM ON NATION," another stated: "SUICIDE OF ANTI-WAR JAP PRIME MINISTER DENIED."

Then on still another front page, "ASSASSINS FIRE AT JAP WAR MINISTER." "AMERICAN FLAG BURNT IN TIENTSIN."

"War fever—all the old, familiar symptoms!" the American agent muttered. He read carefully the usual urgings to calm. The mayor of Honolulu was especially emphatic.

"ALL CITIZENS OF WHATEVER EXTRACTION ARE EARNESTLY REQUESTED TO AVOID DEMONSTRATIONS OF ANY SORT."

Then below it: "TENSION IN CITY AT FEVER HEAT WITH JAP CRUISER AND SUBMARINE SQUADRON EXPECTED TOMORROW. LESS THAN EQUAL NUMBER OF AMERICAN SHIPS TO BE IN HARBOR. DECISION PROTESTED BY PROMINENT CITIZENS."

Turning to a rear page of the last newspaper, he began scanning the financial page. "STEEL, COTTONS AND ESSENTIAL WAR COMMODITIES REGISTER SHARP RISE. IROQUOIS STEEL REACHES NEW HIGH. HEAVY BUYING FORCES PRICES UP."

All at once the intelligence captain's deeply sunburnt hand paused in turning a page. Somewhere in the back of North's brain a bit of mechanism clicked. . . . Iroquois Steel . . . Iroquois Steel?

Slowly the newsprint sank flat to the table, and North stared with fixed, unseeing eyes. . . .

Iroquois Steel? Abner Polk was president of Iroquois Steel! With that realization, undreamed-of perspectives opened. Explained now was Polk's uneasiness; this trip to Hawaii on such short notice. . . .

Baron von Rentner, the German steel master, was also in Hawaii. Coincidence? Hardly. Polk, von Rentner, Stefan and Co., a queer partnership—in what? Two multimillionaires and a Soviet spy! Queer, queer company!

Like a dynamo gathering speed, North's brain began to function. Click! Nadio Stefan had Baron von Rentner at her feet. Click! Armand Dunant was her professed admirer, or so Polk had said. Click! Dunant, another steel king. Click!

North turned hurriedly to a list of passengers who had arrived in Honolulu on the S.S. Korea the day before.

"Captain and Mrs. Wallace Clark, U.S.A.M.C.; the Very Reverend Mr. Gale, Bishop of Shanghai; Mr. Reginald Payne." Then North's expressive black brows crept together a little. "Ha! M. Armand Dunant," described there as director general of the Franco-Danubian Steel Cartel.

"What a flop-eared jackass I've been not to have tumbled before!" ejaculated North.

Lost in thought, he folded his paper and was about to continue his breakfast when a shadow fell across the tablecloth. He glanced up. It required all his self-control to conceal his amazement at beholding Nadia Stefan standing beside him, looking lovely and demure in a simple dress of printed silk. Fighting down an inexplicable sensation of pleasure, he arose, bowing a little, and met the cool challenge of her large eyes.

"Bonjour, Capt—Mr. Nevins. You rested well?" There was no hint of sarcasm in her tone.

"Yes, thank you," he said, and trying to appear as unconcerned as she. "Would you care to join me?"

Nadia made no answer beyond a faint smile, as she slid gracefully into the chair opposite him.

"I see, monsieur le Capitaine, that you prefer a good old American breakfast. Eggs, melon, toast—mon Dieu! Quel barbare"

"You bet," said he cheerfully. "You've breakfasted, I gather?"

Beneath a broad-brimmed hat which set off her pale features, she nodded.

"Mais oui, on chocolate and croissants. There's a delightful old Frenchman who makes them not far from where I—"

"We," corrected North.

"I," she repeated, "Monsieur Josef has his own quarters elsewhere. Our connection is—purely professional."

Gravely North said, "I'm glad of that."

Their eyes met and held; then North sought safety in tearing his gaze away as she said: "But that was not what I came to see you about. I came for two reasons. Please go on eating," she urged when North laid down his fruit spoon.

"I obey," the intelligence captain smiled. "But what are these two reasons?"

"First," explained Nadia Stefan, elevating a slim white finger, "I came to give you a friendly little warning."

"That's Warning No. 2, isn't it? Are warnings a specialty of yours?"

"No, I—I do not generally go to such trouble for—well, an—an—"

"Enemy? And what was the other reason?"

"Only that really I wanted to see you again," confessed Nadia Stefan with a simplicity that carried an amazing amount of conviction.

For the first time in longer than he could remember, Hugh North felt himself blushing—blushing because Nadia Stefan wanted to see him again for his own sake. Instantly, however, the watchdogs of his brain awoke to howl insistent warnings.

"And I," said he, "am very glad to see you again."

"Then that dreadful little Japanese didn't hurt you?" she queried in an undertone. "I was very much afraid."

"Not for long. They knocked me out and," North shrugged, "my loss is HIS gain."

Nadia settled back in her chair, with her brows joined in an almost pained expression.

"Surely, mon Capitaine, you are scarcely complimentary this morning."

"How so?"

"You didn't really think that litter of papers left on the desk was of any real importance, non?"

As North addressed himself to his luke-warm scrambled eggs he shrugged a little.

"Quien sabe? Something you might think unimportant might mean a great deal to me. Anyway, I wish Kanamura and Company hadn't got their yellow claws on them and interrupted my personal plans."

"Did your plans include — me?" she demanded with mock anxiety.

"Indo-China and Angkor and, yes —you."

"You are delightful!" A brief tension dominated Nadia's facile features. "Ah, Dieu, but I grow tired of all this," she sighed, closing eyelids wearily. "I only wish we had met anywhere but in Honolulu, and in these times. So much might have been."

North said nothing, being fully occupied in an effort to maintain his own mental balance. Every time those long-lashed eyelids of hers rose, he felt almost panic-stricken.

The U.S. agent kept recalling Polk, von Rentner, and Dunant . . . also that pitiful corpse there by the float. How frightened the dead girl had looked!

Yes—this was all acting on Nadia's part. After all, she was a Soviet agent, and, like him, had her work to do.

"North, mon ami,"—Nadia glanced quickly to right and left with a bird-like quickness; then her hand shot out impulsively and came to rest on him — "for heaven's sake don't keep on. You do not know what you're up against. I—I admire your courage, your resourcefulness—your — " she floundered a little — "your beau-sabreur manner, but I swear to you it is too late to stay that avalanche which is already launched. Listen to me."

If ever he had heard a person in earnest, it was now.

"Thus far I have—I still do not understand why—I have spared your life." Trembling a little, her voice went on: "I—I cannot do so longer—someone has come — and besides, duty—ah—"

Her hand tightened over his. "Ah, you MUST believe me. Listen—seven long years I have served first the Cheka, then the O.G.P.U.—for I believe in Russia's triumphant destiny. But now I am sick of killings, of treachery, of sleepless days and nights—of making love and being made love to, when love is farthest from my wishes."

He listened, automatically steeling himself to sanity. No doubt she had spoken thus to Aristide La Tour, who had died in Moscow in some fetid dungeon. To poor old Jerry Cross, now in a suicide's grave. To Wilson Clark, yet unburied.

"Why," he murmured, "do you tell this to me?"

"Because," — her eyes flashed a moment — "I have given much to Russia, most of my youth; now, I wonder if the remainder does not belong to me?"

"That sounds reasonable," North agreed. "Look here," he continued. "Why don't you stop now? Today!"

Nadia stiffened a little and replied with a sudden chillness: "I am not a traitor, Monsieur le Capitains. I shall do my best. But for you, I am afraid. Yes, I see death very near you—I cannot stand between IT and YOU any longer." She made a small helpless gesture with her hands. "Please believe that I do not want you to get hurt. And hurt you surely will be, if you persist."

"You are very charming, Mademoiselle Stefan," was all he said, though his heart was hammering like a schoolboy's.

She ignored his compliment and hurried on with these words:

"Tonight 'phone me—send for me and I will go anywhere in the world with you!" She raised a quick hand. "I have risked much in talking like this—I make no explanations for what I save said—no apologies—I have simply spoken what is in my mind. You, too, know what it is to live under a perpetual tension; brave as you are, you know what it is to live in fear—"

"I know," he interrupted gravely.

"Believe,' she whispered when he straightened a little—"believe that I will keep my promise. Call me tonight, then we'll leave Honolulu and abandon this hideous business. We can go away—far away."

Reason warned him, that what she had just suggested was a bribe. Yet all she had said had sounded as if it came from the depths of her soul. All at once he found himself wishing it were possible to cast off his responsibility. He had never met such a fascinating, practical woman. When he married — confound it! What was he thinking of?

Thompson, Hyde Candidates for Mayoralty

24 Are Nominated To Contest 13 Aldermanic Seats

15 Named for Vacant Seats on Board Of Education, Two For P.U. Commission

Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson and Charles L. Hyde, Board of Education trustee, will contest the mayoralty of the City of Belleville at the forthcoming civic elections held here on December 2nd.

Four names were presented by ratepayers at the city nominations held in the City Hall between 11 and 12 o'clock. These included Mayor Thompson, Mr. Hyde, Alderman H. J. Clarke and ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone. Ex-Mayor Bone and Alderman Clarke withdrew after delivering addresses, but Mr. Hyde announced that he was definitely in the mayoralty race.

Twenty-four potential aldermen, including members of the 1940 body stood for nomination shortly after twelve o'clock. Fifteen residents of the city will vie for Board of Education honors and two for commissionerships on the Public Utilities Commission. Alderman H. J. Clarke and H. J. Allin qualified for aldermanic positions after the nominations closed.

There was only a handful of interested citizens on hand when City Clerk Wilfred Holmes declared nominations closed sharp at eleven o'clock. From that time until twelve noon when nominations for city aldermen and public utilities commissioners opened, the faithful few were regaled with addresses from the candidates, nominees and others.

Ex-Alderman W. A. Woodley was appointed chairman for the nomination addresses and in his remarks deplored the fact that such little interest on the part of the ratepayers of Belleville was shown in the "men they elect to spend their money." "It's a shame," he said, "that the nominations were not advertised more than they are. In the old days the hall would be packed."

Mayor Seeks Re-Nomination

Mayor Thompson in his address pointed out that the nominations had been advertised in the papers of the country. He stressed the fact that he had sat as a councillor for five years and as the chief magistrate for one year. "I feel that I should have another year at least," he said, "as there have been a number of things started in 1940 that can be completed in 1941 I must say," he added, "that this year I sat with the best council Belleville ever had." (Cheers from the aldermen, and "take it back" from the ex-councillors present.)

His Worship contradicted a statement which appeared in the press to the effect that the Board of Education had requested the council to build an addition to Queen Mary School. "The Board never made such a request," he said, "and as it was this is not the time to do it."

Mayor Thompson also stated that press reports to the effect that the board had requested council to

BRITAIN PLANS AERIAL STROKES WITH U.S. PLANES

Strokes Will be Directed Against Germany and Italy

ATTACK INVASION PORTS

Air Ministry Reports Victories in Africa and Albania by Blasting Hangars, Planes

London, Nov. 22—(CP)—Embattled Britain, heartened by her King's report of increasing air aid from the United States, mapped new aerial strikes against Germany and Italy today.

The Speech from the Throne at the opening of a new session of parliament yesterday declared munitions and supplies from the United States were arriving in "ever increasing volume;" and the Royal Air Force left little doubt that 26 powerful United States army bombers soon to be delivered, would be in the van of new forays against the Axis.

Rumania's Premier, Foreign Minister Received by Hitler

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP).—Rumania's premier and foreign minister arrived today and immediately were received by Hitler for talks expected to lead to Rumanian adherence to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis.

The Rumanians, Gen. Ion Antonescu and Prince Costin Sturza, engaged in lengthy conversations with Hitler at the chancellery, where they were accorded military honors by a Nazi Guard before proceeding to Hitler's quarters.

Rumania thus would follow in the path of Hungary, which enrolled in the German-Italian-Japanese alliance Wednesday at Vienna.

The Rumanians will leave Berlin Sunday morning; President Joseph Tiso and Premier Bela Tuka of Slovakia are expected in Berlin the same day.

Bulgarian statesmen probably will confer with German diplomats in some German city Monday or Tuesday. King Boris of Bulgaria saw Hitler in the recent cycle of diplomatic visitors to Germany from Hungary, Soviet Russia, Italy and Spain.

If Rumania, Bulgaria and Slovakia should sign up in the military-political-economic alliance against any country which might join Britain or China in war, only three Balkan nations would remain outside the fold.

They are Greece, already at war with Italy; Turkey, a friend of Britain, and Yugoslavia, anxiously neutral.

News of British Shipping Loses Not As Bad As It Seems

Somewhere on the English Coast, Nov. 22 (CP)—News of British shipping losses is not always as bad as it seems. When merchant ships are announced as victims of enemy action a proportion may live to sail another day—thanks to salvage experts of the Admiralty.

Whenever a vessel is mined, bombed or torpedoed near the British Coast in a position which offers these tough, sea-going "wreckers" a sporting chance, they start to work.

They do so with three objects:-

1. To refloat the vessel and bring her into port.

2. If the vessel can't be saved, to salvage as much of her cargo as possible.

3. If both vessel and cargo are beyond hope, to remove as much valuable scrap iron as possible.

In a surprisingly high proportion of vessels reported lost, valuable goods or material have been saved, even if the ship could not be salvaged. The most hopeful cases are dealt with first. Other wrecks, which offer ultimate hopes of success to the salvage men, although necessitating time and labor which might be better employed elsewhere, are surveyed and their particulars filed with a view to post-war salvage.

One wreck in this district, that of a ship which struck a mine, was a considerable distance off shore and lay in an exposed position. But the sea was calm and the salvage men went to work.

The cargo of cereals was removed with little difficulty and when dried and de-salted made excellent fodder. A temporary patch was put over the hole beneath the waterline where the mine had struck and the wreck was towed into port for dry-docking.

White Paper on Italian And Japanese Activities In U.S. Being Prepared

Will be Devoted to Alleged Un-American Activities by Espionage and Propaganda Agents

TRANSRADIO INVOLVED

Washington, Nov. 22 (AP)—The United States' Committee on Un-American Activities promised today to follow up its German White Paper with companion reports devoted to alleged Italian and Japanese activities in the United States.

The material set forth in its White Paper on German activities, the committee charged, was evidence of a closely-integrated scheme of Nazi espionage, propaganda and planning in the United States.

Informed sources said that an Italian White Paper similar to the 500-page document released Thursday on German activities, was being prepared by the committee and would be transmitted to Congress within a few weeks.

Committee investigators were reported actively pursuing their inquiry into the operations of persons the committee believes to be identified with the Japanese Government, but the form of the report on this material has not been determined.

Chairman Martin Dies, Texas Democratic Member of the House of Representatives said in St. Louis that the German report was "unique in American history" and that any Nazi effectiveness would be destroyed" by its contents. It was Dies who gave the report its "White Paper" title prior to publication.

Aides of Dies said that he had decided to take charge personally of inquiries now under way in many cities in the hope that activities of any agents unfriendly to the United States might be discredited.

PLEAD GUILTY TO THEFT CHARGES

Two Members of R.C.A.F. Given Month Each for Part in Affair

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 22.—(CP) Magistrate M. J. Galligan Thursday sentenced Kenneth P. Branscombe and Robert M. Van Buskerk of The Royal Canadian Artillery, Petawawa Military Camp, to one month in jail when they pleaded guilty to theft of canned goods from the storeroom of a local restaurant.

Victor Clements, 18, of Pembroke, charged with theft of $123 from the service station where he had been employed, was released on suspended sentence when he promised to make full restitution. He had pleaded guilty.

Lindsay Bechard, 19, elected trial by Magistrate on a charge of robbery with violence and was remanded a week for preliminary hearing.

FRENCH FLEET BACK IN NEWS AFTER INCIDENT

Report From Algeciras Says French Battleship Has Surrendered at Gibraltar

SOME AT TOULON

(By The Canadian Press)

Reports from Algeciras that a French battleship of the same type as the Paris had entered Gibraltar and surrendered to the British authorities brought the French Fleet back into the news today.

Ever since last July, when Britain's Mediterranean fleet struck a sudden and powerful blow against French units at Oran in Algeria to prevent them from falling to Germany and Italy, there has been speculation as to the disposition of the vessels remaining in the hands of the Vichy government.

Britain seized, sank or heavily damaged eight French battleships. This left one which might be of use to Italy or Germany in the near future, the 35,000-ton Jean Bart, launched only last March and far from completion.

KINGSTON NOMINATIONS

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP).—Mayor H. A. Stewart was today nominated for his fourth term. Two other candidates, Ald. J. F. Rowland and Ex-Ald. C. A. Curtis, were also nominated.

Candidates have until nine o'clock Saturday night to qualify.

For the two vacancies on the Utilities Commission the following were nominated: Colin Drever, Ald. W. O. Dwyer, Ald. J. A. Casterton, Ald. A. E. Stansbury and Howard Kelly; for the five vacancies on the Board of Education, D. L. Foley, Dr. A. E. Ross, J. M. Root, W. J. Saunders, Dr. G. C. Lindsay, H. E. Ripley, Mrs. G. Miller, Dr. H. A. Tracy.

GIVEN ACCLAMATION

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP) — Mayor William Morrison was re-elected Mayor of Hamilton by acclamation today when nominations closed at the city hall.

LARGE NUMBERS JAPANESE RETIRE FROM SHANTUNG

Observers Believe Japs Planning Thrust to Southward

DESTINATION SECRET

Shanghai, Nov. 22 (AP).—Considerable numbers of Japanese troops were reported today to be withdrawing from Shantung Province in Northern China amid evidence of growing Japanese concentrations in the south.

Advices from foreign sources said a steady stream of Japanese troops have been leaving Shantung by railroad for the past week. These sources said they were embarking on transports at Tientsin and Tsingtao for undisclosed destinations but were believed to be headed south toward the Japanese island of Formosa and the Japanese-occupied island of Hainan off the China coast.

Travellers from Hong Kong, at the same time, reported sighting five Japanese transports off the mouth of the Wangtse river, apparently carrying soldiers withdrawn from Yangtse garrison cities.

Foreign military sources said they interpreted these movements as evidence that Japan is planning a new southward thrust, possibly with the French Indo-China port of Saigon as a first objective. All agreed, however, that it still is conjectural when Japan might act.

Siam Rejects Requests.

Hong Kong, Nov. 22 (CP). — A special dispatch to the China mail today said Thailand (Siam) had rejected a Japanese request for permission to move Japanese armed forces through Thailand and also to establish military and naval bases there.

The dispatch said the request was made some time ago but all references to it were banned by Thailand authorities.

WELFARE MINISTER PORTFOLIO TO BE ABOLISHED

Administration Will be Transferred to Dept. of Hon. T. B. McQuesten

HIPEL GIVEN POST

Minister of Labor Will Administer Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowance

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP)—With the resignation of Hon. Eric Cross as Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, Premier Mitchell Hepburn announced today the portfolio would be abolished. Administration of municipal affairs will be transferred to Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, administration of Welfare, including Old Age Pensions, Mothers' Allowances, and Relief will be given to Hon. Norman Hipel, Minister of Labor.

The departments, Premier Hepburn said, had been established as an emergency measure during the peak of depression when relief was the most important problem, and a drain on taxpayers' resources in every municipality, many of which had gone into bankruptcy. But since then the whole situation has changed. Municipalities in question have been rehabilitated financially and are now well able to take care of themselves with reasonable supervision from the Government. With the Federal measure on unemployment insurance, unemployment relief so far as employables are concerned cannot be a pressing problem.

Mr. Hipel and Mr. McQuesten, the Premier said, will attend the Dominion-Provincial Conference called by Premier King on the Sirois report, and by that time will have familiarized themselves with the departments concerned.

Mr. Hepburn paid tribute to Mr. Cross and his associates for their parts in handling relief and rehabilitating the financial structure of certain municipalities.

Situation in Britain "Much Improved" States Lord Lothian

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 22 (AP) — The Marquess of Lothian, taking off on the first of two clippers which headed for New York today, declared the situation in Britain is "much improved."

His trip, he said, proved to his own satisfaction that United States press reports of Britain's unshaken morale and resistance "were not just propaganda."

His plane was the first to make the westward crossing in two weeks.

Flying in the same plane with Lord Lothian were members of a United States aviation commission headed by Brig.-General James Chaney and Brig.-Gen. Barton Yount, who said they would report to Washington that they found Britain's air defences "surprisingly efficacious." They said they were particularly impressed by the value of anti-aircraft guns.

One Man Killed, Two Injured When Explosion Occurs in Montreal Plant

Montreal, Nov. 22—(CP)—Joseph Raymond, 41, was killed and two other men were injured today when three explosions wrecked part of the plant of Dominion Oilcloth and Linoleum in the east end of Montreal.

The injured men were Adrien Viau, 20, severe body burns, and Dosithe Lessard, skull fracture. Condition of the men, both of whom were rushed to the hospital, was reported to be serious.

The explosions, which occurred in a cork mill, were believed to have been caused when cork dust was ignited by a spark. Firemen from nine stations eventually extinguished flames which broke out after the blasts.

The injured and dead all were employees of the plant. Raymond's charred body was found after the fire, which threatened for a time to engulf other buildings.

Lessard suffered a skull fracture when he leaped from a window of the third floor, where the blasts occurred he apparently had been working with Raymond.

A fourth employee, Fred Murray, 61, suffered slight burns and injuries and also was taken to the hospital.

The first blast tore a gaping hole in the front of the building, showering bricks and wreckage over a two-block area. Houses and other buildings in the district were shaken by the blast.

Invaders Retire So Quickly Greeks Cannot Keep Up

Greeks Making Methodical Advance According to Plan Predetermined

Athens, Nov. 22 (AP)—The capture of Koritza key base in Southern Albania from which Italian columns drove into Greece 25 days ago, was announced today by the Greek Government.

It came as the climax of bitter warfare in the rugged mountains of the Greek-Albanian frontier in which hard-fighting Greek troops first checked and then hurled back the tide of invasion.

"Our heroic troops after hard fighting entered Koritza today triumphantly," said a communique.

"The advance of our troops continues everywhere."

The Government ordered flags displayed throughout the kingdom, and dispatches from Salonika and elsewhere told of an excited populace eagerly discussing the victory.

(An Italian communique admitted the loss of Koritza and said two Italian divisions had been forced to withdraw.)

Airmen and Ground Crews With U.S. Bombers Assisting Renew Search in Bush Country

SIGHT PARACHUTES

East Lake, Que., Nov. 22.—(CP)—Airmen and ground crews renewed search for three missing Royal Canadian Air Force fliers today, with hope heightened by the rescue of two companions after they had been missing for five days.

One ground crew brought L.A.C. E. J. Benoit of Ottawa safely into this little Kamouraska County settlement early this morning. Another was believed approaching nearby St. Pamphile with a second Air force man, as yet unidentified.

FO. U. J. H. Leblanc reached safety Sunday. It was his arrival at East Lake that started the search for the five other crew members of the ship that crashed as it was returning to Montreal after an Atlantic patrol.

FINANCE MINISTER SAYS MORE TAXES WILL BE NEEDED

Inflation Would be Dangerous Wartime Financing Policy Ilsley Says

WAR LOAN I 1941

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP)—Canada's policy for paying for the war effort continues to be based upon the belief that "inflation is the most unfair, the most uneconomical and the most dangerous of all methods" of war financing, according to Finance Minister Ilsley.

Addressing the House of Commons yesterday in the Throne Speech debate, Mr. Ilsley announced the next war loan would come in midsummer next year, and would be handled by a National Co-operative Organization similar to that which disposed of first Great War Victory Loans.

Meantime, he said, there would be some short-term financing early in 1941.

TWO HELD UP AT INTERSECTION

Motorists Waiting for Traffic Signal Robbed at Bloor Street and Avenue Road, Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP). — Police said Robert Hennessy of Haileybury, Ont., and his sister-in-law, Miss Rena Ritchie of Toronto, were victims late yesterday of a daring hold up on a busy Toronto street intersection. The robber, armed with a revolver, got away with $3.75 and Miss Ritchie's wrist watch.

Hennessy said he had stopped for a traffic signal at Avenue Road and Bloor street. "There were several cars alongside mine. The next thing I knew the rear door had been opened and a man was in the back pressing a gun into me."

The driver was ordered to drive to a quiet street where he and Miss Ritchie were ordered to deliver their money and valuables.

ONE BATTALION LOST

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 22 (AP)—One Italian battalion endangered by the advancing Greek forces was said by reports from the front today to have crossed the Albanian frontier into Yugoslavia near Stenje.

It was estimated unofficially that 800 soldiers in the battalion were disarmed and interned.

TWO-WAY POLICE RADIO SYSTEM

The Kingston Police Department inaugurated a two-way police radio system in that city this week. Radio transmitters are now installed in the police cruiser automobiles, thus enabling the constables on patrol to be in direct conversation with the police headquarters. In Belleville a one-way police radio, from the transmitting station at the police station to the cruiser cars only, was introduced to the department by Sergeant Arthur Booth several months before Kingston installed a similar system. In Belleville, however, the city has not improved the police radio to make it the more modern two-way system.

CHRISTMAS MAIL FOR TROOPS OVERSEAS COMING IN LATE

With the exception of parcels being shipped to soldiers overseas, the annual Christmas rush has not yet begun at the Belleville Post Office, intimated postal authorities this morning.

Although postal authorities at Ottawa advised that all Christmas mail for the Old Country be sent the week of October 10, parcels for overseas are still arriving at the local post office for mailing, it was revealed. A great many people complied with the suggestion that owing to shipping schedules being revised by war conditions all parcels for the Old Country should be mailed early, but the public is hard to convince and parcels for overseas are still being received for shipment.

Post Office officials state that most of the parcels going overseas to soldiers and private homes include food stuffs, like tea, lump sugar, hams and cheese. Soldier parcels containing smokes and tobacco go duty free. The volume of mail for overseas this season is the greatest since the last war, it was revealed.

CHEESE PRODUCTION RAPIDLY DECLINING

Cheese production is rapidly falling off in the Belleville district as is shown by the greatly decreased offerings of cheese on the Belleville Cheese Board at the last several meetings. Approximately one quarter of the factories represented on the local board, have already closed their doors for the winter months and many others will shortly follow suit. At Thursday night's board meeting very few over 1,300 cheese were offered as compared to more than 4,000 during the early summer months when the milk flow is at its highest.

The local cheese board will continue to board cheese for several weeks yet however, as the last meeting usually takes place either the first or second week in December.

52 COUPLES MARRIED IN SEPT. AND OCT.

Fifty-two couples tripped down the aisle to the altar during the months of September and October in Belleville, according to vital statistics released today by City Hall officials.

Births amounted to 109 while 46 deaths were recorded.

CEASES PUBLICATION FOR TIME BEING

With the current issue of the Deseronto Post, the weekly newspaper will temporarily cease publication under its present management, according to a front page story released by the editor. The publisher, the story states, has been forced to make this decision by circumstances over which he had no control. The paper has been operating under the present management for the past eight years.

Group Capt. T. A. Lawrence In Command at Air Station

Personnel of Air Station Bids Goodbye to Group Capt. J. A. Sully

STAGE MARCH PAST

Trenton, Nov. 22—Group Captain T. A. Lawrence of the Royal Canadian Air Force took over the command of the Trenton Airbase this morning in an impressive ceremony from Group Captain J. A. Sully who goes to a staff position at headquarters of the Eastern Air Command in Halifax.

Shortly after eight o'clock this morning the personnel of the R.C.A.F. lined up on the parade grounds and Group Captain Sully made his farewell address.

"Since my coming to this Air Station, a year ago, I have observed the enthusiasm and the energy of the officers and men here," said Group Captain Sully. "During my stay here, I have become acquainted with practically all of you by sight, I regret that I was unable to know everyone of you personally."

"Your undying energy and stability will undoubtedly carry us through in this great task before us and with such energy and stability, throughout our forces there can be no doubt that we will win the war."

"In turning over the command to Group Captain Lawrence, I ask you to give him the same co-operation that you accorded me and there can be no doubt that everything will run smoothly," concluded Group Captain Sully.

Group Captain Lawrence, in taking over the command, briefly thanked Group Captain Sully for his remarks and asked for the co-operation of the men. "I am sure that I will have a hard time taking the place of your former commanding officer but I shall do my best."

The new commanding officer led the oficers and men in giving three cheers for Group Captain Sully.

Led March Past

Following this, Group Captain took over the command of the men and led them in the march past, with Group Captain Sully taking the salute.

Group Captain Sully during his command of the Trenton Air Station, made innumerable friends in the district. He was well-liked and respected by the officers and men alike at the station and by civilians and army men in the district.

He took a keen interest in the Trenton High School Air Cadets, last spring and praised them highly on their inspection. A sports fan, himself, he even entered into the annual Field Day Sports held at the Station, last September and won two races which he entered.

On many occasions, Group Captain Sully was most generous in aiding various societies and organizations in the district.

The new Commanding Officer at Trenton has been stationed at the Royal Canadian Air Force Headquarters at Ottawa since 1938. He previously served with the R.C.A.F. at Camp Borden and Trenton, and for a time was attached to the Royal Air Force.

Group Captain Lawrence was born at Creemore, Ontario, and went overseas as a private in 1914 and later was seconded to the R.A.F. as a second-Lieutenant. He joined the R.C.A.F. in 1924.

Group Captain Sully served in the first Great War and joined the R.C.A.F. in 1933. He assumed command of the Trenton Station last year.

SIX NOMINATED TO MAYOR'S CHAIR AT TRENTON

Present Incumbent, Mayor O. A. Alyea and Former Mayor H. R. Cory Nominated

OTHER NOMINATIONS

Trenton, Nov. 22—Six prominent business men in this town were nominated this morning to run as candidate for the Mayor of Trenton. These prospective candidates will have until Saturday midnight to qualify.

The nominations opened at eleven o'clock this morning and three names were immediately placed before Town Clerk W. J. Potts. Harry Raymond Cory, ex-mayor of this town was the first to be nominated. His name was proposed by Irvine McGaughey and seconded by S. J. Jenners. Councillor Kenneth J. Couch was proposed by Councillor Henry LaFleur and seconded by Irvine McGaughey. Mayor O. A. Alyea was again nominated to run for the Chief Magistrate's chair by Douglas White and seconded by Charles E. York.

Three other nominations were proposed during the regulation hour. John J. McNab, civil engineer, was proposed by R. J. Whitley and A. A. Farrar. William H. Ireland, former Mayor and former Conservative Whip in the Provincial Government was nominated by R. J. Whitley and J. J. McNab. William A. Fraser was nominated by J. J. McNab and R. J. Whitley.

Sharp at eleven o'clock Town Clerk Mr. Potts closed the nominations for Mayor.

Nineteen nominations were received here for aldermen this afternoon (six of whom are to be elected).

They are Ross Burtt, Kenneth Couch, Victor Ryan, Irvine McGaughey, Walter Gainforth, Gerald Weaver, Allen LaMorre, William J. Findlay, John Van Alstine, Hugh O'Rourke, Robert LaMorre, Richard J. Whitley, Henry LaFleur, Albert A. Farrar, Raymond Perry, Wentworth Miller, Douglas G. White, Thomas A. Cain, Ernest Ellis.

Four nominations were received for the Public Utilities Commission, one of whom is to be elected. They are George Sprentall, Albert A. Farrar, Irvine A. McGaughey, Douglas G. White.

Only three trustees were nominated this morning and as only three are to be elected, these three will take office for 1941 and 1942 or the duration of the war. They are E. Arthur Blakely, Rolland Whitley and Charles V. Wilkins.

MRS. R. J. CLARKE, TRENTON, KILLED

Car in Which She Was a Passenger Goes Out of Control, Skidding Into Ditch

Trenton, Nov. 22—Mrs. Robt. J. Clarke, 36 Queen St., of this town, was killed in a motor accident directly in front of the Royal Canadian Air Force station east of here shortly before midnight Thursday night. She was riding with her husband and two other passengers, both of whom escaped serious injury. Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, Belleville, ordered an inquest probing into the fatal accident.

According to eye witnesses the Clarke-driven car was proceeding westerly and had passed the main entrance to the R.C.A.F. base when it went out of control, skidded on the wet pavement across the highway. An east bound automobile, owned by the LaMorre Taxi Service of this town, collided with the right rear of Mr. Clarke's car before it went into the south ditch.

Employees at the Air Base hastened to assist and the injured lady was rushed into the Airport Hospital but she died upon admittance Major Dr. Tilley, resident physician stated to Provincial Police, who investigated.

Mrs. David Wallace, 82, of Stirling and mother of the fatally injured woman, was riding in the front seat along with Mr. R. J. Clarke, while Mrs. Clarke was seated in the rear seat with Mr. George H. Clarke, a brother of the driver, who resides in Bancroft. All except Mrs. Clarke escaped without sustaining serious injury, Motorcycle Patrolman Charles Siple reported.

Newspaper Nearly 141 Years Old Recorded Funeral of Washington

Copy of Issue of Ulster County Gazette of Kingston, N.Y., Dated Jan. 4, 1800, is Owned in Belleville

"On Wednesday last the mortal part of Washington the Great—the Father of His County and the Friend of Man—was consigned to the tomb amid solemn ceremonies and funeral pomp".

Today one can read these lines in a newspaper dated January 4th., 1800 the Ulster County Gazette, published at Kingston, N.Y., as they tell of the obsequies of General George Washington, leader of the American forces in the Revolutionary War and First President of the United States.

The copy of the newspaper which is in an excellent state of preservation is possessed by Mr. Edward H. Tickell, Church Street, Belleville, and was among papers which had been collected by his father, the late George S. Tickell, one-time mayor of Belleville. The issue is in solemn black borders.

The Ulster Co. Gazette records the inscription on the casket — "General George Washington, departed this life on the fourteenth of December 1799, aet 68".

How much the first President impressed the writers and people of his day, nearly one hundred and forty-one years ago, is indicated in this paragraph taken from the same issue:

"The sun was now setting. Alas! the sun of glory was set forever. No! the name of Washington—the American President and General—will triumph over death! The unclouded brightness of his glory will illuminate the future ages".

The passage of nearly a century and a half finds the Father of His Country occupying one of the most unique places in history.

In the closing weeks of the eighteenth century and at the beginning of the nineteenth the people of New York State and of other parts of the United States were reading of the aggressor and dictator Napoleon who was at that time agitating Europe. In the same issue which bridges the time over from the eighteenth to the nineteenth century readers were told in a dispatch under date of October 14th., 1799, "Bonaparte and Berthier are in France". On the same page there is a heading which sounds so much like headings which could have been written in the early days of May 1940. It is "Evacuation of Holland". At that time in 1799 Napoleon, the little Corsican Corporal was the foe of Europe as Hitler is today and planned to dictate world policies. How he failed is told in the history of later years.

James Sprackett's Car is Recovered At Unionville

Bancroft, Nov. 22 (Special)—Wrecked and abandoned, a Dodge sedan, the property of James Sprackett, member of the County Council for Tudor and Herschel Townships, which was stolen from Mr. Sprackett's home on the night of Nov. 19th last, was recovered at Unionville, north of Toronto, early Friday morning. Provincial Constable Palmateer reported here today.

The heater of the vehicle and other accessories were stolen before the car was abandoned, however. The vehicle, which was damaged as the result of being driven over large rocks and boulders, was towed to a Markham garage, Provincial Police reported.

As a sequel to the stealing of Mr. Sprackett's car, Provincial Constable Palmateer located a 1940 Pontiac sedan, which was found abandoned near here last Wednesday. The authorities now are of the opinion that the car thieves were forced to steal Mr. Sprackett's car after abandoning the Pontiac. Residents near here offered the occupants of the abandoned Pontiac assistance at the time of their trouble, but it was declined.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. GOMER WEST (Madoc Township)

Madoc, (Special)—The funeral of the late Mrs. Gomer West took place from the residence of her son, Mr. Bert West, Madoc Township on Wednesday afternoon to St. John's Anglican church, Madoc. The rector Rev. Mr. Pepper had charge of the service assisted by Rev. W. A. Hunter, pastor of St. Peter's Presbyterian church.

The deceased lady was eighty-three years old and had resided most of her life in Madoc Township. She is survived by three sons, Maxwell who lives in Peace River district; Lemuel in active service with Canadian Troops; Bert on the homestead Madoc Township and one daughter (Lena), Mrs. Clarence Embury of Melrose. One sister, Mrs. Blair of Detroit, Mich., also survives. The bearers were Messrs. Ben Miller, Ford Tumelty, Jack McCoy, Russel Lewis, John Fenn, William Tennyson. Interment was at Lakeview Cemetery.

LATE MRS. DENNIS CORRIGAN (Frankford)

The funeral of Mrs. Dennis Corrigan took place Thursday morning from the family residence in Frankford to St. Alphonsus Church at Wooler, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father H. A. Black. During the service a brief address was made by a cousin of the deceased, the Rev. Father J. P. Galvin of Grafton.

Interment was made in the family plot in Frankford cemetery. The committal service was conducted by the Rev. Father S. LeSage, assisted by the Rev. Father H. A. Black and the Rev. Father J. P. Galvin.

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Collins, J. J. Regan, Morley Reid, James Bates, Thomas Murphy and C. R. Turley.

There were a great many spiritual offerings.

V.O.N. Campaign Exceeds Objective

At the regular meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses' Committee the chief business of the evening was the discussion of the recent campaign for funds, the campaign chairman, Mr. T. Franklin, announcing that the objective had been exceeded. He expressed appreciation to the citizens for the generosity of their response which showed the interest taken in the maintenance of the Order in Belleville. All those who assisted in canvassing, particularly the captains were sincerely thanked for their part in the successful project.

Mr. P. C. McGuire, president, thanked Mr. Franklin on behalf of the Committee for his part in the campaign which was an important factor in its success.

In the business of the meeting, Miss Bessie Soutar, nurse in charge, presented her report of the activities of the previous month.

Police Blotter

Riding his bicycle into the side of a motor car on West Moira Street, early last evening, William Barlow, 237 West Moira St., sustained shoulder injuries. The motor car was driven by James Walker, 38 Henry Street., who immediately stopped and picked the injured cyclist up and drove him to the surgery of Dr. R. Anderson, where it was disclosed the lad had sustained a painful shoulder injury.

Mr. Walker later reported the accident to the police, stating he had driven his automobile out of Murney Street and was proceeding east on Moira Street when the cyclist ran into his vehicle.

Only Two Pigeons Recovered

Only two pure bred Homer pigeons of a dozen stolen from the pens of Jan Genya, janitor at Albert College, were recovered following several days of investigation looking into the wholesale theft of Mr. Genya's blooded birds. Two teen-aged boys were apprehended by Detective Fred Isard and they admitted stealing the birds and selling them. Today the lads were arraigned in city Juvenile Court and given a stern lecture by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. They were given into the custody of their parents, after restitution had been promised by them.

Twenty-four hours after he was released from the custody of the county jail, John Bowman, transient, was back in the clutches of the law yesterday on a charge of intoxication. Bowman and nine transients shared the cell block at the police station Thursday night.

POLICE COURT

"If you are going to give me three months, you'd better make it six and I'll get the winter over then," remarked John Bowman, 36-year-old transient, who appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today charged with a third offence of intoxication.

"This man just got out of jail from doing a five month stretch", revealed Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson while Chief Kidd read the third offence charge.

After having given Bowman three months, the minimum under the L.C.A. for such an offence, His Worship graciously accommodated Bowman and made it "six months" at the accused man's own request.

Transients Separated

John Gehan and William Magee, two panhandling transients, admitted charges of vagrancy. "These men beg money and buy wine to get drunk. They are a public nuisance", declared Chief Kidd. Gehan pleaded he was en route to Ottawa to join the Veterans' Guard. His Worship ordered Gehan out of town and kept Magee in the court for some time before releasing him. "I think it better you two should be separated", commented His Worship.

Given a Month

George Wright, who claims he resided in Belleville many years ago, appeared charged with failing to register, contrary to the National Registration Regulations of the Dominion of Canada. Wright admitted the charge and was sentenced to one month in the common jail, during which time he will be duly registered.

William Cameron, former employee at the Belleville General Hospital, appeared for sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of theft from that institution in a previous court.

Gordon Friesen, hospital administrator, stated in court today that Cameron was a good conscientious employee, but that owing to continued pilfering at the institution, an example had to be made. R. D. Arnott K.C., who appeared for Cameron, asked Mr. Friesen what salary the accused was paid. "We were paying him $63 per month and all of his meals", replied the witness. When reference was made relative to an example being made, His Worship, Magistrate Butler, immediately enlarged the matter for another week, permitting Cameron bail.

A juvenile case heard in camera concluded the morning's proceedings.

HOLLAND REPORTS TOBACCO FAMINE

Paper Also Says Nazi-Dictated Meat Rationing is Hopelessly Inadequate

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—Holland has a tobacco famine, the Nazi-dictated meat rationing is hopelessly inadequate and the conquerors even have issued an edict on the amount of laundry housewives can send out, the Free Dutch newspaper, published here, reports.

An order has just been made that no household in the Netherlands can send more than 18 pounds of washing to a laundry in one week, the paper said. To the Dutch housewife, with her scrupulous regard for cleanliness, this seems the most unpopular Nazi edict.

A Rotterdam correspondent wrote that from a few days' experience of meat rationing, women know the Nazi weekly ration of 14 ounces of meat a person and a half ration for children means little. The weight includes bones and the butchers have cuts with plenty of bones allocated to them.

(Except for bacon, British meat rationing is by value. Each person is permitted two shillings, twopence worth of meat weekly. Pork, liver and kidney are not rationed. The bacon ration is two ounces a week.)

Tobacco has been rationed in Holland and the price increased by nearly 200 per cent in a country famous in pre-war days for its cigars, cigarettes and cheroots. It is known, the paper said, that 29,000 bales of Sumatra tobacco have been sent to Germany.

Fish also is scarce. The Nazis suspect what remains of the once-great fishing fleet, and fishermen have been ordered to return to port before dark. They must register time of departure and return.

Gasoline is at a premium. For the seven days ending Oct. 19th, forty people were heavily fined in Amsterdam alone for using gasoline for non-essential journeys. Steel, wood and iron are so scarce that essential building work in bomb-devastated Rotterdam has been delayed. Concrete is being used as a makeshift and concrete window frames have been seen.

Pro-British Sentiment Is Rising Rapidly In Conquered France

New York, Nov. 22. — (CP) — Henry Daymont, 19-year-old son of the United States vice-consul in Paris, arrived here Thursday aboard the American Export liner Excalibur and said almost all Frenchmen are hoping for a British victory against Germany.

His remarks were supported by a group of French citizens who made the trans-Atlantic crossing from Lisbon on the liner. All agreed pro-British sentiment is rising rapidly in conquered France and that many Frenchmen of military age are attempting to escape from the country to join the British forces or those of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free Frenchmen.

Dolores Vanetti, who came here to marry a New Yorker she met in Paris, said that the night before she left the German-occupied French capital "my flat was filled with young Frenchmen whom I didn't know, who asked me to get in touch with British people in Lisbon and try to arrange for them to get out to fight for Britain".

One of a party of four young Frenchmen, who declined to permit use of their names in fear of German reprisals, said French sentiment is switching to Britain "thanks to the Germans, who have taken advantage of France in violation of the Armistice terms". They said Frenchmen are doing everything they can to sabotage German activities and production.

The men declared it is virtually impossible for Frenchmen of military age to leave France, even the unoccupied territory, because of German regulations. "Spain is just about as much under German domination as occupied France, and Spanish officials are jailing every Frenchman under 40 years of age to prevent his fighting against Germany", said one man.

FRENCH FLEET

The Strasbourg, 26,500 tons, was hit by air bombs while fleeing to France from the battle of Oran and was reported hit also by a torpedo. But she may have since been made seaworthy again. The Germans claimed last August 24 that the Strasbourg, and the Commandant Teste, France's only seaplane carrier, 10,000 tons, were tied up at Toulon, France.

Wonder at Description

Observers wondered at the description of the battleship at Gibraltar as of the Paris type; the only two others of this type, the Courbet and the Lorraine, 22,189 tons, as well as the Paris, were either seized in British ports at the time of the French armistice or confined by British authorities to Alexandria harbor.

Just before the Dakar incident, last September, when Gen. Charles De Gaulle and his Free Frenchmen unsuccessfully attacked the Vichy-controlled key port in West Africa, six French warships, three cruisers and three destroyers, passed Gibraltar westbound unmolsted by British batteries. It was subsequently admitted in London that they had been allowed to pass in error.

The destroyers were listed as L'Auracieux, Le Malin and Le Fantasque, the Cruisers as La Gloire, Le Montcalm and Le Georges Leygues.

De Gaulle Aboard Sloop

At Dakar Gen. De Gaulle arrived aboard the Savorgnan de Brazza, a French sloop of 1,969 tons, accompanied by the Sloop Commandante Domine, 640 tons. Both these ships were mentioned early this month as docking at Libreville, in Gabon, French equatorial Africa, when that Port fell to Gen. De Gaulle.

A third sloop, the Commandant Duboc, 630 tons, which also figured in the Dakar action, brought Gen. de Gaulle to Duala, the Cameroons last October, where he established his first headquarters on French Colonial soil.

The French Aircraft Carrier Bearn, 22,146 tons and the cruiser Jeanne D'Arc, 6,496 tons, have been at Martinique since the Franco- German armistice.

FINANCE MINISTER

Taxation also would continue to be one of the major sources of revenue for war purposes. In this connection the Minister said:-

Must Be Taxed

"Make no mistake about this. If we are really honest in demanding a war effort to the utmost we all must expect to be taxed until it hurts. Taxes that can comfortably be paid are not enough."

Mr. Ilsley was first speaker in the debate yesterday and was the only cabinet spokesman. He was given an attentive hearing and was interrupted only briefly when John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy group challenged some of his statements on inflation and the issuance of debt free money.

The Minister told the House plainly that Canadians must be ready to make great sacrifices and great personal economies so more money could do into War Savings and loans, and reduce their consumption of luxuries so labor and resources might be diverted more fully to war purposes.

Fail to Inform is Claim

Howard Green, (Con. Vancouver South) contended the government had failed to keep the people fully advised of their wartime responsibilities and of the progress of the war effort. He claimed this "constitutes a great danger to Canada."

Canadian people likely would fail to realize the seriousness of the situation if they were not told all the facts. "Canadian people can take bad news," Mr. Green said.

He urged a definite program of voluntary enlistments for overseas service and said there was no reason why the government could not say at once what men would be required for the Canadian Active Service Force for the next year. This would give potential volunteers an opportunity to make their plans.

Ways Will be Found, Belief

L. P. Picard, (Lib. Bellechasse), said reliance must be placed on the fact that "the sentiment of the majority of France will prevail" on the government at Vichy and that ways will be found to prevent a clash with Britain.

"But even should things come to the worst," he said, "no one need fear anything about the sentiments of French Canadians. They will be even more than ever on the side of democracy and its valiant defender, Britain."

He said French Canadians admitted the necessity for the "incident at Oran" when British naval units shelled the French fleet based there and they would still say "go ahead and do it again" if it had to be done again.

A demand that farm producers be given the same assurance of production costs plus a fair profit that the government gave manufacturers of war essentials was made by A. M. Nicholson (CCF Mackenzie). He condemned the recently-announced bacon agreement with Great Britain as "bad medicine" for the Canadian producers.

Should Be on Guard

Arthur G. Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) renewed the warning he voiced in the House last Spring, that Canada should be on guard against "the enemy from within".

He urged the government to reinforce the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and to increase the pay of men in the force so they might receive compensation in keeping with the important work they perform.

Victor Quelch (N.D. Acadia) and Harry J. Leader (Lib. Portage La Prairie) both advocated payment by the government of $1 a bushel to wheat producers in Western Canada.

Mr. Quelch presented a detailed plan for handling the wheat crop in co-operation with other chief world producers. Mr. Leader would have the dollar a bushel paid only up to deliveries of 1,500 bushels so there would be no encouragement for over-production. This would put enough cash in circulation to ensure even small producers some ready money.

Harry Jackson (Con. Toronto-Rosedale) complained that each "recital" by the government was climaxed by a statement that production was ahead of schedule but members were not told what the schedule was. "In a struggle for life and freedom we can never be ahead of schedule," he said.

Subject of Comment

Conservative House Leader Hanson's remark earlier in the session that aid in the defence of Britain should be Canada's first objective was the subject of harsh comment from Wilfrid Lacroix (Lib. Quebec-Montmorency).

"No one has worked harder than he (Mr. Hanson) since the outbreak of war to disrupt national unity", Mr. Lacroix declared.

"If the present session is to have no other result than to allow our conscriptionists and Imperialists to continue their work of disintegration, it cannot prorogue too soon", he added.

In his review of his department's policies, Mr. Ilsley said taxation, as far as practical, was a better method of financing than borrowing, "because it is fairer and final". "But there are practical limits beyond which taxation cannot be carried", he said.

Must Do Some Borrowing

"The Government must also do some borrowing which should be, as far as possible, out of voluntary public savings."

The Minister recalled that he had said in September last year that "some expansion of credit is often possible without inflation" in the early stages of a war, but should not be continued when employment and production approach their limits.

"I have not had occasion to change my basic views on this subject but I believe that the tax program of the Government has been and will continue to be such that some additional financing of a short-term character, accompanied by some increase in total bank deposits, will not, under the circumstances, have inflationary results, and will, I believe, avoid undue stringency in the monetary field at a time when the working capital requirements of industry are increasing because of expanding business activity due to war orders."

Spending Billion a Year

Canada was now spending on the war at the rate of about $1,000,000,000 a year, but non-war expenditures for the current fiscal year were down by about $29,000,000 from the same period last year, and larger reductions would be made in the second half.

Revenue so far this fiscal year had increased by $145,000,000 over the same period a year ago, in spite of the fact that income and excess profits taxes applied last June would not be reflected in the revenues until next spring.

In this connection the Minister advised income tax payers to take advantage of the opportunity to start paying their income tax before next April when it falls due.

"I trust that as many tax-payers as possible will take advantage of this plan and begin to save now for their income tax payments. Otherwise there may be a rude awakening when the magnitude of the tax payable becomes recognized," he said.

Repatriation Continues

Repatriation of Canadian securities held in Great Britain to provide dollars with which the United Kingdom may buy war essentials in Canada was proceeding at a rate of about $200,000,000 a year, the Minister stated.

Referring to C.C.F. claims that war production should be "on a socialistic basis," Mr. Ilsley said that theory was "thoroughly disliked and disapproved by the overwhelming majority," and to attempt adopting it now would be to dislocate industry.

Industry was co-operating with the Government and "should this co-operation be not forthcoming the Government has ample power to take appropriate action and will not hesitate to use it."

American Liner Arrives With Record Low Quantity of Mail

New York, Nov. 22.—(CP)—The American Export Liner Excalibur arrived Thursday with a record low of 20 sacks of mail transported directly from Lisbon, Portugal.

There was no official explanation for this small consignment of mail, aside from a report that the Portuguese Government owes what was described as "a great bill" for mail shipments to the United States. Captain S. N. Groves of the Excalibur, would not comment on reports that the Liner had left 1,400 bags of mail from 15 foreign countries on the Lisbon dock.

Only 164 bags of mail were taken aboard the ship at Lisbon. Of this, 144 bags were seized by the British authorities at Bermuda, where an additional consignment had been seized recently from American ships, and after being censored, was trans-shipped here on the Excalibur.

John E. Slater, vice-president of The American Export Line, said last night: "There has been a serious question concerning the carrying of mail from Portugal, but I cannot discuss it until I learn the details, particularly about the Excalibur, tomorrow".

WHY HIS HEADACHES WERE RELIEVED
Wife Put Kruschen In His Coffee

He could not understand why the headaches he had been subject to were suddenly relieved. His wife told him, and he at once sat down and wrote the following letter:—

"I am 62 years of age, and ever since I was a boy of ten years, I was subject to very bad headaches. But two years ago the headaches eased up—for what reason I did not know. I was surprised when one day my wife told me I had been using Kruschen Salts in my coffee for over two years. I am still using them, as I know of nothing finer."—J. T.

Headaches can often be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons — prevent them forming again—and you remove the cause of many aches and pains. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings pleasant relief. Kruschen helps Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

THEIR MAJESTIES' EXAMPLE TO THEIR PEOPLES

Their Majesties the King and Queen have gone into the bombed areas of London and other parts to praise those of the armed forces, the civil defence and the people generally for their great service in the time of trial. The presence of the Sovereigns has strengthened the hearts of the people in their ordeals to a wonderful degree and again on Thursday the world had the example of this noble couple carrying out the ancient custom of attending the opening of a new session of Parliament in historic Westminster after a drive through the streets shattered in places by the effects of enemy bombs in the past two or three months In the presence of Parliament the King read the Speech from the Throne which expressed his confidence that victory was assured. He spoke of "my peoples and my Allies" as "united in their resolve to continue the fight against the aggressor nations until freedom is made secure." The heart of the Monarch went out to members of the armed forces, the defence force and he spoke with feeling of the tenacity and industry of his peoples, enduring the perils as well as the hardships of war. His Majesty praised the navy and the merchant marine and fishing fleets which have added new lustre to the traditions of the sea. The resolution of the people under trial, the kindly relations between Britain and the United States, the flow of material aid from the U. S. to Britain, the care for the health and well-being of the people and the fact that the ideals of ordered freedom, of justice and security are widely spread, were noted by His Majesty.

Their beloved King and Queen are the ideal sovereigns of a free people who are the subjects of the royal care and solicitude.

The Prime Minister's words should be quoted on this occasion:

> This time-honored ceremonial and procedure in which the Crown and the parliament played parts today carry with them to anxious minds the balm of confidence and certainty.

MR. CHURCHILL'S TRIBUTE TO BRITISH QUALITIES

> "It is under adversity that British qualities shine brightest. It is under these extraordinary tests that the character of our slowly wrought institutions, reveals its latent, invincible strength."

These are the words of courage the British Prime Minister spoke on Thursday at the opening of Parliament. He looks with confidence to victory and "deliverance of mankind" from the aggressor.

Mr. Churchill paid one of the finest tributes to the resolution of the British people and their resistance to the enemy,

> "Up to the present this war has been waged between fully armed Germany and half armed or quarter armed British Empire. We have not done so badly."

Mr. Churchill praised the heroic Greeks in their resistance to Italian aggression which he termed no "other than pure and unmitigated brigandage." Of the outlook in the Mediterranean, of the defence of Egypt and the Suez Canal he spoke hopefully as he remarked that,

> "At the present time we have confidence that we shall be able to give a good account of ourselves when the invading forces fall upon us."

Then he turns to the future and this is the picture he sees,

> "I look forward with confidence and hope to the time when we ourselves shall be as well armed as our antagonists and, beyond that, to the time when the arsenals, training grounds and science of the British Empire shall give us that material superiority which, added to loyalty and constant hearts, will bring victory and deliverance to all mankind."

British institutions were referred to by the Prime Minister in these words,

> "When our Beloved Sovereign and Queen come from their battered palace to this building which is not without evidence of the strokes of war, when the Sovereign comes to open Parliament in person and calls his faithful Commons to discharge their duties, we touch at every step, in every measure, in every formality, in every resolution we pass, we touch customs and traditions which go back far beyond the parliamentary conflicts of the 17th century.

GIFT OF FIGHTER PLANE MADE BY 1ST DIVISION

Canadians of the First Division overseas raised enough money to buy a fighter plane for the Royal Air Force out of regard for the valor and achievement of the men of the R.A.F. The presentation was made on Thursday of the money which had been raised by donations of the troops for the first gift of the kind.

Today the individual soldier of the British and Empire armies counts a great deal because he comes of a freedom-loving people even in a world threatened by totalitarianism. In ancient days soldiers were often mercenaries as in ancient Rome and in other periods of the world's history. But in these days the citizen soldier of Britain and her Dominions is a citizen of a great free race and has a real stake in the war which Britain has had to fight to preserve civilization and freedom and for the sake of the deliverance of the people caught under the heel of Hitler and his crew. The Canadian soldier, sailor and airman; like those who serve in the armies of the Motherland and of the other Dominions, have a personal and family interest in the Empire's welfare. Because of the nobility of their Empire's ideals they love their country and empire and admire the heroic deeds of the men of the various services.

The men who represent Canada appreciate what the Royal Air Force has achieved for they have seen the R.A.F. airmen in action. The gift is a glowing tribute from the gallant Canadians to the gallant members of the Air Force. It is a proof of the ties of Empire and of the debt which the soldier, sailor and airman feel towards the Empire and the Dominion.

In the statement by Major-General Pearkes "a great many men gave a day's pay or more," a great deal is said. The members of the First Division have served and are serving with the army and also with their material resources.

Canadians at home are proud of the generosity and spirit of their warrior-citizens, "Somewhere-in-England."

Martinique Incident

(Washington Evening Star)

Press dispatches from the West Indies and official statements in Washington combine to indicate that the vexatious problem concerning Martinique is practically solved. The problem arose out of France's collapse before the German onslaught last June, when a number of French warships took refuge at Martinique, one laden with American-made airplanes and another with refugee gold from the Bank of France. The issue threatened to become acute when the local government announced its adhesion to the Vichy regime in France, which was both anti-British and subservient to Berlin. Taking no chances, Britain established a naval blockade of the island. The possibility of an armed clash disturbed our own Government determined as it is to keep the war out of the Western Hemisphere. Meanwhile, the blockaded island, which grows little beyond sugar and tropical fruits, was in danger of starvation.

Behind the scenes, elaborate three-cornered negotiations have evidently been going on between the American, British and Vichy governments. That Washington and London saw eye to eye in the matter became obvious when American warships and seaplanes took up patrol duty off Martinique, replacing the British blockading squadron, which disappeared from the scene, presumably for more pressing duties elsewhere. Our warcraft based their activities on the nearby British island of St. Lucia, where we have acquired a naval station under the terms of the recent Anglo-American agreement.

Shortly after this, Rear Admiral Greenslade, senior member of the American board surveying sites for naval bases on British territories in the Western Hemisphere, went to Martinique, where he conferred directly with the French colonial authorities. Those face-to-face negotiations were obviously successful. The Martinique government announces that it had released "frozen" French funds here sufficient to allow Martinique to purchase from us the food, gasoline and medical supplies which the island so desperately needs. The destitute populace of Martinique is jubilant, while some local optimists even dream of a prospective boom through closer economic relations with the United States and encouragement of the American tourist trade.

Some minor points remain unsettled, notably the ultimate disposition of those hundreds or more American-built airplanes. But the basic issue seems to be definitely decided. However loyal the local officials may be to Vichy, they will not venture to make trouble for either the British or ourselves. American diplomacy is certainly to be congratulated on having successfully handled this delicate issue without resort even to threatening language.

FIRE AT HOLLAND HOUSE.

Manchester Guardian.

Release of the news that Holland House has been bombed allows me to include a note from a correspondent who saw the fire.

The last of London's country houses (he writes), where Charles James Fox lived and Addison died, was still smouldering as I watched the firemen completing their task. The first floor of the centre, and oldest, part of the house had crashed in, but the Flemish gables and the stone fleur de lys of the balustrade and the outside walls of the house itself were intact. Below the south terrace a fire pump was at work from the lily pond.

Lord Ilchester had sent some of his artistic and historic treasures to the country, but in the swannery ballroom two large canvases by Sargent and the group of swans by Bouverie Goddard which gave the room its name had escaped damage, as well as a painting of Seville by Hoppner.

The north lawn and east entrance were strewn with rescued objects — a carved bureau, tusks and hunting trophies, a Life Guard's sabre and cuirass, golf clubs and books, a cabinet of correspondence exchanged between Henry Fox, who became the first Lord Holland in 1763, and Lord Grey. Heraldic beasts wallowed in the ashes in the library, streams of water ran down the grand staircase. The invocation scratched on a window of the house in 1811 had been frustrated:

May neither fire destroy nor waste impair,
Nor time consume thee till the twentieth heir.

WRONG NAVAL POWER

The war has its paradoxes along with its mysteries and surprises. By all the laws of logic the havoc wrought in the Bay of Taranto by airplanes against battleships and cruisers should be a great British disaster. The reasoning is obvious. Great Britain is the greatest naval power now in the war. On control of the sea depends her fate. But the battle of Taranto has shown, apparently, that the airplane is the master of the warship. In other words, it should mean that Italy has the whiphand over Great Britain in the Mediterranean, and Hitler has the whiphand in the North Sea and the Atlantic.

The only difficulty with this chain or reasoning is that British airplanes wrecked Italian warships at Taranto, thereby insuring British control of the sea against Italian sea power. There is no logic in the matter. It is simply another case of England muddling through by standing prophecy on its head. — N. Y. Times.

Reindeer Herd Grows in North

Gratifying progress in the development of the Dominion government's reindeer industry in the northern Mackenzie District is reported by the Department of Mines and Resources. The reindeer herds now constitute a dependable source of livelihood for the natives of this area.

Under favorable climatic and pasturage conditions, and with reasonably efficient management and protection from predators, the reindeer multiply rapidly and the products of the industry meet the ordinary need of the native inhabitants of the country.

It is evident, however, that the advantages of reindeer husbandry will be limited to some extent by geographical and pasturage considerations. These animals appear to thrive best in the area along the Arctic coast north of the forest fringe. In the summer they seek the coast to escape insects pests, and feed on a variety of vegetation including grasses, sedges, and shrubs. In the winter they move inland, and live on a diet of reindeer moss. Reindeer are sometimes herded to high ground, instead of to the coast in the summer, but this has not been tried in Canada.

In view of the limitations on the extension of the reindeer industry, imposed by the necessity of finding suitable conditions, it is unlikely that the Indians of northern Canada, who live mainly in the interior, will benefit directly by the introduction of reindeer, except in so far as products of the industry such as hides may be made available to them. The same remarks apply to those Eskimos who live on some of the Arctic islands far from the mainland where there is not sufficient suitable vegetation to maintain reindeer herds.

These considerations reduce the area in which reindeer may be handled to the best advantage to the territory lying along the northern fringe of the mainland and the adjoining Arctic islands. This territory is inhabited principally by Eskimos, whose numbers are small in view of the large territory involved.

Most of the natives in the zone where reindeer may be successfully developed live at present by hunting and trapping and it is not the intention of the Administration to entirely change their mode of life. In those areas suited to reindeer the natives are being encouraged to engage in reindeer herding as a means of augmenting their present means of subsistence. The effect will be to relieve the drain on the wild life and conserve these natural resources.

The area of northern Canada which has been investigated from the point of view of reindeer pasturage extends from the Yukon-Alaska boundary to Coronation Gulf and Great Bear Lake; also part of the west side of Hudson Bay south of Chesterfield Inlet. Particular attention was paid to the area embracing the Mackenzie Delta and eastward to Anderson River and the area north of Great Bear Lake. The territory investigated from Alaska to Coronation Gulf and Great Bear Lake was estimated to be capable of supporting over half a million reindeer. This is far in excess of the needs of the residents.

The Dominion government reindeer industry is under the direction of the Northwest Territories Administration of the Department of Mines and Resources, assisted by an advisory committee composed of officers of various government departments. A field staff is maintained to carry out the necessary supervision of the herds and the training of young natives in reindeer husbandry.

The main government reindeer herd now comprising about 5,000 deer is maintained on a reserve of approximately 6,600 square miles located immediately east of the Mackenzie Delta. A smaller herd of about 1,500 head under native management is located in the adjoining area near Anderson River. There are no indications that herds of this size in these locations are likely to deplete the range. The vegetation on which the animals feed in the summer is renewed annually and in the case of the winter range the moss is conserved by a system of rotating the grazing areas. This is necessary because the reindeer moss takes many years to recover if once overgrazed.

From present indications the reindeer industry in northern Canada can be extended to include many of the areas in which the Eskimos are located. In the areas where conditions are not suitable for reindeer herds it should be possible to supply some of the products of the industry such as hides so that all the Eskimos and even the Indians in areas further south may participate at least to some extent in the advantages to be derived.

There is, therefore, every reason to believe that the reindeer industry in Canada may have developed to sufficient proportions to satisfy the material needs of the native population in the north as a supplement to their ordinary means of livelihood.

Italians Begin To Learn About War

By Hanson W. Baldwin in the New York Times

In the past few days the Italians have commenced to comprehend the meaning of war.

When Premier Mussolini, to the well-planned cheers of the populace, took the Italian nation into the conflict during the dying days of the French Third Republic, it was an occasion for oratory and huzzahs. Today, five months later, the Mediterranean, which Italy calls "Mare Nostrum", is cruised almost at will be British vessels; the Italian Navy has suffered severe losses; Italian air power has been powerless to prevent the British blockade, and the sea power of Britain still prisons Roman hopes.

In a hundred hamlets from the Po to the shores of the Ionian Sea mothers mourn for sons who have died in the Grecian hills in an abortive attempt to frighten another little people into submission.

Italy's part in the war to date, particularly her naval participation, has indeed been an inglorious one. She had lost, up until the most recent British attacks, one light cruiser—the Bartolomeo Colleoni— six or seven destroyers and torpedo boats and from five to twenty-two submarines.

But even more astounding in one sense than this British attack on Taranto was its companion piece, the attack on the Italian convoy taking supplies to Albania. This apparently took place squarely in the narrow waters of the Strait of Otranto. It was delivered by surface ships.

The measure of its success is not certain, but apparently several cargo ships were sunk and one or more Italian destroyers damaged. this indeed, is carrying the war to Italian shores.

The British seamen in the Mediterranean, under the able leadership of Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham, seem to have drunk at the fountain of Nelsonian tradition. They have translated into modern times that old practice of "singeing the King of Spain's beard," and have shown what dash and spirit, in the air and on the sea, can accomplish.

The Otranto raid is in a sense more important than the Taranto air attack, for in the former surface ships of the British fleet ventured into Italy's most restricted waters, daring the Italian air force and the Italian fleet to do its worst.

The net results of these attacks must mean at least temporally and at a time when Britain most needed such a success, the weakening of the Italian fleet, which had already shown by past operations that it dared not risk its ships in battle against the British.

Why Middle Aged Individuals Now Live Longer

Whenever you hear about how much longer men and women live today than just twenty-five years ago, you know that the main reason is that there are not so many children die at birth or during their first year now. Also that infectious diseases of children can be prevented.

What many of us fail to remember is that the middle-aged man and woman of today has a longer expectation of life than ever before despite the fact that he may not be very robust.

Why has the middle-aged individual a longer life expectancy despite the fact that he is not more robust than were those of middle age, twenty-five years ago?

The reason is that men and women with heart disease, diabetes, pernicious anaemia, high blood pressure or other "dangerous" conditions have been told by their physicians and many have learned for themselves, how to live "safely."

Thus I spoke a few weeks ago of meeting a middle-aged friend walking much slower than was his custom. On questioning, he admitted that his physician had advised him that if he wanted to live for a number of years, he could do so by walking more slowly, resting more, giving up some of his teaching work and learning to relax more.

We have friends and acquaintances who follow a low starch diet or take insulin injections daily and live a normal life. Formerly these cases died in a short time with diabetes. They have learned also now to allow themselves to put on excess fat.

Similarly with that formerly fatal disease pernicious anaemia. Many a bright and useful man and woman formerly passed away in a few months or a year following some shock or infection. Today, these men and women eat about a quarter pound of liver daily or take liver extract and continue to live.

Less than twenty years ago, operation for ulcer of the stomach or small intestine (peptic ulcer) was common. Today the majority of ulcer patients have learned how to live safely and free from ulcer symptoms by following a diet, avoiding emotional disturbances and removing or preventing infection of teeth, tonsils, gall bladder and intestine.

In other words, the heart patient lives a "heart" life, the diabetic a "diabetic" life, and the ulcer patient an "ulcer" life.

By living their kind of life, they continue to live.

Stewart Says—

Uncle Sam May Soon Take Over French Martinique

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Chas. P. Stewart.

Washington—As I've had occasion to remark before, the navy department isn't telling what's the real purpose of the U. S. sea forces' manifest activity in the Carribbean. It's a matter of guesswork. However, the guessing in Washington has simmered down to a pretty confident guess that Uncle Sam is about to take charge of the French Island of Martinique and maybe of the island of Guadeloupe also. Some guesses are that it will be done by December at the latest. If so, the proceeding will not be exclusively the United States'. It will be Pan-American. But the U.S. will do the actual occupying.

The idea isn't to deprive France of its West Indian possessions permanently, but only to police them while the war lasts, and, even after that, to prevent their transfer by the French to German management in effect, though perhaps not nominal.

Guessing again, the Washington administration is said to have information that German aviators are being quite numerously smuggled onto the two islands, particularly Martinique, from the Mexican east coast, from Central America and from the northern South American mainland. The islands, to be sure are blockaded by the British now that France is under the Nazi thumb. Still, the patrol can't be maintained strictly enough to guard against landings, a few men at a time, if they have the nerve to ferry themselves over in small craft and put into out-of-the-way places on the insular fringes.

It isn't a method by which anything like an army can gain a foothold on either Martinque or Guadeloupe.

German Pilot?

What's said to worry the U. S. navy department is the report that the supposedly incoming Germans are skilled airmen. Now, at Fort-de-France, Martinique, are 100-odd American-made airplanes, which the Reynaud government bought in the United States before the French capitulated to Herr Hitler. Assembling them at Fort-de-France, the Reynaud outfit's plan was to get them across the Atlantic on the plane-carrier Bearn, to co-operate with the British. But before the Bearn could make its get-away from Martinique, the Reynaud government had folded up and the Petain government, subservient to Berlin, had succeeded it at Vichy. The British thereupon corked up the Fort-de-France harbor, the Bearn can't leave and the planes are stranded. Even if they could fly across the ocean, there's been nobody to man them.

Naturally, the Axis wants them and the assumption is that the Petain government, willy-nilly, is acquiescent.

And it's Washington's theory, if its guessing is good, that the Germans are trying to get enough of their own fliers onto Martinique to do the flying. It also is suggested that they may not all fly to Europe —that some of them may take exploratory scoots over the Panama canal, possibly with a supply of bombs to spill on that short cut for the American fleet out of the Pacific into the Atlantic.

The planes unquestionably are France's. The Reynaud government paid for them and the Petain government inherited them from the Reynaud government.

Nevertheless, it's understandable that Washington, not to mention Britain, greatly prefers to keep them stalled on Martinique. Accounts are that they're deteriorating rapidly, with no satisfactory accommodations to shelter or care for them, and that soon they'll be unflyable. "Fine! Let 'em go on deteriorating" is said to be the U. S. department's attitude.

Natives Near Starvation

The populations of Martinique and Guadeloupe are understood to be dead willing to have Pan-America take over control of their destinies. Blockaded as they are, they are near starvation. Sugar and rum are their principal products, but they can't live exclusively upon sugar and rum; they want foreign markets for 'em, in order to be able to buy a bit of other stuff. And, bottled up as they are, they can't get any exports out or imports in. The story is that their governor-general himself is disposed to invite Pan-American occupation.

Hard-boiled Admiral Robert, a Petainist, and his government's naval commander in the blockaded harbor of Fort-de-France, is balky, though. He may yet have to have a firecracker exploded under him.

A portable electric water heater of only two gallons capacity has been developed for use where small quantities of water are needed and current is available.

About 22 per cent of the raw wool used in the world is produced in Latin America, Argentina alone accounting for about 70 per cent of the Latin American exports.

Cheesemakers of Stirling District Hold Social Night

Instructor Reveals 100 Per Cent Increase in Makers Scoring 93 Points or Over

PRIZES AWARDED

Stirling, Nov. 22—Stirling community service building was well filled on Wednesday evening as the Stirling district Cheesemakers' Association entertained well over two hundred guests at their annual social evening and dance. Figures set forth by cheese instructor George Pollard revealed a hundred per cent increase over last year in the number of makers within the group with an average score of 93 points or over. In 1939 only seven makers of the group attained this mark and this year 14 makers reached or exceeded it. A record for the district was scored by three makers with 95 scoring cheese and twenty-two scored 94 points. The average score for the season for the group was 93.18. 13,630 boxes scored 94 and 95; 19,445 scored 93 points; 3,507 scored 92 points. The number of undergrade cheese produced for the season was 853 as compared to 1,229 last season. This figures recording a total output of 37,435 for the year shows an increase of 1,156 in all.

Fine Programme

A reception committee received the visitors and friends upon their arrival and President R. J. Dulmage presided over the early part of the evening's programme. Mr. W. C. West, Reeve of Stirling, welcomed those present on behalf of the village council and paid tribute to the excellent work shown by the makers throughout past years in the district's most important basic industry.

Other speakers of the evening included Mr. Burt Bedford, Reeve of Sidney Township; Owen, McAvoy, Cheese and Dairy Instructor of Madoc.

Excellent musical contributions were made to the evening's entertainment by Miss Dorothy West singing and playing the guitar. Selections by the Melody Makers Orchestra and vocal trios by Miss L. G. Poynter, William Jones and Art Duncan and comedy was added in some degree by readings and stories by Art Duncan at various points in the programme. Later in the evening Mr. George Pollard, Instructor of the District, conducted the presentation of awards in which the competition was exceedingly close. The late hours were spent in dancing to splendid music provided by the orchestra. Luncheon was served by the officers and members of the association shortly before midnight and the merry-making continued until 2 a.m.

Prize Winners for 1940

Listed below are the winners of the various awards presented, with each accompanying figure indicating the score attained. The T. Eaton prize to the maker having the highest average score for the season went to Thos. Hogle with a score of 93.95. The Robt. Simpson award for second highest score of the season went to Morris Rose, who gained a score of 93.79. The DeLaval prize for the maker in third position in scoring race went to John Hall with a score of 93.58. Fourth prize donated by Smith Hardware was awarded to Horace Palmer with an average score 93.52. Fifth prize went to Thos. Sarles with a score of 93.4. The special W. H. Bailey award to the cheesemaker with the highest score dealing with the donor went to Roblin J. Dulmage with a score of 93.30. The special prize to the maker using Frick refrigeration was also awarded to John Hall. The handsome silver cup, first prize, for the best kept factory, was won by Horace Palmer; the H. C. Martin special in the same competition went to Thos. Heath, West Huntingdon. The Munro Bros. special for the high scoring maker using Munro Bros. cheese boxes was won by Morris Rose of Central Factory.

Apart from the interest taken in the various competitions throughout the year by the makers themselves, this annual event is looked forward to with great interest by many of their friends as one of the leading social functions of the year. Climaxing their season's work they gather to enjoy themselves and entertain their friends. The Executive Committee and those in charge of the arrangements are to be congratulated on the manner in which the event was carried out.

Building of County Road To Gunnery School Held Up

Members of County Council Claim a "Freeze-Out" of Contractor Given Contract

Picton, Nov. 22—Building of the road leading from Picton to the Gunnery and Bombing School has been held up as a result of what members of County Council charge is an attempt to freeze out Harvey McFarland, Picton, to whom the contract had been let as the lowest tenderer.

A special meeting of the County Council was called at which the details were disclosed.

The town, being interested in having the road leading into the town from the school, improved so that men at the training school would come into the town, and with a desire to co-operate with the government, undertook to have the road taken over as a county road unit. An agreement had been reached with the Ontario Government whereby the county and province would equally share the cost.

Told of Development

From there on Reeve E. B. Purtelle told of developments to fellow members of County Council. His story was that the Federal government, through the Department of Transport, had offered a subsidy of $4,000 taking the view, that had not the town and province taken steps they themselves would have been forced to build a suitable road. Tenders had been called and the lowest was that of Harvey McFarland, for $9,389.50 while the second lowest was that of the King Paving Co. of Oakville for $12,107, or $2,717.15 higher. In session the Road Committee of the council had followed their usual practice of letting the contract to the lowest tenderer. Mr. McFarland was informed and when he arrived the next day to sign the contract, met with difficulties which caused the cancellation of the contract. Reeve Purtelle, who is chairman of the road committee, alleged that Mr. Foundes, representing the Department of Transport, and C. A. Poynton, district engineer, representing the Ontario Department of Highways, had brought pressure to bear on them to have the contract let to the King Paving Co. The Ontario representative further asked that McFarland produce a performance bond, or cash equal to the amount of the contract, and this McFarland was unable to do without a few days' notice. The representatives he said insisted on the contract being given the King Paving Co., but since a saving of over $2,700 was involved, the committee refused but rescinded McFarland's contract. They had then called a special session of County Council to pass on their action.

Council Endorsed Contract

Council endorsed their acceptance of the lowest tender and members condemned the government representatives' actions.

Warden J. H. Rutter stated that Foundes had got warm over the matter and said the subsidy would be withdrawn and used on another road from the training school.

Reeve H. S. Colliver said he had never heard of one hundred per cent deposit being asked from a contractor.

Deputy Reeve Ralph Warren said "I have never seen anything so plain as a freezeout," and felt if the Department of Transport built its own road it would cost from 20 to 30 thousand dollars.

The main objection to McFarland from the government's representatives was that they feared he would not be able to complete the mile of road on time, Reeve Purtelle stated. Several Reeves voiced faith in McFarland and pointed out he had been engaged for years in highway construction work.

Always Accepted Lowest Tender

Members of the Road Committee declared they had always accepted the lowest tenders.

Reeve Howard Weese, Ameliasburg stated he believed the road committee had done the only thing they could. He had been in touch with Ottawa and felt called upon to defend the government. He said the government representatives feared McFarland could not complete the job on time.

All members of council, except Weese, voiced faith in McFarland's ability, and backed up the Road Committee.

Meanwhile, the job hangs fire and a delay has been caused in what was to be a rush job.

Dance is Held

A dance was held at Demorestville hall Wednesday night by Prince Edward County Junior Farmers. Proceeds was for the Ontario Junior Farmers' Ambulance Fund and $90 was realized.

Woodrow Blakely has been chosen member for Prince Edward County of the Older Boys' Parliament in Ontario.

Several County Junior Farmers attended a reforestation and conservation at Orono Forestry station on Wednesday. They were occupanied by Fred Campbell, Assistant Agricultural Representative.

Wing Commander Reid paid an official visit to Picton Bombing and Gunnery School here Thursday. He was born here but left with his family as a child. His father was at one time manager of the old Standard Bank here and later became manager of the bank in Canada.

Reserved Judgment

Magistrate Garvin reserved judgment until next Wednesday in local police court, on Nov. 20th, when Pierce Jones, well-known Mason and contractor of Picton, appeared charged with assault causing actual bodily harm. The complainant was Roy Trumpour of West Lake Road, 17-year-old youth who had been employed by Jones. W. Lane represented the Crown, while F. L. Ward, K.C., appeared for Pierce Jones.

In the witness box, Trumpour told of an argument he had had with Jones two weeks previous to Nov. 2nd. He had left Jones and gone to work at the Airport. At six o'clock on Nov. 2nd he went to the Jones home to collect one day's pay $2.25, due him. Jones handed him a cheque for $1.90 alleging he had quit work at 4.30 in the afternoon on the day of the quarrel. Witness admitted calling Jones uncomplimentary names, referring to his nationality as a "Welshman". Witness alleged Jones then hit him with his hand and pushed him off the verandah. Trumpour alleged they then wrestled. "Finally," he said, "Mrs. Jones held me by the hair, while I was on my back and Jones kicked me."

Brandished Toy Gun is Charge

Witness then alleged that Jones went in the house and returned brandishing a large wooden toy gun and hit him with the butt of this, full force on the forehead. Witness said he stumbled over some poles in the ditch near the house and fell. He felt blood on his forehead. He managed to get to a neighbor's house, where a doctor was called and he was taken to the hospital.

Dr. Cryan was next called. He testified that when he first saw Trumpour there was blood on his head and he was rather groggy. He took him to the hospital where he found a cut on his forehead, his left arm hurt above the elbow and the man semi-unconscious. "The cut," the Dr. said, "was 1 1-2 inches long and went to the bone. He must have been hit by something, or hit something that would seem like a blunt instrument. The cut required three stitches and the patient was in the hospital one week.

Heard Some of Quarrel

Leonard Van Horne told of delivering wood on the night of the alleged assault, to a neighbor of Jones. He had heard some of the quarrel and had called the doctor for Roy Trumpour.

County Constable James Lovelace told of arresting Pierce Jones and having a search warrant for the gun. "There's the gun right there," Jones told him, pointing to the large toy gun—exhibit 1 in court.

F. L. Ward next pointed out that Mr. Jones owned a farm in Hallowell Township, was a married man, and he thought a summons would have done just as well as arresting him on the night in question. Lane disagreed.

Never in Court Before

Pierce Jones was the next witness. He said he was 39 years of age, the father of five children and had never been in court before. He told of Trumpour coming to his home on the night in question and of giving him a cheque for $1.90, as Trumpour had quit work at 4.20 p.m. on the last day he had worked for him. The witness testified that Trumpour then became abusive and witness slapped him on the side of the face with his open hand. Jones swore that Trumpour began to wrestle until Jones got him on his back, when he began to kick Jones. Mrs. Jones then pulled Trumpour away by the hair. Jones testified that Trumpour then raised his hand to hit Mrs. Jones and later grabbed his dinner pail to hit Jones.

Admits Hitting Youth

At this point, Jones testified he raised the toy gun, which lay on a soft outside, and hit Trumpour on the shoulder with the butt. Jones then alleged that Trumpour stumbled across the road, fell over some poles and lay in the grass in the ditch. Jones testified that he told Trumpour then to come in the house and he'd fix him up. Trumpour replied, "You'll pay for this."

Mrs. Pierce Jones substantiated her husband's story and added that she saw Trumpour strike his forehead, when he fell over the poles. There was a light on the verandah.

In closing the hearing Magistrate Garvin said that undoubtedly Jones had some provocation up to the time of using the gun, and reserved judgment for one week.

Jones Was Lost Instead

Los Angeles, Nov. 22 —(AP)— H. Lee Jones of Santa Fe, N.M., and police agreed in principle, but were apart on details. Jones reported his wife and two children, who had preceded him from Santa Fe, lost after he was unable to find the home of the friend at which they were to meet. Mrs. Jones had the address with her. Unable to be of any immediate assistance, the officer filled out a lost person report—for Jones.

PERSONALS

Inspector T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society, was in Bowmanville on business yesterday.

Sergeant F. Szastkiw, R.C.A.F., has been transferred to Rivers, Man. Mrs. Szastkiw will remain in Belleville until the early Spring.

Mrs. A. H. Wheatley of London, Ont., is the guests of her sister, Mrs. John Meagher, Octavia St.

Miss Edith Wright, Reg.N., is spending a week in Brighton, a guest of Miss Margaret Lapp.

At the home of Mrs. W. N. Belair, Victoria Avenue, a group tea was given by the Catholic Women's League yesterday afternoon with gratifying success. The guests were received by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. E. J. Butler, president, Mrs. A. B. Collins, diocesan president, and the leaders of the group under whose auspices the tea was given, Mrs. Harold Barrett and Mrs. W. Frawley. Autumn flowers made the rooms very lovely, the tea table being particularly charming with its centrepiece of rust chrysanthemums and matching tapers in silver holders. Mrs. T. Flurey and Miss Kay Jenkins invited the guests to the tea room. Mrs. J. R. Mulligan, Mrs. J. Foltz, Mrs. S. B. Upper and Mrs. C. Meagher poured tea and the assistants were Mrs. A. Meagher, Mrs. P. Fortin, Mrs. L. M. Howe, Mrs. Jack Ross, Miss Nora Lynch, Mrs. Wm. Holland, and Mrs. F. Kelleher. Mrs. V. P. McIntyre was treasurer of the tea and the home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. J. Lynch and Mrs. E. Doyle. The handsome electric iron donated by Miss Stella Cournyea was won by Mr. Leo Barrett.

WEDDINGS

ROBERTSON—THOMPSON

Picton, (Special) — The United Church parsonage at Bloomfield, was the scene of an interesting wedding at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon, November 20, when Ruth Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Thompson, Bloomfield, became the bride of Douglas Cameron Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Robertson, Napanee. Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard officiated. The bride wore midnight blue chiffon velvet with black accessories and a corsage of Better Time roses. Miss Dora Gurnsey was bridesmaid, wearing grey wool with black accessories and a corsage of Columbia roses. Jack Thompson, Kingston, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, with fifty guests being present. Mrs. Thompson, mother of the bride, was in black wool crepe, and Mrs. Robertson, mother of the groom, in navy crepe. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a silver bracelet and to the best man a gold tie clip. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson left by motor for points west, the bride donning a grey wool dress, black coat with squirrel trim, matching hat and black accessories. They will reside at Bloomfield.

DAFOE—ZUFELT

On Saturday, November 9 a quiet wedding took place at Frankford United Church parsonage, Rev. J. P. Lane officiating of Miss Gladys Zufelt of Stockdale and Mr. Carmen Dafoe of Corbyville. Miss Mildred Edgar and Mr. Norman Curry were attendants. The bride and groom will take up residence in Frankford. Both have been members of the staff of the Bata Shoe Company and received many lovely gifts from their fellow workers.

Thomas Mitchell now playing at the McCarthy Theatre in "Angels Over Broadway." Charles Starrett in "West of Abilene," is the second feature.

'What a Life' Well Presented By B. C. I. Cast

Annual Play Shows Results of Fine Direction and Careful Casting

STORY OF RADIO HERO

Devotees of Henry Aldrich and those who met him for the first time on Thursday evening were delighted with the episode in the carreer of this radio hero, presented in the Collegiate Auditorium as the annual play of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. "What a Life" depicted Henry in one of his more hectic periods, and the exceptionally fine work of the cast gave the play a high standing among the former successful dramatic ventures at the Collegiate.

Proceeds of the play are to be contributed to the Red Cross work undertaken so extensively at the school, Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, principal, explained in his address of welcome to the large audience present. Mr. MacLaurin thanked all those in the cast and those who worked behind the scenes for their untiring efforts for the success of the play. "What a Life" will be repeated again this Friday evening.

The Collegiate Band under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper, contributed an excellent program which added much to the pleasure of the evening's entertainment.

Presenting Henry Aldrich

The directors were most fortunate in their choice of player for the title role. Ralph Atyeo displayed not only unusual talent as an actor but in some unaccountable way he was Henry Aldrich, the same voice with its rasp and tendency to crack under the strain of some pressing circumstance, his defensive attitude towards his elders in any situation, and his humour which to him is utter seriousness, Henry Aldrich definitely came to life to the satisfaction of his every radio admirer, as interpreted by Ralph Atyeo. Meribeth Stobie, as Barbara Pearson, Henry's deepest interest in life at the moment, and as this likeable coed overwhelmed by her duties as junior president, Miss Stobie was splendid. The part of Mr. Bradley, the principal, a difficult role, was taken with ease by Les Pickering, whose fine voice was a splendid asset in this part.

Mary Lou Lazier as Miss Shea, the school secretary, who crossed swords with every visitor to the office which she said was "the gateway to the West" and Ralph Morton as the assistant principal, Mr. Nelson, the most human member of the school staff, provided delightful comedy with their romance which struggled against the onslaughts of the student body and staff disputes. Peggy Doolittle portrayed in perfect style the director of music who was faced with an unending series of crisis, the worst of which was the disappearance of the brass section, while Bernice Saunders was the radio-famous Mrs. Aldrich to the life.

The other members of the staff of Central High School as introduced to the audience were presented in interesting characterizations by Kathleen Morrison as Miss Eggleston to whom Henry was a perpetual mystery, Charles Nicholson as Mr. Patterson, the domineering history master, Miriam Drew as Miss Pike and Betty Gilbert as Miss Johnson.

Henry's bitterest enemy, George Bejelow, was enacted by Lloyd Gladwell as the bully of the school and a particular thorn to Henry. His every appearance was a signal for a flare up and even in his most docile moods he roused Henry's worst nature. Philip Flagler was the student with the message who was continually being overlooked and pushed into the background until his great announcement became a piece of yesterday's news. The part of Gertie and Mary Deetor, students, were taken by Marie Duesberry and Jennie Lepore.

Providing the audience with some of its most hilarious moments was the work of Bill Doyle as Mr. Ferguson, the detective. He obtained the most from every comedy situation and his every appearance was a source of delight to the spectators. Mr. Vecchito, whose mission in life seemed to be to sit and wait, was presented with a distinct flair at characterization by Herbert Rouse.

Others in the cast were Ronald Warren, John Ryan, Joyce Morton, Adeline Lepore, Wilma Judge, Dorothy Walker and Dorothy Muir.

Splendid Direction

Miss Nellie Merry, director and Mrs. G. B. Reed, of Kingston, who assisted, are to be congratulated on the splendid work of the cast and have every reason to feel very proud of the results of this coaching.

The stage setting, the principal's office in which the entire action took place, was particularly worthy of comment. The work of Miss Ash and her committee, Marie Carscallen and Isabel Delong, the scene represented a well-furnished office complete to the last detail. The wide doors painted to give the effect of oak, gave the room a background befitting such a room in the large high school of a prosperous city. The make-up of the actors was done with great skill under the direction of Miss Helen Keeler, of the O.S.D. staff, assisted by Anna Hogle. The other members of the staff behind the scenes were Arthur Young, stage manager, Sonny Ryan, prompter, Jack Patterson and Bob Gibson, props and Frank Foley, sound effects, whose co-operation contributed a great deal to the success of the production.

Sunday School System Developed From Movement in England in 1780

West Huntingdon—Rural communities seldom have occasion to boast of large industries that go to build up the large centres. But, however, every hamlet in this land has little groups dotted here and there which perhaps are doing as much or more for the lives of their citizens. As big industries: namely, the organized Sunday Schools. Modern Sunday Schools date from 1780-1781 when Robert Raikes of Gloucester, England collected a few children from the street of that city on Sunday and paid teachers to instruct them in religious knowledge, the improvement in the conduct and morals of the children was so marked, that the example was followed in many other places until in 1785 a Society was formed for the establishment of Sunday Schools in all parts of the Kingdom. Teachers continued to be paid.

In 1803 the Sunday School Union was formed. To secure continuous instruction by unpaid teachers and to publish books, tracts and other literature for the benefit of the cause. The aim of the Union has never changed—to gather people together on the Sabbath Day to study the Bible, receive moral and religious instruction.

The first Sunday Schools united secular and religious education and taught along with the Scripture readings, writing and expression, but the spread of elementary educational facilities removed this necessity from the church.

In the years following 1803 Sunday Schools had an amazing growth and were recognized as forces of good and today are the training care of church membership in all Protestant churches throughout the world.

The United Church here has the distinction of having one of the progressive Sunday Schools in the district and on Sunday held their annual Fall rally. The theme of this year's program was based on the text of Scriptures, "Not might nor by power but by my spirit sayeth the Lord." The one and a half hours' program was given by members of the school. A most pleasing feature of which was a visit from the former members of the Sunday School Orchestra which contributed several numbers and assisted with the song service. Members of the group were Misses Irene and Marguerite Elliott, Miss Georgie Pitman and Messrs Wilbert and Douglas Wannamaker.

A very impressive part of service was when a member representing their class gave a short address on "What the Sunday School has meant to me." Those contributing to this were Mrs. W. Barrager, Mr. Clifford Elliott, Miss Joan McCurdy, Hilda Moorcroft and Kathleen Moorcroft, Mr. Kenneth Stewart gave a most timely message on the theme of the Rally. A promotion service was also held when many were promoted.

Mrs. W. Fitchett gave a solo with guitar accompaniment. Bob Post gave a recitation. Mrs. Elmer Post's class gave a rally day exercise.

There was a good attendance of members also some visitors present.

St. Andrew's Y. P. S.

St. Andrew's Young People's Society held their annual meeting in basement of church on Friday evening when the following officers were elected for 1940-41:

Hon. President: Rev. W. H. V. Walker.

President, Miss Margaret Wright.

1st Vice President, Carl Rollins.

Secretary-Treasurer, Jean Thompson.

Organist, Lorna Wright.

Conveners for the committees are: Worship, Mrs. John McInroy. Fellowship, Lorna Wright. Service, Annie Fleming.

Press. Sec., Russell Sills.

In the business period it was decided to hold two meetings each month also to send Christmas boxes to Pte.'s Murney Wright and Neil McLeod. Mr. Carl Rollins took charge of Scripture lesson and Jean Haggarty gave a reading.

Endeavours Class

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett, entertained the Endeavors Class for their November meeting. The special number was an address by Mrs. J. C. Sills using as her topic, "The Lord Reigneth". This outstanding address was a history of How God has Cared for His People In many a Critical Time, and was well given by Mrs. Sills. Other items on the program were: Duet by Mrs. Clifford Elliott and Mrs. Clifford Green; reading, Mrs. Frank Hammond; Prayer, Mrs. Peter McInroy; solo, Mrs. W. J. Fitchett; Exposition and discussion of Scripture lesson, Arthur Wilson.

W. M. S.

The November meeting of W. M. S. of United Church was held at Mrs. Clifford Green's home on Thursday, starting with a pot luck dinner. Following the dinner the usual program was given with the theme "The Pilgrim Way". Those assisting with the Worship service were: Mrs. McCurdy, Mrs. Post and Mrs. Wright.

21 members answered the roll call. Mrs. Clayton Wright gave a reading.

Watch Tower: China, Mrs. M. Reid; Korea, Georgie Pitman; Japan, Mrs. Post; Christian Stewardship, Mrs. E. Sarles; Africa, Mrs. A. Wright; Georgie Pitman gave report of the rally held at Cannifton; Mrs. E. T. Sarles conducted the election of officers:

Honorary president, Mrs. Foster Wilson; president, Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and Mrs. Clifford Elliott; 1st vice president, Mrs. Clayton Wright; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Elmer Post; secretary, Georgie Pitman; Recording secretary, Mrs. Frank Hammond; Press secretary, Sarah Wilson; Treasurer, Mrs. Cooke; Stewardship secretary, Mrs. A. Wright; Friendship secretary, Mrs. Clifford Green; Supply secretary, Georgie Pitman; Temperance secretary, Mrs. Florence Stewart; Missionary and Literature, Mrs. Sarles; Pianist, Mrs. J. Moorcroft.

The dinner collection was $6.50

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Friday, November 22.

Moderately promising and pleasant conditions foreseen for this day, judging by the lunar propositions, may be brought to a sudden and surprising denouement by an unexpected untoward event. This has a disruptive and disintegrating force, calling for much quiet deliberation and clever manoeuvering rather than agitated and erratic behavior.

Those whose birthday it is, although encountering some irregularities or eccentricities, being forceful, peremptory, and audacious, yet such will not be ill-tempered or malicious and may be met in friendly, frank and sympathetic spirit, succeeding better with groups or by stategy than with superiors. A fairly progressive year may be suddenly disrupted by a visitation of an unpredictable character. This had best be handed by tact and finesse rather than force or aggression.

A child born on this day, although possibly bold, aggressive, and dictatorial, yet will not be unkindly or malevolent in having its way. Its softer side may be readily appealed to in stubborn moods.

HOLLOWAY STREET WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Association was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Patrick, 12 Moira Street. The President, Mrs. Sweetnam opened the meeting with the hymn "Go Labour On" followed with prayer by Rev. Dilts. Mrs. Hagerman gave the devotional reading "How God Made the World and His Wonderful Goodness to us". Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Business discussion followed and reports of various secretaries. Roll Call was taken with 32 present. The president then turned the meeting over to Mrs. Fulton, and this part of the meeting was opened by singing "Land of our Birth". The Beatitudes were read by Mrs. Denton. Solo "O Lovely Night" by Mrs. Weber, was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Hagerman then introduced the guest speaker, Miss Robbins, who gave us a very inspiring address on "Problems of the Social Workers". The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Refreshments were served and a social half-hour was spent, Mrs. Patrick and Mrs. Fulton's groups serving. Those assisting were—Mrs. Patrick, Mrs. Fulton, Mrs C. Green, Mrs. E. B. Green, Mrs. Hubbs, Mrs Lawrence and Mrs. Reed.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Young Husband's Problem

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am married and have a little daughter two and a half months old. A few weeks ago a girl friend of my wife's came to visit us from another city. When she went back, my wife went with her to visit her mother. I was willing for her to make the trip because I thought a change would do her good.

Now she refuses to come back. I went to see her at her mother's home and found out that she has been having a good time, leaving the baby first with one and then another. She doesn't date other men, but just goes with her girl friend.

Miss Fairfax, I love my wife and baby devotedly, but I don't know what to do and where to turn. Won't you please help me?

R. B. J.

You haven't told me your wife's age, but judging from the way youthful good times have gone to her head, she was probably married in her 'teens. Leaving her baby with anyone who will care for it while she goes running about with her young friends, does not put her in the best light.

Girls who've been tied down by marriage, housekeeping and the care of a baby, often get a little light-headed when a bit of their lost youth is restored to them. But the type of girl who will park her baby anywhere and with anyone presents a problem. Better give her a little time to see if she won't return to normalcy. She will probably want to come back to you after she's had a share of irresponsibility. That seems to be the history of such cases.

Planning Leap-Year Party

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Our club is giving a party, and we are to bring our own dates. Should I call up my boy friend, go to his house and invite him, or write him a note?

Is it proper for us to have a chaperon? And am I supposed to call for the boy and then take him home? This is a sort of Leap Year affair, and we are all younger than 16.

If a girl is asked to a party by a boy and has to get permission from her mother as to whether she can go or not, what must she say to the boy?

There's a boy who lives near me, who often comes to the house next door. I know his name and I suppose he knows mine. Would there be any harm in saying "hello" when he comes there? I've always heard the girl should say "hello" first.

In Doubt

Considering that you're all under 16 years of age, I should think it might be nice for you to have an older sister or some older person along. Cars get stuck, go down wrong roads, and tires blow out, in which case it's comfortable to have someone along a little more experienced than sweet sixteen. Only we don't call them chaperones any more.

Strictly speaking in a Leap Year party, the girl calls for the boy and sees that he gets safely home. This formality is up to your mother, however. Question No. 3: Say something like "I've not yet arrived at A. W. O. L. age, and I'll let you know tomorrow."

I think the recording angel will chalk it up against you if you say "hello" to your neighbor's boy when you know each other's names, schools and home addresses.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Doctor Prohibits Stork Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a problem on which I would like your advice, since the circumstances are unusual. I had planned to give a stork shower for a friend, and in the meantime her doctor has advised against the excitement of such an event, suggesting that I have the shower without the guest of honor present.

Do you favor this idea, or would it be proper to have a shower by mail now, and after the baby arrives, give a tea at which the mother could be present?

S.M.

I urge that you abide by this doctor's wise suggestion, but I am not in favor of having the shower without the guest of honor. Why not abandon the idea of a shower, and each friend simply mail her gift to the mother-to-be?

I like your idea of planning to have a tea-party, a few weeks after the baby's birth, inviting the close friends whom you planned to invite to the shower. But before you give this party you should talk over your plans with the guest of honor.

"Congratulations" Vs. "Best Wishes"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is proper to congratulate an engaged girl?

P.N.

It is not proper to use the words "congratulate" or "congratulations" to a bride-to-be or to a bride. A bridegroom-to-be or bridegroom receives the congratulations; a bride-to-be or bride receives "best wishes."

Had Stork Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just been fortunate enough to be on the receiving end of a stork shower. Now I would like to know if I should write each guest a note of thanks, or just wait a few weeks and send a birth announcement. The guests were mostly relatives and a few close friends.

W.W.

To receive a note of thanks for a gift (even when we have been thanked verbally) is so heart-warming to one who has given special thought and care in choosing the gift that I do urge you to write individual notes of thanks. "Relatives and a few close friends" would, I am sure, be especially touched by your graciousness. Your notes needn't be long — two or three sentences, perhaps — but they will charmingly show your appreciation.

More Investigation

Simultaneously with the publication of Thursday's report, the committee announced agents had been sent into Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Cleveland, New Orleans and St. Louis seeking data.

The committee said that when Hitler came into power he made the Nazi Transocean News Service into an agency "for the dissemination of propaganda" in foreign countries and that the agency sought to place its propaganda in Canada, Mexico, and Central and South America.

The committee declared Mandred Zapp "felt himself to be under the direction and supervision of the German embassy." Zapp has headed Transocean since 1938.

Furthermore, the report said the committee had evidence that Transocean was the chief propaganda organization of Germany in Guatamela, Mexico, Cuba, Ecuador, Argentina and Brazil.

The committee's White Paper also reported relationship between the Transradio Press Service and Transocean. (Several Canadian radio stations received Transradio's short wave broadcasting service via the United States.)

Dies, himself, emphasized at St. Louis that he did "not intend to move against any innocent people, of whatever nationality."

"I have a list of suspects who I have every reason to believe are Gestapo (German secret police) agents in the United States," Dies said.

"As fast as possible we will move in upon them, place them under oath, and take their testimony.

CBO To Revamp News Broadcasting

Ottawa,—(CP) — The Munitions Minister, Hon. C. D. Howe, who also has jurisdiction over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said last night "we have decided to revamp our broadcasting of news to be effective the beginning of the year."

Mr. Howe was commenting on a report from Washington that the Dies Committee investigating un-American activities had issued a white paper linking Transradio Service with operations of Transocean News Service which was alleged to be engaged in distributing German propaganda in Latin America.

Mr. Howe said:-

"I called attention of the House of Commons to the fact that we were not satisfied with the position of Transradio earlier this year.

"At the time we did not have anything definite upon which to act. It was proposed to stop Transradio News being broadcast but there was a great deal of resentment against cutting it off.

"Now we have decided to revamp our broadcasting of news to be effective the beginning of the year."

Gladstone Murray, General Manager of the CBC, said the CBC Board of Governors would be meeting in Ottawa next Tuesday. He said he intended to assemble all the facts in connection with the Transradio matter and submit them for consideration by the Board.

Presentation

The people of Mount Pleasant community gathered together in Victoria School house Saturday evening, Nov. 9, for a presentation to Gunner Earl O'Shaughnessy, 32/34 Battery R. C. A., home on leave from Petawawa Military Camp.

The gathering was called to order by Mr. Henry Larkins and after a short program, Mr. O'Shaughnessy was asked to come to the front where an address was read by Mrs. Carman Gibson, signed on behalf of Mount Pleasant community by Mr. and Mrs. W. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Gibson, and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Treverton.

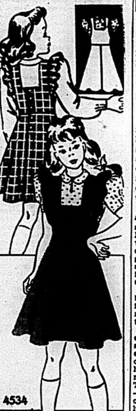
Mr. Charlie Treverton made the presentation of a lovely gold regimental ring and flashlight. Gunner O'Shaughnessy expressed his thanks to his many friends and neighbors for the lovely and useful presents given him, after which three cheers were given Gunner O'Shaughnessy and the National Anthem sung. A delicious lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the ladies after which the gathering broke up wishing Gunner O'Shaughnessy the best of luck.

ST. JOHN'S MISSION

The members of the Ladies' Guild of St. John's Mission met at the home of Mrs. Redner for an all day quilting and birthday party. It was the twelfth anniversary of the Guild meetings of which were held at the homes of various members until the hall was built. About three years later. It was fitting that the anniversary should be held at Mrs. Redner's home as the first meeting was held there twelve years ago. The ladies partook of a sumptuous dinner. The table was prettily decorated with yellow mums and candles. After the devotional exercises and business meeting tea was served and the birthday cake with twelve candles was cut. The knife was inserted by Mrs. Redner and the cake cut by Mrs. Jenner who is one of the older members. A toast was given to the Church, Arrangements were made for packing a bale and the meeting closed with Rev. C. P. Heaven pronouncing the blessing. A hearty vote of thanks was given Mrs. Redner for an enjoyable time.

A Schoolgirl "Jumpafore"

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4534

The "jumpafore," a smart combination of the jumper and pinafore modes, is a this-season favorite with the younger crowd. Pattern 4534 is an Anne Adams version of this pert style that's simply cut and well-fitting, with a partway buttoning down the back. Optional ruffles flare out in pinafore-fashion at either side. The crisp little blouse has a choice of long full sleeves or short puffed sleeves. Make the blouse in, say, dotted swiss, with a faille or taffeta jumpafore for dress-up wear. Then have a plaid wool jumpafore with a rayon blouse for schooldays. Do finish this style in time for the Christmas holidays and the new school term.

Pattern 4534 is available in girl's sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 12, jumpafore, takes 1 5-8 yards 54 inch fabric; short sleeved blouse, 1 1-4 yards 35 inch fabric; long sleeved blouse, 1 1-2 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front Street, Belleville, Ont.

With a Rose in Her Hair

Helen Parrish loves to wear flowers for evening.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Now that the lovelies of this world are arrayed in soft clinging draperies, going feminine in the grand manner, wearing roses in their hair, it is time that they kept in character by cultivating voices sweet and low. It is fashionable to be ladylike and shouting and screeching are taboo.

Clothes are an influence upon behavior. We live up to our dry goods. In the period of the kilt, the shingle and the boyish shape girls were a bit rowdy. Ruffles and fluff stuff are something else; they call for grace of motion, nice manners, all the quaint feminine tricks that snare masculine hearts.

Sweet And Low

Usually, the unpleasant voice gets that way because it is not used properly. Tone is pitched to high, or there is too much volume. The low voice makes for ease and tranquility of listeners; the loud one sets teeth on edge and beats on the ear drums. Shriekers are nearly always women who are lacking in stability; they're "perfect nervous ladies" and they drive you haywire.

The pleasing voice has life, expression, melodious cadences. It does not drone or mumble, gabble too fast, keep on one singsong key or wear you out with too frequent emphasis. A nice voice mespeaks good breeding.

Tiny red lines that sometimes appear on the wings of the nose and on the cheeks are ruptured capillaries. Tiny blood cells have broken their bounds. It is sometimes possible to remove these blemishes with the electric needle.

Milia — called whiteheads — is another distressing complexion ill. The proper treatment: slit the beadlike mass with a sterilized needle—hold the point in a flame—then gently press out the hardened substance. Bathe the wound with a warm boric acid solution or touch it with alcohol. A whitehead is caused by the closing of the pore and the banking up of sebaceous oil.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Christmas Comes But Once a Year——"

Over four hundred years ago an English poet, Thomas Tusser, urged his readers

"At Christmas, play and make good cheer,
For Christmas comes but once a year".

Mighty good advice that. We may have lost our illusions about life, but all of us have kept a lingering faith in Santa Claus. If we are human we want to make that one day in the year a little happier for someone else—plenty of someones we find to our amazement as we make up our Christmas lists.

This year Christmas will be a second Thanksgiving Day for us all. Our fair land is free of the hideous destruction which has wrecked Europe's thousands years of growth. Wt can afford to be generous as well as thankful, and among other blessings we rejoice in the purchasing power of a good Canadian dollar.

Looking about the shops as I've been doing for the last two weeks, it seemed to me that the almighty dollar will do more for us this year than ever before.

Take gifts for mother. Have you ever seen anything as reasonable as those lovely housecoats? Quilted, warm, with a generous sweep of skirt, so smartly becoming, a housecoat may be had withih the range of the humblest pocketbook. Things to go with a housecoat too —lovely slippers, some just comfy, others fur and feather-trimmed, luxurious to the nth degree.

And mother's housecoat is balanced by father's lounging robe or smoking jacket. If, unlike the hero of that topical song of a decade ago, "He never cares to wander from his own fireside", give him a home-keeping hint. Lots and lots of men wander from their own fireside, because not enough thought is given to make them really comfortable under the domestic roof. Give Dad a good reading lamp or, if you can afford it, a restful chair for his very own—and let it be reserved for him. Give him slippers, cigars, a carton or two of cigarettes if he likes them. Give him a pipe, a jar of tobacco, a subscription to his favorite magazine, or some books, if he's the reading kind. Socks and handkerchiefs are always welcome. And if he has a car, something for the car—thermos bottles, water coolers, something to keep.

Now for mother. Dainty undies, lingerie and nighties will solve mother's Christmas problem. How about one of those complexion kits of leather, smartly outfitted with jars and pots of cream and other beautifiers, or an attractive manicure set if mother does her nails at home. All women like nice things for the table For a couple of dollars you can give china such as Queen Elizabeth never had. Plated ware, if you can't afford solid silver, comes in lovely patterns. And those gay tablecloths, lunch sets, bridge sets, with napkins to match—they make it impossible not to enjoy a cheerful meal.

Gloves and silk stockings—can anyone ever have too many of them? And the useful things like wearing apparel—coats, hats, shoes —are good family gifts.

Now for the children. Please don't let any child go without a present on Christmas Day. The hurt of being forgotten may stay with the child indefinitely, sowing the seed of that horrible blight known as inferiority complex. All the other children are displaying their gifts, but the child who has not been remembered will steal away with a hurt in his heart that cannot be lived down.

Don't if you can possibly afford it, forget the under-privileged child. There are thousands of such living in dark tenements, children of the poor, of the down-and-out. Through your church missions and similar organizations you will be able to make these youngsters happy with some toy from the Five-and-Ten, if you can't afford to spend more. A warm muffler, a pair of gloves, a couple of pairs of stockings, and Christmas is a day of joy to these little ones.

Such giving will help to make it a joy to you also, my friends.

Not Enough Boys For Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am inviting a few friends to my home one evening very soon. They range from sixteen to eighteen years of age. I do not know enough boys for the number of girls I am inviting. Would it be all right for the girls to give me the name of a boy friend and, after the girls mention the party to the boys, for me to send them an invitation? Would you please help me with the invitations, and tell me how they should be worded?

My parents are always glad to welcome my friends. I am telling you this, as I thought that it should be mentioned in the invitations.

D.

I'm delighted at your last paragraph; it is always such a joy to know that parents surround their homes with the spirit of hospitality, and share this hospitality with their own friends and with their children's friends. And because you tell me that, I am going to make a special request that you have the invitations sent out by your mother. This is always the best form, for guests of this age, and it is especially gracious when there is such a special feeling of hospitality.

Your idea of having the girls invite boys and then you to follow up their invitation with an invitation from you, shows an excellent social sense. Except I do suggest your mother to write both kinds of invitations.

The invitation that your mother would write to the guests whom you do know, would read something like this:

Dear Joan,

Marie and I would be so happy if you will come to a small party at our home on Friday, the first of December, at about eight o'clock. We are having some of Marie's friends, and we just couldn't have the party without you. So you will come . . . won't you?

Marie says that she is going to ask you to invite a boy friend to come with you, if you wish to. If you will write me his name and address after you have asked him, I will also write and tell him of our wish to have him come to the party.

Dearest love from us all,
Cordially yours,
Mary Jones House

The note of invitation to the boy invited by the girl guest would be something like this:

Dear Mr. Winters,

Jean Allen has told me of your willingness to come to the party that I am planning for Marie on Friday, the first of December, at eight o'clock, and I am writing you to second her invitation and to tell you how happy my husband and Marie and I are that you are coming and how much we are anticipating the pleasure of welcoming you to our home.

Cordially yours
Mary Jones House
(Mrs.) James House)

Guest Not Included

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

If you have a friend who is to stay with you for a month, and during that time you are asked to a dance by a man, should you refuse or should you plan some amusement in which your guest also could join in?

B.

When a guest is with you for such a long visit, she would undoubtedly not expect to be included in every invitation that you receive. You needn't refuse the invitation to the dance, and I am sure that your guest would not wish to have you refuse it.

OLD BEAUTY SECRET NOW AVAILABLE TO MODERN WOMEN

Into the midst of the current cosmetic confusion—with its jars for this and jars for that—comes a one jar cream that is a complete treatment, containing all the essentials for the daily care of every type of skin.

Many years ago, this formula was created by the world famous dermatologist, Professor Johan Fischer, for the ladies of the Court of King Christian IX of Denmark, whose daughters later became Queen Alexandra of England and the Empress Maria of Russia.

During Professor Fischer's lifetime only a select circle in Denmark had access to the formula, but his cousin has now made it available to the women of North America.

This, so different cream, soap and sponge are all that is needed to provide that healthy skin glow so sought for. In one jar is provided cleanser, lubricant, stimulant and powder base.

It is being marketed under the name,—Maria Danica, treatment complete—and is being introduced in Belleville by George Pauley, Druggist.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S EASY this year to dress up a simple untrimmed coat in luxurious fashion. Every shop is showing fur accessory sets. A typical ensemble, done in leopard, consists of a toy postilion hat, a big bag and gauntlet gloves. Same set comes in beaver and in Persian lamb.

DESIGNERS ARE THINKING about the more mature type this year and are making hats that are gracious and lovely. A typical model is a turban of black hatter's plush with a high flange to the crown in front. A sweep of glycerined ostrich and a lacy veil complete a smart hat.

A GOOD PAL this time of year is the streetlength frock, simply styled, but done with glitter. Rough-surfaced crepe is used for a little black frock made with slanting bands of iridescent blue sequins on the bodice and also on a large hipline pocket.

THE DINNER HOUR finds women wearing gracefully draped frocks made with high, round neckline and long, slim sleeves. This silhouette is used for a handsome model in pearl gray silk jersey made with back fullness shirred into a low panel. Dark crimson velvet roses thrust through the front panel sash.

IT ISN'T EASY to resist the lure of the new fur-trimmed cloth coats, which are every bit as handsome as fur coats. For instance, how about a coat of black woolen with a long shawl collar of natural blue fox? This cloudy-colored fur is also used for large handsome half-scroll ornaments on the hipline pockets.

OF COURSE you'll want a new bag. The shops are showing bags of black or brown antelope with large frames of imitation tortoise-shell, with fittings to match.

CHATTERTON W. I.

The Community Activities and Relief meeting of the Chatterton W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Reid on Thursday, Nov. 14, with 13 present. The members answered roll call by "How I can help relief", than all joined in community singing. The minutes were read and adopted and the business attended to. Miss Lugo Prest and Mrs. Gerald Frederick, leaders, sent to the "Meat Cookery" classes in Stirling will present their demonstrations this month.

The Current Events were given by Mrs. Cecil Ross then a paper "The community is no better than its average home" by Mrs. E. B. Finkle. A discussion on the subject followed. Mrs. Gerald Frederick sang a solo and Miss Aleita Horton gone a poem "Others." The demonstration for the day was a "Gift for the needy." The meeting closed by the Mizpah and the hostess served lunch.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and Rita Hayworth, romantic co-stars of "Angels Over Broadway," now at the McCarthy Theatre in addition to Charles Starrett in "West of Abilene."

Shirley Temple is shown here with Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood, two rollicking laugh stars who join her in her latest happiest hit, "Young People," next at the Belle Theatre.

The ice cream filling and hot sauce make this dessert a specially attractive party dish; but it's equally delicious with a fruit filling.

Bow-Legs Handicap The Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I have been reading your column for years and have found many good suggestions in it. You had a recent article on the cross-eyed child.

"Have you ever considered the bow-legged child? He also suffers untold agonies and ridicule from thoughtless people. Can you imagine what it means to a young girl or boy not to be able to go swimming or for a girl not to be able to wear shorts like the rest of the 'gang'? I think it would be a good idea if in some of your articles you would tell parents how to correct this fault in their child before it is too late. It can be done if parents are not too careless or ignorant."

Proper Diet

This mother has made a good point. Bowed legs can be prevented by proper diet and proper medical care from the pre-natal period onward. It can even be corrected in the early years. Just how late in the child's life this correction should be attempted, only the bone expert can safely advise. Those parents concerned should ask their family doctor to refer them to the proper specialist, or should write to the public health office of the city, county or state, or to the local Academy of Medicine.

Bow-legs result from insufficient bone food and generally indicate richitis, an ailment commonly called rickets. Among the preventive means are sunshine and its nearest substitute, cod liver oil, or other deep-sea fish oil; milk, vegetables and fruit.

Bowness of legs is first manifest to the average person when the child begins to stand and walk, though the causes may have developed much earlier. Only a skilled physician is capable of prescribing for such a child.

Bowed at Birth

Of course, the normal child's legs are bowed some at birth. Also the child with ample diet, sunshine and cod liver oil, if greatly overweight, might, by standing too long at a stretch or too much, in the early stages of his standing and walking acquire bowed legs, I understand.

Bowed legs and awkward placing of the feet may also be caused by improper shoes. Obviously the earlier such errors are dealt with by a properly trained expert, the easier and more certain the correction.

Once the child in his early years has acquired bowed legs, leave it to the advice of a bone specialist as to whether braces or other means of correction should be resorted to.

To protect the feelings of the older child who has bowed legs, learn to act sensibly toward the matter and try to help other adults and children do likewise.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Would you compel a child to apologize.

A. No; neither at home nor school. Why make him lie? It might be well if he could be induced, of his own free will and accord, to apologize.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Pediatrics

When I was graduated from medical school nearly thirty five years ago, there wasn't a single pediatrician practising in the large city of Toronto then. I don't suppose that on the whole continent there were more than a dozen. Now, it is shown by a report about pediatricians the other day, there are several thousand baby specialists, to give them their more common name.

It is important to note that the work of these pediatricions is becoming more and more of a preventive character. That is, instead of waiting until a child is sick, and then attending him, these men make a practise of keeping their patients under fairly close scrutiny all the time and keeping them in good health.

It appears that the depression is partly responsible for this trend. Up to 1929, pediatricians shared in the general wave of prosperity. Money was plentiful, and parents wanted and got the best for their children. But when the market went crashing, and incomes dwindled, pediatricians felt the pinch even before the general practitioner.

So some of these specialists got the idea of caring for children on a flat rate basis. That is, you as a parent entered into a contract with your pediatrician. Under this contract, the specialist looked after the child the year around for a flat rate running anywhere from $50 to $200.

So, if a specialist got only his specified fee, no matter whether the child got sick or not, it was to his advantage to keep the child well. The higher fees gave unlimited services for a year including house calls, office calls, telephone calls, immunization services; in fact everything.

Such contracts have become especially popular in the case of first year babies. Also they have been put on a monthly basis. That is pediatricians conduct a well-baby service for from five to ten dollars a month. A questionnaire sent out to pediatricians showed that the majority of them charged five dollars monthly for a service which includes immunization, and a few office visits. However, if the specialist calls at the home, then there is an extra charge.

There is no evidence that these contracts are "abused", from the pediatrist's standpoint, by the parents. In giving an unlimited contract calling for office and house visits, there is the possibility that the parents may demand too much attention. But experience has shown the pediatrists there is no ground for fear on this point.

Frankie Brimsek of Bruins Answers Critics by Scoring First Shutout of the Season

Boston Defeats Hawks Right in Chicago by 2-0 Count

LEAFS WIN

Toronto Scores Fifth Straight Victory in Overtime Over the Amerks

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Just when the professional mourners were beginning to wail, corpse Frankie Brimsek refused to stay dead.

As late as yesterday the National Hockey League's grave-diggers were preparing a minor-league plot for the youngster who had been acclaimed as none other in his rookie year. Boston Bruins' Mr. Zero had cracked.

The stone-faced Brimsek who backed the Bruins to the Stanley Cup, who gained The Canadian Press all-star team as goaler as well as 10 shutouts and the outstanding rookie award—all in that first year two seasons ago—was being made fall-guy for the dismal showing of the N.H.L. champions, who held only two draws in five starts.

Rumor Brimsek to be Shifted

There were rumors that Manager Art Ross would shift his protege to a minor league berth; rumblings almost every game that one or two of the goals were "soft". Well, there weren't any soft ones—nor any other kind—last night, and where are the wails today?

All of the old finesse was there, all of the flash, as Frankie chalked up shutout No. 1 of this season against the Chicago Black Hawks. Not the "kitty-bar-the-door" Black Hawks of old, but the driving, fighting youngsters that Manager Paul Thompson has now.

Soon, perhaps, they'll be saying "As Brimsek goes so goes Boston" for the victory was the first of the season for the Bruins. The 2-0 triumph in Chicago lifted them into fifth place and already the boys who say they know will tell you that the team, too good to stay long at the bottom, finally has started to roll.

Brimsek Outstanding

Two other fine goal-tending performances were eclipsed by Brimsek last night—that of Rookie Johnny Mowers who backed Detroit and Wings to a 2-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens and another by Veteran Turk Broda, who helped Toronto Maple Leafs also to a 2-1 triumph over New York Americans. But they were scored on.

Brimsek wasn't. Before 15,487 fans in Chicago's home town, he turned back every thrust of the Black Hawks. Meanwhile Herbie Cain gave Boston a goal in the second period and Mel Hill added another in the next just to make the Bruins' first victory official.

While Brimsek was proving his right to stay in the league, Toronto and Detroit were battling for the league leadership in separate cities. Both won, and Toronto remained a single point in front of the second-place Red Wings.

Toronto invaded New York to stretch their streak to five straight victories at the expense of the Americans. A crowd of about 8,000 watched centre Syl Apps provide the winning goal at 1:16 of an overtime period by fighting through the Americans' defence and whipping home a three-footer.

O'Flaherty Ties Score

The teams had played through a 1-1 tie in the regulation time. Gordie Drillon beat Charlie Rayner, Kenora, Ont., youngster subbing for the injured Earl Robertson in the American nets, to put Toronto ahead but Johnny (Peanuts) O'Flaherty tied it up for Americans in the second period.

A second-period goal by Detroit's Gus Giesebrecht meanwhile pushed Montreal Canadiens all alone into the league cellar. The tally broke a 1-1 tie, which came about in the first period when Moderé Bruneteau scored for Detroit and Tony Demers for Canadiens.

Big Jack Portland, whom the Canucks bought from Chicago recently for a sum reported at $12,500 replaced Doug Young on the Montreal defence and performed effectively.

Before the game, which was watched by a crowd of 10,454, Defenceman Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit was awarded the Dr. David A. Hart trophy, which he won last year on being adjudged the player most valuable to his team. President Frank Calder of the N.H.L. made the presentation.

ODDS AGAINST ARGOS, SARNIA WINNING ROUNDS

Argos Face Eleven-Point Defiiit Against Ottawa and Sarnia 12 Points Against Beaches

ARGOS MIGHT WIN

20,000 Expected to Journey to Varsity Stadium to Watch Battle

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There is no dismay, only a calm confidence, in the camps of Toronto Argonauts and Sarnia Battery, condemned by almost everyone to be tossed on the football scrapheap before Saturday's sun has set over Varsity Stadium in Toronto and Athletic Park in Sarnia.

But there is no getting away from the fact that their plight is serious, and that the odds are all against Argos making up 11 points on Ottawa Rough Riders in the Interprovincial Union playoff, and more so against the Battery wiping out the 12-point edge held by Toronto Balmy Beach for the Ontario Union championship.

Taking the Battery case first, for it seems the more hopeless. There is no apparent reason for the hopes Mike Fitzgibbon's men have of beating the Beach. They've met three times this season and none of the Beach victories was as sound as the 12-0 shutout administered last Saturday.

Defensively, the Battery rates with Beaches, for they've got one of the toughest lines in the business, backed up by Nick Paithouski at centre secondary—and Paithouski has a lot of football wrapped up in his stock frame. But they haven't the reserves to hold together for 60 minutes and, more important, they haven't an offensive.

Ralph Perry and Joe Woodcock are good plungers and Hank Galloway and Jim Butler are fine punters but four men cannot match the power wrapped up in the Beach half-dozen of Bobby Porter, Frank Seymour, Bill Drinkwater, Johnny Manson, Don Crowe and Hugh Tunnicliffe, operating behind a line as strong as Sarnia's.

Argos Conceded Chance

The Argos are conceded a better chance because somewhere in their fleet backfield is power which, if harnessed properly, might beat any club in Canada over one 60-minute playing stretch. The trouble is that they've been able to turn on the power in full only once, when they beat Ottawa 11-9 in Toronto a month ago.

The situation is such that the 18,000 fans expected to crowd Varsity Stadium are almost sure of seeing a wide-open Argo running and throwing party. Eleven points behind a machine that has shown practically no weakness all season, they can only start by gambling and keeping at it.

Lew Hayman put the club through a drill behind closed doors yesterday, and they weren't overly impressive. It is likely that the last of the Argo cripples, big Red Storey, will get into action, although his injured knee is not completely better. But Hayman needs the redhead's blocking and Storey wants to play.

Bunny Wadsworth will be the only Ottawa regular out of action. The Riders can play this one close to their chests, with no pressure at all unless Argos somehow grab two touchdowns without reply.

In a case like this they might rely entirely on the superior punting of Sammy Sward to keep belting Argos back, and wiping out any short gains the Argo swifties can pick up on the ground. But if he has to, Ross Trimble can start firing guns bigger than anything on the Argo ship.

Both games should be close and nice to watch. Capacity crowds are expected at both parks.

Cincinnati, Nov. 22 (AP)—His close friends here say one of the first moves Jimmy Wilson will make as manager of the Cubs will be to try to get Hugh Mulcahy from the Phillies.... Fritzie Zivic has been offered four opponents by Jack Laken at Baltimore, but no acceptance yet.... Michigan State has replaced Nebraska as the leading candidate for the spot left vacant in the Big Ten Football Conference when Chicago went for Tom Thumb golf at Stagg Field.

Springfield Easily Defeats Capitals

Indianapolis, Nov. 22 (AP)—Springfield Indians, leaders in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League, put up an airtight defence Thursday to defeat Indianapolis Capitals 4-1 before 5,102.

The Indians had the game under control all the way, making the first goal after 13 minutes and 44 seconds of the first period. Springfield's high scoring line of Freddie Thurier, Larry Thibeault and Fred Hunt accounted for three of the Indians goals.

The Capitals didn't score until late in the final period, when Butch McDonald tallied while Springfield centre Len Halldorson was in the penalty box for tripping.

The Indians used Red McAtee, borrowed from Pittsburgh, as goalie in substitution for Alfie Moore, league spare goalie, who is on the injured list.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit's Syd Howe maintained a two-point margin over his closest opposition among National Hockey League pointmakers last night despite the fact he did not figure in the scoring as Red Wings defeated Montreal Canadiens 2-1. Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs split the goals as Leafs won 2-1 against New York Americans, drawing into a second place tie with George Allen and Mush March of Chicago, who were held pointless as Black Hawks lost 2-0 to Boston Bruins.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Howe, Detroit	3	6	9
Allen, Chicago	5	2	7
March, Chicago	3	4	7
Apps, Toronto	3	4	7
Drillon, Toronto	3	4	7
Motter, Detroit	4	2	6
Hextall, Rangers	3	2	5
Stanowski, Toronto	2	3	5
N. Metz, Toronto	2	3	5
W. Carse, Chicago	1	4	5

"BUMMY" FINED

Called onto the carpet at the New York State Athletic Commissioner's office, Al "Bummy" Davis, New York battler, was fined $2,500 and banned from New York rings for life for his part in the fight with Fritzie Zivic at Madison Square Garden. "Bummy" repeatedly fouled Zivic in the second round of the fight—fouled him so purposely and openly that Referee Cavanaugh overrode the commission's anti-foul rule to stop the fight and disqualify "Bummy." The unfortunate Mr. Davis, dark glasses, and his followers are shown leaving the commissioner's office after receiving his punishment.

B.C.I. SEXTETTE BEATS ALBERT TO LEAD JR. LOOP

Score is 11-10 and Winners Tally All Their Points in First Half

ST. MIKES CAN TIE

Albert Scores Two Touchdowns in Second Half but Fail to Convert Either

Belleville Collegiate climbed back into the leadership of the City Junior Interscholastic football group by beating Albert College 11 to 10 on the latter's campus yesterday.

Albert tossed a scare into the ranks of the "Collegians" however, as the homesters rallied and came within a point of knotting the count. Albert kept the Yerex-led Collegiate sextette off the score sheet in the second half, after the "Collegians" had scored touchdowns in the first and second periods.

The B.C.I. abbreviated football squad concluded their season's schedule yesterday without losing a single game on the field of play, but were deprived of two contests after it was disclosed they had used over-age players. Today they are leading their group by a game margin over St. Michael's Academy who can create a tie for first place by winning over the O.S.D. in the remaining game of the group schedule.

B.C.I. scored early in the game yesterday when Thompson pitched a long pass into the waiting arms of Graydon Rogers, who merely stepped over the Albert goal-line for an unconverted touchdown, the only scoring seen in the initial quarter. Carson reeled off a substantial gain with a quarterback sneak to score for the "Collegians" in the next stanza and the count rolled up to 10 to 0 for B.C.I. Doug Mott's subsequent attempted placement missed, but the oval rolled over for a point and the half-way mark found B.C.I. having scored 11 and Albert none.

"Buster" Donnan fell on a loose ball that B.C.I. had fumbled on their own ten. On the first play Donnan fired a forward into Bailey's arms for a touchdown. In the third quarter Donnan skirted right end and scored another touchdown for Albert making the count 11 to 10, but the homesters could not gather in another count to gain even a tie. B.C.I. is now firmly entrenched on the top rung of the league ladder and regardless as to future developments cannot finish any worse than a tie with the St. Mikes' "Irish."

The line-ups:

Belleville Collegiate — Snap, Rogers, wings, Sills and Graham, quarter, Carson, halves, Mott and Thompson, subs, Smith and Brown.

Albert College — Snap, Pringle, wings, Bailey and Chatson, quarter, Anderson, halves, Dobbin and Donnan, subs, Higgs, Kennedy, Caldwell and Christian.

Referee—Homer Townsend.

Between the Lines

with
Ken J. Colling

A. M. Burns, secretary of the North Hastings Baseball League, writes to assure us that Francis McCaw, the goalie from Barry's Bay this corner made reference to last week, is really outstanding. "McCaw had a splendid record in the nets last season and I believe with the proper coaching he would be afforded in Belleville, he might go far as a hockey player," writes Mr. Burns, as he adds that McCaw is only 17 or 18 years of age. Others speak highly of McCaw also, so if the lad is of junior age no doubt "Toots" Holway would jump at the opportunity to get McCaw for a trial. Gordie Cook, who minded the twine for the Belleville juniors for the past three seasons is overseas with the C.A.S.F. and his spot must be filled before the O.H.A. junior campaign commences.

We understand Bill Cook and Claude Tice will represent the Belleville juniors at Saturday's 51st annual meeting of the O.H.A. Just what grouping the local juniors can hope for is their major problem today. The Trenton juniors will be seeking a berth in the Lake Shore group along with Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Peterboro, but the Trenton interests are seeking to retain their junior "C" status. Belleville played junior "B" last year, having stepped up from a "C" rating of the previous season when junior hockey really boomed in Belleville. Coach Holway is in favour of reverting back to the junior "C" ranks, which would mean only two players over 18 years of age would be permitted, under the O.H.A. regulations. Of course with Queen's and R.M.C. out of O.H.A. competition this winter, no doubt Wally Elmer's Kingston Lions will be seeking a grouping, after refusing outsiders a berth in their compact junior group for years past.

Local hockey mentors should remember to seek transfers for all new players as soon as possible. Incidentally when the provincial hockey moguls meet Saturday they will vote to change the junior residence rule from Jan. 1st to Nov. 1st of the current playing year, which means any junior whose 20th birthday occurs between Nov. 1st. 1940 and Jan. 1st. 1941 will be eligible for junior hockey this season. Such legislation would add two months to the junior playing age limit. There are a few proposed minor changes to the playing rules to be discussed, but the major amendment is regarding the wartime regulations, which the hockey moguls are agreed should give all leeway to players in military service. As a matter of fact the residence rule will be entirely suspended for all players engaged in active military service of any kind.

Reginald (Hooley) Smith has established a new record for longevity in the N.H.L. "The Holligan" is at present in his 17th consecutive season under hockey's big tent and has already shadowed Auriel Joliet's record of 16 years in the N.H.L. During his professional hockey career, which began at Ottawa 17 years ago this month, Smith has scored 209 goals, made 216 assists for a total of 425 scoring points, which includes an even dozen major league play-off games in which he participated. In 1927 Smith was sold by Ottawa to the Montreal Maroons for a sale price of $22,500. Hooley played for the Canadian Olympic championship team in 1924. No doubt Smith will pass the 1,000-minute total for penalties this year, as Smith served 999 minutes in his first 16 seasons. In the 1926-27 season Smith spent 125 minutes, or over two full games, watching his teammates from the penalty box. No doubt he will finish the present season to establish a new hockey durability record.

Do you remember when lightweight boxing champion Benny Leonard outpointed Sailor Freedman of Chicago in an eight-round non-title bout at Philadelphia 19 years ago today. The title was not at stake because both were fighting overweight.

"Speedy" St. Louis' Belleville Reliance pucksters are in Kingston this evening meeting the 3-47th Battery sextette. 'Twill be something like 'old home week' for the artillery lads, many of whom hail from Belleville and environs.

Coach Eddie Schrieder had the B.C.I. senior Interscholastic gridders out to a full two-hour scrimmage practice yesterday working on a pass defence set-up. The entire squad reported in the pink and now that Schrieder has returned to head the "scarlet scourge" the boys are imbued with renewed vigor and are anxiously waiting to get at Bill Brown and his Bowmanville henchmen on Saturday.

Reports that the Bowmanville gridiron is not of regulation size do not seem to be worrying the local kids now they have Coach Schrieder back to encourage them.

unless the C.R.U. takes a hand.... That is if they beat Balmy Beach and Argonauts .... New Control- Sport Spice — Ottawa Rough Riders tossed a monkey wrench into Freddie Hamilton's plans to play an East-West Dominion football final in aid of the Sports Service League. .... The Rough Riders say they will not participate ler Hamilton is seeking the good graces of the C.R.U. to put their stamp of approval on a proposal that would make a mint of money for our soldier boys' sports fund ...."Speedy" St. Louis is seeking the services of a defenceman from the Airport, as Harry McCreary may take his military training now.....Harry sails the Great Lakes all summer and will get his military training period in during the winter, which leaves St. Louis minus a defenceman.

ADMITS ERROR

W. H. "Red" Friesell, who was referee in the Dartmouth-Cornell football game at Hanover, New Hampshire, and who now admits he was in error in permitting Cornell the ball for what was a "fifth down" in the dying minutes of the ball game, that "5th down," proven by movies taken of the game, gave Cornell victory by 7-3. Cornell has agreed she scored her winning touchdown on an illegal play and has congratulated Dartmouth for the 3-0 victory. The Dartmouth triumph snapped the Cornell winning streak of 17 games.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of letting these conditions become chronic. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hem-Roid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hem-Roid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk a chronic pile condition when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Hi-Yo Silver"

Carrier pigeons were used with great success, both by the North and the South, during the Civil War; and they are used during the telling of "Hi-Yo Silver," Republic's first full-length Lone Ranger feature now playing at the Capitol theatre.

The story is unfolded in Texas immediately following the war between the States and the pigeons were used by the Texas Rangers to send messages to their headquarters.

In addition to The Lone Ranger, "Hi-Yo Silver" has a cast of Western favorites that includes Lee Powell, Herman Brix, Chief Thundercloud, Lynn Roberts, Stanley Andrews, George Cleveland. William Farnum, and the wonder horse, Hi-Yo Silver.

The added feature is "Queen of Mob."

When FBI men crack down on "Ma" Webster and her gang, action, drama, suspense, excitement are the results. And the results can be seen in "Queen of the Mob" the new Paramount picture based on J. Edgar Hoover's book, "Persons in Hiding." With Ralph Bellamy, Blanche Yurka, J. Carrol Naish, Jean Cagney, William Henry, Richard Denning, Paul Kelly and James Seay heading a large cast, the narrative tells how two FBI men are set on the trail of "Ma" Webster and her gang after they have committed a kidnapping. It shows this strange creature, "Ma" Webster, a mixture of maternal tenderness and ruthless shrewdness, leading her sons to commit crime after crime. And it shows how the FBI men contrive to corner her, make her and her gang hounded creatures. James Hogan, maker of many stirring dramas, directed.

To complete this great double action bill, Universal's News Events is shown as well as the serial "Tim Tyler's Luck."

"River's End"

The Northwest Mounted's most exciting man-hunt begins this week and at the Belle Theatre when James Oliver Curwood's "River's End" crosses the screen. Starring Dennis Morgan George Tobias and Elizabeth Earl, the Warner Bros.' thriller tells a dramatic tale of civilization's last outpost—and the scarlet-coated Mounties who rule it.

Sergeant Conniston didn't know it but he was starting out on the strangest case in the history of the Mounted when he set out for River's End, the Dodge City of the North. He was searching for John Keith, an escaped murderer, fighting his way through the silent snows to freedom. And waiting at the end of the trail was a girl fearfully awaiting the winner.

Adapted from James Oliver Curwood's greatest adventure story, "River's End" is certain to please movie-goers everywhere.

"Young People," Funny

Bubbling - over with mirth and melody, and with Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood sharing the fun, "Young People," new 20th-Century-Fox hit announced as the companion feature attraction, has been heralded as the most enjoyable of all Shirley Temple's twenty-two pictures.

"Young People," is Shirley's first musical picture in two years. There are five top-notch songs cleverly blended with the plot in "Young People." The unusual story deals with troupers Jack, Charlotte and Shirley who decide to retire from the stage in a small New England town.

A star of the stage for many years, Charlotte Greenwood, who plays Shirley's foster mother in the film, sets off her famous elongated legs to good advantage. Opposite her is funster Jack Oakie in a role that provides ample scope for his well-known antics.

Sharing the romantic lead in "Young People" are beautiful Arleen Whelan and rugged George Montgomery. Kathleen Howard is also featured.

"City For Conquest."

Since its opening "City For Conquest," the Warner Bros. film, has played to capacity crowds at all performances, with the "standing room only" sign out for the evening showings. According to the management the film has broken all previous attendance records for the past season.

James Cagney, and Ann Sheridan are co-starred at the head of the cast of "City For Conquest" with Frank McHugh, Frank Craven, Donald Crisp, Arthur Kennedy, George Tobias, Jerome Cowan and many other noted players in the featured and supporting cast. The film is based on Aben Kandel's novel.

"City For Conquest" is now closing its successful engagement at the Belle.

"Angels Over Broadway"

When Ben Hecht tells a story or writes a play or directs a motion picture the end result is entertainment of the highest order . . . a story gripping in its intensity, a play heightened by a masterly knowledge of the dramatist's craft, a motion picture which brings to the screen the very best of the many arts involved . . . writing, acting, photography, music. Such a motion picture is Hecht's "Angels Over Broadway," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who coproduced the film with Hecht, is starred as the strictly "percentage" guy who never in his life has done a decent thing. Rita Hayworth is cast as the girl out of nowhere, hunting her little niche amid the lights of Broadway; Thomas Mitchell is the philosophic writer, and John Qualen is the little man bent on suicide who suddenly finds himself involved in the most amazing adventure of his life.

In bringing these characters to the screen, the splendid cast supplies performances as fascinating and as human as the basic narrative itself, performances both moving and memorable.

Hecht's direction adds materially to the film, Lee Garmes' photography and George Antheil's music contribute greatly to the brooding tenseness of the story to the rich tenderness of the romance.

"Angels Over Broadway" definitely is a "must" picture!

Charles Starrett

"West of Abilene," Charles Starrett's new musical-western is also now showing at the McCarthy in addition to "Angels Over Broadway," making the entire program most satisfactory entertainment for every member of the family.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO BE SAME AS NAMED LAST YEAR

Will Review Defence of Canada Regulations Respecting Enemy Aliens

ACT DEFENDED

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP)—A House of Commons committee to review the Defence of Canada Regulations under which subversive elements and alien enemies in this country are interned will get down to work as soon as Parliament resumes after the Christmas recess, Justice Minister Lapointe said today.

Mr. Lapointe announced in the House Wednesday that the special committee which studied the regulations last year will be re-established. Finance Minister Ilsley, who served as chairman last year when he was Minister of National Revenue, is expected to be in the chair again this session.

"The committee members want him to be chairman again this session," Mr. Lapointe said today. "He is a lot busier man now than he was last session but he promised me he will act." Mr. Lapointe added the personnel of the committee would be nearly the same as last session when it studied the regulations behind closed doors for many weeks.

Regulations Defended

A stirring defence of the regulations was made in the Commons last night Arthur G. Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) who last session took an active part in revising them. While admitting some amendments might be desirable he said: "It would, in my view, be a dangerous thing to relax our regulations."

Mr. Slaght said attacks were being made in many parts of Canada against the regulations, the principal attack being that they were contrary to British justice. People who voiced this complaint failed to recognize that the Canadian regulations closely follow those in the United Kingdom.

Changes Urged

During the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, several members of the House have attacked the regulations on the ground they are too severe and do not make sufficient provision to enable innocent persons to prove their innocence.

The new House Committee will have before it the representations of members of parliament and various organizations which have communicated with Mr. Lapointe.

The Civil Liberties Association of Toronto, headed by B. K. Sandwell, has written leaders of the government and opposition parties in the Commons and Senate urging several changes in the regulations, particularly to ensure that interned persons get a speedy review of their cases and adequate opportunity to defend themselves at such hearings.

The Association's letter stated that regulation 21 empowered the Minister of Justice to intern persons without trial or without any of the ordinary safeguards of appeal and publicity. On the other hand, regulation 22 provided for appointment by the Minister for a review of the case of any interned person who applies for it, such application to be disposed of "promptly and justly."

Serious Delay is Charged

The letter said that "it appears to this Association that a very serious delay is developing in the disposition of these cases. Nor is the reason far to seek, in view of the fact that only two advisory committees, one French and one English have been set up to deal with the entire list of cases."

The Association urged that instead of two committees, each consisting of one person, there should be a large number of committees to dispose of all the applications with reasonable speed, each committee to consist of not less than three persons.

The Association also lodged several objections against the existing system of conducting the hearings. The interned persons asking that his case be reviewed should be given sufficiently definite particulars of the grounds on which his interment was ordered to enable him to bring rebuttal evidence.

3 Canadians In Royal Air Force Awarded D. F. C.

London, Nov. 22 (CP). — Three Canadian officers of the Royal Air Force were awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross today. There was no citation but it is understood the awards are for general good work.

Report Uruguayan Minister May Quit Over Criticisms

Montevideo, Uruguay, Nov. 22 (AP) — Foreign Minister Alberto Guani was reported today as likely to resign as the result of a debate in the senate in which members of his own party assailed his handling of negotiations for United States assistance in building air and naval bases in Uruguay.

The debate followed recent approval by the cabinet of negotiations with the United States for aid in building bases which would remain under Uruguay sovereignty but which would be available to other American nations in event of aggression from outside the hemisphere.

(The issue has provoked reaction in Spain, where newspapers have assailed "cession" of bases as "suicide" for Uruguay. Madrid students yesterday in a demonstration shouted "South America for South Americans".)

DESERTER FOUND IN CHURCH

Cleveland, Nov. 22.— (AP)—A man found hiding in a church here today admitted deserting the Canadian army, police reported. Detectives Paul Robinson and Michael Gyongyos said he gave his name as Theodore M. English, 18, formerly of Flint, Mich., and confessed he left the army because he "did not like the treatment" he received. He told the detectives of joining the Canadian forces July 29 at Toronto, they said, but expressed determination to resist returning. Robinson said English reported that a companion deserted with him Friday but they parted at the border.

UNWANTED UMBRELLAS

Seattle, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Bothered by an accumulation of unclaimed umbrellas, officers of the Ferry Boat Santa Rosa put them into a show case with price tags prominently affixed to each. "What we have in mind", purser Ed Johnson said, "is that if the owners see their umbrellas for sale in this showcase they will make a beef and reclaim them" (no charge for this service).

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE.

When she took her hand away, North smiled a little.

"My dear," he said gently, "I think you realise that I would like nothing better than to go away. I've no intent to stay single forever . . . but, well, this is no time to discuss such matters. You see," — his deep-set eyes were earnest—"I've got to convince myself that no stone has been left unturned to prevent what your country may want to bring about." His eyes dropped to the belligerent headlines. "You see, I was in one war, but I haven't yet gotten over it. However,"—somehow he could not bring himself to definitely sever that bright thread of hope—"if—if—"

"If what?" challenged Nadia Stefan. He made no reply but took from his pocket a square of neatly folded white paper and pushed it across the table.

"If I can't answer what that means—and a few other things. I wonder if you can tell me what it means?"

Serenely, Nadia gazed at a copy of the mark which the lampblack had brought out on the murdered girl's shoulder.

"That?" Nadia's calm manner had vanished quite abruptly. "Why it's the symbol of the O.G.U. Where did you find it?"

"In a book somewhere," North replied with an almost boyish grin. But silence fell when he saw coming into the patio a stout individual with a close-clipped gray mustache a suspicious pink face, and a suit which none but a Latin Continental would wear. In this personage's wake trotted a somber, sad-faced person, probably a paid companion or a private secretary. After them hurried an obsequious Chinese head waiter.

The plump newcomer remarked, while rubbing shrewd brown eyes which were frankly pouchy beneath the lower lid. "Now what do I see here?" His jaded expression vanished with his recognition of Nadia Stefan who, too late, had pretended not to see him.

"What a pleasant surprise, my dear Nadia!" the Frenchman cried with a breathless enthusiasm as he bent to kiss the rosy fingertips imprisoned in a powerful white hand.

"Ah, Monsieur Dunant, really, I—"

Dunant! The third member of that association! North cheered inwardly.

"This, Armand," Nadia said, "is Mr. Nevins—Howard Nevins, a famous big game hunter."

Now Hugh North was not a captain of intelligence because he was unobservant, and he missed little of the byplay which followed: Nadia Stefan, silently imploring M. Dunant to caution; Dunant, flushing as though surprised in an indiscretion —which indeed he was; Dunant, too late, attempting to clamber up on a pedestal of formality as he hurried to say:

"A pleasure, monsieur—and you, dear Nadia, I trust you will remember me to those delightful friends of yours? No doubt we shall see each other,"—he stressed—"if war does not break out. Bonjour, mademoiselle, and good-day to you, Mr. Nevins."

Then the great man hurried along to a table at the far end of the room, where his lugubrious companion was anxiously awaiting him.

As Armand Dunant passed, not a few of the early breakfasters in the patio craned their necks for a second glance at this world-famous figure.

When Nadia's eyes met North's again, all the tenderness had fled from them, and the intelligence captain threw down his napkin with a sympathetic laugh. After biting her bright lips an instant, Nada relaxed with a little shrug.

"Is it not wonderful how men who have so much brains in one direction can be so hopelessly stupid in others?" And she glared at the financier's gray-clad figure; then abruptly caught up her bag and got to her feet.

"Alors, mon Capitaine, remember what I say—from now on I shall fight you with every weapon in my possession—until one or the other of us triumphs."

"I wonder," North murmured, "why you use the future sense?"

Since Nadia seemed to expect it, he arose and kissed her hand with all the delicacy of a born and bred Continental. Outside a newsboy was shrieking: "WAR CLOUDS GATHER AS JAP SQUADRON NEARS HAWAII!" "ARMY, NAVY LEAVES CANCELLED!"

Nadia Stefan, Armand Dunant. . . . Mentally he began to forge a chain of names, adding one link after another. "Nadia—Dunant—von Rentner — and" — he hesitated — "Polk? I wonder. Well, it's quite a team when you tuck in Captain Karen — a hard-looking bird if ever there was one. Wonder when he got these bruises?"

He tested the consolidation. So far there had been nothing but friendly connections between the names, but when he introduced the dead girl, Teodora, the tranquil aspect of the picture abruptly altered. What had happened to introduce Kanamura into the picture?

While waiting a rendevous with Kanamura, Teodora had vanished with the bruised sea captain instead. Tantalizingly, an idea hovered just out of reach — bruises and oily clothes. . . .

On Teodora revolved the crux of the situation. It was clear that Phedre Renoire, Kanamura, and someone else had been interested in her, perhaps for widely divergent reasons.

For whom had that note in Teodora's hair been intended? Probably for Kanamura—at least everything pointed that way. What did the words mean? None knew. Mentally he rehearsed the message—

"Beware Gorgon I Fourteen Maui Must Destroy TM."

Cryptic, to be sure! Why had Teodora's nude body come in to Polk's float? And that enigmatic Gorgon?

North, sorely puzzled, got up to join Kilgour at the boat-house dock.

Beneath his panama's brim, Captain Hugh North's eyes were searching as they surveyed the little Filipino fisherman's rather simian-looking visage.

"You are sure," he demanded with disarming casualness, "that they left this pier only last night?"

The brown bent figure nodded a gloomy assent.

"Si senor, we here of Kaanapal do not understand it." He flung calloused and toil-warped hands far apart in an angry gesture. "Por Dios, we poor fisher people are likely to be ruined—all of us here have contracted our fish for this accursed Red Moon Company and the season is about to begin."

Kilgour, standing to one side, had tilted his sun helmet on the back of his head the better to view the placid green-blue bay, dotted here and there with fishermen's huts and edged with clumps of bright green foliage as North continued questioning the fisherman.

"How long ago did they come here, amigo?"

'Senor, I cannot say," replied Pablo Gonzales.

"Approximately, then."

"A month, si, easily a month. We thought it was a great day for us when Senor Karen and his queer Japanese came to Kaanapal."

Kilgour abruptly ceased his patient inspection of the rugged volcanic heights to ask, "What do you mean by 'queer Japanese'?"

Pablo sputtered, "No sabe, maybe I wrong; they look Japanese but do not talk like Japanese."

North made no comment but asked, "So this Red Moon Company was going to buy all your fish?"

Almost tearfully the Filipino assented. "Pero si, only next Monday they were going to begin to buy—everybody ready. Red Moon people give us supplies, nets, and much, much oil, gasoline, and grease for our boats. More than we need all season."

North's eyes narrowed at the word "oil"; thoughts of Captain Karen and his blond companion, in oil-stained clothes, came to mind. The English intelligence agent inquired: "How much oil, Pablo? Was it little cans, big cans, or drums?"

The Filipino made a wide gesture with his arms.

"No entiende 'drums', but oil came in cilindros big like that — much, much oil. And food, too, they kept in there." The speaker flung outraged hands towards a large ramshackle go-down which covered the landward end of the pier. "Now all gone and we of Kaanapal ask why."

"Just when did they take the supplies away?" parried Kilgour.

"Early last night small steamer, trawler, came to pier. We in huts thought she bringing nets Red Moon Company promised."

Kilgour and North looked up in unison.

"Early?"

"Si—about nine 'clock."

"Hum," Kilgour remarked. "That's odd, eh, Hugh?"

"It is. And who was boss of this Red Moon?" North asked.

"Senor Karen, big white man with mustachios."

"As things now stood, a part of the mystery had been removed when Pablo Gonzales identified Captain Karen as "boss" of the Red Moon Company.

But Captain Karen and his "queer Japanese" had disappeared for parts unknown. Could they be relocated?

The intelligence captain produced and held a fifty-dollar bill before Pablo's eager gaze.

"Now remember, hombre," he warned in flawless Spanish, "flies cannot enter a mouth that is shut. See this? It is yours. Now, amigo, we want your help; this Red Moon Company has deceived us also. Now if anyone who was with the Red Moon comes back to Kaanapal hurry to Lahaina, and send me a telegrama as soon as you can."

"Si, senor. My brothers and I shall not sleep for watching the bay. We will telegraph."

(To be continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in ma's room wattching her getting ready to go out with pop, and she said, Oh deer, it's taking me longer than I thought, and I still have my hat to put on, and if I dont get it on just so, it looks just so awful. I suppose your father is practically ready. Oh deer, if he's ready before I am for once in his life he's never get through crowing about it. See what he's doing, Benny, and engage his attention for a few minutes while I finish here, she said.

Wich I went to do, and pop was in the bathroom finishing shaving his face, saying, Confound it I had no idea I'd have to shave again, this is going to make me late and your mother will be still further entrenched in her erroneous notion that only the female sex is capable of being ready on time. Have you seen your mother lately, what's she doing, he said.

She's thinking about putting on her hat, I said, and pop said, Yee gods that sounds bad, Run back there and engage her in a little airy percyflage till I get a chance to hustle through, he said.

Well G, pop, gosh, I said, and pop said, I'm in command here, it's yours but to do or die, so get going and do.

Meaning no arguments, and I went back to ma's room and ma said, What are you doing back so soon. I thought I told you to keep your father occupied?

Well jimminy, I mean G roozlem, I said, and ma said, I dont care what you mean, when I instruct you to do something, I want that to be the first law of the land for the moment.

The result being I went and slid down the bannisters quiet, and pretty soon pop and ma came down together on their way out, without either of them saying anything about having to wait.

Proving it must of ended in a tie.

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 22 —(AP)— The stock market shifted gears from the reverse to first speed forward today and selected issues rallied fractions to two or more points.

Buying was principally concentrated on Steels and Specialties. Dealings, lively at the start, dwindled as the session proceeded and, near the fourth hour, top quotations were shaded in many cases.

Better acting shares included those of U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible Steel, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Certain-Teed and International Paper preferreds, Sears Roebuck and Anaconda.

Hiram Walker and Lake Shore Mines, in the Canadian stock list, advanced small fractions while Canadian Pacific held unchanged. Canada 4s, among Bonds, dipped 1-8 point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP)—Local listings showed no inclination today to trail New York's moderate advance. Prices remain practically unchanged. Volume was small at 90,000 shares.

Narrow gains for golds involved Kerr-Addison, Preston, Pickle Crow, Wright Hargreaves, Upper Canada and Kirkland Lake.

Noranda was lower and Jack Waite was off 3 to 34. Home Oil gained 8 cents to 2.55 and Extension Oil was down 2 to 18.

Industrials recorded few changes. Bell Telephone firmed ½ to 158 and British American Oil was down ¼ to 18½.

Quiet Trading On Produce Market

Toronto — Quiet trading imparted further weakness to fresh egg prices on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, while dealings in butter were practically at a standstill with most members of the trade attending the annual convention of the Ontario Creamerymen's Association being held here.

Although the tone was easy on top grades on the egg market, undergrade eggs met good demand and prices held steady. Fresh receipts arrived in sufficient volume to satisfy local requirements.

Prices were about nominal on the butter market because of the small amount of business transacted. Offerings were not heavy as sellers were not pressing for sales. Ontario No. 1 grade creamery solids remained at 30 1-4 cents a pound.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 22—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 30 1-2c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases offered at: A large, 46c to 47c; A medium, 41c to 42c; A pullets, 36c to 37c; A large original, 30c to 31c; B original, 28c to 29c; C original, 23c to 24c. Receipts, 1,692 cases.

Mail for Soldiers On Ship 'Understood' Sunk Recently

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP)—Post Office officials said Thursday they "understood" the Canadian Steamship Beaverford was sunk in the Atlantic recently, and if that were so a number of bags of mail addressed to Canadian soldiers serving overseas would be lost. Many parcels of tobacco and cigarettes were included in the mail shipment, it was said.

This has been announced by the Post Office by way of explanation as failure of parcels and letters sent by this vessel to reach soldiers would naturally give rise to complaints from soldiers who were expecting them or from their families and friends in Canada, who would not receive acknowledgement of the letters and parcels understood to be lost.

Weekly Livestock Report

Toronto, Nov. 22—(CP) — Cattle prices were steady on killers this week at the Livestock Market here and 25c or more lower on stockers. Calves, lambs and sheep were steady. Hogs opened 50c to 65c lower and held steady for the balance of the week.

The cattle run was the heaviest so far this year. Stockers in the supply totalled 2,300 head of which about 700 were unsold at the close along with 1,000 plain killers from eastern and northern Ontario. Weighty steers sold at $6 to $8.25 with a few choice loads at $8.50 to $8.75. Good butcher steers and heifers sold at $7.50 to $7.75 with top light steers at $8. Common butchers sold downward to $5.50. Boning steers and heifers sold at $4 to $5. Butcher cows were $4 to $5.50 with canners and cutters at $3 to $3.75. Butcher bulls sold at $5 to $5.50 and bolognas at $4 to $4.75. Fed calves ranged from $8 to $10.50 according to quality.

Stockers were very slow at $4.50 to $6.75 for the majority. Picked stock calves sold on Monday at $7 to $7.50. Good forward springers sold up to $95 each. Other milkers and springers sold from $45 to $85 each.

Calves were steady at $10 to $11 for choice vealers with common heavies and lights downward to $6. Grassers were $5 to $5.50.

Hogs opened 65c down on dressed sales at $10.75. Live sales were 50c lower at $8. The market was unchanged for the balance of the week. Sows were $4.50 to $5.25 dressed.

Lambs were steady at $9.50 to $9.75 for good ewes and wethers with one car of good westerns at $9.90. Heavies and bucks sold at $8.50 to $8.75. Culls were $7 to $8. Sheep were unchanged at from $2 for culls up to $5.50 cwt. for good light ewes.

AMERICAN GIFTS BOARD NAMED

Will be Sole Channel for Recommendations for Allocation of Shipping Space for Gifts From U.S.

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—An American Gifts Committee, headed by Sir Ronald Lindsay, former Ambassador to the United States, and including representatives of voluntary war relief organizations, has been formed as the "sole channel for recommendations to the Minister of Shipping for allocation of shipping space" to gifts from the United States.

All appeals from British organizations for American gifts must be submitted to this committee, whose formation is expected to be followed by creation of a similar coordinating organization in the United States.

The British committee also will "advise on offers of gifts from America" and "review the needs of the United Kingdom which can be relieved by such gifts."

BASKET FACTORY DAMAGE HEAVY

Loss to Section of Merritt Bros. Plant at Grimsby May Reach $100,000

Grimsby, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP)—Damage that may total $100,000 was caused early today when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the manufacturing section and veneer storage building of the Merritt Bros. Basket Factory here. As daylight came firemen were still pouring water on the smouldering ruins.

Nearby buildings were endangered as sparks and flaming pieces of wood were carried by a high wind. Men were stationed on the roofs of adjoining structures with buckets of water to douse the incipient fires.

The fire department quickly responded to the call but the blaze had made great progress before it was discovered. The fire apparently started on the second floor while the night watchman was on the ground floor and the first warning was when he saw sparks falling.

Fire Chief Alfred LePage had a narrow escape from injury as a heavy piece of cement fell from the wall nearby and a falling girder clipped the front of his helmet.

FIRST CLASS TO GRADUATE

Somewhere in England, Nov. 22 (CP).—The first class from the officers' training unit for the Canadian Active Service Force overseas graduates tomorrow.

About fifty privates and non-commissioned officers will receive their commissions as lieutenants at the ceremony, which will probably be attended by Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

The course, lasting from three to four months, is taken by men chosen by senior officers for leadership ability and all-round military capacity meet them on certain matters were not fair to the council.

Ald. H. J. Clarke's Views

In order to fill efficiently the office of mayor of a city, an alderman should have more than one year's experience, Alderman H. J. Clarke stated, in withdrawing his name from the list of nominees. Referring to the Queen Mary School addition, he declared that this was not the time to float a $100,000 loan, as the city should bend every energy to one purpose, that of helping to win the war. The addition to the school is necessary, Alderman Clarke stated, "but this is not the time to do it."

He advocated the selection of city chief magistrates along the lines of county councils. "These men, elected by their constituents, select their own head, as a reward for public service."

Ex-Mayor Bone Speaks

Ex-Mayor Jamieson Bone told his listeners that the reason of the so-called lack of public interest in the civic elections was not the fact that they were not advertised so much as the public knows the affairs of the city are in good hands. He had appeared at the nominations at the request of several citizens to place before the prospective candidates for the various offices a letter which had failed to appear in the local press, "because, in its wisdom, the newspaper had adopted a policy not to publish statements prior to an election which would tend to sway public opinion."

Alleges Injustice

"Before, during and since my two year term as Mayor of the City of Belleville, I have tried to bring before the public certain grave injustices of government. These acts of omission and commission have made Canada and the United States during the past ten years the two great lands of hope deferred, for a great many million honest anxious workers.

"Vicious confiscatory legislation has been enacted piece by piece that has largely destroyed credit and the profit incentive, and has as a natural sequence driven capital out of the country. With these things have gone the building trades, the workers' jobs the railways' freight and everything else constructive.

"Yes, we have the war, and with it came thousands of jobs, political and otherwise. But what shall we do when the war is over? We need not look for overseas markets for our wheat and other products.

Utility Question

"At the moment however, I want to speak chiefly on the Public Utilities question and may say that I cannot understand why the council ever brought the matter to a public vote. Their doing so means that they have lost confidence in our Public Utilities commissioners. And since the Mayor is always one of the three commissioners, it means that he and the Aldermen have lost confidence in themselves. What difference would there be in the Mayor running the Utilities (water and gas) as a Commissioner or as a Mayor. It could only result in inefficiency.

"Mr. O. H. Scott is an upright and efficient manager, and a man who enjoys the complete confidence of the public.

The Gas Plant

"The gas department was a perfect nightmare of inefficiency, waste and extravagance. During 1920 the city spent somewhere around $80,000 for rehabilitation, and again in 1929 we threw about a quarter of a million more into this taxpayers' sinkhole, with no apparent result. Our gas costs are so high and our electric rates so low, that the one must inevitably give way to the other, as the horse and buggy to the automobile.

"Why our property owners should support this incubus longer, is more than I can understand. If there be any person or group of persons who will take this utility over as a private enterprise, I am sure they can acquire it at salvage prices. To those who are so keen about it I say go ahead and make a fortune out of it. You have our very best wishes, but you cannot continue to squander our money.

In my opinion your utilities could not be in better hands. Did not the 1939 council urge Mr. Scott to take over everything else in the city besides? They surely did, and I would be interested to know why this sudden change of viewpoint in one short year.

"If the gas and water utilities go back under city management it will be a most retrograde step".

Charles L. Hyde is Candidate

It was not his intentions to indulge in any personal controversy, but his motto would be "Onward and forward to a better City", Charles L. Hyde stated, in announcing his decision to contest the majoralty. "I do not intend to hold any postmortems or inquests over the past. There is a greater issue, that of helping to win the war, and all of us must make a definite contribution to the result." He felt that the 1941 council should make some specific contribution to the general cause.

He believed he said, he had a policy, whereby the city tax-rate could be reduced to 35 mills, with the assistance of the city's very efficient comptroller (Mr. Harold Bateman).

Reestablishment of the Belleville Fire Department into more suitable locations would be one of his policies, Mr. Hyde stated. He also confirmed Mayor Bone's remarks regarding the Public Utilities Commission and state that it should be left where it is, by all means.

The council is primarily responsible, he continued, for industrial expansion, and he will promote a commission to promote industry.

Mayor's Reply

"If Mr. Hyde will guarantee a tax reduction to 35 mills, I will withdraw my name right here and now and give him an acclamation," Mayor Thompson declared in his reply. The tax reduction in 1940 was the biggest in a number of years, and if Mr. Hyde can reduce the tax rate six or seven mills, why did he not do it when he was a member of this council. It cannot be done," Mayor Thompson declared, although Mr. Hyde may have some ideas as to how to do it. For that matter so have I."

Referring to Mayor Bone's charge regarding the gas-works, the chief magistrate stated that petitions had been received from influential men of the city begging council to take back the Utilities." If the gas works is closed it will be one of the worst things over to happen to Belleville."

No Axe to Grind

He had no axe to grind with the Public Utilities, the mayor continued, "but I do not want to see the gas works closed. Manufacturers in Belleville, at least some of them, are absolutely relying on gas, and one firm engaged exclusively in the production of war materials would not have located here had gas not been available"

"If we want to hold out inducement to other industries it will be to our advantage to keep the works open, and before this war is finished we may be very thankful that we have the gas to fall back on.'

Chairman Woodley stated at this point that tax reduction would be impossible until more debentures are retired. In reply to Mayor Thompson, Ex-Mayor Bone stated that he had stated his private opinion only regarding the Public Utilities. "The business end of it is alright, but the non-business end is with the council, and I won't help pay for it."

Discussion regarding the Public Utilities and its connection with City Council waxed heavy at this point and Raymond Zufelt, a spectator, demanded to know "if the Commission can't make it pay how can the Council do it?" The mayor, in reply, stated that the Gas Works had paid dividends during the past few years, and it should be carried on to help pay the taxes and assist Belleville industrially and also help to re-establish the boys when they come back from the front. If it will do that then I am all for it," he said.

No Discussion is Claim

Commissioner Clifford Baragar assured the meeting that no discussion regarding the closing of the gas plant had taken place within the Public Utilities Commission. Its policy was to operate the plant as long as it was on a self-sustaining basis and as long as the people desired it. The question as submitted to the ratepayers, he said, would have been better had it asked them if they were willing to carry the works on at a loss rather than ask them to vote on its transfer to the City Council.

The tax burden on the city would be $12,500 annually until 1960 for interest on debentures. Ex-Alderman Harold Armstrong stated during the discussion. Since the gas department went to the Public Utilities, fifty per cent of its users dropped off. The petitions from the people, he said, stated clearly what they wanted.

Council had never asked to have the Public Utilities back, Alderman Clarke stated. He added that if Mr. Hyde can reduce the taxes six or seven mills "we will all throw up our hands." Savings must come from the debentures.

Second Draft Of Trainees Called for Duty

Many Belleville and district young men were among the 22-year-old recruits, numbering 2,250 who reported for compulsory military training at the three military training centres in Military District No. 3 at Cornwall, Brockville and Peterborough on Friday morning, November 22.

Col. P. H. Gardner, M.C., district officer in charge of the training, has stated that the training would be similar to that which was given the men of the 21-year-old group. He stated that the scheme of training had worked out very satisfactorily, both from the standpoint of the officers in charge and that of the men. He explained that the whole background of the training was, if possible, to make the recruits enjoy army life and in this they had been very successful. Before the leaving the camp, members of the 21-year-old class to the number of about 600, signified their intention of joining the C.A.S.F. and made formal application for enlistment.

In the period of training starting now it is expected that the best part of the first day will be spent in the medical examination of the men, outfitting them, and then assigning them to the hut which will be their home until December 22.

Saturday morning, November 23, the "new soldiers" will hear the bugle call for the first time officially at 6.30 o'clock. They will have to get up, wash and shave and be ready for breakfast which will be served in the mess halls, commencing at 7 o'clock.

After breakfast the men will have to make their beds and be ready for inspection. The first drill will take place commencing at 8 o'clock and for the next four weeks there will be 55 periods of 45 minutes each of military training, which will include drill, lectures and route marches.

Life is expected to be just a little more pleasant for this group than for the 21-year-old recruits, in view of the fact it is intimated they will be permitted week-end leaves. For the first two weeks of the previous training, the 21-year-olds were not allowed to leave their training centres, other than to go downtown during certain hours in the evening.

DUBINSKY FIGHTS ROCK CONVENTION

Charges Executive Council Had Repudiated Pledges Made to Him

New Orleans, Nov. 22 (AP)—The dream of a quiet business session that had enveloped the American Federation of Labor Convention has been broken by David Dubinsky, unperturbed today after three fist fights and bitter charges he made against gray-haired chieftains of the group.

Police-guarded and nursing a bruised lip, Dubinsky, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, charged the Executive Council, the guiding body of the A. F. of L., had repudiated pledges made to him as part of the conditions under which he returned to the organization.

Dubinsky returned to the A. F. of L. fold last June after deserting the Congress of Industrial Organizations which he helped found following his departure from the A. F. of L.

He charged the A. F. of L., while talking of making peace with the C.I.O., was actually creating a "war chest."

He said that because of a measure he introduced at the Convention here to outlaw racketeering from unions he was attacked by Joseph Fay, Vice-President of the operating Engineers' Union and a "red-headed" man.

Fay, who admitted a "brawl" with the five-foot four-inch Dubinsky, said the "argument" started when he blamed the garment workers' leader for helping organize the C.I.O.

The two "promises" which Dubinsky said were made to him by A. F. of L. President William Green but repudiated by the Executive Council were:

A two cent per capita tax on all members instead of the present one cent per capita tax and a special one cent assessment on each member; and stripping the Executive Council of its present power of suspending a union.

Appointed Organist And Choirmaster Of Galt Church

Mr. Charles R. Kilgour, formerly organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, has been appointed organist and choirmaster of Central Presbyterian Church, Galt, Ont., and commenced his duties last Sunday. Central Presbyterian Church possesses an excellent three-manual Casavant organ of 38 stops. The organ is comparatively new and was installed in 1923.

When Mr. Kilgour left Belleville last May he intended to go to England to study at the Royal College of Music and to do some post graduate work either with the University of London or to attend Oxford University to continue his musical studies, but the war interfered with the plans.

INVADERS RETIRE

pell mell farther south, near the centre of the 100-mile front, an announcement said.

As a result of this break in the Italian line, the Greeks were said to be threatening Argirocastro, a second advanced base only 30 miles from Porto Edda. Porto Edda is one of the bases used by the Italians to supply their Albanian army from the sea.

Koritza and Argirocastro were the two springboards whence the Italians launched their invasion of Greek territory before dawn on Oct. 28 after an ultimatum that was served on the Greek Government at 3 a.m.

Greek communiques and military spokesmen have given this picture of the campaign that followed:

At first the Italian advance was rapid, and Italian columns drove through the narrow defiles of the mountains toward Phlorina and Salonika, the strategic Aegean port 120 airline miles away.

Rear Threatened

But sturdy mountain fighters of the Greek army began sharpshooting them, blasted them with mountain artillery, and then sent detachments in small boats across Lake Presba at night and threatened their rear.

The advanced Italian columns soon were forced to begin a retreat before fierce Greek bayonet charges, and then a methodical encirclement of Koritza began, with the Greeks slowly hammering at the fortified mountains which girded the town.

For nearly a week some of the heaviest fighting of the conflict raged about Mount Morava and Mount Ivan, with the Greeks dislodging Italian artillery and infantry from their positions, one by one.

Planes Assist

Slowly the Greeks gained the upper hand, and brought under artillery fire the only two roads, one to the southwest and one to the north, by which the Italians could relieve the garrison.

British and Greek planes assisted in harassing relief columns, but in recent days bad weather interfered with aerial activities.

For several days Greek military spokesmen had been forecasting fall of Koritza. While the town has a population of only 22,000, it is the third largest in Albania, and was strategically located for an Italian invasion of Greece, since it is at the junction of the few roads leading from Central and Southern Albania through Northern Greece to Salonika.

Given to Newspapers

News of the Greek victory reached the Army General Staff here at noon and a short time later it was spread to the public by the newspapers.

Crowds marched through the city's streets, cheering. Premier John Metaxas was given a great ovation when he paused on the steps of army headquarters and announced the news to hundred gathered before the building.

There were no details of the fate of the Italian forces which defended Koritza, but it was reported that a large number were captured.

(Yugoslav border reports said the Greeks met no resistance in the city, the Italians having retired to the west during the night.)

A Government spokesman said that before the day is over there may not be "a single Italian left in Greek territory".

So swifty and so deeply were the Greeks said to have followed the receding wave of Italian invasion that their trucks could not keep up in the Albanian Mountain wilderness and Greek and British planes dropped food to the Greek vanguards.

The Greeks said their forces were at the gates of Koritza, Italian base ten miles inside Albania, and were forging ahead against weak opposition toward Argirocastro, about 30 miles from Porto Edda on the Adriatic.

Aerial observers reported the Italians were abandoning Koritza along roads covered by Greek mountain guns and other reports said Italian resistance before Argirocastro was so shattered the advancing Greeks virtually were unopposed. The collapse was attributed to several demoralizing breaks through the Fascist southern front.

(Reports from the Yugoslav border said last night that Greek advance guards were reported entering Koritza after a hard battle.)

Large Supplies Captured

At both these menaced centres the Italians had amassed huge stores of supplies for their armies.

"All over the front, fighting continued throughout the day and our troops scored further successes," a General Headquarters communique early today described yesterday's action.

"We took 15 guns, of which seven were heavy artillery pieces, four anti-aircraft guns, dozens of machine-guns, many Howitzers and all kinds of material, also foodstuffs and fuel depots.

"Our aviation carried out successful reconnaissance flights and bombing of battlefields."

A Government spokesman emphasized that the Greek offensive was no pell-mell chase but a methodical advance. He said it was being pressed cautiously on a predetermined plan and that the Greeks were wary not to let themselves be drawn out too far.

Recapture of towns and positions "for creating an impression," he said, is of secondary importance; "our army is interested in victory."

The Greek Home Security Ministry accused the Italians of pillaging the town of Igoumenitsa when they withdrew from it, of shooting two residents and taking others as hostages."

Admit Loss of Koritza

Rome, Nov. 22 (AP)—Italian troops retreated from Koritza, main Italian base in Albania, ten miles from the Greek frontier, the Italian high command admitted today.

The withdrawal of the Italians took place after considerable losses were suffered during 11 days of fighting, the communique said.

Greek losses were claimed to have been at least as great as the Italian.

Italian reinforcements are attempting to establish a new line, the high command said.

The communique also reported bombardment of Fascist positions along the Egyptian coast by British warships and a British aerial bombing of the Italian fortified island of Lero in the Dodecanese group.

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—British military circles today described the Greek capture of Koritza, key Italian base in Albania, as "of considerable military importance," but they cautioned against regarding the Italian defeat as a rout.

The Greeks are fighting on Albanian soil throughout the Pindus area, south of Koritza, authoritative sources said, and there are indication of "an extensive break in Italian resistance" in the Epirus sector, still farther south.

BRITAIN PLANS

R.A.F. officer said the big four-motored craft also might be used for nightly bombing "ferry service" to Berlin and added that all the signs point to an early opening of widespread air war on Italy, with the comment that the United States-made aircraft "are the babies to do it with."

The Speech from the Throne yesterday emphasized satisfaction over United States aid to Britain and added that relations "could not be more cordial." It declared the British Empire would keep on fighting "until freedom is made secure."

Optimistic Messages

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in the House of Commons and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, in the House of Lords, delivered optimistic messages.

Lord Halifax said "certain proposals" had been made for a trade agreement with Russia which Britain had "some reason to believe" would be acceptable. Other proposals, of a "general character," particularly with reference to the Baltic states, also have been made by Britain to "establish greater confidence" in political relations between the two countries, he said.

Commenting on the British war effort, Prime Minister Churchill declared, "We have a long road to go...... Up to the present this war has been waged between a fully-armed Germany and a half-armed or quarter-armed British empire. We have not done so badly."

Attack "Invasion Bases"

R.A.F. fliers meanwhile attacked at Lorient, Cherbourg, Dunkerque and Ostend Wednesday night, adding the great German inland port of Duisburg-Ruhrort. The Air Ministry News Service said the latter attack "must inevitably have disorganized essential traffic and destroyed indispensable raw materials."

The Ministry also reported air victories in Africa and Albania. Ten Italian planes of a formation of 60 were shot down without a British loss in an air fight over Eastern Libya. In Albania the R.A.F. blasted hangars at Tirana, the capital, and wharves at Durazzo, main Italian support port, a communique said.

Official sources in London said today that all British bomber operations scheduled for last night were cancelled because of "unfavorable weather conditions."

HOPE HEIGHTENS

All six members of the crew bailed out of the ship, after it ran out of gas. The plane had been unable to land at a Maritime base because of weather conditions, and was trying to reach Montreal on a failing gas supply when it crashed. Leblanc was the last man out of the plane.

Joined by U S Bombers

As ground crews and R.C.A.F. planes continued the search today, they were joined again by nine big twin-engined United States bombers, operating out of Montreal. The big ships had made a hurried trip from Langley Field, Va., to join in the search.

All day yesterday, ground crews fought their way through thick bush toward the spots where they believed the missing men might be found, while overhead at least thirteen planes roared in relentless search.

After the planes had scoured the country from dawn to dusk yesterday, crews of the U.S. bombers said that they had sighted a cluster of three parachutes, about three miles east of the southern tip of the lake and just within the international boundary.

The fliers also reported sighting a bigr fire, with three men standing around it, but they were unable to determine whether the men below were airmen, or one of the numerous search parties operating in the area.

CAUSE OF BLAST AT NOBEL STILL IS UNKNOWN

Coroner's Jury Investigating Death of One of Three Men Killed Brings in Open Verdict

OFFICIALS TESTIFY

Parry Sound, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP)—Cause of an explosion at the Defence Industries, Limited, munitions plant in nearby Nobel Monday night remained a mystery today and company officials continued their efforts to find out what brought about the blast.

A coroner's jury investigating the death of Gerald Hamell, 39, of Nobel, one of three men killed in the explosion, brought in a verdict of accidental death late last night after company officials and employees testified they could not explain what happened.

The coroner, Dr. A. J. L. Wright, said the jury's finding in the Hamell case would apply to the other blast victims, James Pickles, of London, Ont., and A. D. Leger of Montreal.

Technical evidence told that the explosions occurred in the TNT division and apparently the initial impetus for the blast came from a blower case in the No. 2 Building.

G. M. Anderson, superintendent of the TNT division gave his opinion that the explosion was caused by "some decomposition" in the blower case, "the reason for which we have been trying to find out." Acetylene welding in the adjoining building had not caused the blast.

Puerto Ricans Aid in British War Relief

Mrs. O. A. Marshall, 110 Bridge Street, has received from Mrs. F. J. Garffer, of San Juan, Puerto Rico, clippings of the Puerto Rico World Journal, published at San Juan P.R., showing the deep interest in British war relief work in that capital. The British War Relief Garden Fete held recently at the Garffer estate attracted the largest group of people seen at any affair in Puerto Rico in many a year. Representatives of Army, Navy and government vied with business men and other British sympathizers in buying chances for every imaginative article.

Mrs. Garffer says: "The fete was very successful. Considering the fact that it rained very hard for two hours, we took in $3,500 and $400 more was made on the sale of cigarette cases and vanity cases with the British emblem on them. So the president sent a cheque for $3,900.

"Everyone was jolly and happy and it was quite a success for such a small British colony. The French consul came to and a great many French people living here, besides Danes and Norwegians."

The invitation to the fete was in red, white and blue with the British escutcheon bearing the British lion and motto "Dieu et Mon Droit."

Frank Hulsman Wins Identification Contest

Versatility of the junior farmers of Hastings County was evidenced at the Junior Farmers' Conference on Reforestation and Conservation held in Orono this week, when Frank Hulsman, Marmora Junior Farmers Club, won a tree and wood identification contest from 70 young farmers, representative of Zone 4 of the province. Hulsman garnered 37 out of a possible 42 points.

Accompanied by Agricultural Representative H. L. Fair, a large delegation from Hastings attended the convention. The zone includes the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, Victoria and Ontario.

The convention was featured by addresses given by A. F. Coventry, University of Toronto; W. H. Porter, London, secretary of the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association, and Dr. J. B. Reynolds, past-president of the O.A.C. Guelph. Work of the Ontario Forestry Branch and various phases of junior farmers work were among the subjects of discussion.

Among the Hastings junior farmers in attendance were:

SPITFIRE BADGES SENT TO U.S.

Beverley, England, Nov. 22 (CP)—The mayor of this East Yorkshire town sent 2,000 "Spitfire badges" today to the mayor of Beverley, Mass., for sale in the United States in reply to a letter asking how to aid the fund for purchase of Spitfire fighter planes for Britain.

ANOTHER CHURCH WRECKED

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—The French Church of Notre Dame De France in Leicester Square was wrecked by high explosives in a recent air raid on London. Permission to report this was given today.

The War Today

(By Guy Rhoades)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Greece appeared today to be on the verge of ousting the last Italian invasion trooper while the Italians themselves were in danger of suffering loss of their conquered Albanian territory.

The Italian war on Greece emerged as perhaps the most decisive flop of the war. For days—in fact for a couple of weeks—observers shook their heads and said what the Greeks appeared to be doing was impossible. Many held their breath and waited for the Greeks to fold up.

It appeared inconceivable that a little country of roughly 9,000,000 persons could stave off the army of a nation roughly five times as big, but weather and physiography helped. The Italians attacked through a steep country and after they started rain, snow and other foul manifestations of nature helped balk them.

The Italians also appear not to have trained their mountain troops adequately, or to have made such a bad job of their Fascist rule that morale of their army has sunk low.

The Greeks undoubtedly have had the advantage of defending a territory they know, but they also have had the advantage of defending their homeland. And it is a poor man indeed who will not fight for his own acres, his own home or his own family.

Another advantage the Greeks appear to have had is their dependence on hand-to-hand fighting rather than on machinery in which the Italians, presumably studying German blitzkrieg tactics, had adopted.

So fast was the Italian flight taking place that today the Greeks were forced to bring up cavalry and other speedy mobile troops to keep up with them.

The whole episode appeared a striking example of unenthusiasm of a people sent to conquer with no heart nor inclination for the job. The average Italian undoubtedly would die willingly in defence of his country but he does not appear eager to die seeking to carve up someone else's country.

So angry and eager were the Greeks, however, to avenge the insult to their soil by the Italians that they chased the foe to the outskirts of Koritza and Argirocastro, their main bases, and announced they thought that by the end of the day there may be not "a single Italian left in Greek territory."

The Greeks were so hard pressed to supply their troops on account of the rapid advances that they enlisted the aid of the British Royal Air Force as well as their own to drop food and other essentials to their ground forces as they sped after the fleeing Italians.

Meanwhile the Axis, sighting a dismal failure in the Greek episode, sought to bolster its stock with diplomatic manoeuvres with Rumania, already virtually a Nazi country. Rumanian diplomats popped into Berlin for the usual sort of conference—the "sign-or-else" variety.

Germany undoubtedly would be delighted to gain the outright allegiance of Rumania with her considerable oil fields, the largest in Europe, but the advantage would not be without reservation, for Germany now cannot haul away the total amount of oil she has purchased from Rumania.

Rumania's people would definitely be divided in any sort of loyalty to German and the majority possibly would be secretly hostile.

Moore of Transradio Accuses Dies Committee of Unfairness

Says Certain Disclosures Misrepresent Legitimate Connections With Nazi News Service

CONFORM TO LAW

New York, Nov. 22 (AP)—Herbert Moore, President of Transradio Press Service, said last night that the Dies Committee "in its zeal to combat subversive influences, has made public certain disclosures which have the unfortunate effect of mispresenting the entirely legitimate connections which have existed between American Press Services and German News organizations."

The Dies report released in Washington yesterday, Moore said in a statement, was "sprinkled with mention of the names of American Press Services, although the Dies Committee does not, even by inference, accuse any United States news organization of unAmerican activity."

"On the contrary," Moore said, "it is well known that Transradio and other American news Services have scrupulously guarded against all kinds of totalitarian propaganda although they have by necessity maintained working press agreements with German and other foreign news agencies.

"Whether for reasons of haste, or lack of funds, the Dies committee did not make a full investigation of these foreign news relationships nor did it respond to offers of full co-operation in its important and valuable campaign against alien propaganda activities."

Moore said a "flagrant error" could be found "in that portion of the Dies report referring to the arrangements between Transradio Press Service and Transocean of Berlin."

"A Mr. Arthur Quisenberry, identified as an employee of Transocean, is referred to in the Dies report as a member of the board of directors of Transradio Press Service," Moore said. "This is an equally obvious falsehood. The Mr. W. G. Quisenberry, who is a member of the board of directors of Transradio Press Service, is not related in any way with Mr. Arthur Quisenberry."

Moore said that arrangements existing between his organization and Transocean were similar to those existing between Transradio and British and French news agencies. He said those arrangements were known to competent federal authorities and conformed to the standards laid down by ethics and law.

Speculation As to Identity Of French Warship

Algeciras, Spain, Nov. 22.—(AP)—Naval sources speculated today on the identity of a French battleship which was reported to have surrendered to the British authorities at Gibraltar last night.

Reports reaching here said the vessel was one of the 22,189-ton Paris class, of which France had two at the outbreak of the war, the Paris and the Corbet.

(London naval sources said they had no information on the reported surrender).

A possibility existed that the warship either had been incorrectly identified—if a surrender had taken place—or that no surrender was involved, the Free French forces instead making use of a French battleship already in their hands.

The only completed and seaworthy French battleship remaining at large after the British attack on the French fleet at Oran, Algeria, July 4 was the 26,500-ton Strasbourg, which escaped to Toulon.

Three other battleships — the Paris, Courbet and Lorraine—were reported to have fallen into British hands after the French-German armistice.

SENTENCED FOR LOOTING

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—Six auxiliary firemen were sentenced today to serve five years in jail for looting from bombed property. Four soldiers also were sentenced to varying terms ranking up to nine months for the same offence.

DOVER SHELLED

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—German guns on the French coast shelled the Dover area today. No casualties were reported.

PHILIP MURRAY ACCLAIMED AS C.I.O. PRESIDENT

Succeeds John L. Lewis Who Calls Murray, 'Industrial Statesman'

LEWIS' ADDRESS

Atlantic City, N.J., Nov. 22 (AP).—Philip Murray today was chosen president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations by acclamation. He succeeds John L. Lewis who retired after five years as president.

Lewis, stepping down as he promised he would do if President Roosevelt was re-elected, placed the Pittsburgh labor leader's name before the convention as that of his choice as successor.

Murray is an "industrial statesman" who has established a "brilliant record", Lewis said.

"For three decades he has contributed of his great energy to labor without self-consideration," Lewis said.

"He has served this Congress of Industrial Organizations and served it well as a leader, administrator and councillor, and as an industrial statesman."

Lewis declared the C.I.O. had built up "a proud record of accomplishment."

NAZIS 'DISMISS' DIES REPORT

German Spokesman Says Germans Are Hilarious Over Charges

Berlin, Nov. 22 (AP).—An "authorized" Nazi spokesman asserted today that the Dies Committee report is worth "exactly three short laughs".

(The Dies report charged the Nazis with a scheme of propaganda, espionage and planning in the United States.)

"Jokes may be divided into two categories, good and bad," their spokesman said. "If the joke is a poor one . . . it is customary to react to it with three short laughs. That's what we do to the Dies committee report."

Beyond that remark there was no official or semi-official comment.

The "authorized sources" said, however, that they wanted foreign correspondents "to share Germany's hilarity over the report". They had translations of what was supposed to be the Reuters News Agency summary of the committee's findings made into several languages and invited correspondents "to take their choice".

2 NAZI BOMBERS ARE SHOT DOWN

The Number of Casualties Very Light, Says Air Ministry

London, Nov. 22 (CP)—Two German bombers were shot down over England today, an official announcement said, when Nazi raiders returned to the attack after having smothered by bad weather last night.

A village in the English home counties and a southeast coast town were struck by German bombs, the Air Ministry said, and some houses were damaged, "but the number of casualties was very small."

The bomber which attacked the village was shot down and another was destroyed off the southeast coast.

Last night's German attacks began with a violent assault on the midlands and a great western port, but tapered off because of the weather.

Vessel May Have Sunk Following A Collision

Port Colborne, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP)—A report from a diver who inspected the hulk of the Canadian freighter Anna C. Minch, lost during a heavy storm on Lake Michigan Nov. 11 and 12 with 21 lives, indicates that the vessel sank following a collision.

The diver reported to the Sarnia Steamships Ltd., operators of the Minch, that he found a hole 20 feet square in the side of the vessel, which rests in 40 feet of water, 400 yards from shore near the pier at Pentwater, Mich.

It was suggested here that the Minch might have been engaged in rescuing the crew of another ship when the heavy seas carried the first stricken vessel into the side of the Minch.

NEW DRUG FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Rochester, Minn., Nov. 22—(AP)—Mayo Foundation doctors have under investigation a new drug of the sulfanilamide group, called promin, as a possible tuberculosis remery.

Trials in guinea pigs with experimental tuberculosis have appeared promising the doctors, W. H. Feldman, H. C. Hinshaw and H. [illegible] Moses, said today.

Hon. Eric Cross Gives Reasons For Resignation

Toronto, Nov. 22 (CP).—Speculation in Ontario legislative circles today was centred on possible candidates for the portfolios of municipal affairs and public affairs to be vacated by Hon. Eric Cross next Jan. 1.

Mr. Cross announced late yesterday he had given his resignation to Premier Hepburn, effective Jan. 1, but that he would retain his seat as member for Haldimand-Norfolk. Business reasons were given for his decision, which co-incided with the enlistment of his law partner in Simcoe, Lt. E. H. A. Carson, in the Royal Canadian Artillery.

In a brief statement, the 36-year-old minister said: "I have felt for some months that it would be necessary because of business reasons for me to retire from public life and I have accordingly submitted my resignation to the prime minister to take effect the first of the year. Any further comment should come from him."

The name of J. M. Cooper, 40-year-old member for Sudbury, another lawyer, was mentioned prominently in Queen's Park circles after it was known Mr. Cross's portfolio would be vacant.

Mr. Cross was born in Madoc, Ont., son of a lawyer, and is a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, where he was a Gold Medallist in economics.

Gen. Pershing Declines To Take Post at Vichy

Hyde Park, N.Y., Nov. 22—(AP)—President Roosevelt disclosed today that he had asked Gen. John J. Pershing to become United States Ambassador to the Petain-Laval government at Vichy, France, but that Gen. Pershing had declined on the advice of his physicians.

The 80-year-old Commander of the United States armies in France in 1918 has been in poor health for several years.

Mr. Roosevelt told a press conference that he had not yet accepted the resignation of William C. Bullitt, Ambassador to France. The resignation was submitted on November 7 and he said the stage had not been reached for discussion of some one else as a possible successor to Bullitt.

The President said he had felt that since Gen. Pershing knew Marshal Henri Petain from their association in the last war, the two would understand each other.

British Bombers Pounce on Stavanger

London, Nov. 22—(CP) — Lockheed-Hudson bombers pounced on the German airfield at Stavanger, Norway, this morning in a destructive attack which was "as slick as it was heavy," the Air Ministry announced today.

Amplifying a brief communique on the raid, made by the coastal command, the Air Ministry's News Service said:

"The first aircraft to arrive prayed the airdrome and its buildings with incendiaries and those which followed added greatly to the destruction with a variety of bombs.

"Lines of fires were started. From some of these blue flames shot high after staccato explosions. The targets still were burning nearly an hour after the bombing ended.

Meanwhile new blows against Germany and Italy were planned.

U. S. Aid to Britain Near Peak Under Present Conditions

Hyde Park, N.Y., Nov. 22 (AP)—President Roosevelt indicated at a press conference today that, under present conditions, United States aid to Britain is near its peak. He said that everything possible is being done at the present time.

Two weeks ago Mr. Roosevelt laid down a rule of thumb under which Britain and the United States would share 50-50 in United States production of planes, guns and other war equipment.

Asked today whether, in view of the recent acceleration of German bombings of English communities, that rule could be altered to give more help to Britain, the President said the question was altogether too general. If someone could point out specifically how it could be done it might be a different story.

He challenged anyone to show him the way planes could be built faster and said the Government can't pass a bill or issue an order and get planes the next day.

2 R.C.A.F. Members Killed Near Ottawa

Ottawa, Nov. 22 (CP) — Two Royal Canadian Air Force men were killed today when their training plane crashed on a farm near Hammond, Ont., 22 miles east of Ottawa.

R.C.A.F. headquarters said names of the men could not be disclosed until next-of-kin had been notified.

BAD WEATHER HALTS NIGHTLY AXIS AIR RAIDS

Night Described as Quietest the Island Has Had in Month

HEAVY A.A. FIRE

London, Nov. 22 (CP) — Bad weather was credited by Britain today with smothering the nightly Axis air assault on Britain after a violent beginning in which the Midlands and a great western port were the principal targets.

As a result, the night was described as one of the quietest the island has had this month.

At least two towns in the Midlands were attacked in the early part of the night. Liverpool had two short raids. London also had two alerts during the night, the first ending around midnight and the other shortly after dawn, but Londoners heard no activity save the slam of British guns.

Some raiders harassed the northwest, southwest and Midland areas, but few untoward incidents were reported and the government said the raiding activity was widespread but "on a small scale."

Most bombs were reported to have fallen in rural areas, causing no damage. A communique asserted "very few casualties have been reported."

GREEK, BRITISH PLANES HARASS RETREATING ARMY

Italians Bombed and Machine-Gunned as They Leave Koritza

Bitolj, Yugoslavia, Nov. 22—(AP)—Greek and British warplanes, following up the capture of the Italian base at Koritza, harassed Italians retreating westward today with bombing and machine-gunning attacks.

The Italians themselves sent over waves of planes to pound Koritza in an effort to slow up the Greek ground forces smashing at the heels of the Fascists. These attacks started a few hours after the Greeks marched into the town, 10 miles from the Greek frontier.

One low-flying British squadron, blasting an Italian column headed toward Elbasani, in Central Albania, was reported to have lost one craft, shot down in anti-aircraft fire.

Information reaching the Yugoslav border said the first Greek troops moved into Koritza at 5 a.m. today, followed four hours later by their main forces led by blaring bands.

A considerable amount of war material was declared to have fallen into Greek hands, although the border advices said the Italians managed to get out most of their stores.

VON PAPEN BEARS NEW PROPOSALS TURKS BELIEVE

May be Demand for Turkish Participation in "New Order"

PRESS DEFIANT

Istanbul, Nov. 22 (AP)—Franz Von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey, has arrived here by plane and was believed by observers to be bringing to the Turkish Government a German demand for Turkish participation in the Axis' "new order" for Europe.

Returning from conferences in Germany and Bulgaria, Von Papen was expected to proceed by train to Ankara, the Turkish capital, tonight.

Observers believed the proposals he carried from Berlin might involve a request for a Turkish pledge not to act if Bulgarian and German troops move to attack Greece for the relief of Italy.

Turkey intensified defence plans by preparing stricter army controls over the civilian population. Istanbul had its first full blackout last night.

Newspapers declared, "We shall not make war, but if war comes to us we shall not flinch. We are united—we are ready."

The newspaper Ikdam declared: "No one is able to say that Russia will accept easily a German attack on Greece which would carry German troops towards the Dardanelles. However, the consent of Russia would not signify that Turkey does not mean to defend the Straits. Turkey follows events, ready to defend herself with all her might."

REYNAUD, MANDEL TRANSFERRED TO ANOTHER PRISON

The Chateau, Where They Were Quartered, is Closed for Sake of Economy

Vichy, France, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Vichy government's last prisoners in Chateau Chazeron—former Premier Paul Reynaud and former Interior Minister Georges Mandel — have been transferred to Pellevoisin and the chateau closed for economy's sake, it was announced today.

The Chateau, requisitioned by the government last September, has held five former leaders of Republican France, Reynaud, Mandel, former Premiers Leon Blum and Edouard Daladier and Gen. Marie-Gustave Gamelin.

When indictments were handed down against Daladier, Gamelin and Blum by the Riom "war guilt" court, they were transferred to Bourrasol Manor. Reynaud and Mandel join others who have been placed under administrative custody at Pellevoisin.

Reported Bulgaria Advised by Russia To Stay Out of Alliance

Sofia, Nov. 22 (AP)—The Bulgarian government was reported by a high source today to have been advised by Soviet Russia not to join the three-power Axis Alliance.

Official quarters and the government-supervised press made no reference to the reported advice.

Bulgarian Leftists, representing a large section of the country's public opinion, also are quietly but firmly opposing complete capitulation to the Axis.

They argue that so long as Russia stays out of the tri-power pact and so long as the Soviet position in the international picture is not perfectly clear, Bulgaria, too, should stay out.

This does not mean, however, that Bulgaria will refuse other demands which Hitler is reported to have made on King Boris at their conference last Sunday. Even with Russia's sympathy, diplomats said, Bulgaria is not strong enough to refuse these.

Some diplomatic and military circles discredit the idea that Hitler and Boris agreed on a plan for immediate action in the direction of Greece. Bulgaria has less than 150,000 men under arms and there is no evidence of preparations for passage of German troops through the country.

Five Hundred Recruits Gather at Peterborough

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 22 (CP)—Five hundred recruits had passed through the gates to the military training camp here at noon today when youths of 22 years reported for one month's military training. Amongst the trainees who reported was Dr. Joseph A. Robertson of Campbellford who is practising medicine with his unit of Belleville.

As the medical board had only five men instead of six he was immediately drafted to the medical board and in a short time was examining trainees as they entered.

29,600 RECRUITS ENTER 39 CAMPS FOR TRAINING

Saturday Trainees Will Undergo First Full Day of Training

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—(CP)—Across Canada the second quota of militia recruits reported today to 39 training centres for 30 days' compulsory military training that will [illegible] something like 29,000 men to [illegible] rolls of Canada's Reserve Army.

The quota for the training period starting today is 29,600 men chosen from the age groups 21, 22 and 23.

The first training period started October 9, with most of the recruits coming from the 21-year-old class. Here and there some 22 and 23-year-olds were called in areas where the 21-year-old class failed to produce enough men to fill regional quotas.

The second training period will take care of those 21-year-olds subject to training under the National War Services Regulations who for reasons of seasonal employment on farms or other reasons for postponement of training, did not take part in the first training period.

As was the case during the first training period, the opening day is devoted to the routine of registration, medical re-examination and outfitting of the men with uniforms.

This will be the second medical examination for the soldier rookies. Their first examination was by a physician of their choice after being called for training. Before starting the teaching of the army's A.B.C.'s the Defence Department checks the men over again and this may reduce the total trained in the second period below the 29,600 quota.

Tomorrow will see the men taking part in their first full day of a training schedule that includes drill, bayonet practice, anti-gas protection, musketry and discipline and marching.

BOMB EXPLOSION SHATTERS CAFE

Huge Plate Glass Window is Intact After the Blast

Philadelphia, Nov. 22 (AP). — A bomb explosion ripped out the revolving doors of a midtown restaurant early today, shattered windows up and down Chestnut street, but left intact a huge plate glass window fronting the establishment.

There were no injuries and little damage was done to the interior. The restaurant (Stouffers) had closed at midnight.

The force of the blast jarred downtown Philadelphia, rousing hundreds of sleepers. A policeman half a block away said he was knocked to his knees by the concussion.

Fred Vollmer, manager, could ascribe no motive.

Martial Law Declared in Area About Dardanelles

Observers Believe Von Papen Brings Near-Ultimatum

Istanbul Paper Says Turkey is Not Seeking Fight, But Will Fight if Necessary

Ankara, Turkey, Nov. 23 (AP)—Sections of Turkey surrounding the strategic Dardanelles, which straddle the land route from Europe to the Near East and Africa, were under martial law today because of "the general political situation."

The Turkish government ordered Corps General Ali Riza Atuo-Kalin, commander of Gendarmerie, to take charge of these districts last night only a short time after German Ambassador Franz Von Papen returned from Germany, presumably with a virtual ultimatum that Turkey affiliate with the Axis' "new European order"

A government announcement said "the Prime Ministry and Council of Ministers as a result of its deliberation November 8 have deemed it necessary to proclaim martial law . . for one month" in the districts of Istanbul, Kirklareli, Edirne (Adrianople), Tekirdag, Canakkale and Kojaeli.

Von Papen to Turkey

Observers expressed belief that Von Papen might be carrying a near-ultimatum proposal that Turkey, a friend of Britain, agree to stand aside in the event Bulgarian and German troos move to help Italy down Greece, another British friend.

Asked by Istanbul newspapermen if "normal relations" between Germany and Turkey would continue, the Ambassador replied: "I have no declaration of any kind to make."

The Istanbul press reiterated statements that Turkey, while not looking for a fight, would fight if it seemed necessary.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Science Service Meteorologist

Freezing! Thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit is commonly accepted as the freezing point of water, but this refers only to pure water, which does not exist in nature. Rain water may be mixed with many substances. In general, the freezing point of waters found in rivers, lakes and oceans is below 32 degrees. Sea water freezes at 27 degrees, because of the contained salt, but the individual ice crystals do not contain salt. Ground water also contains some salts and its freezing point is below 32 degrees—how much below depends upon the ingredients.

Fall of Koritza Causes a Lot of Red Faces in Italy

By DON GILBERT

New York, Nov. 23 (CP)—Whatever steps Nazi Germany may be planning to bail out Italy from her Greek flasco, events in the sixty-fourth week of the war made it clear that they are too late to save the junior partner of the Axis from a humiliating thrashing at the hands of the Greek mountain troops.

The coming week will tell how able are the Italian forces to prevent their defeat turning into a rout. With Koritza, the main Italian base in Albania, in Greek hands, defense of the secondary base to the south at Argyrokastro will be increasingly difficult, and with good luck the Greeks might conceivably threaten Porto Edda, the Albanian Adriatic port through which supplies and reinforcements are received from Italy.

If Germany acts in any attempt to put an end to Greek resistance, it will be through Bulgaria, and probably under the pretext of helping the Bulgarians obtain an outlet to the Aegean through Thrace. A few weeks ago Greek resistance to such a thrust, if made with the usual Prussian thoroughness, would have been considered hopeless, but no one underestimates now the fighting qualities of the Greek soldier and the generalshin of his officers.

That Bulgaria is involved in German plans was indicated by a visit to Hitler by King Boris. Next week Bulgaria is expected to join the Axis, as did Hungary this week. Germany's penchant for showmanship also moved her to summon representatives of two countries already occupied by German troops Rumania and Slovakia, to Berlin to "join", the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alignment.

Of all the Balkan countries, only Greece and Turkey remain firmly opposed to the Axis. Yugoslavia's position was considered doubtful.

While Hitler and his entourage concentrated on diplomatic activity this week, the Nazi Air Force sought to duplicate the previous week's devastation at Coventry with heavy attacks on Midland towns and ports, such as Liverpool and Southampton. The R.A.F. hit back at Berlin and at the southern ports of Brindisi and Bari in Italy. A hit on the liner Europa in Bremen harbor was reported, while production at the great Krupp armament works at Essen was declared cut in half by repeated bombings.

Britain began a new session of Parliament and heard a confident message in the Speech from the Throne, which was read, as in years of peace, by the King. Britain was cheered, too, by increasing support from the United States, the latest measure being the famed Sperry bombsight, which had been a military secret, together with twenty-six long-range bombers. In addition early transfer of twenty of the United States Army's huge "flying fortresses" was promised.

TURN ABOUT FAIR PLAY

Montclair, N. J. (AP)—Turn about is fair play, so Franklin Ernst and Tony Rocke, 11-year-old refugees from England are teaching their classmates at Montclair Academy how to wield a cricket bat. In return, the schoolboys are learning how to play American football.

TICKETED STOLEN CAR

Boston (AP)—It's bad enough to have your car stolen, but to get parking tickets because the thief leaves it overtime on a street—that's too much. Police, after hearing the protest of Albert Terkelson, said they would try to learn which officer ticketed the car without discovering it had been stolen.

STRAIT OF DOVER SCENE OF EPIC BRITISH VICTORY

Battle Over Strait Comes as Nazis Renew Raids After Night Pounding of Midlands

2 CENTRES RAIDED

Many Planes Take Part in 11-Hour Attack on 'Workshop Area' of Britain

London, Nov. 23 (CP)—A squadron of Spitfires today shot down seven Italian fighters and one German fighter in the Strait of Dover without loss to themselves.

The air fight came as raiders renewed their attacks on Britain after an intense overnight hammering of two west Midlands manufacturing cities in which a record number of planes appeared over that "workshop" area of Britain.

Churches, hospitals, convents and many dwellings and other buildings were riddled and piles of debris littered the two Midlands towns after the severe 11-hour attack.

Among structures shattered was a police station, hit directly, a post office, and a municipal building.

Casualties in Night Raids

Casualties were believed heavy. Rescue and fire fighting squads worked until daybreak quenching fires and digging out trapped victims.

This latest in a series of attacks on the Midlands began at 7 p.m. (2 p.m. EDT) and continued without let-up until 6 a.m.

Shortly after 2 p.m. today 12 Italian biplanes in close formation crossed the channel in bright sunlight and attempted to pierce the Kent coast defences near Dover Strait.

Italian Formation Driven Back

A curtain of anti-aircraft fire threw them back. The planes then swung down-Channel, seeking a gap in the defences, but the blistering fire forced them off each time and they finally passed from view over the sea.

At the same time a flight of invading planes crossed another part of the Kent coast at great height. Later other aircraft were reported over the midlands again.

The Italian planes and German Messerschmitts, which came simultaneously, flew at great heights, some more than 25,000 feet high.

When the R.A.F. attacked, ground observers said the sky was "full of planes" and that the Italians last were seen almost over the French cliffs.

COVENTRY RAID FAILED IN AIM

People Not Terrorized but More Steadfast Than Ever, Says Labor M.P.

London, Nov. 23—(CP) — Germany's destructive bombing raid on Coventry failed in its attempt to terrorize the people, Philip Noel Baker, Labor member of Parliament for Derby who formerly represented Coventry in the House of Commons, said Friday on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"The people of Coventry are more steadfast and determined than ever" Mr. Noel Baker said. "They want to beat the Nazis and they'll work even harder than before to help accomplish this defeat."

"The bombing of Coventry was no attack on legitimate military objectives," he continued. "The attack was made on the civil population. It was killing for the sake of killing. . . .

"I shall never forget the things I saw (at Coventry the day after the raid) and what the people told me. I can still see the silent rows of victims—women, children and old men."

Training of Armored Units To Take Place in All-Canadian Corps Now Being Undertaken

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Nov. 23 (CP).—Organization and training of armored units to take their place in an all-Canadian corps overseas is being undertaken with the aid of all the modern British science of mechanized warfare.

Every effort is being made to make the brigade one of the prides of Canada's growing army. The 52 officers and non-commissioned officers from the armored brigade who are in England now receiving special instruction are quickly picking up the advanced principles involved in their type of fighting.

Attached to various British armored regiments they go through battle manoeuvres, work on rugged tank training grounds and take lectures at special schools. They will return to Canada and pass on this accumulation of information to their units at Camp Borden, Ont.

One Canadian officer said that the over-age United States tanks at Camp Borden will be used exclusively for initial training and that specially designed Canadian-built tanks will be available for the armored units when they are ready for them. These tanks probably will be ones that could be used in actual combat.

WEARY SEARCH GOES ON FOR MISSING FLIERS

150 Men Tramping Woods Through Snow to Hunt for Men Lost From Plane

FRESH SNOW FALLS

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

East Lake, Que., Nov. 22 (CP).—Through forests thickly blanketed with new-fallen snow, more than 150 men tramped today in their weary search for three missing crew men of a Royal Canadian Air Force Atlantic patrol plane abandoned almost seven days ago.

Three other airmen who were forced to bail out of the plane last Saturday night after fourteen hours in the air are safe. PO. U. J. H. LeBlanc, the pilot, was lucky enough to land close to a nearby lumber camp. Lac. E. J. Benoit was taken to the same lumber camp yesterday by searchers who found him Thursday. Another search crew took AC Elmer Johnson to the settlement of St. Pamphile, Que., about 30 miles south of here, at the same time.

BELGIANS SHOW DEFIANCE TO NAZI CONQUERORS

When Jews in Rotterdam Ordered to Wear Arm Bands, Everyone Else Does Same

New York, Nov. 23—(CP)—The New York Times says today that according to messages "just received in prominent circles here" oppositon to the German conquerors is growing among the population of Belgium and the people "have undergone a revival of their old spirit."

Despite stiff German penalties, the Belgians in increasing numbers are reading underground newspapers such as Libre Belgigue and listening to prohibited British radio programs, says the Times.

"This opposition had a striking demonstration recently in Antwerp, where the Germans ordered all Jews to wear the six-pointed star of the Shield of David on their arms," it adds. "The Jews obeyed, but in a few days the rest of Antwerp's people joined them in a silent mass protest by crowding into the streets wearing the same armband — Gestapo agents proved powerless to meet this kind of situation and the Germans have tacitly dropped the matter."

JAPAN ABANDONS HOPE OF PEACE WITH CHUNGKING

High Japanese Sources Say Japan Will Acknowledge Nanking Regime as National Government

AXIS RECOGNITION

Shanghai, Nov. 23 (AP) — High Japanese sources declared today Japan would "recognize" the Tokyo-dominated Nanking regime of Wang Ching-Weias the "National Government of China" within the next ten days—possibly in prelude to a new Japanese drive in southeastern Asia.

These sources said the move would mean Japan had abandoned hope of making peace with the Chungking government of General Chiang Kai-Shek.

Recognition of the Nanking regime, set up last March as the "Chinese Central Government," would be intended to convince the Japanese public that the "China incident has been terminated successfully" before undertaking any new campaign, informed foreign sources said.

Expect Axis Powers to Recognize Nanking

These sources said Germany and Italy were expected to follow the Japanese lead, recognizing the Nanking government and exchanging ambassadors.

Hopes of peace were said to have collapsed because Soviet Russia repeatedly refused to discontinue aid to Gen. Chiang and because of the belief that Chiang would never discuss terms as long as such aid was forthcoming.

Foreign observers here believed Japan's next move would be complete occupation of French Indo-China, followed by pressure on Thailand (Siam.) Speculation also included the possibility of a Japanese attack on Hong Kong.

GERMANS URGED NOT TO TRAVEL

Appeal Shows Effects of R.A.F. Raids on Nazi Communications

London, Nov. 23—(CP) — Germans have been asked to refrain from travelling by train during the Christmas period so there will be "no interference with the railways' important duties," the British Broadcasting Corporation said Friday, quoting the German radio.

"The appeal shows the effect of Royal Air Force raids on German communications," the BBC commented.

The German broadcast quoted by the BBC said no one would be allowed to use certain trains during the Christmas period without special permission and asked that no "unnecessary" travelling be done either for pleasure or on leave.

NOT AN ITALIAN SOLDIER LEFT WITHIN GREECE

Cavalry and Highland Regiments Push Beyond Koritza

GREEKS JUBILANT

Vast Quantities of Guns and Tanks and Ammunition Abandoned by Italians Fall Into Greek Hands

Athens, Nov. 23 (AP)—Victory-cheered Greek Cavalry and Highland Regiments, claiming the route of six crack Fascist Divisions of at least 72,000 men, smashed beyond captured Koritza today for a quick test of Italy's second Albanian line of defence.

The High Command told a nation in holiday mood that its army had left "not a single Italian soldier in Greek territory" and was driving Italian lines of resistance deeper into Albania from north of Koritza to the sea.

The Greeks reported taking prisoners by the hundreds as they pressed forward on the heels of their foe and said uncounted military stores were seized—guns and equipment dumped by the fleeing Italians in such quantity that it clogged the mountain roads.

New Italian Line 30 Miles Back

(Dispatches from Bitolj, across the Yugoslav frontier, said battered Italian defenders of Koritza were fighting their way backward toward Pogradetz on Lake Ochrida, 20 miles north of Koritza. They said Pogradetz apparently was the left flank anchor of a new Italian defence line roughly 30 miles back from the frontier along the whole 100-mile battlefront.

Like Koritza, which Greek troops entered victoriously yesterday with bands blaring and soldiers marching over flower-strewn streets, Pogradetz guards the main road northwest past Elbasani to the Port of Durazzo, across the Adriatic from Italy.

Pogradetz Reported Fallen.

(The British Broadcasting Corporation carried a report last night from Belgrade that Pogradetz already had fallen to Greek advance units.)

The Greek high command declared its troops had completed the occupation of the Morava mountain range from which the Italians were shelled into retreat from Koritza, and of Mount Ivan and the ridge of Kaf-Karit northeast of Koritza toward Lakes Presba and Ochrida.

Vancouver Cartoonist Pictures Lighter Side of Life of Men Overseas

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Nov. 23 (CP)—A skilful drawing pencil with which 2nd Lieut. S. Sweeny of Vancouver portrays the lighter side of life with the Canadian troops has spread his fame as a cartoonist through the encampment.

In messes and offices at Headquarters Sweeny cartoons hang on many walls—usually the only decoration. The latest gem is a suggested emblem for the Canadian-British corps, showing Hitler in uniform hanging by a noose from a large numeral, the number of the Corps.

It's only a hobby with this youthful subaltern but with a fine touch for humor and light satire he has a wide following.

Lieut. Sweeny graduated from Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., in 1939 and came to England shortly before war broke out, joining the Royal Engineers. While at college he drew for the R.M.C. Review. He currently has adopted a simple line style in his drawing, similar to that used by Fougasse, Pseudonym used by the art editor of Punch, the English humor magazine.

Fougasse did those "careless talk" war cartoons frequently seen in Canadian buildings. He was in the R.E. in the First Great War and derived his pseudonym from a contraption used by the engineers for blowing up ground in front of advancing enemy.

One of Sweeny's cartoons shows a Canuck engineer sitting on a huge unexploded Nazi bomb, attempting to defuse it with a spoke and hammer. Another soldier stands by nonchalantly and remarks: "For the love of Mike, watch yourself—the head of that hammer is mighty loose.' '
'one-pipper' pumping heatedly along one-pipper" pumping heatedly along a highway on a bicycle—a jibe at junior officers of his own rank who find difficulty getting cars. He gives cartoon hints for air raids and makes sarcastic comments on the aim of Nazi bombers. A cartoon in this series shows a private in tin hat whistling gaily outside an air raid shelter with bombs falling from a plane overhead. It is captioned: "When a plane is directly overhead you are no longer in danger."

Dozens of such tidbits come off Sweeny's board. He also has done some pencil portraits of senior officers, including Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton.

Swing of Rumania Into Nazi Orbit Began Last June

Bulgaria, Slovakia, Which is Remnant Of Czecho-Slovakia, May Link Up With Axis

Berlin, Nov. 23—(AP)—Rumania sealed her bonds with Nazi Germany today by joining formally the expanding Axis bloc of treaty-pledged supporters.

Following Hungary into the bloc within four days, Rumania signed up as a member of the original Rome-Berlin-Tokyo 10-year military and economic allegiance made here last Sept. 27, an official announcement said.

By this diplomatic stroke, Germany pushed the Axis sphere toward the Near East to a point less than 250 miles from the vital Dardanelles. However, Nazi troops had already been in Rumania for several weeks.

Two other countries on the route "drang nach osten" (drive to the east) were expected to be the next to affiliate themselves with the alliance.

Protocol Signed

They were Bulgaria, which borders Rumania, Greece and Turkey, and Slovakia, the Nazi-protected remnant of dissolved Czechoslovakia.

Mackay Radio Picks Up Messages Ships Torpedoed

New York, Nov. 23—(AP)—Radio messages picked up by Mackay radio said today that two British ships and a Swedish freighter had been torpedoed about 400 miles off the Irish coast.

They were the Blairesk, 3,300 tons, the Tymeric, 5,228 tons and the 5,135-ton Swedish Anten.

The Anten radioed she had taken the Tymeric survivors aboard and was still afloat despite damage.

The Anten was built in 1920, her home port is Gothenburg. The Blairesk, out of Glasgow, was built in 1925 and the Tymeric in 1919 at Newcastle.

British Decree Covers Securities And Cash Legacies

London, Nov. 23 (CP)—American or other non-resident beneficiaries of British cash legacies may receive payment only on condition that it is made to a "blocked"—or government controlled — account, the Treasury has decreed.

The order also affects non-residents' receipt of profits from the redemption or proceeds of securities and real estate sales. Exempted are three per cent defence bonds and national savings certificates, the holders of which are free to exchange them for foreign currency.

"The purpose of this broad act," said the official statement, "is to prevent the transfer into foreign currency of certain capital payments to non-residents. The new regulation is not to place further restrictions upon sterling already in the hands of non-residents nor to disturb the procedure by which permitted transfers are made."

Sterling Speculation Restricted

The new law, which has the effect of restricting sterling speculation, also called upon persons and companies outside of the sterling area but under control of the United Kingdom to report all "gold, American and other specified foreign currencies, or American and other specified securities" they may possess.

This information is to be given "with a view of their being offered to the Treasury for sale."

Persons attempting to part with or pledge any specified assets without Treasury consent are warned that they may be committing an offence.

TWO ARE INJURED IN COLLISION

Condition of Two Montreal Men in Ottawa Hospital is 'Unchanged'

Ottawa, Nov. 23—(CP)—Hospital attendants today described as "unchanged" the condition of two Montreal men seriously injured in a collision between an automobile and a truck on the Montreal Highway seven miles east of Rockland, Ont., yesterday. Rockland is about 40 miles east of Ottawa.

Eric Donnelly, 17, of Montreal, is suffering from shock and possible fracture of the skull. William Coveny, 18, of Westmount, is suffering from head injuries. Extent of his injuries can not be determined until an X-ray is taken.

HAND INJURED IN WASHER WRINGER

Painful injuries were suffered by Mrs. A. E. Facer, 307 Foster Ave., on Friday when her hand was drawn into the wringer of a washing machine, causing a wound that necessitated 16 stitches to close. Mrs. Facer's condition was reported as being favorable this morning.

OLD ENGLISH VIOLETS PICKED AT WELLINGTON

Reminiscent of the quiet English countryside of pre-war days was a bunch of Old English violets, brought to the offices of this newspaper by Mrs. Wilfred Marvin of Wellington. The flowers were picked during the early morning from a plant that came from England. The delicate aroma of the small flowers was plainly noticeable and according to old countrymen of the staff, was a "breath of England" seldom seen on this side of the Atlantic.

Large Offering Of Chickens on Satur. Market

Prices remained practically stationary on Saturday's market with all produce being quoted at figures comparing favourably with those of last week and with a decided increase in attendance by vendors being noted. Eggs, after fluctuating widly in price a fortnight ago, have levelled off and were quoted at 45c per dozen for grade "A," the same as last week's prices. Other grades sold at 40c and 38c.

The offering of chicken was about the largest seen on the Belleville market this season, with prices remaining practically stationary at 25c lb. level. Large well-finished fowl weighing over six pounds were quoted at $1.65 with prices ranging downward to $1.00. Smaller birds were quoted at $1 to $1.25 per pair. A few ducks were offered also at prices approximating 25c per pound. Butter remained steady, selling at two pounds for 65c.

The display of apples predominated the outside market with winter varieties such as Spys, Snows and McIntosh selling at $1.75 per hamper or at 35c per six-quart basket. Talman Sweets were $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel and other cooking varieties sold at $1 for the same quantity.

Potatoes $1 Per Bag

On the vegetable market prices were steady with potatoes being offered at the usual price of $1 per 75-lb bag. Carrots, beets, parsnips, and turnips sold at 30c per peck and onions at 40c the peck. Sauerkraut was 10c per quart, cauliflower ranged downward from 20c each, beans were 15c per quart, butternuts 15c the basket and hickory nuts 25c per quart.

One lone butcher offered pickled pork at 20c per lb. sliced or in pieces at 18c. Sausage were 20c per lb. and headcheese 15c.

Whitefish were 20c per lb., herring 10c and lake trout 25c or 30c sliced. Perch were offered at 15c per dozen and suckers at three for twenty-five cents.

Young porkers were plentiful with prices a trifle easier, ranging from $3 to $4.50 each. One vendor displayed live ducks at $1.65 each. Stove wood ranged in price from $9 to $10 per cord for hardwood and $6 to $7 for mixed lots.

Jim Moore Given Acclamation for Twenty-Fifth Time

Adding another milestone to his long municipal career, Reeve James A. Moore, Elzevir Township, was afforded an acclamation by his constituents on Friday. The honor marks Reeve Moore's twenty-fifth acclamatory election to the head of the township fathers. He has had but three elections during his lengthy tenure of office, and his selection this year marks the 28th consecutive time has been selected to head the council. Reeve Moore has been chairman of the Hastings County Roads and Bridges Committee for the past seventeen years, and no doubt his council colleagues will again honor him with that position at the January session.

Other acclamations reported in the county include, John L. Bell, Marmora and Lake Township; James Nickle, Madoc Township and Thomas Fleming, Huntingdon.

'Christmas Inspection Night' Will Open Yuletide Shopping Season on Friday Eve, Nov. 29th

Belleville Merchants Will Have Merchandise On Display But No Goods Will be Sold That Evening

TREASURE HUNT FOR "SHOPPERS"

The forthcoming Christmas shopping season will receive an auspicious opening in Belleville this year when on Friday evening, November 29th., Belleville and district shoppers will be introduced to a novel new revelation in the field of advertising as Belleville merchants stage what they term as the original "Christmas Inspection Night." It will mark the official opening of a Yuletide shopping season which promises to far surpass, in volume of business done, any ever experienced in Belleville.

The idea of "Christmas Inspection Night" is definitely original with Belleville merchants as never before in Ontario or in Canada has such a novel idea of beginning the Christmas shopping season ever been attempted. It will be a night when Belleville stores, freshly decorated for the forthcoming Yuletide shopping season and with merchandise temptingly arranged, will be "on parade" before the critical eyes of an admiring public. Stores will be completely staffed for this unique occasion, all clerks will be in their customary places behind their counters, but for one night they will have nothing to do as the public will not be permitted to purchase one single item of merchandise—they will have come merely to "window shop."

No Sales That Night

Although Belleville merchants have agreed that on this special occasion their clerks will refuse to sell merchandise, nevertheless, potential customers will not go home from "Christmas Inspection Night" empty-handed. Not by any means. For in their determination to put this novel venture over in a big way, Belleville merchants have made "Christmas Inspection Night" a potential treasure hunt.

Hundreds of articles and pieces of merchandise will be given away absolutely free to as many fortunate customers. The names of these people will be picked at random and will include both city and county residents and will be pinned on articles of merchandise and placed in open sight in all stores. There will be gifts in practically every store, none of which will be under one dollar value, and a potential customer, when he sees his name on a free gift in one of the stores, need only to present his National Registration Card and if the name corresponds with that marked on the gift, any clerk will cheerfully wrap up the gift and present it to the lucky shopper.

Names will be Pinned on Articles

Treasure hunters will have no possible means of learning in which store their own name might happen to be pinned on merchandise, therefore it will be necessary for shoppers to visit every store in the city. Remember, claims for the gifts must be made on Friday evening, so come downtown on the make 'Christmas Inspection Night' make 'Christmas Inspection Night' and the forthcoming Yuletide season an outstanding success.

Cash Prizes Will be Awarded Schools For Best Floats in Santa Claus Parade

The 1940 edition of the Belleville Santa Claus parade scheduled for Saturday, December 7th., promises to be bigger than ever before, with more characters and bigger and better floats than have every been seen in Belleville before.

At a meeting of the Belleville Community Santa Claus Parade committee held Friday evening, the float committee reported that already $409 had been collected by popular subscription from local merchants and with more yet to come in. This money will be used to purchase costumes, to supply prizes and to aid in any other way in making the parade a success. The parade will be announced from the stages of all theatres in the city as well as through The Ontario Intelligencer.

In order to encourage the younger generation to take an especially active part in the parade, prizes totalling $50 will be offered to district schools for the best float entries. One half of this or $25 will be for schools of the city and the other half for rural schools. There will be three prizes in each classification, with $12 being offered for first prize, $8 for second prize and $5 for third prize.

All entries must be made in writing to the Santa Claus Parade Committee at 17 Bridge St., East, Belleville. The closing date for entries is December 5th., so don't delay, get the entry in now, and ensure this year's Santa parade being the best ever.

CBC Governors to Review Transmission of Radio News

Follows Report of Dies Committee on Alleged Connection of Transradio and Transocean News Services

ALLEGATIONS DENIED

Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP).—Repercussions in the Canadian parliament Friday followed publication of a report by the Dies committee on un-American activities at Washington alleging a connection between the Transradio Press Service and Transocean News Service, an alleged agency of German propaganda.

The Dies report referred to circumstances touching Canada in connection with both radio and the press, Transradio's news reports are carried over several Canadian stations.

The committee's submission contained a purported report by Dr. H. Eckner, former German consul in Montreal, outlining a proposed arrangement for supplying Transocean news to "L'Illustration Nouvelle" of Montreal, described as "the local Canadian Fascist organ". Eckner also wrote that "this news service (Transocean))in accordance with the general arrangements of the management of Transocean in Berlin, is given to German newspapers in Canada for one dollar a month."

Conservative House Leader Hanson, in the House of Commons asked if steps would be taken to deal with the situations and Munitions Minister Howe, who has jurisdiction over radio in Canada said the government would leave it to radio stations concerned to decide whether or not they should continue to broadcast Transradio news.

Will Review Question.

Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said a meeting of the C.B.C. governors next week would review the question.

"We have a long message from Transradio completely denying the allegations of their association with Transocean or any charge of subversive activities," said Mr. Murray.

"We will get at the bottom of it and no doubt the governors will take any action which is appropriate.. There will be available for them the investigation by the censors.

"Strictly this is a matter of censorship, not of the C.B.C. I may say that previously the censors reported they were unable to find that Transradio had contravened the censorship regulations."

Suspected European Reports

Discussing the matter in the House Mr. Howe recalled consideration given Transradio news early in the summer. Then, he said, because the authorities had some doubts about the sources of Transradio's European reports a decision was taken to ban the service from the air.

This brought protests and the suggestion the government was "trying to muzzle the news." As a result the broadcasting or Transradio news was permitted to continue pending a general review of the news broadcasting situation in the light of war conditions.

Mr. Howe said as a result of that review the CBC had decided on a new type of news service which would begin on Jan. 1.

At New York Herbert Moore, President of Transradio, who appeared before the radio committee of the House of Commons in defence of the service two years ago, said the Dies Committee report misrepresented "the entirely legitimate connections which have existed between American Press Services and German news organizations."

He said Transradio and other news services had scrupulously guarded against all kinds of totalitarian propaganda and alleged "a flagrant error" in the part of the report referring to Transradio's arrangements with the German Transocean service.

The Montreal angle of the report linked the name of Adrien Arcand, interned leader of the National Unity Party of Canada with German propaganda activities. Dr. Eckner's report which was said to have been made to the German Embassy in Washington said Arcand had promised L'Illustration Nouvelle would print German news reports without stating their source.

L'Illustration Nouelle, a tabloid newspaper in French, is still published.

Issues Statement.

Montreal, Nov. 23 (CP).The directorate of L'Illustration Nouvelle on Friday made the following statement to The Canadian Press:

The new management of L'Illustration Nouvelle since January, 1940, was surprised to learn what was revealed at the Dies Committee on the German activities in the United States.

The management has no knowledge whatever of anyone taking steps in the past to facilitate the publication of dispatches from the Transocean News Service. We declare that we have nothing to do with these undertakings and on the contrary our paper since its complete reorganization has not ceased to preserve an attitude and a line of conduct conforming in all respects to the dearest interests of Canadian citizens and the Canadian nation.

OBITUARY

MRS. IDA (COON) CLARK
(Formerly of Belleville)

Mrs. Ida Ellen Clark, widow of John Clark, died in Allandale, Ontario, on Friday, Nov. 22nd. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Clark was born in Sidney Township, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Coon. She married John Clark, who was in the service of the old Grand Trunk Railway and later with the Canadian National Railways. For some years she and her husband resided in this city and eventually left here to reside in Allandale. In religion she was a member of the Presbyterian church and held a high place in the regard of many friends. Old friends in Belleville will regret to learn of her death.

The funeral service will be conducted in the Presbyterian Church at Allandale on Sunday evening at 8.30 o'clock, and interment will be made in Park Lawn cemetery, Toronto on Monday morning.

S. A. Plans Drive For War Services In Month of March

Due to the heavy demands of its Auxilary War Services for troop camps, both C.A.S.F. and N.P.A.M., provided at the request and under the direction of the Canadian Department of National Defence, Ottawa, the Salvation Army has found it necessary to prepare for a national drive for funds on March 10th to 19th, inclusive, next Spring.

The objective has been set and approved by the War Services Department at Ottawa at $1,500,000. Quotas for individual communities and districts are now being worked out at national headquarters in Toronto.

Sir Edward W. Beatty, G.B.E., K.C., L.L. D., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has accepted the position of National Chairman for the drive.

Organization of district, or provincial and community committees is under way. Voluntary committees of leading citizens for every city, town and community across Canada will be set up well before March 10th.

It was pointed out today by Salvation Army officials here that the drive had been made necessary only after all efforts to effect a combined campaign for all war service organizations had proven futile.

No Election at Madoc

Madoc, (Special)—No municipal election will be necessary in this village to vote civic officials into office for 1941. All municipal offices will be filled as the result of acclamations for next year, A. S. Cochrane, Clerk of the Village of Madoc, announced here Friday night when nominations for municipal elections closed.

George West was returned Reeve of the Village, being the only person nominated. Actually Mr. West was nominated on three separate occasions during the nomination period.

The village council for 1941 will be composed of Campbell Wallbridge, Robert Bristol, Arthur Bird and Charles Spencer, these being the only men nominated for office. Robert O'Riordan, Kenneth Nicol and Ernest Smith were nominated to the Public School Trustee Committee, while Thomas H. Rupert was returned to the position of Hydro Electric Commissioner for 1941.

It was also rumored about the village Friday night, that all municipal offices for the township council had been made by acclamation also and no election will be necessary.

RE-ELECTED

Huntingdon Township Council was re-elected by acclamation as follows:—

Reeve—Thos. Fleming.

Councillors—Elmer Post, Nelson Welsh, Arthur Jones, Arthur Hagerman.

Police Blotter

"Honest, Mister Policeman, it was given to us by a man named Smith," pleaded two teen-aged youths, who were found at the rear of a local Front St. premises in possession of a portion of a bottle of native wine by P. C. William Evans.

"What, don't tell me he didn't have a beard?" snapped back the officer of 20 years' standing as he escorted the two youthful lads to the police station. Later the boys were permitted to return home with instructions from Sergeant Arthur Harman to appear in Police Court Monday where they can more fully explain the incident.

No other arrests were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, which left the cell block available for ten transients who sought shelter in Belleville last night.

Belleville police are in possession of a woman's purse; which was found off Alexander St. yesterday. "The purse contains several addresses, which makes it rather difficult in locating the rightful owner," explained Sergeant Arthur Booth today as he admitted the purse was black in color.

A number of school text books, which had been placed in the wrong automobile by a student at the Belleville Collegiate on Friday, were turned over to the police. It was an easy matter to locate the proper owner as the name was suitably inscribed in the front of each text book.

Chatterton Couple Honored at Silver Wedding Jubilee

Monday evening, November 18th, 1940, friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. Parks to surprise them on their wedding anniversary.

After all had assembled, Mr. W. Rodgers, chairman, called the gathering to order and in a few brief remarks made it clear to the couple who were given seats of prominence, why we had gathered in their home, and called upon Mrs. Percy Meale who read an address which was signed on behalf of the community by Ivy Meale, Effie Pinkle, Mary Heasman and May Frederick.

At the appropriate time, Mrs. J. H. Frederick presented them with a 34 piece set of silverware.

The bride and groom both thanked their friends for the gifts and invited them to visit them often.

Mr. Rodgers called on quite a number present for short speeches, after which all joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows". Three cheers and a tiger brought this part of the gathering to a close.

The ladies served lunch, after which many enjoyed a game or so of euchre. As each one departed for their home, they left behind the best wishes for many future years of happiness for Mr. and Mrs. Parks.

Community Club At Cannifton Holds Euchre Party

Cannifton — The regular euchre of the Cannifton Community Club was held at the home of Mrs. W. Reynolds. Several boys from Camp Borden attended, also Mrs. Anderson and Miss Jones from Belleville. Ten dollars was donated to the club by Kenneth Sharpe of Corbyville, proceeds from a painted picture. The picture was won by Mrs. [illegible], Belleville. Miss [illegible] of Belleville was the winner of the War Saving Certificate. She kindly donated it back to the Club. A goodly sum was handed in by Mr. Reynolds from his donation box in the store. Mrs. Spence was the winner of the doilies donated by Mrs. Carmichael. All voted a dollar be sent to each of the local boys overseas. Mrs. Anderson and George Horn were the proud receivers of the door prizes donated by Mr. Arthur Holgate.

Prize winners for euchre were—Ladies 1st, Mrs. Demille; 2nd. Mrs. Thrasher; consolation, Ann Thomas; Gents 1st, Morley Bleekman, 2nd, Allan Curlette; consolation, Charles Mathews.

Mr. John Webb was the winner of the booby prize, a travelling war stamp. The National Anthem was then sung, which ended a very pleasant evening.

Interesting Program At Y P. Meeting

Bonarlaw, Ont., Nov. 20 — The Young Peoples' Cl[illegible] of St. Mark's Church held a potluck supper in the Sunday School rooms of the church on Tuesday evening of this week. Over forty sat down to tables that groaned under the weight of the good things provided.

The club president, Mr. Carl Heath acted as toastmaster. The toast to The King was responded to by all singing the National Anthem. The toast to The Church Choir was responded to by Mrs. W. G. Swayne, Organist and choir leader, who stressed the importance of a full attendance at choir practice. The toast to The Sunday School was responded to by Supt. J. P. Baker and the toast to The Church by Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne, the Rector.

A short business session followed, president Carl Heath acting as chairman and Miss Iva Brown as secretary. The following committee was named to look after the entertainment at the next regular meeting: viz. — Misses Margaret Brown and Marjorie Haggerty and Messrs. Kenneth McKeown and Ralph Richardson.

A musical program was given as follows: Community singing led by Mr. J. P. Baker. This was divided in two parts, part one, old time community songs, Mrs. W. G. Swayne, accompanist and part two, recent popular songs, Mr. Chester Baker, accompanist; Piano solo by Miss Ruth Storms; piano solo by Chester Baker.

Auld Lang Syne heartily sung by all closed a very enjoyable evening.

LARGEST ORDER FOR BATTLE DRESS

London, Nov. 23.—(CP)— Contracts have been signed by the Supply Ministry for the largest single order of army battle dress placed since the war began, the British Broadcasting Corporation said Friday.

The order for 5,000,000 blouses and 6,000,000 pairs of trousers, will be filled by nearly 250 clothing factories, the BBC said.

First to 'Check in' First to 'Check Out'

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 23 (CP)—James Dudley Dunlop of Beachburg, Ont., first man to "check in" at No. 30 military training centre here for the second 30-day training period, also was first to check out. Medical officers rejected him because of defective eyesight.

Library Corner

(By K. G.)

New fiction and non-fiction volumes added to the Public Library shelves this week include the following:

Buchan, John. Memory-hold-the-door.

Hailed by the critics as a distinguished additon to the few outstanding autobiographies in English, Lord Tweedsmuir's reminiscences possess charm and imagination. As well as writing of his own life and experiences he gives finely shaded portraits of many of his contemporaries, Raymond Asquith, Lord Lucas, T. E. Lawrence and that puzzling figure, Ramsay MacDonald.

Buchan, John. Canadian Occasions.

This book is a selection of forty speeches from Lord Tweedsmuir's public life in Canada. They cover such varied events as meeting with President Roosevelt at Quebec, Boy Scout Dinners and University Convocations.

Connely, Willard The Reign of Beau Brummel.

A biography of the greatest of English dandies, George Bryan Brumel, the fame of whose wit and sartorial brilliance is a byword in the fashion world to this day.

Spring, Howard Fame is the Spur.

Following in the wake of the tremendous success of "My son, my son," the author's latest novel promises to be equally well received. This story of an English families fortunes and misfortunes through fifty years has been compared favorably with the novels of Dickens.

Lowe, Eric. Framed in Hardwood.

Set in the author's own country, Australia, is this vigorous novel of a self-made man versus the backgrounds of culture and tradition. The author's previous book "Salute to Freedom" was a Book Society choice.

SWING!

The official announcement said Foreign Minister Ribbentrop, Gino Buti, director of the political department of the Italian Foreign Office and Japanese Ambassador Saburo Kurusu, on one side, and Premier Ion Antonescue of Rumania, on the other, signed a protocol sealing Rumania's entrance into the three-power pact.

The protocol merely stated that Rumania had become a party to the alliance, effective immediately and—like Hungary—would be consulted on matters concerning her.

Envoys of Bulgaria and Slovakia are expected in Berlin next week.

Rumania's Swing to Axis

Rumania, once strongly pro-British, began her swing toward the Axis soon after the fall of France last June. Since then the course of events has swept her ever closer to the Axis orbit.

Until June, Rumania, fattened by territory acquired in the Allied victory in the First Great War, was bound tightly to Britain and France. They dominated her oil industry and guaranteed her territorial integrity.

France's Collapse Turning Point.

France's capitulation to the axis marked the turning point, however. Soviet Russia moved to reclaim Bessarabia. Unwilling to resist, Rumania acceded to Russia's demands June 27.

She installed a pro-Nazi government and renounced her British guarantee.

Hungary pressed her demands for Transylvania. On July 28, Hitler met with Rumanian and Hungarian representatives and told them to negotiate their territorial differences.

When these negotiations stalled, Hitler, impatient with the delay, summoned representatives of both nations to Vienna and awarded a wedge of Transylvania to Hungary, and Germany guaranteed Rumania's shrunken frontiers.

Carol's Abdication.

King Carol II abdicated under Iron Guard pressure on Sept. 6 and fled into exile, leaving the throne to his son Michael and control of the state to Gen. Ion Antonescu, who later proclaimed himself chief of state.

Antonescu issued a decree on Sept. 15 setting up a state patterned on Nazi lines. It designated the totalitarian, pro-Nazi Iron Guard as the sole Rumanian political party.

Under Antonescu's rule, Rumania moved still closer toward the axis.

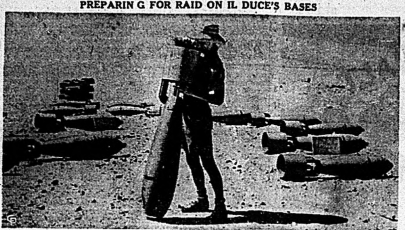
On Oct. 12 the vanguard of German troops rolled into Rumania—to "train" the Rumanian army and protect Rumanian oil wells, the Germans said.

Some sources have estimated Germany's military strength in Rumania as high as 500,000 men.

British Forces Start 3 Fires In Maktila Camp

London, Nov. 23 (CP)—Combined British naval and air forces successfully bombarded Maktila camp on the Libyan coast during the night of Nov. 20, an Admiralty communique said today. The communique follows: "The following has been received from the commander in chief, Mediterranean: During the night of Nov. 20 a naval unit assisted by air co-operation successfully bombarded Maktila camp on the Libyan coast for one hour. Three large fires were started. The enemy returned the fire but caused no damage or casualties."

PREPARIN G FOR RAID ON IL DUCE'S BASES



On the outskirts of an R.A.F. airfield, somewhere on the African desert, an armourer prepares bombs for an attack upon Italian bases. He is shown cleaning sand from the missile before placing in the fuse without which it is harmless. The bombs on the ground, marked by the warning signs, are already fused and all set to do their stuff.

Picton and District

Picton, Nov. 23.—Shipping is very heavy here at the present time and in marine circles it is stated that this will be one of the biggest shipping years. Yesterday the freighter City of Montreal loaded a big cargo for the east and on Monday the freighter Winnipeg is expected for a west-bound cargo. Earlier this week there have been three big boats here and hundreds of tons of canned goods have been shipped. Each fall there is a big rush but it is busier than usual at the present time.

In spite of the fact that the export market is cut off due to the war, the home market is improved and able to take this year's pack, canners stated.

Loading of the boats provides much employment and the good wages paid mean much to the town.

One hundred dollars has been voted by the Arm Chair Club here to the First Battalion of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas, for the purchase of musical instruments for a band. This money was raised at a recent jamboree. This is in response to an appeal from Lt.-Col. Howard Graham, O.C. of the regiment overseas.

The club also voted $25 to the Salvation Army, $50 to the British War Victims' Fund and $100 to "C" Company, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Second Battalion, N.P.A.M.

The "C" Company of the Second Battalion, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, N.P.A.M., sponsored a dance in the armouries Thursday night. There was a large attendance and a nice sum was realized which will be used to purchase supplies for instruction work.

Rev. W. M. MacKay, Synodical Missionary in New Ontario, was the guest speaker at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Thursday night. His interesting address was heard by a large crowd.

Offer to Stay And Fight for Gen. De Gaulle

London, Nov. 23 (CP).—The Daily Mail said today that "more than half of the crews" of two large ships sent to Britain by the Vichy government to repatriate French sailors and soldiers have offered to join the Free French forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The newspaper said: "The men were bitter. Said one, addressing them on the quayside: 'We have brought these ships to take back Frenchmen. If you still want to go back and live under the Boche you are welcome. But do so without our help'."

The Daily Mail said: "It can be revealed now that fifty French naval officers and 1,500 ratings who last September elected to return to France have since decided to stay and fight with Gen. de Gaulle.

"The flow of French forces is growing rapidly, sometimes reaching 140 a week."

Lawsuits Win Phase of Sea War For U.K., Says B.B.C.

London, Nov. 23.— (CP)—Lawsuits and negotiations instead of guns are winning one phase of sea warfare for Britain, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Friday.

The BBC told a successful battle for possession of many British-owned cargoes which were aboard German ships when they took refuge in neutral waters at the outbreak of hostilities.

"There were about 150 of these ships in port in various parts of the world", the BBC said. "About 50 escaped or were scuttled, but as a result of lawsuits and negotiations the cargoes in most of the remainder have been freed".

Not one of these cargoes has been lost by enemy action on the way to Britain, the BBC said.

ONLY ABOUT HALF SLEEP IN SHELTERS

Doctor Says Bombing Has Very Little Effect on Nervous Systems of People of Borough of Poplar

London, Nov. 23.—(CP)—Mayor Albert Overland of the Borough of Poplar, in the heart of London's severely bombed East End, told a party of United States newspapermen on an officially conducted tour of that district Friday that 14,000 of the area's 23,000 homes and small shops had been damaged.

But he said only about 41,000 of the 80,000 population sleep huddled in shelters to escape death from German bombs.

The three-hour visit included a trip to the dock-surrounded Isle of Dogs where Queen Victoria once kept the royal kennels, but which now is the home of thousands of industrial workers who have forgotten what a good night's sleep is like.

A doctor who visits the people daily said the bombing is having remarkably little effect upon the nervous systems of the people.

"It's like going to the dentist", he said, "horrible while it lasts, but soon forgotten".

AT THE McCARTHY

"Holiday"

The romantic-comedy that is rocking the world anew with laughter, Katherine Hepburn and Cary Grant in "Holiday" will also have a repeat showing on the McCarthy Theatre screen next week.

In the cast supporting the stars are Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Doris Nolan, Lew Ayres, Jean Dixon and Henry Kolker. Next week will be your last opportunity to see this outstanding screen comedy treat and now is the time to make personal arrangements to attend the McCarthy during the showings of "Holiday." On the same program a timely film (not a newsreel) but the most impressive picture made dealing with the steps Great Britain has taken in combating attack will be shown at all performances, entitled "The Warning", the picture every Canadian who is interested in forwarding Canada's war effort is urged to see as it is a warning and a stimulus in present day happenings. Latest McCarthy-Fox News events will also be presented.

"Angels Over Broadway"

"West of Abilene"

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Rita Hayworth and Thomas Mitchell in the new thrilling drama "Angels Over Broadway" in addition to Charles Starrett in "West of Abilene" an action-loaded musical western area both now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"RIVER'S END"

"River's End", the greatest story from the action-jammed pen of James Oliver Curwood now rides across the Belle screen. America's best-loved story-teller relates an unforgettable tale of the Northwest Mounted in Warner Bros.' new outdoor thriller. Starring Dennis Morgan and George Tobias, the film takes movie-goers back to River's End, the Dodge City of the North, where Sergeant Conniston solved the strangest case in the history of the Mounted.

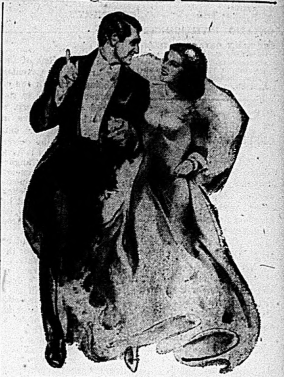
Dennis Morgan plays the dual role of John Keith and Sergeant Conniston, while his French-Canadian assistant is portrayed by the grand character actor, George Tobias. He is teamed with Steffi Duna and they are a riot as two newlyweds who start their honeymoon in a canoe. Elizabeth Earl is seen as Sergeant Conniston's sister who is forced to choose between the man she loves and her own brother. Other players in the excellent cast include Victor Jory and James Stephenson.

"Young People" Funny.

With rollicking entertainment its keynote, "Young People" has been called Shirley Temple's most enjoyable picture. Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood are co-starred with her in the 20th Century-Fox film announced as the co-feature attraction.

Joyfully musical, the new film also boasts an unusual story, Charlotte and Jack adopt Shirley and though they achieve success with their vaudeville act, they decide to retire on a New England farm. Their life in the small town is depicted as the film moves swiftly to the stirring conclusion.

Paced by five new and catchy tunes by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren, "Young People" has been labelled a show full of gay good time. Others featured in a fine supporting cast include Arleen Whelan, George Montgomery and Kathleen Howard.



Cary Grant and Katherine Hepb urn who return next week to the McCarthy Theatre in the gay romantic comedy, "Holiday." The program will also include the feature "The Warning," the story of England's answer to her foes.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Argentine Nights"

Starring the Ritz Brothers and the Andrews Sisters famed swing trio, Universal's streamlined musical farce, "Argentine Nights," comes next to the Capitol Theatre.

Nine new songs are introduced to the elaborate film which presents the hilarious Ritzes as three fast-talking agents for a throng of beautiful entertainers touring South America. The Andrews Sisters whose songs on phonograph records, stage and radio are known to millions make their film debut in the picture.

Popular Actress

Constance Moore has the romantic lead as the torch singer who takes her girl band into pampas country and falls in love with a dashing gaucho played by George Reeves, recent screen discovery. Featured roles are played by Peggy Moran, Anne Nagel, Kathryn Adams and Julie Duncan.

Colorful sequences are laid aboard ship and in the romantic land of the pampas. New songs in the picture include "Hit the Road," "The New Lick," "Oh, He Loves Me" and "Rhumboogie" sung by the Andrews Sisters.

Ritz Brothers Sing

The "Spirit of 77-B" and "Brooklynonga" are offered by the Ritz Brothers and Miss Moore sings "Hail the Mountain Queen" and "Once Upon a Dream." Reeves and the gaucho chorus contribute "Amigo We Go Riding Tonight."

The screen play by Arthur T. Horman, Sid Kuller and Ray Golden was directed by Albert S. Rogell and Ken Goldsmith was the associate producer; Elwood Fredell was in charge of photography.

"The Fatal Hour"

"The Fatal Hour" with Boris Karloff is the added attraction and is based on the Hugh Wiley magazine story about the adventures of James Lee Wong, Chinese detective.

JOY IN GREEK HEARTS

Joy swept the Greek people as millions of Hellenes in their historic capital, Athens, and in every part of the heroic kingdom celebrated with jubilation the confusion of the Fascist Italians who fled from Greece and out of Koritza.

Well might they cheer and celebrate for they have beaten in this stage of the war the champion boaster and braggart, Mussolini, who for years vaunted himself before peaceful Europe. Now after a couple of weeks of war the Fascists have been discredited. The spirit of the Athenians, Spartans and of the inhabitants of other historic cities of ancient Hellas (Greece) inspired the present day warriors of the first land in Europe to develop what the world calls civilization.

Friday was one of the greatest days in modern Greek history. The Hellenes whose admiration for Britain knows no bounds bore British soldiers shoulder-high through the streets of Athens while others shouted "On to Rome."

This is an instance of the avalanche of the spirit of freedom and liberty which has inspired the modern Hellenes. The world of liberty wants only a series blows against the tyrant dictators for the world's demonstration of liberty—the destruction of tyranny. Such a universal day is coming sooner or later when the same spirit will sweep the lands whose soil and peoples Adolf Hitler and his henchman, Mussolini, crush together. Then across the nations, knowing release from Hun bondage to be near, will sweep a torrent against the invaders.

Long ago Lord Byron, one of the most dynamic poets of the world and an Englishman, too, and a lover of Greece, struggled and fought for the liberty of that land. Of Greece he said,

"Where'er we tread 'tis holy ground."

That is it. The Italian Fascist has no right there. He is a mere expression of Mussolini's tyranny, exercised upon Greece and Albania. The Greek stands on holy ground, as devoted to his country as any national can be. Ancient Greece was the land of liberty two and a half milleniums ago and because she allowed freedom she developed noble civilization which even yet moulds world thought. Men will fight for such a country in a way that no invader can fight, because the soul of the Greek is an inheritance of free thoughts and free actions.

Greek victories do not mean that there will not be heavy struggles in that part of the world, but the enemy can see if he would, the end that is assuredly to come. Greece recently asked for aid of the "free countries" because Greece is not a mighty nation as some others are in a military sense and she knows that this struggle must be decisively won to crush tyranny forever.

How proud King George of Greece and Premier Metaxas must be to see the intimidators terror-stricken!

These events in Greece release the emotions and the pen-up feelings of the peoples everywhere with the manifestation that the invaders and the conquerors of Albania are receiving punishment for their brutal acts of aggression.

COVENTRY'S HEROIC DEAD

While 172 victims of the enemy raids on Coventry were being buried in one of the common graves in the city's red clay cemetery, a lone Nazi raider like a ghoul approached the battered city only to be driven off by Spitfires. The mourners were righteously angered by the visit of the enemy flier who put in an appearance just as the benediction was being pronounced by the Bishop of Coventry at the side of the two-hundred foot trench.

The Nazi ghoul had no place in the last rites for the heroic dead English folk.

This communal grave of many of Coventry's dead and other graves will be a memorial to Coventry citizens' courage and determination, of their love of home and native place. This vast grave will be among the most famous shrines in Britain for it tells a story of British heroism and will bear a meaning for generations of Coventry folk yet unborn. That grave too will in the ages to come testify to the awful sin of a nation like Germany which accepted violence, crime, terror and the exercise of ruthless power as its ideals and led the world into the grip of war.

These Coventry dead rest in the blessed English earth. The Hun, degraded and ferocious though he be, cannot quell the loyal hearts of oak for the millions upon millions of British who make up the British population are stirred to greater determination and prepared for the greatest sacrifice so that Nazism and Fascism may not be handed on to other generations. These kindly English folk, to whom Britain gave birth, honor the soil in which they sleep.

These men and women and children are an enigma to the mad Fuehrer and his tribe for he cannot understand so great courage and devotion to the land that bore them and nurtured them and where they grew up surrounded by the air of British liberty. Hitler, the man who betrayed his own Austria into the hands of the Reich for the selfish ends of revenge and power, cannot understand the quiet staunch fidelity of such people. Hitler's bloody agents failed to kill their souls and will meet British avengers on every field of battle, in the skies wherever a Hun aviator flies and wherever a Hun raider or U-boat dares to move on or in waters of the sea. Retribution to punish Nazi Germany and Hitler for the slaughter of these people is on the way in hearts of men in the army, navy and air force of the Motherland and Empire, and in the hearts of peoples which are under Hun domination and in the minds and souls of the free peoples of the earth who realize what these British people have gone through for liberty's sake.

Staple Food In Scotland

These has always been much talk about foods. But that's natural enough. For since the world began food has played a major role, second to none in importance, and in recent years we've learned much about values in proteins, vitamins, minerals, galories, etc. As often happens, history has repeated — for constant food study has proven that some of the world's most nutritive foods are old standbys—cereals, fruits, milk, cheese, etc. Among these is oats— one of the good old human nourishers centuries ago.

We have long been accustomed to associate oats as a human food with Scotland and Scottish people, and there is much good ground for giving the Scots the major credit for establishing oats in such a prominent place as it today holds amongst the food stuffs of the world.

Oats proved to be as ideal a nourishment for the Scotsmen as it was an ideal grain to grow in Northern climates so that by the time British historians started to take notice of Scotland, oats were as much the staple food there as rice today is in China or in India.

Dr. Wm. Alexander, in his "Rural Life in the North," shows that this diet was partaken of in one form or another three times a day. Pottage, sowens and brose are old Scottish words meaning breakfast, dinner and supper — each one also indicates oatmeal prepared in one way or another.

Dr. Samuel Johnson probably unwittingly did the cause of oats a good turn when he made the 18th century equivalent of a modern wise crack about them, and permitted a good Scotsman to reply to it.

"Oats," said Dr. Johnson, "in England are food for horses. In Scotland they are food for men."

"And," replied the Scotsman, "whaur'l you find such horses ... and such men?"—Montreal Star.

BOMB BURSTS IN CLEVELAND

Cleveland, Nov. 23 (AP).—A bomb exploded early today at the rear of a restaurant operated by Stouffer Corp., injuring one of six employees in the establishment and rocking Playhouse Square in downtown Cleveland. The blast, heard five miles away, was the second within 24 hours at a Stouffer restaurant. An explosion early yesterday damaged the front of the company's Philadelphia establishment.

Portents in Africa

(From Winnipeg Free Press)

A few seemingly disconnected incidents within the last two weeks point more than ever to the campaign in Africa assuming vast proportions and having a vital bearing on the course of the war. These incidents may be recalled:

General Smuts met Mr. Anthony Eden, the British Secretary for War, very shortly before General Hertzog, former premier of South Africa, withdrew from the coalition formed by Dr. Malan and himself to defeat General Smuts' war policy for the defence of the Union of South Africa. Reasons for General Hertzog's break with Dr. Malan and Mr. Pirow are not yet made clear, but it is evident that Hertzog has no intention to go to the extreme length that Malan seems bent on going. General Hertzog can only have withdrawn when be realized that Malan and Pirow, prompted and backed by the violent German fifth columnists in South West Africa, are heading for civil war within the Union.

General Weygand appears to have put his foot down at last and to have decided that what France has won in her colonial empire is not to be grabbed by the Germans. General Weygand was regarded previous to his replacement of General Gamelin as the creator of the French colonial army assembled mainly in Syria for the then-Allied defence of the Middle East, Egypt and North Africa. He is unlikely now to resign himself to the demand made on Marshal Petain for all French native troops to be turned over to German control. To agree to this would be tantamount to relinquishing all sovereignty over France's African empire. It is difficult to conceive Weygand submitting to this. It is even more impossible to think of similar submission being made by General Nogues, who carries on in Morocco and Algeria the traditions Lyautey entrusted to him in North Africa.

Almost simultaneously with the explicit demand that the French begin transferring their magnificent West African native troops to German commands, General de Gaulle was reported as being more hospitably received in the Belgian Congo than he was at Dakar in French West Africa. But to hand over the Senegalese soldiers, who are probably the cream of French African native armies, to the Germans now, would quite possibly result in revoking the gains made by the Gaulle forces in taking Libreville and Gabon.

Weygand maw be disinterested in the fact that the transfer of the French native troops to German control would enable German forces to enter through the backdoor of the Sudan to transfix the British forces now confronting the Italians on the western borders of Egypt and in Ethiopia. He cannot fail to be concerned with what the transfer of troop commands would mean to the French possessions in West Africa. It would give them over wholly to Germany. It would give the Germans every port on West Africa's coastline outside those which might or might not manage to be retained in British West African colonies. This would mean, also that the German line of conquest advancing southward would in no time reach South West Africa, whose rebellious movement is poised by the Nazis ready to start civil war within the Union of South Africa.

General Smuts knows this. He has taken pains on several occasions since the war started to show his familiarity with enemy plans for the destruction of the Union, and may be expected to be prepared to resist to the utmost power of the Union handicapped by the Halanite madness within it.

General Weygand is obviously being stubborn about allowing any transfer of French native African troops that, no matter for what immediate purpose meant, will strip France of her colonial possessions, not only in Africa, but everywhere.

These are portents. Pressure yet to be applied may make them more ominous. For the moment, they can be looked on hopefully. They may even go the length of adding vastly more strength to the de Gaulle Free French movement. This would come if the French colonial administrators—so proud of their work—flatly refuse to give way, and prefer to fight. Whatever may be the outcome of these seemingly incidental meetings and negotiatings within the last two or three weeks, war is spreading in Africa. It is almost certain that on the outcome of the campaigns on that continent will depend much that will decide victory or defeat.

Each 205 feet long and driven by four Diesel engines totaling 3800 horsepower, the largest three tugboats of their kind have been constructed for the United States navy.

Stories of the Navy

Buried in a long list of decorations and awards published in the official London Gazette, is a small item which tickles the imagination.

It casually reveals a "naval action" in the Red Sea, but those engaged were not tars of the Royal Navy but Arab sailors out of the protectorate of Aden. Their ship was no cruiser or destroyer, but a simple Arab dhow.

A dhow is a sailing vessel peculiar to Arabia, East Africa and the Indian Ocean. It is usually open, or half-decked, has one mast and a lateen sail. These vessels are fast on some wind angles and in their day gave the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea patrols of the Royal Navy much trouble by slaving or gun-running.

Omer Jama, hero of this incident, was master of such a ship. It is not revealed where he was bound or what cargo he had aboard, but he fell into Italian hands and the Men of Mussolini placed an armed guard aboard the dhow.

But he kept his eyes "skinned to windward" and one day he turned up at Aden and with a flash of his Arab teeth revealed that he had disposed of his captors.

The London Gazette gives this official account:

"Omer Jama with his crew threw overboard Italian armed guards who had been placed in charge of his vessel. He and his crew showed great presence of mind and pluck in ridding themselves, during a sandstorm, of their Italian captors and bringing the dhow safely to Aden."

The King has been graciously pleased to ward Omer Jama the British Empire Medal (civil division) for meritorious service.

And now, from the Red Sea to the Mediterranean.

A great grey British Battleship surges through the blue Mediterranean bound for Malta. She is one of the naval reinforcements recently sent to "Our Sea". Since Italy entered the war and France collapsed, Malta has seen few big warships. They had gone to the eastern Mediterranean or to Gibraltar.

The crew of this particular battleship therefore expected a great welcome when they reached Valetta, the naval harbor.

But to their astonishment there were no signs of life around the harbor entrance. The streets were deserted. Not a soul was to be seen.

"That's damned funny," remarked a young lieutenant. However, the captain entered Valetta in style. His men were at stations, the Royal Marines paraded on the quarter deck and the band played the ship's march and "There'll Always Be An England".

And then it happened. From holes and corners and shelters heads popped up. People poured from doorways. There was a rush to the waterfront and soon the warship was surrounded by boats and the battleship got the traditional welcome.

It appeared there had been a fierce air raid. Malta had gone to ground and the warship arrived before the all clear had sounded.

Here Is the Answer

It has been the "decadent" democracies that have produced the finest acts of courage in this war; the outranged British cruisers closing in on the Graf Spee; the Finnish infantry cutting Russian columns to pieces in the grim Winter forests; French regiments, misled, betrayed, holding their part of the line like a little Verdun against the German tanks and Stukas; British soldiers of the rear guard at Dunkerque and British civilians manning motor boats to take the defeated but not beaten army home; British men and women—ordinary, plain-faced people who used to make a fuss about a cut finger — crawling out of their bombarded homes with the magnificent gesture of the up-pointed thumb: the crew of the Jervis Bay fighting their unarmored vessel against the German pocket battleship; the airmen of the R.A.F. going up in all weathers, against all odds, day after day, night after night, to guard the homes and shrines of Britain; the bomb squads methodically removing time-bombs that may explode at any moment.

It is the glory and splendor of these tremendous days that the brave deeds are done without hope of reward or fame. The commanding officer has no monopoly of the precious wealth of courage. It springs up everywhere, from the immemorial turf of ancient estates and from the mud and dust of streets.

In the captive countries it must still exist. We know that men have died this year for liberty in Czecho-Slovakia, in Poland, in Norway, in The Netherlands, in Belgium, in France, in China, in the tumbled mountains of Western Greece, in many a weary mile of sea. The whole earth, in the noble words of the old Greek who would be proud of his countrymen today, is their sepulchre. Though no monument can carry all their names, their fame lives for evermore.

Shall we deny courage to the German flyers who come over London? Not at all. They have testified their willingness not only to destroy and to kill but to die. But this courage of the free is a different thing. It is not madness. It is not a fanatical yearning for death. It is not personal loyalty to a leader. It is faith, a living faith in freedom.

Where that faith did not exist soldiers laid down their arms and generals made base surrenders. Where it lives, and grows, and flames, no battle ever ends in a final defeat. Is democracy degenerate? Look around you. The gifted, the great, the humble, the unknown have given the answer, are giving it now as these words are written and read in their own hearts' blood.

Why the Sanitorium is Best For Tuberculosis Patients

When a patient with a persistent cough is losing weight, the first thought is of tuberculosis. By the help of the Xray early tuberculosis, if present, can be shown. Once tuberculosis is found, the most important part of the treatment is rest and these patients are put to bed for weeks, months and even years.

It is in these early cases when the patient has been going to school or work that the patient himself or his family cannot understand why he should not be treated at home. They point out a very significant fact that is that if rest is needed most, the patient can certainly rest better in his own home than in a room or ward in a sanitorium where he will be lonely, unhappy, unable to sleep, and his appetite will be poor because the food and the way it is served may be strange.

Now there is no denying the fact that there is no place like home but there are two important facts that the patient and his family do not know.

The first point is that as the patient has developed tuberculosis, there is therefore a tendency to tuberculosis in the family. The fact that there is this tendency means that as long as the patient remains in the home there is always the chance of him infecting other members of the home or household. Even if physicians and nurses visit the home and give instructions in preventing others from being infected, "there is nothing that the health department can do in the way of sanitary control of the patient at home, or to separate the sick from the well, compares for effectiveness with hospital or sanitorium care as a means of stopping the spread of infection".

The second great advantage of hospital care of tuberculosis is that when more than bed rest is suddenly or urgently needed, the great variety of operations to make the lung rest are available in the sanitorium. These operations require a degree of surgical expertness which can be developed best only in a special tuberculosis hospital.

Should your physician recommend the tuberculosis sanitorium for you or a loved one, remember the two points above mentioned, for the patient's own sake and for the sake of other members of the household.

Make Way For Half-Ton Time Bomb!

From the London Bureau of the New York Herald Tribune

A half-ton German time bomb was given a "funeral" through rain-drenched London this afternoon with full military and police honors.

As this correspondent was finishing an after-luncheon coffee in the lobby of a hotel, a waiter fussed up with the bill and said: "Please go at once, sir, and go through the side door—they're bringing along a bomb at any moment now." Simultaneously the doorman began to pull down steel shutters and shop keepers hastily screened their windows with the boards they lock into position each night for protection against blasts.

Mortorcycle police shepherded buses into side streets along with private cars and taxis. "Bobbies" waved pedestrians down side streets. In ten minutes the main street was deserted.

Every one waited under dripping umbrellas. A police car crawled along with warning words bellowing from a loudspeaker on its roof. Next came a limousine with a soldier pushing his battle-bowlered head and shoulders through the sliding top. This car was followed by a small camouflaged army truck. Leaning nonchalantly from the rear was a soldier.

About 100 feet behind, lumbering along at 10 miles an hour, was the "hearse," a large camouflaged army truck with two Royal Engineers on the front seat. From the rear dangled the bomb, black, sinister and glistening, its snub nose but one foot from the pavement. Beside it sat an army engineer who must have had ice water in his veins.

In a moment the truck and bomb had passed the narrow turning of the side street. The crowd pushed past the police, rushed to the corner and craned cautiously. The cortege was disappearing in the gloom.

Out roared the buses from the side streets. The sidewalks were alive again, and the rain pelted down as before.

FOUR MOVIE STORAGE BUILDINGS DESTROYED

U.S. State Department Wonders if Japan May Be Losing War

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Gen. Kai-Shek

Washington.— Japan's abandonment of a considerable southern Chinese area which the Mikado's troops had previously occupied is a development in the Asiatic war of much interest to the state department's division of Far Eastern affairs. What does it mean? That the Japs are getting the worst of the fighting? That's what U. S. Far Eastern experts are wondering. As yet they are uncertain.

The departmental division of Near Eastern affairs is equally interested in the slow start Italy got off to in its campaign against Greece. The division's impression was that the Fascist invasion would be, from the jump, a walk-over.

Tokyo's account is that Nippon merely is moving its forces in China to new positions, where they can operate more handily. Another story is that they're being conveniently assembled for a descent upon Britain's strong base of Singapore.

The Chinese version, however, is that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's men actually have chased the enemy out of Kwangsi province and now are getting them on the run in adjoining province of Kwangtung.

Whenever you encounter the syllable "si" in a Chinese name you know that that place is west of somewhere or other. And "tung" means east of somewhere. For instance, Shansi province is west of a certain range of mountains in northern China.. "Shan" means mountains. And Shantung province is east of the same range. But Kwangsi and Kwantung provinces are away to the southward. "Pe" signifies north, "Nan" south and "king" capital. Thus Peking was China's northern capital; Nanking its southern one. I'm not fluent enough in Chinese to translate "kwang," but "si" and "tung" are as plain as print to me.

Japan Weakening?

When a Chinaman wants to say "Git out!" to an intruder, he employs the term "Chuh!" Its literal meaning is "Scatter!" Seemingly they're saying "Chuh-" to the Japs at present.

Maybe the islanders are truthful in their contention that they simply are making a few strategic rearrangements, but a pretty strong hunch here is that they're getting dangerously close to the bottom of their resources and can't maintain their luck much longer.

Near Eastern observers aren't so hopeful of a long continued Greek resistance against the Italians.

They give the Greeks credit for being formidable scrappers and, in that respect, they don't rate the Italians very highly. Nevertheless, the Greeks are so heavily outnumbered and so under-equipped that experts surmise they can't last long.

All the same, the U. S. departmental Near Eastern division expected the Fascists to drive right across the northern Hellenese border in short order and they failed to do it. In fact, Rome itself has to admit as much. Its excuse is that its forces were delayed at the outset by bad weather and worse roads over the mountains. The theory here, though, is that they might have foreseen these handicaps and provided for discounting them.

The conclusion is that Signor Mussolini isn't as competent a blitzkrieger as Herr Hitler.

Still, it's predicted that, in the long run, Italy's superior weight will count. Besides, if it doesn't, it's the consensus that Herr Hitler will have to lend German aid to his Axis partner. The Germans, indeed, are known to have a poor opinion of Italy's military prowess and it's presumed that they must be chuckling at Benito's initial discomfiture, but, in their own interest, they can't afford to have it continue indefinitely.

Turkey May Be Tough

That holds as to Greece.

But the Axis' next step will have to be into Turkey, on its way to Suez. And it's guessed that the Turks will prove to be a tougher mouthful than the Greeks. There are many more of them; they're better trained soldiers; they're tolerably well armed; they're at longer range from Axis bases; they have a bit of water between them and their prospective would-be invaders; they're better situated to take advantage of such assistance as Britain may be able to afford them, and Russia may be in their corner.

Anyway, as previously remarked, the U. S. state department's Near and Far Eastern divisions are watching alertly.

LIBEL SUIT DISCONTINUED

New York, Nov. 23 —(AP)— A stipulation discontinuing a $5,000,000 libel suit against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., was filed in federal court Friday on behalf of Fritz Kuhn, former leader of the German-American Bund. Kuhn, now serving a prison term for larceny from the Bund, based his suit on the motion picture, "Confession of a Nazi Spy."

Capital Closeups

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP)—Because the war has dislocated continental Europe's normal business with the western hemisphere, Trade Minister MacKinnon probably will be able to effect a sizeable increase in Canada's exports by his forthcoming trip to the West Indies and Central and South America.

Already Canada's western hemisphere sales have taken a big jump. Britain's navy controls the seas, and manufactured goods from enemy European countries no longer can reach the rich markets on this side of the world. Every South American country now buys more from Canada than it did before the war—Argentina almost twice as much. The Dominion has displaced Germany as the third exporting nation of the world.

Mr. MacKinnon and three other officials of his department leave at the end of this month on an exploratory trade tour to the British West Indies, Cuba, Panama, Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil.

Commons Cuffnotes—

Copies of the late editions of the local newspapers appear by dozens on the members' desks around 5 o'clock...... They draw a lot more attention than whoever happens to be speaking...... Even Cabinet ministers take second place for a few minutes.

An attendant stopped a man in the gallery from taking notes but Arthur Beauchesne, Clerk of the House, says the attendant was wrong...... Note-taking is allowed ......But don't try to draw cartoons...... Candid camera shots of the House in action also are barred...... As Mr. Beauchesne puts it: "This isn't an entertainment or a picture show—it's the most serious business in the country."

The gold-washed silver mace weighs about 20 pound and costs a couple of thousand dollars...... The Government paid for it but technically it shouldn't have...... The mace is the symbol representing the King's presence at all meetings of the House......Theoretically it ought to be owned by His Majesty.

Miscellaneous Intelligence

A semi-official cat lives in the tool house near the Parliament Buildings...... Almost nightly he visits the guard on the Senate door for a bowl of milk or some such, then sits contentedly until daylight before going about his business.... He's a solemn cat with a Senatorial air...... Maybe that's why he prefers the Senate entrance to the House.

There's other things around the building at night, too...... Bats fly about the Senate and House doors...... Where they go in the daytime, nobody knows, but there are lots of nooks and crannies in the buildings.

Beards aren't common in the House but J. E. Alfred Dubuc (Lib. Chicoutimi) has a small, pointed one...... For size it's not a patch on the luxuriant, square cut beard carried by Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government leader in the Upper House.

PRESENTATION

On Monday night, Nov. 18, at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Everett Zufelt, a shower was given to Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Dafoe. A large crowd of neighbors and friends gathered. A short program of songs and instrumental was given. Carmen and Gladys unwrapped their beautiful table of presents and thanked all for the lovely gifts. Included was a beautiful silver tea set from the groomsman and bridesmaid, very close friends of the bride and groom

3rd. Sidney

3rd Sidney — Aikens community has lost another valued member in the passing of Mrs. Wm. McMullen, whose death occurred at her home, 2nd concession of Sidney on Monday, November the 18th.

Possessed of a kindly Christian character, Mrs. McMullen was beloved by all who knew her, and was held in the highest esteem in the neighborhood where she will be greatly missed. Deepest sympathy is extended to the husband and family. The funeral was held on Wednesday, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. A comforting message was delivered by the Pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott. A duet "No Night There" was rendered by Mrs. Earl Bush and Mr. Stanley Spafford, near neighbors of the deceased. The bearers were: Frank Hamilton, A. Sandercock, Gerald Brickman, Stanley Spafford, Earl Bush, and Fred Moon.

Mrs. Emily Tyler of Ameliasburg spent a few days this week at the home of her nephew, Mr. Sanford Hubble and is now visiting at the home of her niece, Mrs. Selburn Westover.

Messrs. Clarence Ketcheson and Wilkie Orr spent Sunday in Kingston.

Mr. Fred Spafford, who suffered a light fall on Saturday, has been confined to his home this week. His many friends trust he will soon be able to be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Moon were Sunday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Jones.

Mrs. Albert Perry is spending a few weeks with Miss Melissa Fredrick, Foxboro.

Mrs. Allan McDonald, Shannonville and Mrs. Elmer Coyle of Colborne spent part of last week with the former's daughter, Mrs. Lee Grills.

A skating rink is being erected on the grounds of the Centenary public school, under the direction of the Young People's Union to be used jointly by the pupils of the school, and the Young People.

Education Week was duly observed at Centenary school including a tour of inspection of the Ontario School for the Deaf, a visit to Wallbridge school, and a concert at the school on Friday afternoon, where the Inspector, Mr. Pickering was present, and several of the parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Finkle of Stirling and Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Finkle of Belleville called on friends in the neighborhood on Wednesday afternoon, including Mr. Fred Spafford, Mrs. Wm. Hamilton, Mrs. Chas. Moon and Mrs. Harley Hubble.

Madoc

Madoc — The Girls' branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, entertained the members of Tweed W. A. at the home of Mrs. W. Hart on Monday evening After a short business period the meeting was given over to Miss Laura Thompson of Tweed. The program conducted by Tweed W. A. included a solo by Miss Charlotte Leal, a reading by Mrs. Sinclair and lantern slides on the study book by the rector, Rev. A. E. Pepper. The meeting was closed by Mr. Mitchell of Tweed and a social half hour followed. Plans were made for a Christmas meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Davies.

At the monthly meeting and supper held in Blue's dining hall the Madoc Community Club, appointed Messrs. Geo. West and Norman Whytock to approach the merchants in regard to a community Christmas Tree and show arrangements were made for decorating of the main streets for the Christmas season. Mr. Norman Whytock reported on Red Cross activities through the club and stated that 300 cigarettes apiece had been sent to the Madoc soldiers now in active service overseas. Another shipment to be made early in the New Year.

A much needed new floor is being laid in the Madoc Armouries. A new maple floor is being put down on a creosoted spruce floor. The top floor will be sanded, filled and waxed and will be placed in excellent condition.

At the weekly meeting of Trinity Young People's, Mr. C. R. Johnson entertained with his moving picture camera, accompanied by musical records. A reel of the King and Queen's tour of Canada and Mr. Johnson's own trip through the Western States and Western Canada were among the pictures shown also autumn and winter scenes of local interest and some pictures of our own Madoc soldiers before leaving for Great Britain.

Mrs. E. C. Tufts accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Jackson of Watertown, N. Y., visited Mrs Tufts' daughter in Campbellford during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. McMinnis and family of Detroit, Mich., are spending the week end with Mrs. Mabel Clarke and other relatives in Madoc.

Rawdon

Rawdon — The November meeting of Mount Pleasant - Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society was held at the church on Thursday afternoon with thirteen members and three visitors in attendance.

The service opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Percy Hubble The call to worship, "A Poem from the Monthly" was given by the president followed by the National Anthem, call to prayer, and roll call.

Mrs. John Holmes took charge of the devotional period based on "The Christian Way of Life" as found in the "I, am's of Christ". She pointed out that this way was not easy and that always there were spectators watching the pilgrims to see what they were doing, not what they were saying. She closed her talk with a poem entitled "I'd rather see a sermon." All sang "Life's Railway to Heaven" and Rev. Beckel offered prayer. The treasurer reported the autumn thankoffering was almost thirty-five dollars.

Mrs. Don. Campbell arranged the program and all sang "Forth in Thy Name I go". Mrs. Morris Rose outlined "Couriers of the Cross in China" which gave a vivid description of Miss Minnie Shipley, a pilgrim of the Honan Road who gave her life for China and always tried to prepare others to be leaders in her place.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver sang the responses and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Miss Eileen MacMullen, Mrs. Don. Campbell and Mrs. Frank Jeffs assisted with the presentation. Mrs Rose also told of the work of Rev. W. B. Djang, M. A., B. D., who was instrumental in organizing "The National Christian Service Council for wounded soldiers in Transit."

The offering amounting to fourninety was gathered and dedicated, especially thinking of our Chinese comrades in the world church who in the midst of the suffering of war are faithfully walking the pilgrim way as true followers of Jesus Christ.

Rev. J. E. Beckel conducted the election of officers with Misses Ferne Hubble, Muriel Sine, and Eileen MacMullen as scrutineers.

The 1941 slate is as follows:—

President, Mrs. Percy MacMullen; Honorary President, Mrs. Allan Bailey; 1st Vice President, Mrs Percy Hubble; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Ed. McKeown; Recording secretary, Miss Muriel Sine; Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Frank Smith; Treasurer, Mrs. Ken Weaver; Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. Arthur Phillips; Leader Mission Band, Mrs. Cyrus Summers; Assistant, Miss Eileen MacMullen; Associate Helpers secretary, Mrs. Roy Thrasher; Assistants, Mrs. Blake Sharp and Mrs. Frank Jeffs; Supply secretary, Mrs. Gordon Linn; Assistants, quilts, Mrs. Don Campbell; Boys' clothing, Mrs. George Weaver; Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. Ed. North Lakeside

North Lakeside — Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chase spent the tea hour on Thursday night with Miss Thelma Lloyd of Hillier.

Mr. John Jinks and Mr. Howard Walt returned home on Wednesday from Camel Chute and brought home a fine deer.

Mr. Delbert Bush left this week for thirty days training in Peterboro.

Mrs. Wesley Kizer entertained Group III of the W. A. at her home on Wednesday night of last week.

Mrs. Sherman Chase spent the dinner hour on Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. G. H. French of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kent of Stinson's Block entertained the United Church choir at their home on Thursday evening of last week.

Mr. S. Murphy had the misfortune to break his wrist on Tuesday night, while cranking Mr. John Jink's car.

Mrs. Cecil McConkey and Glen of South Lakeside spent Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elden Walt.

Group II of the Consecon W. A. were entertained at the home of Mrs. Chas. Jinks of Consecon on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The meeting opened by the use of hymn 240 followed by prayer. Two patriotic readings were given by Mrs. F. Hickerson and Mrs. B. Davidson. A business discussion followed. Plans were made for the Bazaar which will be held next week. Mrs. M. Arthur gave the Bible story. Mrs. Lorne Alyea gave a reading. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and her lunch committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chase spent the tea hour on Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Earle Rathbun and family, 2nd of Ameliasburg.

The Consecon United Church choir assisted at Carrying Place United Church on Sunday morning, it being their Anniversary service. Rev. E. M. Cooke of Foxboro, a former pastor, had charge of the service.

Group I held a quilting and pot luck dinner at Mrs. Earle Burris' on Wednesday.

Mrs. O. Vanluven and Mrs. Toland of Consecon were tea hour guests at the Huyck home on Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Chase entertained at the tea hour on Wednesday night. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Elden Walt and Mr. Howard Walt, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Huyck, Mrs. H. Huyck and Mrs. Lela Weeks, also Mr. and Mrs. Warren Chase.

The Consecon Y. P. U. and Hillier Y. P. U. were entertained at the home of Miss Edna Carnrike of Salem on Monday night. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Warren Chase, Christian Culture Convener. The worship service opened by a "Call to Worship" and hymn no. 240. Scripture lesson was read by Mr. Arthur Weir followed with prayer. The topic "Let us enjoy the Bible" was given by Mrs. W. Chase. Miss Doris Kizer gave a reading, "Roadmaps of Life"; Mrs. C. L. Gifford gave a poem by Wilhemina Stitch. A business discussion followed. Closing hymn No. 123 and Benediction brought the meeting to a close.

A debate "Resolved that a car is of more benefit to man than a wife", was well debated by Rev. C. L. Gifford and Mr. Nelson Peters, upholding the affirmative side and Miss Edna Carnrike and Miss Margaret Taylor the negative side. The judges were: — Miss Lorna Adams of Hillier, Mrs. C. L. Gifford and Mr. E. W. Chase. The decision was given to the negative side. Mr. Dawson Campbell was time-keeper. An "Alphabet Contest" was won by Rev. Gifford and Mr. Delbert Bush. Games were played and a social good time enjoyed by all. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the girls.

PERSONALS

Mr. Herbert Wood of Crookston, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wilson and baby of Foxboro left today for Toronto where they will spend a few days with the latter's sister, Mrs. Lorne Stapley.

The Most Rev. McAdam Harding D.D., of Winnipeg, Archbishop of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, will spend Sunday in Belleville and will deliver the sermon at the 11 o'clock service in the Church of St. Thomas.

Flying Officer Charles Moran is in Ottawa today attending the Knowles-Battison wedding.

Following the presentation of the School play on Thursday and Friday evenings, enjoyable dances were held in the Gym, attended by a large number of the visitors.

Mr. Clayton English of Melrose, accompanied by Mrs. English, sailed for Bermuda from Halifax, on Thursday last on business for his company. Mr. English, expert-representative of the Horton Steel Co., Fort Erie, Ont., spent several months recently at Halifax and vicinity on company projects.

The Trianon Ballroom was the scene of a happy event last evening, the annual dance of the Y's Men's Club. The large number of guests attending danced to music by Bud Haines and his Commodores. Prize dances added to the enjoyment of the evening. Supper was served by the hosts after which dancing continued.

WEDDINGS

WHITEFIELD—CRETNEY

A marriage of interest in Belleville took place on Friday evening at eight o'clock in Runneymede United Church, Toronto, when Hilda Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Cretney, Mountain View, became the bride of Isaac Whitefield, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Whitefield, Toronto. Rev. Murdock MacKinnon officiated.

The bride was charming in navy crepe with matching turban and accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses. She was attended by Miss Laura Dougherty, New Toronto, who wore a dusky rose dress with black hat and accessories and corsage of cornflowers and sweet peas. Mr. Karl Smith, Toronto, was groomsman.

The bride and groom left on a motor trip to Ottawa, the bride donning a seal coat with black accessories for travelling. Upon their return they will reside in Toronto.

PARSONS—PALMER

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parsons, Thursday evening, November 21, when Christina Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Palmer, became the bride of Gunner George Parsons R.C.N.V.R., Halifax.

Previous to the wedding ceremony, Mr. Bruce Parsons, youngest brother of the groom and Mr. Donald Pomeroy played "God Save the King".

Rev. W. J. Walker of St. Andrew's Presyterian Church, performed the ceremony which took place beside a large Union Jack.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marguerite Palmer, while Mr. Harry Parsons, R.C.N.V.R., Halifax, brother of the groom was best man.

During the signing of the register, Mr. Donald Pomeroy played a cornet solo "Because".

The young couple will leave for Kingston and other eastern cities.

St. Julien Chapter Desires Names of Local Boys in Navy

St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., has been busy preparing ditty bags for sailors of the Canadian Navy as Christmas gifts. They have fifty of these ready, containing knitted goods and comforts of all kinds. The members are particularly anxious to have the names, complete addresses and number of all Belleville boys in the Canadian Navy to ensure them receiving these gifts.

Citizens are asked to phone 1475M or 1699 particulars about Belleville boys in the Canadian Navy. This should be done at once, as the parcels must be sent the first of the month.

Full House Greets Second Performance Of B. C. I. Play

With a packed house the annual Collegiate play had its second evening's performance on Friday night. "What a Life" proved as enjoyable to Friday night's audience as to those who had come on Thursday.

Such a splendid response by the citizens to the dramatic work at the collegiate is most gratifying. The attendance this year was particularly appreciated as the proceeds of the play will be devoted to the work of the Red Cross Club under whose auspices it was given.

Ash Blondes Should Shun The Dye Pot

This famous model dresses her hair most becomingly

By HELEN FOLLETT

NO ASH blonde who ever lived was pleased with the color of her hair, she feels it isn't flesh, fowl or good red herring. Silly. Locks of that type often carry lovely lights and shadows. As a rule they are soft and silky. The complexion is fine and delicate.

What the ash blonde wants is more gold atop her pate. She dallies with the idea of mixing up with the peroxide bottle. Well, an occasional brightening rinse won't do a bit of harm. The trouble comes when peroxide is used to excess; the hair shafts are weakened and there's nothing to do but to have patience until a new growth appears. In the meantime there's a color riot on the scalp.

No Sackcloth

The ash blonde can wear black with success; it is her best color, especially if frock or hat is brightened with jade green or vivid blue. Burgundies look well on her, rust shades give richness to her fair complexion. Beige, tan and cream are not her beauty dish; she should avoid them.

If rouge is used it should be a soft shade that will not offer too great a contrast to her skin. If she has blue-green eyes she will have to soft pedal on lipstick, avoiding true reds and selecting a safe raspberry tint. Her powder should be slightly darker than her complexion.

It is not an unusual occurance for an indignant woman to march into a beauty shop, declare that her permanent wave is a failure. The boss takes a survey, known at once what is the matter. She gives the outraged customer a shampoo and the frizz shows up strong and sturdy. The lady has washed her hair, half-rinsed it, soap scum has remained upon the shafts. If the permanent is to survive, the shampoo must be thorough, every bit of the lather rinsed away.

Cold water showers are no help to the hard-boiled wave. A steaming will send each shaft into a spiral. The permanent, like naturally curly hair, flourishes under moist heat.

Christmas Gift for Mother

"What would Mother like for Christmas?" It's the ever-old and ever-new question that perplexes many families.

Many a devoted family wisely and thoughtfully solves this problem by combining their resources for Mother's present to give her something for the home; something that will make her happy and proud and comfortable, something that will delight her for many years to come.

The gift might be some decorative item she yearns for but would never consider buying for herself, or some item that would bring her deep comfort.

For example, a good-looking and comfortable chaise lounge for her bedroom, or a deep, downy armchair and matching ottoman, to invite her to a needed rest and relaxation in the afternoon. She may be longing for a bedside table, ample in size, with several deep, spacious drawers. A charming dressing-table may make her dream come true.

The chances are that she would be delighted to have a portable radio or radio-phonograph for her own room, so that she could hear programs or records she would like to hear, not the ones the other members of the family insist on hearing.

For her bedroom closet, a decorative as well as practical gift is an ensemble of chintz or moire containers for her dress and coat hangers, shoe trees and shoe pads, "see through" boxes for her hats, a small closet chest for her gloves, handkerchiefs, stockings, and other accessories.

Mother may be pining for a lovely mirror to add brilliance and usefulness to the entrance-hall or for over the mantelpiece or in her bedroom. She may want a floor-lamp or a table lamp. She might welcome a hanging book-shelf or pair of book-shelves to decorate a wallspace in the living-room. A handsome pair of pedestals for pots of gleaming ivy, or the sun-porch or in the breakfast room would be appreciated. Another graceful and useful gift is a nest of tables. And Mother would certainly like a good-looking and firm bridge table and chairs to replace the rickety ones she's now ashamed to show her guests. The card-table might be the kind that tilts up to serve as a fire-screen, also decorative against a wall.

Of course, there's always the longed-for set of china or glassware to add to Mother's delight, convenience and pride. If, like many homemakers, she is an enthusiast for giving buffet parties, don't overlook the world of fascinating items of equipment for these informal parties.

Mother's days would be brightened and her household tasks lightened by the sweet song of a friendly canary, in a simple and good-looking cage. A lyric Christmas present indeed!

COURTESY TIP

When someone inquires how you are, don't be content with answering "fine", or "Very well, thank you." Return the considerate question with "And you?"

Home And School Club Enjoys Travel Talk of Bus Trip

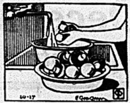
A representative group of mothers and fathers gathered in the auditorium of the King George Public school Wednesday evening for November meeting of the Home and School Association. The meeting was brought to order by the President, Mrs. Greenwood, and opened with the singing of "O Canada".

Highlights of the evening were the Travelogue of a 'bus trip through western United States described by Miss Alice Heasman; and community singing under the direction of Miss Jane Smyth and Mrs. Veley. The enjoyment of the singing led to the suggestion that a Home and School choir be formed.

Mrs. Hagerman's report of the regional conference of Home and School Associations held in Picton on September 27 brought interesting information to the members, and reminded them that Belleville is but one centre in the district where Home and School are endeavouring to work together more effectively through organized effort.

Mr. L. A. Kells spoke briefly concerning the War Savings campaign in the school, pointing out that it was largely educational, showing, as it did, that even small children can do a part in contributing to the sacrifices that the nation must make to win the war. War Savings is of vital importance as a means whereby Canadians may save the future of our nation by being frugal in the present.

Following the singing of God Save the King a social few minutes were spent over cups of coffee in the Teachers' room.



Don't peel mushrooms because more of the flavor is in the skins than in the meaty part. Mushrooms should be well washed before cooking, however.

The Inattentive Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Many parents, even some teachers, believe they can make a child attentive to what he is supposed to learn at home or school by telling him to attend and chastising him when he does not. Parents write me they have received notes from the teacher complaining that the child does not "pay attention at school," and expecting the parent to do something about it. The parent wishing to cooperate with the teacher will plead with this child about his lack of attention or will lecture, scold, or even whip him.

The teacher should know better. She should know that it is her responsibility to make the child attend. It is her responsibility to win his attention. Accordingly she needs to learn to assign and present his lessons in such a way that his attention will be attracted to them. Of course, she can hardly hope to gain his complete attention all the time nor the attention of all the children most of the time. Nevertheless her goal should be to win attention and not to order it by commands or punishment.

Make it Interesting

The child pays attention when what he is supposed to learn is interesting and easy enough for him to learn and seems to him worth learning. Most of all he must feel he can learn what he is supposed to learn if he is to give his best attention to it and work hard at it.

A few children grow inattentive because what is going on is too easy. Some of these children grow into habits, then, of day dreaming. Before they know it things go on which they have missed and they are left behind.

As a rule the child is inattentive because he is not mastering what he is supposed to learn: it is too hard for him. If, for example, he must halt or stumble over every other word or so, or if he must count out most of the simple numbers he adds or subtracts, how can he keep up his interest and work hard? How can he pay strict attention to such tasks? He cannot. So he turns his thoughts to something easier and more fascinating.

The wise teacher sets him to learn only what he can succeed in learning. If, therefore, he is in the fourth grade and can read well only from a primer or first reader she will have him read from materials no harder, letting him stay where he is. Other children, of course, grow inattentive because they don't hear well or see well.

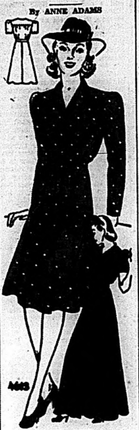
Don't Demand Attention

Please, my fellow teacher and fellow parent, don't tell the child to pay attention. Tell yourself, instead, to find ways to make it practically impossible for him not to attend.

One good way for parents to cultivate habits of attention in the child is to read aloud to him at home and to induce him to read to a child under five or six; also to put into his hands illustrated easy reading matter which will capture his interest. If, as you read to the child his mind wanders, don't rebuke him. Find something to read which is more interesting to him and keep on in this direction till you win.

Housecoat or Shirtwaister

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4613

Here's smart two-timing style in Anne Adams' Pattern 4613! It will carry you right around the clock, with first a trim shirtfrock for a busy working or shopping day; then a becoming housecoat for end-of-the-day relaxing. No side placket is needed, for there's a centre-front fastening that may take the form of a buttoning or the popular fly-front-effect—the latter closing with a concealed zipper or snaps. Aren't the revers well-cut? The bloused bodice lines so softly flattering, are held smooth at the shoulders by all-around yokes. Choose between long or short sleeves and don't forget to add a buttoned pocket for jaunty style. You can buckle or tie the optional belt—either way is smart.

Pattern 4613 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36, dress, takes 4 yards 39 inch fabric.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Send your order to Ontario Intelligencer Pattern Department, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Give Her Boss a Christmas Gift?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Is it necessary that a waitress in a cafe give her boss, who is unmarried and middle-aged, a Christmas gift? I've always exchanged gifts with other employers, but then there was a wife and we were all good friends, and gave each other presents. Would it be all right to accept a little remembrance if he gave it to me? He would be glad to go with me, but I don't care for him and don't want to encourage him.

Undecided

If you don't care about encouraging the attentions of the boss, better not give him anything more than a card at Christmas. The circumstances of your former position were entirely different. You were friendly with the boss' wife, and all of you exchanged gifts. Your present job is different, and from your letter, the attentions of the boss would be unwelcome. Many proprietors give Christmas remembrances to all their employees. If that's customary in this restaurant, it would be ungracious to refuse to accept the gift.

The Girls Act Foolish

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My friend and I are very much impressed and on the brink of falling in love with two girls who go together. When each of us takes his girl to different places, things go along very smoothly. But when we make a foursome of it, and all go out, the girls act foolish.

What should we do? Also, these girls don't care to give up some pleasures to see us on date nights Both of us work. We have two free nights a week, and the girls belong to clubs, meeting on one of these nights, so we're left out in the cold.

S. and H.

Until you find a couple of girls who seem as attractive to you as these two independent lassies, don't you think it would be well to go along with their arrangements? Avoid the foursome, if the girls agree to that. If you were to drop them, you'd probably be punishing yourselves more than you would them.

You can hardly blame them for not giving up their club night. You like them better for this show of independence.

Stay Away Until Next Day

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 26 years old, my husband is 27 and we've been married six years and have a darling baby. I love my husband with all my heart and know he loves me. He is so good to us when he stays home, but as soon as he goes out he drinks and then doesn't come back until the next day. Never tells me where he has been and says it's none of my business. When he sobers up, he is terribly sorry and says it won't happen again and that he loves only me. So I forgive him.

Then in a couple of weeks he does the same thing. He tells me he's going to play pool and will be back in an hour, but it's usually next day. What can I do to make him stop this drinking? I love him and hate to lose him, and I'm afraid I'm going to get fed up with his sprees and will leave for good.

L. F.

It's pretty difficult to get a man, such as you describe, over the habit of drinking, because he doesn't admit his weakness. Doubtless he persuades himself that he is going to play pool when he goes out, and winds up after a twenty-four hour spree, contrite and full of promises.

The majority of alcoholic cures are those where a man admits his weakness and wants to get the better of it. Thousands of such cures have been affected.

Fashion Flashes

GOING OUT to dinner needs a certain type of frock that is right for the bright after-dark spots, yet of sensible length and simple styling. Such a model is a street-length frock in silver or gold tissue lame, the bodice on casual shirtwaist lines, the skirt knife-pleated.

THE YOUNG CROWD just dotes on beanies and insists on wearing them even for smart events. So the shops are showing beanies done in crocheted silver or gold yarn, or in chenille, with big shoulder-length veils on which are big chenille balls.

NICER THAN EVER are the new fur hats, especially the models of flat fur. Available in beaver or mink is a handsome hat with the fur mounted on cherry red or turquoise blue velvet and drawn into two big high swirls on front.

SMART SIMPLICITY always pays dividends, for a frock of this type always looks good. Deep purple crepe is used for a simple dinner dress, the plain hip-length, jumper top with high, rounded neck and short sleeves, is entirely tucked, while the skirt is knife-pleated.

USE COLOR to add and give cheer. With dark dresses and coats, one designer wears a fez of bright geranium red velvet with a cascade of iridescent green coq feathers at the side.

LOOK LONG ENOUGH in the shops and you'll find delightful ornaments meant to do things for a hat, a bag, a dress. Nicest are those flower sprays and butterflies done in iridescent sequins.

SUNSHINE GROUP MEETS

The first monthly meeting of the "Sunshine Group" of Holloway Street Sunday School was held Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Phyllis Twiddy, Moira Street. The meeting was opened with a worship service led by the vice president, Miss Evelyn Anderson, in the absence of the president, Miss Kay Johnson. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary in which she announced the following officers for the year:

Teacher, Mrs. Dilts; President, Miss Kay Johnson; Vice president, Miss Evelyn Anderson; Secretary, Miss Ruby Donnelly; Treasurer, Miss Evelyn Bedell; Missionary Treasurer, Miss Marjorie Hitchon; Program convener, Miss Evelyn Anderson; Social convener, Miss Marion Varley; Press Secretary, Miss Jean Sherry; Pianist, Miss Phyllis Twiddy.

At the close of the business period we were favoured with a very interesting reading by Miss Jean Mathews, followed by a piano solo by Miss Phyllis Twiddy. A social hour was then spent in games and music, after which a dainty lunch was served by Miss Marion Varley and assistants. A vote of thanks was extended to the hostess, Miss Phyllis Twiddy by Miss Evelyn Bedell for the very enjoyable evening. The meeting then closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

STONE CHURCH Y. P. U.

The Stone Church Y. P. U. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs Hugh Gray, on Nov. 14, with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by hymn 523. The president led in a Call to Worship followed by the Scripture read by Mrs. Gordon Woods and prayer was offered.

During the business part of the meeting the Young People thanked Mr. Scott for caring for the church lawn and flowers. An invitation to the Young People's Banquet to be held at Cannifton was read.

The topic "Christian Culture" was given by Rev. L. W. Scott. The meeting was closed by the Mizpah benediction followed by a social half hour.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, November 23

Much satisfaction may be felt on this day, coming as a reward of merit for worthy and earnest past performances. These may come under the notice of employers, superiors, or those of prestige and standing, who may be in responsive mood to demonstrate appreciation or to show other tokens of esteem or preferment. Put yourself in touch with such possibilities and advancement, influential friendships, and personal popularity should come your way.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of progress and promotion, with many ambitions enjoying happy fulfillment. Particularly if such aims have been backed up by earnest efforts, fidelity, hard work and sound propositions. Those in power and authority are amenable to constructive and practical avenues for their investment or other demonstrations of co-operation and friendly interest. This may find reactions in pleasant personal relations, so put yourself in touch with the powers that be in confidence and hope.

A child born on this day has much versatility and constructive ability, which is sure to attract the notice and friendly support of influential personages. It will have a useful and happy life.

Presentation

On Wednesday evening, November 13th., the friends and neighbours gathered at the home of William O'Sullivan to bid him "Farewell" and also to spend a pleasant evening with him previous to his departure for his new home.

Everyone present enjoyed the evening, and after presenting Mr. O'Sullivan with a beautiful chair, a foot stool and a smoker, lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, the music being furnished by Harry McWilliams and Jimmy Walsh.

The address was signed on behalf of Fifth Concession, Franklin Casey, Bartley Walsh.

Mr. O'Sullivan replied in a few well chosen words and said how grieved he was to be leaving so many good friends and although he did not consider himself worthy of such a gift, he thanked one and all for the same, and invited all to come to see him in Kingston at any time and assured them they would be welcome.

The presentation was brought to a close by all singing "For's He's a Jolly Good Fellow.

SUGAR

It's my observation that the average mother today doesn't take enough care with her baby's diet, and I think that their most common fault is feeding the baby too much sugar. I can recall literally hundreds of cases within my practise in which I found mothers deliberately feeding their children sugar because it seemed to keep them quiet and contented. I know this experience is pretty general because many other doctors both in United States and Canada have told me they have also found this practise to be general.

Of course, sugar is a very necessary part of any baby's diet. By sugar, I mean to include syrups, honey and starches, for the latter, as you are probably aware, are changed into sugar within the body. Children normally get enough of these sweets in their daily menu. Yet it is quite a common thing to find a mother putting a pinch of sugar in the baby's drinking water so he will drink more. Some mothers also put extra sweetening in the baby's food so he will eat more readily.

These pinches of sugar and drops of syrup soon add up to an enormous total. Each by itself seems harmless enough, but the sugar bribes become a practise, it isn't long before the parents are wondering why their child has so much trouble with his stomach, or why he has developed a kidney condition, or why his teeth aren't so good. These upsets are very often traced to an excess of sugar.

The feeding of the Quintuplets proved to me how necessary it is to curb the amount of sugar small children get. Too much sugar in their diets and we were faced with an immediate upset stomach — or I should say stomachs, because as a rule if one Quin gets sick, they all do.

When the Quins were very young, they had extremely delicate skins, so we used to bathe them in olive oil. In spite of this we found that their skins got rough and scaly. I was worried, because I couldn't imagine what was the matter. Then it occurred to me that they might be getting too much sugar. I told the nurses to cut down on whatever sweetening they had been getting, and sure enough in a few days, their skins began to clear up. It took us a couple of weeks to solve this trouble and I tell it now in the hope that it will save some mother a similar experience.

It is easy for a mother to get in the habit of overfeeding sugar to a child. When a baby is crying it will stop if it gets a little sweetened water. So the mother gives sugar to it and it isn't very long before the baby learns that all it has to do is raise a howl and it will get some of this nice sweet water to drink. It doesn't know that it is bad for him, and so it calls for more.

If you have started the habit of feeding your child extra sugar, now would be a good time to break the habit before complications of some sort set in. If you have never fed the baby sugar, but are tempted to, don't do it. The child is much better off without it.

Nervous and Sleepless

When you can't sleep it's from worry that poisons the nerves or anaemia which starves them. In either case digestion is poor, appetite fickle and the blood is lacking in vitamin B_1 and the mineral substances from which nerve force is produced.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies these essential ingredients, in condensed and easily assimilated form, so as to help quickly to restore the blood and nerves to health and vigor.

Test this new Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, with vitamin B_1 added, and see for yourself how soon you will be sleeping better, digesting your food more thoroughly, and enjoying full, healthful living.

You don't worry and toss sleeplessly at night when the blood and nerves are in healthy condition.

Sleeve Interest Accented

By ALICE ALDEN

SLEEVES are shuddering a lot of fashion interest this season. The long tight sleeve is used to lend interest to some of the most important dinner and evening frocks. And for afternoon we see frocks that wear their heart on their sleeve on the form of beautiful embroideries or jeweled ornaments. The dress shown here, nice for afternoon, is of dull surfaced black crepe, topped with a bolero of self fabric. But setting off the matt fabric is the brilliant green embroidery used on the full sleeves. Patricia Lane, who wears this frock tops it off with a gold pin with an emerald center. This is the sort of dress that gets around places and adds up plenty of mileage during the season, for it is smart and attractive without being overdone.

No Longer a Mystery About Managing a Home of Your Own

By ALICE DENHOFF

IT'S HAPPENED at long last. Henrietta Ripperger has written a book on the home that belongs in your library as well as on the kitchen shelf. "A Home of Your Own" is the title of this dream-come-true book, a household encyclopedia in one volume, which, though addressed to that darling of the dovecote, the bride, will also interest the mistress of the mansion and the drawing room dowager.

Here's a book that is a guide for the town or country, apartment or house household. It begins with shopping for a place to live and winds up with the advent of the first baby. How to deal with house painters, shop clerks, maids, AND HUSBANDS! It takes the bunk out of budgets and the mystery out of wine service at dinner.

For The Budget

"Food, Drink and Parties," one chapter, begins at breakfast for two, takes the ubiquitous cock-tail party in its stride and guides the novice through the intricacies of a formal dinner party. "All About Money," the financial section of the book, should keep lots of love about the house, since we have been told that love flies out of the window when money troubles enter the door. Many a gal who has been worrying about the cost of having a baby will take comfort and new heart when she reads and digests Mrs. Ripperger's analysis of the financial situation.

Home Wardrobe

The chapter headed "Mistress of the Wardrobe for a Troupe of Two" tells all that a woman need know about keeping clothes and accsories in order and repair. It is crammed with swell advice. Here's Mrs. Ripperger's idea for a home wardrobe workshop: "Equip some corner in your home, no matter how small, for a workshop for clothing repairs. If you cannot spare a small room, remove the lower shelves from a closet, install an ironing board that lets down from the wall, and place an electric sewing machine beside it. (There is a small hand model that will serve the purpose.) Arrange for adequate lighting. A double socket will accommodate a light bulb and equipment plug. Equip the closet with French calk for removing spots, a noninflammable cleaner, a bottle with a sprinkle stopper for water, pins, needles, thread and scissors, and a small comfortable camp chair. Clothes brushes and possibly a hand vacuum are also kept there."

Practical Seer

The author, Henrietta Ripperger, is a regular contributor to such magazines as "Good Housekeeping" and her articles appear frequently in other leading magazines. She learned about the intricacies of the household and bringing up a family, the practical way. As a child she learned to help her mother entertain the visiting celebrities who gravitated to the home of her father, a college president. She has brought up a family and knows the answers to all the questions. She has kept house with and without maids, has lived on a Connecticut farm, in a town apartment, in a suburban house.

Laundering Crochet Wear

You can keep your crocheted neckwear and belts spotless this way: Make a sudsy lather with mild soap and hot water in a large fruit jar, put the soiled articles into it, fill up with warm water and cover. Shake thoroughly for two minutes. Let stand an hour, giving the jar several good shakings during that time. Rinse the articles in warm water, then in cold, and spread them on a turkish towel to dry. Then press them carefully on the wrong sides.

To whip evaporated milk, chill it thoroughly, pour it into a very cold bowl and beat it with a chilled beater. To keep the mixture stiff, fold in a tablespoon of lemon juice for each cup of whipped milk.

That Covered-Up Look

By ALICE ALDEN

THERE'S beauty and intriguing mystery in the covered-up look when bright lines shine and women dazzle. Rosemary Lane is one fashion-wise young woman who understands this fashion truism. Which is why she wears the model shown here. It is of heavy black crepe encrusted with gold sequins and it shows an unusual top. The fabric is draped over the left shoulder where it meets the long tight sleeves and continues down the back where it forms a belt-like drape. The drape may also be worn over the right shoulder, from which point it extends gracefully to the floor. A fashion for the slender!

The Beaver Goes to Town

By ALICE ALDEN

BUSY as a beaver is a saying that means something in the fashion world, for beaver emerges again as one of the important furs of the season. Ever since beaver has been sheared of its long nap, it has emerged from the sports class and taken its place in the dressy section of the dress parade, as ideal for smart daytime wear. Invariably, though, beaver or nutria is handled in a casual manner as is shown in this Harra model. It has huge square pockets, something that this famous fur designer likes to use on sporty coats as well as more formal numbers. Lithe and casual, it has the nearest suggestion of a collar.

Hints For Orderly Bathroom

Soaps, brushes, cleansers, and cloths for cleaning out the bath tub and washbowl, enough clean towels for everyone, and a soiled clothes hamper or bag in the bathroom, help to encourage orderly bathroom habits. But the family should also be made to understand that when several persons share a single bathroom, each one must do his part to keep the room tidy; and that to leave wash bowl unwashed, soiled, damp towels or underwear on the floor, cosmetics or shaving equipment about, and a ring around the tub, shows a lack of refinement and bad manners.

HOUSEHOLD HELP

Here is the way to glaze canned apricots: Pour off the syrup and cook it slowly until it is jelly-like Pour over the apricots, arranged in shallow pan. Cool, spread more of the thickened syrup over the top and smooth off with the broad side of a knife or with a spatula. Glazed apricots add flavor and color to tarts, fancy puddings and salads.

Accent on Home Colors

By ELEANOR ROSS

THERE'S an easy and inexpensive way to do right by a room, to give it verve, rhythm, zip or whatever the current decorator's term is for a successful decor. With the holidays fast approaching, when rooms must look their best, this becomes a problem especially when the budget imposes limitations.

Color Note

It isn't done by mirrors, this doing a room over at comparatively no expense, although mirrors do help. Use pillows, piles of them, to bring color into your home, since color is the most important point in any decorating scheme.

Focal Color

Is there some focal dash of color in your living room, a vase or a richly hued lamp base or picture? Then use pillows to highlight this color splash. Cover them in that beautiful mulberry or purple or coral that enriches the design of your drapes or upholstery, and so give the color added appeal.

Is there a dull or drab sofa, chair or love seat? Then pile it high with colorful cushions and watch it take on a new importance in the scheme of the room.

If there are window seats, then pile them with cushions that pick up or contrast with the window drapes. It's an easy way to transform an indifferent window scheme into a thing of beauty.

Sales Tip

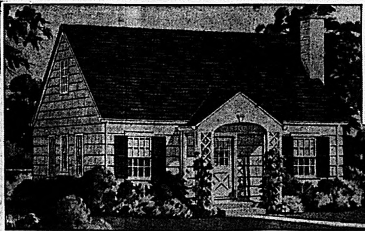
Exquisite pillows are far from inexpensive, but that needn't deter you. Watch the shops for sales, since pillow coverings soil easily and so are usually marked down for clearance each season. Then watch the remnant sales and you are pretty sure to discover lengths just right for cushion covers. With the aid of a machine, you can run them up in jig time. If there aren't any sales in the pillow department, then get covers and fill them with wadding or with cushion filling that can be purchased at a shop that makes bedding.

Caring For Your Silk Hose

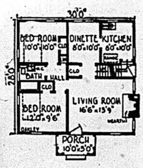
For all types of stockings except cotton or mercerized cotton, the rule is to dissolve mild soap in hot water, then to let enough cold water run into the container to modify the water to lukewarm or body temperature. Immerse the stockings, swish them around gently, rubbing only lightly if rubbing is needed at all. Turn the stockings inside out and repeat the swishing. Squeeze out the moisture without twisting the stockings, and rinse repeatedly in water of the same temperature as the original suds.

Stockings will look much more attractive when dry if they are eased back to shape before drying. The National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers recommends that stockings be dried by putting them flat on a towel. Where this suggestion is not followed, it is advisable to hang them from the reinforced part of the foot.

Suiting Your Living Room to Your Personality



Weathered shingles with white paint trim would be a becoming finish for this home. The living room is unusually large for a small house, and it has a hospitable fireplace. Note position of dinette, well out of sight in a unit with kitchen. The coat closet between living room and dinette could be omitted if one wanted to throw the two together.



Five rooms and a roomy storage attic over all make this cottage a fine choice for the growing family.

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

A MAN'S home may be his castle but a woman's should be the perfect setting for her own personality. This is especially true today with the big boom in home entertaining.

Since even small houses feature large hospitable livingrooms it's smart to concentrate on making that a room that you can "wear" becomingly.

So here are the best personal harmonies for different types: Blondes should lay off vibrant tones which outsmart them, nurturing deep soft tones and dusty pastels. Titians need the deep shades and luminous pastels. Brunettes can have any shade or color and brilliant pastels and bright tones are best for silver heads.

That Sideswept Look

By ALICE ALDEN

THE SIDE draped dress is a success only when it is superlatively done. That is why this sidelight of fashion that came in with such excitement early in August has failed to stay in the picture.

But now and again in the various collections one comes across a side-draped frock that is beautifully and gracefully done, with the whole silhouette conforming to the side-swept line. Here's a beauty worn by Rosemary Lane and designed by Milo Anderson. The skirt of bronze green wool is topped by a long-sleeved blouse of flat surfaced jersey in a lighter shade which has a surplice front and panel which is draped about the hips and falls to the hemline. Dark green tricorn beret with bronzed coq feathers.

Caroline Chatfield — Says Today —

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I can't come to a satisfactory conclusion, so I am appealing to you to help me. My only son is to be married soon and cannot afford to support me in a separate home. His girl doesn't like the location of our apartment so they will live elsewhere. I am not an old woman but have no training for any sort of work and am a dependent upon my son. He says he will not hear of my living anywhere but with him and his wife. Now I have always kept house and run the place I lived in. Nobody knows how I dread this experiment. I know I shall feel in the way. I know I shall make mistakes. But what else can I do but accede to my son's request?

Mrs. S.

Three suggestions: First, with health and strength and some imagination a woman should be able to think up ways and means of making a little money, even if she can't support herself entirely. Now can you not pretend this is a matter of life and death and find some way of earning money, either in your home or outside?

Second: While no bride ever lived preferred to have her mother-in-law live with her, many a young wife has been completely won over by her husband's mother and has blessed the day they came together under a common roof; all depending on the M-I-L's attitude; her tact, diplomacy, sweetness and non-interference. If son's wife loves you and enjoys having you, you will be blissfully happy in your new home.

Third: If there's no way around the ordeal, begin now to prepare yourself to meet it. Memorize a few basic lessons that everybody has heard, but few know well enough to practice. Never forget that you are a guest in another woman's home. This means stay in your room part of each day and go out as often as practical. A wife enjoys having her house to herself occasionally.

Don't offer housekeeping suggestions or criticisms unless asked for them. Give compliments instead. File a standing offer with the daughter to help her in any way you can and tell her you will let her say when, what, how, where. Don't become embroiled in any difference, disagreement or difficulty of the young pair. If you have to throw a sympathetic glance, throw it to the wife. Let her feel that you have taken her to your heart and she will take you to hers. Let her understand that you have turned over your boy and she will not fight with you for possession of him.

Don't think it necessary to chaperone them when they have company. Age fifty cramps the style of age thirty. Nothing frets a young-in-law like having an old in-law sit on her visitors, attend all her parties and keep tab on all her associations with friends.

Hard words, these, but if you will hide them in your heart and act upon them, they will save you many a heartache. Make your own life. Don't leach on the young folks. You may have to share their roof but you don't have to invade their privacy. They may have to support you but you need not be a burden.

Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

I made one big mistake in my married life and it seems I will never quit paying for it, I agreed to live with my in-laws. We pay board and I stay at home while my husband lopes around as if he didn't have a wife. Any questions about his business and I am told it is his business. Even his mother and sisters disapprove of the way he treats me but they don't tell him so.

My husband has promised me a separate home several times but the other day he bought an automobile and that means another broken promise. With the money he spends for such things and the board we pay, we could easily get along by ourselves.

My family thinks my husband is fine and I have been too loyal to tell them how he treats me. He will never give me the money to visit them and they can't come here to visit me so they will go on thinking my life is ideal, which is far from the truth. If I didn't love my husband I wouldnt suffer so. I just long to be off with him where he would have responsibility of me and the baby, where we would be a happy little family instead of inmates of a big boarding house. Do you suppose he will ever see it my way?

Answer:

Speaking of selfishness, the all-time high is the selfishness of a man who dumps his wife in the lap of his family, pays them to eat, sleep and entertain her while he takes off down the big road to have a big time.

Why should he pay any attention to his wife's begging for a separate home when he has all he wants right where he is? Why should he move out to assume trouble and responsibility when, by staying where he is, he has free time on his hands, loose change in his purse, a car to ride around in, companions to ride with him? He has the ideal set-up for his selfishness which he isn't likely to relinquish except under high pressure.

A wife in the middle of such a mess has one chance in a million to move into the home she aches for; it is to get her husband's parents on her side, coax them to express their disapproval of son's behavior and serve notice on him that he must make his plans to move out. This will require patience, tact, diplomacy of high order, none of which come naturally to a wife who is being treated with outrageous inconsideration by a selfish, headstrong husband.

"Senior Circuit Produces Best Hockey in Years," Says President-Elect R. Clemens

O.H.A. Prexy Makes Prediction as Toronto and Hamilton Play 3-3 Tie in Senior O.H.A.

OSHAWA LOSES

St. Kitts 4, Oshawa 2, as Niagara Falls Wins 2-1 Over London Sextette

President-elect Ross Clemens of the Ontario Hockey Association called the shot when he told the annual meeting of the Association in Toronto today that the Senior "A" circuit is expected to produce "the best hockey we have seen for several years." The fans are getting just that.

Almost any game this season has been a "toss-up and no one team is a heavy favorite to cop the league title, as was the now-defunct Toronto Goodyears last winter. Then too, the teams are becoming more evenly matched as the winter progresses.

Take last night, for instance. There was plenty of action, suspense and speed as Toronto Marlboroughs and Hamilton Dofascos battled to a 3-3 overtime draw in Tigertown; St. Catharines Saints outlasted Oshawa 4-2, and Niagara Falls Brights edged London Streamliners 2-1 with a goal in the final two minutes.

The Hamilton tilt was featured by the brilliant net-minding of Herbie Mortimer for the Toronto Dukes and Jack Eley, formerly of Brandon, Man., for Hamilton. Both stopped plenty of goal-labelled shots.

Tied 2-2 going into overtime, Hamilton shot into the lead when Conick beat Mortimer on a pass from Polly Miocinovich. Three minutes later, Lanky Murray Ezeard tied the count again on a pass from Eddie Shamlock.

Dick Groom and Miocinovich scored the other Hamilton counters, while Taylor and Shamlock were Toronto marksmen. It was Shamlock's best game since he came here from Edmonton at the start of the season.

Hamilton Leads Loop

The draw left Hamilton in the league lead, one point ahead of their traditional enemies—any Toronto team.

At Niagara Falls, Husky Scotty MacPhail shot from 10 feet inside the London blue line with two minutes of play remaining to give the Brights a victory that left them undefeated this season in six games. They've tied two.

London started out strong and scored the only tally of the opening period on a clever sorty by Ilio Marzo, Kowalski and Galbraith. Marzo shot the goal with four seconds of the period to play. Hal Cooper evened the count with the only goal of the second period on assists from Blink Bellinger, who tried out with Toronto Maple Leafs this Fall, and Bobby Walton.

St. Catharines, playing in front of a home crowd, took their third victory of the season with goals in the final frame by Roy Heximer and Art Rombough. George Hastie and Rosy Rossini drew assists on Heximer's tally.

Long Shot Goal

Heximer's goal was on a long shot that Goalie Harry McQueston blocked but which was deflected into the net by Oshawa's Danny Daniels.

Heximer also scored for St. Kitts in the first period and was followed by Puff Carr-Harris for Oshawa and Paul Mundrick for the homesters. Mundrick, a Toronto Goodyear player last winter, came east from Winnipeg. On the only goal of the middle session, Oshawa's Jerry Cooper tied the score at 2-2 on a pass from Carr-Harris, a former Kingston performer who had a try-out this fall with Detroit Red Wings.

The results of the games left Niagara Falls tied for second place with Marlboroughs, each with nine points. St. Kitts and the idle Port Colborne Sailors are tied for third position, three points back. Oshawa have four points and London, in the cellar, have won but one game in seven played.

CANADIENS AND AMERICANS STILL TRAILING N.H.L.

General Shake-ups of Two Cellar-Slot Clubs Fails to Brings Results

RANGERS UNDEFEATED

Maple Leafs Meet Hawks for Two After Winning Five Straight

(By The Canadian Press)

Some of the personnel still are a little strange, but the hockey fandom of Montreal Canadiens and New York Americans will watch their clubs battling for a far-too familiar spot this week-end.

The general shakeup that took place in both of the National hockey league clubs since last season so far has failed to find a relative change in their positions in the standing. It's still the Amerks second to last and the Habitants last, just the order in which they finished last season.

By virtue of one victory and a draw in their six starts, the New York team holds a one-point edge over the Canadiens, who have been able to string together only two ties in their six games. They engage in a home and home series during the week-end, with the Americans playing in Montreal tonight and then both switching over to New York for Sunday night's game. To the loser will go the League's cellar position.

Leafs, Hawks in Two

Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks also play two tough one-night stands as part of the N.H.L.'s six-game weekend schedule. The Black Hawks travel to Toronto for the first game, with the Clubs meeting again in Chicago Sunday.

Two other games complete the schedule, in which no squad is left idle. Boston Bruins play twice, at New York against the Rangers Saturday, and at Detroit against the Red Wings Sunday.

Only Lost One

Riding a five-game victory streak, Toronto will be battling to strengthen their hold on first place in the two-game series with the Black Hawks. The Leafs have not met defeat since they lost the opening game of the season November 2 to the Stanley Cup-holding New York Rangers.

Surprising Red Wings of Detroit, who play only once in the two days, are only a single point behind the Leafs. A double-cross by Toronto plus a Detroit victory could see them shoot into first position.

Rangers, who play only once during the week-end, will be striking to keep their record free of blemishes when they meet up with Boston. The Blue-shirts have won two and tied two of their four starts to hold a third place tie with Chicago.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By the Associated Press)

New York, Lew Jenkins, 131 1-2, Sweetwater, Tex., recognized by California and New York as lightweight champion, knocked out Pete Lello, 134 1-2, Chicago, (2); Leo Rodak, 134 1-2, Chicago, outpointed Julie Kogan, 134 1-4, New Haven, Conn. (8).

Hollywood—Baby Breeze, 138 1-2, Manhattan, Kas., stopped Jackie Wilson, 135 1-2, Los Angeles, (7).

Highland Park, N.J.—Joe "Butch" Lynch, 158, Plainfield, and Maxie Long, 154, Paterson, drew (6).

CUT COARSE FOR THE PIPE

CUT FINE FOR ROLLING YOUR OWN

It's queer, but when I was young I never seemed to have time to enjoy anything. Now I can take everything easy—and smoke all I want. I remember how good a pipe of Old Chum used to taste when I was a young fellow—whenever I found time to snatch a smoke. It tastes still better today. That's the wonderful thing about Old Chum—the longer you smoke it the better you like it. And that's why I say, "There is no other tobacco just like Old Chum."

Belleville Juvenile Puck League is Reorganized

Planning to operate four clubs in a similar manner to that of its inaugural year, the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association organized for the season's ice hockey campaign at the Y.M.C.A. last evening when E. E. (Ted) Schwab was named president.

A complete new slate of officers were voted into executive positions in hopes of raising the status of juvenile hockey to a higher level in Belleville. The following were named as the 1941 officials:

President—E. E. Schwab.

Vice-President — Frank Cunningham.

Sec.-Treasurer—Richard Beare.

Executive Committee—Wm. Dennis, Frank Polwell, Fred Reid, Homer Townsend and Wm. Hughes.

Operate Four Clubs.

Following a successful season on the ice lanes in its inaugural year the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association will operate four clubs arrayed in National Hockey League regalia. The names of the clubs will remain as indicated by the jerseys now the property of the association, namely Americans, Maple Leafs, Les Canadiens and Black Hawks. Efforts to interest three local service clubs—Rotary, Kiwanis and Kinsmen into sponsoring one team each in the promotion of juvenile hockey among the teen aged boys of Belleville will again be brought to the attention of such service clubs, who did much to make the original group the success it enjoyed.

The conventional registration cards will be provided and an invitation to all boys between the ages of 15 and 18 years of age, who are desirous of playing Canada's national game will be announced within the next month. In the meantime the services of four adequate coaches will be sought to teach the boys the elementary points of the game. The public at large will be canvassed in an effort to raise the funds to carry on the work of the association.

Join O.J.H.A.

Through the association, Belleville will again be represented in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association with an all-star team to be selected from the entire personnel of the league, such players to be selected through their efforts while participating in league games throughout the schedule. The association executive will convene next Friday night.

Sports Roundup

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 23 (AP)—Incidental intelligence from the Southern front...... The Sugar Bowl game fans down this way would really like to see in Tennessee vs. Texas Aggies...... Clemson has been kept busy all week denying rumors of rebellion on its squad....... That three-round knockout in Memphis made Pat Comiskey, the New Jersey Irishman, okay with this part of the country as a heavyweight challenger...... Georgia Tech banked $179,286 from football last season and paid out $32,187 for "athletic scholarships."

It seems Chicago's own Pete Lello
Is just another game young fellow.
Lew stood him up, and knocked him down,
And held right on to his lightweight crown.

Baseball Business—Nobody in the National League is excited about that uprising of the Phillies' minority stockholders...... They can't get any worse...... Buffalo Bisons have narrowed the candidates for the managerial vacancy down to seven...... Must have worked day and night to do it...... Word from Boston says Al Powell, retired New Haven, Conn., coal dealer, is the bank roll that's about to buy the Bees.

One-Minute Interview—

Buddy Hassett, Bees: "I hope when I am no longer a big leaguer, I am the first guy to realize it."

JENKINS DOES SOME JARRING; K.O.'S LELLO EARLY

Lew Jenkins (Right) the Sweetwater, Tex., swatter, who defended his lightweight title against Pete Lello in Madison Square Gardens last night, when Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the scrap to save Lello further punishment in the second. Hymie Caplin, Jenkins' manager, was not present to direct his fighter, Caplin being arrested on gambling charges a few hours before the fight.

Jenkins Misses Manager But Not His Opponent

Lew Jenkins K. O's. Pete Lello in Second Round to Defend Crown

Hymie Caplin, Jenkin's Manager, Languishes in Brooklyn Jailhouse

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Nov. 23—(AP)—Give Lew Jenkins a man he can hit and the skinny ex-cavalryman from Sweetwater, Texas, still looks like a great lightweight champion.

In the first defence of his 135-pound title since he stopped Lou Ambers last summer Lew gave Pete Lello of Chicago the works in the Garden last night.

He knocked the Chicago boy down four times with sickening swipes to the jaw and the fourth time Referee Art Donovan didn't bother to count. He gathered the outclassed Lello in his arms to save his life. That was at 2.37 of the second round.

It was the second time in a week that a big Garden crowd failed to see two rounds of fighting in the main event. Al (Bummy) Davis fouled out in approximately the same time against welter champion Fritzie Zivic on the previous Friday. At least, last night's result was clean-cut and stylish. Jenkins looking lean and hungry at 131 3-4 pounds, slapped Lello to the canvas with the first clean punch he landed in the second round. It was a powerful left hook to the chin, and it settled the fight.

Lello, who probably is wondering today what became of the Jenkins he knocked out in Chicago in 1939, managed to get back on his pins at the count of nine. But all he did was run into another barrage of lefts and rights that smacked him down again and again. He was helpless when Donovan finally took pity. Jenkins was not noticeably handicapped by the absence of his manager, Hymie Caplin, who usually shouts advice into Lew's tattered ears between rounds. Caplin was in Brooklyn telling District Attorney William O'Dwyer, what, if anything, he knew about an alleged gambling ring. Hymie subsequently was arrested and charged with grand larceny.

Lew said in the dressing-room: "I missed Hymie but I didn't miss Lello."

Indeed he didn't.

East-West Grid Gossip

Winnipeg, Nov. 23 (CP).—Manager Joe Ryan of Winnipeg Blue Bombers said today that unless the western football champions are advised definitely by Monday morning that the proposed east-west charity game will be played they will disband for the season.

The Sports Service League has been trying to arrange a game between eastern and western champions to be played Dec. 7 in Toronto, planning to use proceeds to buy sports equipment for Canadian troops. Bombers agreed to participate but Ottawa Roughriders, who lost to Winnipeg in the 1939 national final and are favored to win the eastern title again this season, refused to play unless the game is arranged by the Canadian Rugby Union.

The C.R.U. announced yesterday the Union could not approve the game owing to a ruling which prohibited the western champions from playing in a Canadian final because western playing rules differ from the C.R.U. code. Bombers had agreed to play C.R.U. rules in an east-west game.

"If a great opportunity is missed to raise money to supply recreational needs of the troops, we feel that they and the public will place the onus where it belongs and no part of it rests on the shoulders of the Winnipeg Rugby Football Club."

CORNWALL WINS ROUGH STRUGGLE OVER CANADIENS

Royals Win First Time in Four Starts; Beat Verdun 4 to 2

MAUNDRELL STARS

Cornwall, Ont., No. 23 (CP).—The Cornwall Flyers scored their second win of the Quebec Senior Hockey League campaign when they handed Montreal Canadiens a 4-1 trouncing in a bitterly fought game here Friday. A crowd of 2,500 saw the tussle.

It was Cornwall's most impressive effort of the season. They were behind midway through the opening frame but surged to the front with a great display of power to soundly outplay the Montreal team. The result left the league standing unchanged.

The game was a rough one from start to finish, but penalties were few. The only major outbreak came when Roy Dupuis of Cornwall and Les Ramsay of Canadiens tangled in a wild fist fight. The fight did not spread and both players were given majors.

Main cog on a smart Cornwall team was Cliff Maundrell. He scored the first two Cornwall counters and played a brilliant game on the Flyers' defence after George Boll was forced to leave the game in the initial frame. Boll chipped a bone in his shoulder. Other Cornwall snipers were Roy Dupuis and Henry Hayes.

Royals Win 4-2.

Verdun, Que., Nov. 23 (CP).—The Montreal Royals gained their first victory in their last four Quebec Senior Hockey League starts here Friday by handing Verdun Red Devils a 4-2 trouncing in a game which had little effect on the league standing.

By the victory, the Royals moved up into a third-place tie with the Montreal Canadiens and Verdun. Each team has six points, two less than Quebec and five behind Ottawa.

Nineteen penalties were meted out in the game which developed into a wide-open scramble early in the first period.

'PHILLIES' OWNERS IMBUED WITH CIVIC PRIDE

Minority Stockholders Protest at Manner in Which Star Players Sold

NEW MONEY

Philadelphia, Nov. 23 (AP). — A group of minority stockholders, imbued with "civic pride", went forward today with their fight to reorganize the National League's cellar champs, Philadelphia Phillies.

"The time has come when something must be done to make the club a pennant contender," said William H. Harman, vice-president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works and leader of the minority.

A stockholders' meeting is scheduled for Nov. 26, and Harman asserted that "I intend to ask that new capital be brought into the club. Whether by the sale of more stock or by some other method, I don't care. I am very anxious that the club reach a position where it can pay off its debts without having to sell star players.

(The Phils recently sold Kirby Higbe, star pitcher, to Brooklyn, for $100,000 and three players.)

Harman owns sixty of the club's 5,000 shares. The majority is controlled by Gerald Nugent, club president, and his wife.

Nugent, recognized as one of the game's shrewdest baseball player traders, said only: "I've heard rumors that Harman might do something, but I really know nothing about it. I have no other comment to make."

Harman said that "for years I have advocated that something be done, but Gerry exercised his privilege of refusing to sell his stock and the others apparently were content to let things go along as they were. I do not have money of my own, but I have met several wealthy persons who might be interested in putting up the new capital, or perhaps some method of selling stock to the public, like St. Louis Browns, might be the thing."

OTTAWA IRISH UNBEATEN

Ottawa, Nov. 23—(CP)—Ottawa St. Patrick's College swamped Brockville Collegiate and Vocational School 42-0 in a sudden-death game here Friday for the Junior Eastern Ontario Secondary Schools' Association title. Ottawa's win gave them an unbeaten record for the season.

QUICK & ROBERTSON

CLOTHIERS of QUALITY

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

There are a few sport-minded men traversing our main streets yet. They may not be many, but at least they are sincere in their convictions. At least that was the impression we gathered from the attitude taken by a mere handful of representative citizens, who turned out to give a hand at reopening Juvenile hockey in Belleville for the current campaign. Last year a highly successful juvenile loop functioned in Belleville, thanks to a half dozen ardent workers. Seising the need of capable executive heads the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association named E. E. "Ted" Schwab as their president for 1941. Teddie made a success at reviving girls' softball in Belleville and it carried such sufficient self-satisfaction that he signaled his willingness to put his efforts behind the sponsorship of Juvenile hockey and it would appear as though he has a keen and active body of executive men at his disposal. However, the Association still needs the assistance of the sporting fraternity of the city and that help will be sought in the future. Let's hope it isn't found wanting.

District sport fans, especially those interested in hockey, were welcoming back Group Captain Thos. Lawrence, who was named Officer Commanding the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton yesterday. Hockey fans will recall the championship team "Tommy" Lawrence garnered together at the Airport four years ago when he was manager-coach of the squad. Although all of these players, the McNeely twins, Frank Lowery, Dan Cowley, Johnnie Lalonde, Laurie Gibson, Stan Partridge and the rest, have long since left the Trenton Air Base, it is felt that Group Captain Lawrence will not be without a "Flyer" hockey team this season. Without so much as checking the personnel of the Trenton Airport, Group Captain Lawrence contacted "Sandy" Burrows at the O.H.A. convention early today and entered an R.C.A.F. team into the intermediate series. This news will doubtless be received with much satisfaction in Peterboro, as the Petes have been quite concerned regarding a grouping. "Speedy" St. Louis entered his Reliance Aircraft team and with only one club in Kingston it begins to look as though four clubs will compose the district group, now the Air Force is entered.

Not only are the male trundlers at the Recreation Alleys toppling the timber with prowess, but the gals and lassies are also poking the pins around with reckless abandon. "Stub" Barrett's ladies' leagues are setting up some fine individual maple-mopping marks this season. Already Bessie Doolittle has a three-string mark of 672, while Miss T. Cole's single game score of 274 is also tops. The top five scorers in the Recreation ladies' loops are: B. Doolittle 672; E. Butcher 657; Jean Fairbairn 638; T. Cole 626 and E. Kelleher 607.

Do you remember when goalie Norman Smith of Detroit Red Wings retired from hockey two years ago today following a disagreement with Manager Jack Adams. Smith refused to play minor league hockey with Pittsburgh Hornets and went back to his off-season job with a Detroit motor company.

With hopes in their hearts and high in spirits Coach Eddie Schrieder's B.C.I. "scarlet scourge" lit out for Bowmanville early today, where they meet the fast Rubber Town "collegians". Although the local interscholastic gridders enjoy but a scant five point lead to haul into the Bowmanville band-box, that they call a gridiron, Coach Schrieder's squad entertained high hopes of victory and a shot at the C.O.S.S.A. finals next Saturday. "I believe the boys have perfected a good secondary defence against Bowmanville's pass-threat. We worked all week trying to perfect a pass defence to be used against Bowmanville. However, we feel we can beat them soundly on the ground and if we score first, well it'll be all over except the cheering," predicted Coach Schrieder as the "scarlet scourge" rolled out of town today.

Jogging along the sports trail, Edward W. Cochrane, sports editor of the Chicago Herald-American, finds—"When the 1941 baseball contracts are drawn up, there will be a clause inserted governing the possibility of players being drafted. The prediction is that baseball will not be hard hit . . . Sibby Sisti, infielder of the Bees, was born in 1921, which is the same year that Johnny Cooney, the outfielder, joined the team as a pitcher . . . The American League set a record for homers this season, with 883 . . . It might be remarked that Luke Appling had no part in it . . . He hasn't hit a homer for the Hose in three season's."

All night and early today a long caravan of motor cars were seen passing through Belleville thekking Westward Ho. The vehicles were filled with supporters of the Ottawa Rough Riders and enroute to Toronto, where they hope to see their champions ride on to another football triumph. The Rough Riders stopped off in Belleville for a few moments last night and local football fans were told the "Riders" expected the Argonauts to "open up the game and play a reckless passing game in order to haul down the Ottawa eleven point advantage." Bunny Wadsworth may not play and Tony Golab is really not ready to go yet, but regardless we'll string along with the Rough Riders, as they carry too much power in the line and backfield likewise.

SPORT SLANTS — Leo Goyer bagged another counter for the Kingston Lions as Wally Elmer's kids beat Queen's 4-3 last night.... "Speedy" St. Louis' Reliance sextette received another set-back last night losing 7 to 5 to the 3-47th Battery squad...... At least the local pucksters are improving; against Queen's in their initial test the St. Louis-led clan went scoreless...... Last night they whipped in five against the Artillery boys, however, the unfortunate part of the whole picture is the fact the 3-47th speedsters drilled seven past Carl Hewitt........ A goalie is just as good as the defence in front of him, and Hewitt can't be blamed for all seven counters...... Lew Jenkins says he missed Manager Hymie Caplin last night, but not Pete Lello...... Jenkins K.O.'d. Lello as his manager, Caplin languished in jail...... Cornell will try to regain its football prestige against mighty Penn State today, while Stanford is awaiting next week's game with California to be assured of a Rose Bowl spot.

Detroit Recalls Centre Player

Detroit, Nov. 23—(AP)—Detroit Red Wings announced today they would bring Centre Art Herchenratter from Indianapolis to take the place of Kenny Kilrea in Sunday's National Hockey League game against Boston Bruins at Detroit.

Kilrea, who was cut on the foot last night in the Wings' game with Montreal Canadiens, will be out of action for a week or ten days.

SHIPPING LOSSES

(By The Canadian Press)

Wartime restrictions on news of merchant ship sinkings veiled the extent of Nazi sea piracy in the week ended Nov. 22. One small German merchantman, the Helogland of 2,297 tons, and three British ships aggregating some 20,000 tons were reported during the week to have been lost, but in the case of the British vessel it was not clear whether they had been actually sunk during the period or some time before.

Off Mexico the 4,137-ton German freighter Phrygia was scuttled by order of her captain when he mistook United States warships for British.

The 4,791-ton British freighter Cree wirelessed that she was "torpedoed and sinking fast" 500 miles west of Ireland, but there was no further word as to her fate.

The latest summary of the British Admiralty, covering the week Nov. 4-11, showed 71,749 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping was sunk in that period, some 20,000 tons above the weekly average since the war began.

War Financing Subject of Address Before Brotherhood

The Brotherhood of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church heard an interesting address at their regular monthly supper meeting Friday night when Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, who was guest speaker, spoke on war financing. In order to raise the billions of dollars required for munitions and equipment it was the duty of every Canadian citizen to do his share by investing in war bonds, certificates and stamps. "We must not tie up our money in industries that turn out luxuries and non-essentials," warned Mr. MacLaurin because every effort had to be strained to allow labor to concentrate on war work in order to ensure victory. The speaker told of the wonderful way in which the Collegiate Institute and other schools in the district were cooperating with the government in the important work of war financing through their investment in war saving stamps and certificates.

Two splendid violin solos, Toselli's Serenata and Schubert's Serenade were played by Mr. L. G. Lennox accompanied at the piano by Mr. Ray Lennox. The worship period was conducted by Mr. A. E. Haw. Several matters of business were disposed of with Mr. Chas. Franklin president in charge.

2 R.C.A.F. FLIERS DIE IN CRASH

Ottawa, Nov. 23 (CP)—Leading Aircraftman Charles Harold Morgan of St. Catharines and Leading Airchaftman Peter George Mason of London, Ont., were killed Friday when their Royal Canadian Air Force training plane crashed near Hammond, Ont., twenty-two miles east of Ottawa. The Air Ministry said the cause of the plane crash was not immediately known. The Ministry listed Mason's next of kin as his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Mason of 30 Garfield Avenue, London, Ont. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Morgan of 7 Chaplin Avenue, St. Catharines, was given as the next of kin of Morgan.

Morgan was born in Wolseley, Sask., and Mason was a native of Toronto.

Leading Aircraftman Harold (Hal) Morgan, 21, killed in an R.C.A.F. plane crash near Ottawa, was to have been married on Saturday, Nov. 30, to Catharine Jane Shambleau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Fraser Shambleau of St. Catharines.

A former lieutenant in the St. Catharines squadron of the 2-10 Dragoons, Morgan enlisted in the R.C.A.F. a year ago. Friday his brother Rhys, who recently enlisted in the air force, received his uniform and was enthusiastic over prospects of being transferred to the same school as his brother Hal.

One of the most popular members of the younger set in St. Catharines, he was an all-round athlete and a graduate of the collegiate institute. He is survived by his mother; two brothers, Trevor, at home, Rhys, and Miss Helen Morgan, who is in the war nursing service at Toronto. His father was the late Rev. Charles Morgan. Funeral services will be held Monday.

Leading Aircraftman Peter George Mason, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Mason, 30 Garfield Avenue, who was killed with a fellow airman when their training plane crashed near Ottawa, was 19. Mason received his early education here and was a member of the first class to graduate from No. 3 Elementary Flying Training School, near Crumlin, in September. From there he was transferred to No. 2 Service Flying School at Ottawa, where he was awarded his wings.

Besides his parents, Mason is survived by one brother, David, at home.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO.

Moodily North strode back for a final inspection of the oily-smelling shack, and made a mental tally of the rim marks that certain great oil drums had left on the floor.

"Plenty of crude oil—well, let's be going, Bruce." He caught up one of the tarpon rods with which they had camouflaged the investigation.

Three minutes later the Wailua, that speedboat which Kilgour had chartered, was drawing a broad white streak across the bay heading for Kalohi Channel at forty knots.

From the speedboat's forward cockpit North cast a moody look back at the sun-gilded wharf. "Guess the bird's flown for good," he commented. "It puzzles me to know why Karen's crowd started to pull out so early; at nine o'clock Teodora's body had just been found."

"Yes, I thought of that, too. Of course a wireless on Oahu would have done the trick. But I wouldn't worry too much about that just now."

"I'm not. I'm wondering just where Captain Karen moved all that fuel."

Kilgour blinked in the glare from the water. "So am I. Lord, if we only had time we could trace those oil purchases—"

He glanced quickly up into the aching blueness of the sky, for—low over the water and not a mile distant—a black-painted biplane was roaring along.

"I guess Karen pulled out as soon as word got 'round that sister Teodora had been keeping bad company," commented North.

"Bad company?"

"Kanamura, of course." And North elapsed into silence while Kilgour gloomily surveyed the Wailua's American engineer and the hungry-looking half-caste boy who helped with the running of the speedboat.

How paradoxical it was, North mused that on this lovely and peaceful sea the foulest of human emotions were abroad.

Somewhere out to the westward a Japanese cruiser squadron was steaming steadily towards Honolulu and terrible fate. . . .

Suddenly the U.S. agent noticed a black object floating less than a quarter of a mile to the left. Cupping his hands, he faced the stern and ordered the helm put over.

"Hello!" queried Kilgour. "What's up?"

Very soon it appeared that what North had seen was a human body in dark clothes floating far out from the nearest island.

Utterly vanished was the intelligence captain's previous lethargy as he ordered the Wailua's speed checked; soon he deftly caught the unknown's collar with a boat hook and ordered the Wailua into reverse.

The body proved to be quite unrecognizable. On closer inspection it appeared to be that of a Japanese, his head crushed by some terrific force, in such manner that the skin was not broken!

When the body had been hauled aboard, Kilgour stood looking on as North made the usual search.

"No papers at all," the searcher reported. "Queer, he's still warm, couldn't have been dead over fifteen minutes."

"Remember that plane?" Kilgour queried. "He might have fallen out of it. That would account for his battered condition."

North was intent on explanation of an expensive gold wrist watch which had been worn by the dead Japanese.

"Somehow, I don't think that's quite the right explanation," North returned. "See? This watch has stopped at 2:10. It's now 2:20, and that plane must have gone by at least half an hour ago."

"Perhaps," Kilgour pointed out, "it took some time for the water to get into the works."

"That's true—we'll look into that later." North abruptly checked his remarks when he came upon one of those tags, such as tailors sew into custom-made suits, stitched to the inner pocket of the dead man's coat. Printed on the tag were a number of Japanese characters, then in English, "A Noguchi, Kobe." On a dotted line the name "W. Ishi" had been filled in in ink.

"I say, Hugh, he MUST have come from the plane," Kilgour presently insisted. "Don't you see? He MUST HAVE."

"Why so sure?"

"Eyesight, my lad. There's not been a boat anywhere near here, and the late Mr. Ishi certainly couldn't have drifted out from land and still be warm."

"Very true," North agreed briefly, "he couldn't. But, well, I'm going to catch forty winks before we fetch Honolulu—I've an idea we'll have a busy time tonight."

During the remainder of the long trip back to Honolulu, both the intelligence men slumped down in the forward cockpit and seemed to doze off to sleep. . . .

In his doze, North could see nothing save Nadia Stefan's exquisite features; quite effectively the arching brows, the red appeal of lips, and the play of lights in her eyes banished all other thoughts. . . .

W. Ishi had been a man of importance in the Japanese colony of Honolulu. Reporters flocked to the [illegible] dock like flies, and North [illegible] it significant that these newsgatherers were not only from the Chinese and Japanese dailies, but from Honolulu's leading white papers as well. And soon outside the musty-smelling boat shed in which Mr. Ishi's body had been laid out, Hideyo Kanamura appeared upon the scene.

Kanamura did not immediately notice Captain North who had effaced himself behind the capable bulk of a big Hawaiian policeman. The intelligence officer's hand closed over Kilgour's wrist when Kanamura came to a halt beside the dead man. Looking very spruce in his white linen suit, the Japanese peered down at his compatriot a long minute, then drew himself up and joined his heels with a click.

Kanamura's sharply delineated features had suddenly become carved of wood. His hand crept out, almost timidly, and touched the chilled fingers dangling at an impossible angle over the edge of the canvas stretcher.

While Kanamura murmured something in his native language, the four or five other Japanese present turned their heads away and gazed at the door. Then, like a man who determines not to be daunted by a personal loss, the ship chandler faced the police inspector.

"Who found him, please? When, where, and how?"

The police inspector indicated North and Kilgour. "It was these gentlemen, Mr. Kanamura. They found the body floating off the island of Maui, about three hours ago."

A deadly glitter shone in Kanamura's bright black eyes as he declared, "You! So it was you?"

"Yes," the intelligence captain said, calmly ignoring the deeper implication of the question. "We were sorry it was too late to do anything for him."

Inscrutable, yet unspeakably menacing, was the look Kanamura shot at the white-clad American; two or three of the Japanese in the background murmured among themselves.

"I am sure," the ship chandler went on in a choked and quivering voice, "that you did everything you could."

His double meaning was so obvious that the English agent said, "Please be reasonable; he was like that when we found him — quite dead, you know."

"Well, gents, guess that'll be all for now," the police inspector announced after shutting his notebook with a snap. "May have to call you for an inquest."

"We'll be glad to do anything we can," North assured him. Ignoring Kanamura's baleful glare, he stalked out of the shed, hailed a cab, and drove off with Kilgour who asked, "I say, Hugh, where are we heading?"

"To a watchmaker," North replied as the cab threaded its way through milling traffic. "You see, I'm curious to find out exactly how long it takes this watch," he produced Mr. Ishi's square gold wrist watch, "to stop when immersed in water."

Half an hour later the watchmaker had repaired Mr. Ishi's watch. Shortly after that, in the wicker armchairs of North's room, both intelligence men were relaxing momentarily. Finally Kilgour suggested, "Well, Hugh, my lad, I shouldn't wonder but it's time for a summing up, as a barrister would say."

"Sure thing," North agreed with a long sigh. "At last we've got something definite to go on—now we know how Teodora Mazro died."

Bruce Kilgour straightened his body to stare curiously at his companion. "And just how do you think she died?"

"A needle thrust."

"Hum—you found that out at the morgue?"

"The proof, yes; but I guessed it on Abner Polk's float."

"So far so good," the Englishman murmured, "and now will you tell me how the body came to be where it was found?"

"Please think back," North invited. "You recall there was no boat in sight before Teodora's body was found?"

"She might have gone swimming," Kilgour objected.

North made impatient sounds. "Good lord, Bruce, are you going to suggest that someone swam up and drove a needle into her medulla nerve centre?"

"I didn't mean that," snapped the Englishman, coloring a little. "I meant she might have gone swimming with someone who murdered her on the beach, stripped her to prevent identification, and towed her out to sea just as Clark brought her in to the float."

Judiciously, North pursed his lips. "Possibly, but hardly probable."

"I told you that—" Kilgour reminded, "but—what are you going to do now? Are you mad?"

His eyes followed North who had brought forth Mr. Ishi's watch and held it over a glass of water.

"Possibly," North admitted. "But please look at my watch and don't take your eyes from it. When I say 'now,' note the time carefully and again when I say 'stop'."

When the watch showed six o'clock sharp, the intelligence captain signalled "Now!" and swiftly lowered the wrist watch into the tumbler holding the glass up to the light to watch that tiny minute hand ticking around.

"It's slowing," North announced at the end of several tense and apparently endless minutes. "Careful!"

Inside the glass the wrist watch's minute hand faltered—stopped and North called, "Stop!"

"Eight minutes, twenty-two seconds past six o'clock," came Kilgour's prompt announcement.

"Thank you." The intelligence captain fished the watch from its watery position. "Guess our late lamental Jap friend couldn't possibly have fallen from the airplane we saw. That plane went by at least twenty minutes before we even sighted the body; Ishi's watch had only stopped ten minutes before we hauled him into the boat."

"Neat!" was the Englishman's admiring comment. "Uncommonly neat! Point proved!

Egg Prices Lower At End of Week

Toronto, Nov. 23—Early advances that ranged to 4c a dozen were replaced with losses on the fresh egg market here this week when buyers switched from top-grade to lower grade eggs. Some increase in fresh receipts near the week-end helped in the weaker trend. The market closed with grades A large and A medium down one cent on the week in the graded section, and up a like amount in the retail division.

Good demand for lower grade eggs resulted in price improvement ranging to 2 cents a dozen. Storage eggs also moved well on a basis of 29 1-2 cents and 28 1-2 cents for original grades A large and A medium. Further export business was reported with two cars rolling to seaboard for shipment next week.

The butter market gained ground slightly during the week without any undue buying movement. Trading maintained a quiet pace most of the session, outside of last Monday and yesterday and even then it was not heavy. Holders refused to press for sales at any time, merely bidding time for a return of buyers who found it necessary to make commitments. The market remains in a strong basic position, with domestic consumption continuing to hover around an all-time high. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids closed yesterday at 30 1-4c a pound.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 23—(CP) — Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter: First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c, first grade solids, jobbing price, 30 1-2c.

Eggs: Graded shipments in used free cases sold at A-large 45c to 46c; A-medium, 40c to 41c; A-pullets, 37c; A-large, original, 30 1-2c to 31c; B-original 28 1-2c to 29c; C-original 23 1-2c to 24c. Receipts: 780 boxes.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 23 —(CP)— Stocks developed a mildly soft tone in the closing session of the week and trading moved at a sluggish tempo. Only 23,000 shares changed hands in the first hour but some improvement was noted in the second hour with a few Golds displaying rallying tendencies.

Upper Canada was active at 2 cents higher at 1.62 and Howey, Sladen and Coniaurum were firmer while the tone was a bit heavy for Malartic Gold Fields, Kerr-Addison, Central Patricia, Perron and Slave Lake. In the Base Metals, Smelters was a point higher at 42 and narrow losses were posted by Steep Rock, Nickel and Jack Waite.

In the industrial section utilities were weak and other groups showed little change. Consumers Gas weakened 2 points to 157 and losses of a ened 2 points to 157 and losses of a half point came through for B.C. Power "A" and Bell Telephone, Eastern Steel dropped a point and Dominion Bridge was narrowly higher. Papers posted no changes and in the beverage group Canada Malting and Distillers-Seagrams were gainers.

Western oils were steady but for a fractional gain for Davies.

Advice to Hog Raisers

The following is a letter written by Dr. D. J. McLellan, Inspector in charge of Canada Packers Limited, Peterboro, to all truckers who deliver stock to Peterboro. This letter deals with a matter that is most important to all farmers.

"Due to the prevalence of hog cholera in the western part of the province, Canada Packers Limited and the officers of the Health of Animals Branch are asking your cooperation to prevent the spread of this very contagious disease.

"It will be appreciated by you that it is just as much your concern as ours to prevent the spread of cholera. It is true that the western part of the province is the only area affected, but unless we adopt precautionary measures it is going to spread in as much as hogs are coming from the affected areas to Toronto, where trucks from this area are going, and the risk of carrying infection on both your trucks and feet is very grave.

"We would suggest the following precautions be taken:

"(1) Be sure if you go to Toronto stock yards that your truck is thoroughly disinfected. Wipe your boots with disinfectant.

"(2) Keep a disinfectant in your truck and wipe your boots before setting foot on any man's farm.

"(3) When loading hogs at a farmer's barn do not take any straw to bed your truck; the straw may be infected, by the starlings, pigeons and other birds, with the virus of hog cholera.

"(4) Refuse to take hogs that show the slightest sign of illness.

"(5) When you hear of sick hogs in a community, urge the owner to consult a veterinarian at once.

"(6) On arrival at the Peterboro plant facilities will be provided for disinfecting trucks.

"Remember — we are trying to avoid the spread of a very contagious disease, one which would decimate the hogs in this area in a very short time, to the financial detriment of us all."

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of Nov. 22, 1940, are as follows:

Trenton and District

Two-Way Fight Likely For Trenton Mayoralty

Trenton—Prospects of a two-way fight between Mayor O. Alyea and Ex-Mayor Harry R. Cory loom large following the nomination meeting Friday night. The two candidates with possibly a third, Kenneth J. Couch, waged a heavy verbal battle in the Town Hall, jammed to the doors for the occasion.

Wm. A. Fraser, M.P., for Northumberland County, Wm. Ireland, Whip in the Provincial Government and John J. McNab, civil engineer, the other three who were nominated but declined to take part in the mayoralty race.

Mayor O. Alyea making his nomination speech stated that three new industries were located in Trenton during the year. They are the Crosse & Blackwell, Trenton Dyeing and Finishing and Aero-Marine Engines.

"When we took over in 1939, there were 700 persons on relief", stated Mayor Alyea. "This has now been reduced to a total as of November 15, to 33 persons. Of these 14 are sixty years or more of age and all are practically unemployable. This has all been accomplished within the space of one short year".

"Relief saving had meant a cut of three mills on the taxation", he pointed out. "We went out to get these men jobs and our relief office is now an employment bureau instead of a relief office".

"With the co-operation of the Government last spring, the town has insisted that each unemployed man put in a garden", continued the Mayor. "We had a total of 82 gardens planted, at a negligible cost and the vegetables taken from these gardens will assist the workingmen a great deal this winter".

"The tax levy in 1939 was $3.-467,691.00 while in 1940 the tax levy was $3,560,026.00", continued the Mayor. "This shows a rise on our assessed values of $100,000.00 as between 1939 and 1940. As we took over at the end of 1939 we were left with a deficit of $4,376.88 to be accounted for. This year there is no deficit and in addition to having no deficit we have a surplus as of November 15, of $1,150.52 which with all allowances made, should take care of our normal expenditures to the end of the year".

Harry R. Cory pointed out in his address that the decline in relief was not due to the efforts of Mayor O. Alyea but due to the increased industrial activity through the war.

"Mayor Alyea can't claim credit for the Crosse & Blackwell and the Trenton Dyeing and Finishing plant coming here", he stated, "as the arrangements had been made the year before for these two plants. The streets in this town were never in a worse condition than they are at present due to the lack of money allotted to the Street and Sidewalk Committee".

Mr. Cory stated that he had not definitely made up his mind whether he would stand or not, but would do so today.

K. Couch Undecided

Councillor Kenneth Couch stated that he was not sure whether he would stand for Mayor or for Councillor this year. "I expect I will make up my mind tomorrow but so far haven't done so. During the past year I have had the chairmanship of Police, Fire and Market and can truthfully saw that all departments are in exceptionally fine shape."

Councillor Henry LaFleur who is again running for Alderman rapped the Mayor for not allowing him enough money for the fixing of the streets. "I am standing again this year and if you elect me all right and if not I will just go along as any townsman."

Councillor Hugh O'Rourke, Chairman of the Court of Revision, this year, again asked for reelection. "I had a minor chairmanship this year but the reason for that was because the people in the town seemed well satisfied with their taxes."

Councillor R. Whitley hit at the Public Utilities Commission for its policy of charging "higher water rates for the people in Trenton than for the airport. It is time this was changed," he stated. "There are a number of things about the Public Utilities that should be cleaned up."

Charles V. Wilkins, chairman of the Public School Board, thanked the townsmen for returning the board to office by acclamation. "I take it from this that you are agreeable to the way the Board of Education has been run during the past year."

Nineteen prospective councillors were nominated Friday.

STRAIT OF DOVER

Soon after the Germans were dispersed, London's third daylight alert was sounded, and planes and guns were heard in one London area.

It was disclosed today that War Secretary Anthony Eden spent Friday touring the midlands industrial region, including bomb-wrecked Coventry where he inspected anti-aircraft defences.

Brief Day Raids

London's two daylight raids were of brief duration. The first, during the morning rush hour, saw a Nazi squadron cross several London districts before being dispersed by R.A.F. fighter planes. The second alarm came during lunch hour. No bomb damage was reported.

Birmingham members of Parliament moved to "make the strongest possible representations" to Prime Minister Churchill to give midlands defences "immediate and urgent" consideration.

Nazi Guns Shell Dover Area

Nazi long-range guns on the French coast again shelled the Dover area.

An all clear signal shortly after dawn ended a night-long alert for London. There was a flurry of activity soon after dusk last night, when at least two houses were smashed by bombs, but comparative quiet reigned after that.

R.A.F. bombers were reported active, meanwhile, attacking objectives in Germany. The British did not disclose their targets.

Referring to the German attack on a west midlands town, the Press Association listed a church, a hospital, two convents and dwellings among buildings struck by bombs.

Isolated Nazi attacks were carried out on Merseyside, Liverpool and some cities on the south coast, but casualties in these attacks were few, the communique said.

German Thrust To Hit Iraq Oil Fields Expected

By DREW MIDDLETON

London, Nov. 23 (AP)—Britain's military leaders, striving to anticipate the axis' next stroke, are trying to piece together its probable outlines.

A military expert said it could take the form of a grand-scale pincers campaign striking at the Suez Canal and Egypt from two directions, in an attempt to end Britain's domination in the eastern Mediterranean and Iraq's oil fields.

This look into the future assumed that the axis would have the friendly neutrality if not the co-operation of Soviet Russia—something that remains to be seen.

Return of German ambassador von Papen to Turkey and Germany's efforts to woo the Bulgarians as active allies were interpreted as diplomatic preparations for a military offensive, the success of which would mean the end of Greece and Turkey as free states and the eventual concentration of almost all the axis forces against Britain.

Spain a Side Issue.

This informant felt the bombing of Britain, gestures of friendship with Spain and feints at the fortress of Gibraltar were side issues in a plan of unparalleled military and political activity.

Here is this informant's idea of what Germany hopes to achieve in her drive to the east, which he said had been maturing since Italy entered the war:

1. While Italy engages the bulk of the Greek army, still weak in modern equipment and aircraft, German troops led by armored divisions will move through Bulgaria into northern Greece, attempting to occupy Salonika and then Athens.

2. Turkey will be asked by von Papen to allow German and Italian troops to proceed through her territory to Syria and Palestine. Germany's demand will be backed by Russian pressure going as far as a threat of war.

3. Marshal Graziani of Italy will attempt to advance against Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell's army in Egypt from Libya in North Africa, simultaneously with the first contact between the axis and British troops in Palestine. The Italian general's main stroke will be toward Cairo and Alexandria, his secondary attack toward Khartum on the upper Nile River in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, seeking to cut the Nile and intercept possible British reinforcements from South Africa.

4. Great Britain probably will send a large part of her outnumbered army into Palestine to protect the Suez Canal and halt the Axis flanking movement toward the oil fields of Iraq.

Any move would have to be met west of Matruh on the north coast of Egypt.

There are numerous signs, this informant said, that the military part of some such campaign is about to begin. He argued further Hungary's alliance with the Axis is "bait" for Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. Bulgaria's masses lean toward Moscow, and the informant asserted his belief that Russia and Germany may be working together.

Turkey Biggest Obstacle

Yugoslavia is under financial and industrial obligations to Italy.

Turkey, the only strong military power between Germany and Palestine, is the biggest Axis obstacle.

Foreign Office officials say they are satisfied with the position of Turkey, linked to Britain by a mutual aid pact.

Russia's reward for taking part in such a plan would be great. My informant declared Moscow had been offered Athens, a Mediterranean port she has long coveted, a slice of Western Turkey, including the Dardanelles and Istanbul, and Iran.

Such an Axis plan, this informant added, has manifest disadvantages. The Axis would operate over extended lines of communication, across mountains, deserts and rivers, with a constant threat of aerial bombardment by the British Air Force.

Mussolini Tastes The First Bitter Fruit of Defeat

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—With Greek capture of Koritza, Mussolini may be tasting the first bitter fruit of a disaster that could destroy him.

The impact of this defeat upon Italian public morale can as yet only be conjectured. It could have far-reaching effects upon the whole course of the war, of which the Italian-Greek struggle is an offshoot.

It is a reasonable assumption that the wires between Rome and Berlin are hot with urgent Italian pleas for help. Not all the ingenuity of Fascist official communique writers can long conceal from the Italian people the nature and extent of the initial Italian defeat.

From the moment of Italian entry into the war, London advices have been filled with indications that Britain's war leaders saw opportunity in that development. They have counted heavily on Italian public morale as a possible chink in Axis armor.

What began just twenty-five days ago as a trumpeted Italian victory march into Greece, with only Greek "rearguard resistance" to be overcome, is now a virtually complete Italian retreat, almost a rout. Rome's explanation that the Italian operations at Koritza involved only "protective troops" cannot fool Italian readers who recall communiques of three weeks ago. Nor can such readers fail to realize that it is Italy's back, not that of Greece, which may be broken unless Germany comes to the aid of her Axis mate.

Berlin Gets Busy

In a military sense, the fall of Koritza is less serious than a simultaneous Italian retreat of as yet unknown proportions in the Epirus sector.

As a result of that retreat, Italy's primary base of operations in Albania, Argrokastro, is endangered on the sea flank of the 100-mile battle line. Should it also fall or even be closely invested by the advancing Greeks, close-up bases would be available for Greek-British air blasting at all Albanian ports through which Fascist troops and supplies ferried from Italy must pass. That vital sea lane is already under British naval as well as air attack.

In face of the new Italian defeat at Koritza, German pressure to complete an axis-aligned encirclement of Yugoslavia takes on new political and potential military meaning. Berlin is busy drafting Rumania and Bulgaria for service in the German-Italian-Japanese-Hungarian four-way pact, presumably in an effort to avert any possible Yugoslavian swing toward helping her Greek neighbor.

Silence Significant.

The Italians are reported already to have stripped the Albanian-Yugoslavian border of troops to reinforce their front against Greece. In doing so, Rome relied on Berlin to overawe Yugoslavia with the Balkan encirclement move.

Mussolini's flight is so serious that Berlin's silence as to Italo-Greek developments is becoming significant. There are intimations that Nazi diplomacy, despite the object lesson of the Molotoff-Hitler conferences and the absorption of Hungary, has signally failed to impress Turkey. A German march via Bulgaria to Italy's rescue still holds risk of Turkish counter intervention, distasteful to Berlin.

FOUR SILVER CUPS TO BE GIVEN FOR BEST MOTOR DRIVEN, HORSE DRIVEN FLOATS

Four handsome big silver cups will be given away as prizes for the best commercial entry in motor driven and horse driven vehicles entered in the 1940 Belleville Community Santa Claus Parade, it was announced by the Float Committee after their meeting Friday evening, during which arrangements for the parade were advanced stages.

There will be first and second prizes in each classification with a handsome cup up for competition in each class. The motor driven floats must be sponsored by local business houses, while the horse drawn floats may be entered by anyone in the district. Sponsors must have their entries into the hands of the float committee by December 5th., to secure recognition and be eligible for the prizes, so prompt action is necessary. Let's get behind the parade and make this Christmas celebration the best yet.

HYMIE CAPLIN HELD ON CHARGE OF GRAND LARCENY

Arrested on Specific Charge in Connection With 'Friendly Game'

BIG-TIME MANAGER

New York, Nov. 23 (AP).—Hymie Caplin, big-time boxing manager, today found himself enmeshed in what Brooklyn District Attorney William O'Dwyer called "the clean-up of a nation-wide combine of card sharks" responsible for fleecing $2,-000,000 from poker-playing business men in the last ten years.

Caplin was arrested on a charge of grand larceny, specifically in connection with a "friendly game" at a Brooklyn hotel in May, 1938, when a clothing manufacturer dropped $5,-000. Caplin denied the charges.

O'Dwyer's assistant, John Rooney, said Caplin was only one of a large syndicate; that hundreds of victims were taken and re-taken for as much as $150,000 a victim; that thirteen men and women already had been arrested, and that detectives are looking for "a number of others."

Rooney said Caplin had put up money for the combine's "window dressing"—trimmings to create the impression of a gentleman's game.

Rooney said "shills" posed as businessmen bent on a bit of fun and, as such, lured bona fide business men from metropolitan club rooms and resorts to hotel rooms where they were taken with "stacked cards"—for all they were willing to lose.

Also arrested during the night and charged with grand larceny in connection with various gambling losses were Mrs. Jennie Rubin, 49; Abraham Blumenson, 40, and his wife, Gussie, 38. Five others were arrested last week. Four others were convicted and sentenced last February.

Caplin was picked up early yesterday by detectives as he left his home to see his lightweight champion, Lew Jenkins, weigh in for a bout last night in Madison Square Garden with Pete Lello. Jenkins fought—and won by a knockout—while his manager was still undergoing examination by Rooney and O'Dwyer.

Early this morning Caplin was booked.

OBSERVERS

The newspaper Ikdam mentioned that "no one is able to say that Russia would accept easily a German attack on Greece, which would carry German troops toward the Dardanelles. However, the consent of Russia would not signify that Turkey did not mean to defend herself with all her might."

Unofficial Reports

There were unofficial reports in Ankara that the Turkish government already was studying the problem of possible removal of civilians from Istanbul, Turkey's largest and most vulnerable city.

The meeting of the Council of Ministers which preceded issuance of the martial law proclamation last night was reported to have approved a strict gasoline rationing bill and to have considered food rationing possibilities.

WEARY SEARCH

"Zero-zero" visibility caused by an alternating snow and rain storm prevented Royal Canadian Air Force planes operating from a temporary base at East Lake from making an aerial search of the area yesterday. Nine United States army bombers assisting in the hunt were similarly grounded at St. Hubert airport, near Montreal.

Lumberjacks In Hunt.

Some three-score French-Canadian lumberjacks who began a search by land for the missing airmen last Sunday were assisted by approximately 100 R.C.A.F. men in training at Quebec City. They spent the night in the woods to avoid wasting the time required for returning to the base here.

One of the woodsmen taking part in the search, Levi Gagne, said today's snowfall increased the difficulties of finding the men still missing, FO. J. G. Richardson, Flt. Lt. F. Clay and LAC. H. E. Howard.

At the same time, R.C.A.F. officers conducting the hunt said the search area had been narrowed down to a few square miles

Benoit, whose left hand was frost bitten, will be taken by plane to Montreal when the weather clears. He is being cared for in a tiny lumber shack on the shore of East Lake by Maj. L. M. Emard who flew here with medical equipment from Montreal earlier this week.

Johnson, his legs badly swollen, but not frozen, was carried eighteen miles on stretcher, by portage, horse and automobile from the plane where he was found, on the west side of East Lake, to St. Pamphile. Dr. Bruna Cloutier, who is caring for him, said that, aside from his legs, he is "feeling fine".

TRAINING OF

Additional tank officers from British units also have gone to Canada to assist others sent last summer, in the training at Camp Borden.

Have Best Facilities

The Canadians here have the best facilities in Britain to assist them in learning more about tank warfare. Work on the light tanks was the first job they undertook and now they are advancing to the larger cruiser tanks, considered the fastest in the world.

With the foundation of training in tank operation obtained in Canada, they are quick to improve their driving, gunnery and wireless operation. For hours they whirl their tanks over humpy ground, testing and retesting combat manoeuvres and new twists and turns.

One British colonel expressed deep admiration for the men from the Dominion after he had watched them only a few days. "Many of them seem natural soldiers for an armored unit," he said. "I feel we can be very helpful to them right now and eventually I expect they will be giving us some good tips in mechanized fighting."

He added that one important factor was that the Canadian tank men are a rugged, hardy group who can stand up under the physical strain imposed on tank crews.

In a light tank you brace yourself in the Commander's turret, and through a tube shout "Driver, advance," then hang on. The tank spurts, jolts over uneven ground, crashes over an embankment and plunges down a grade. Meantime you rattle around in the turret like a stone in a box.

The War This Week

By DON GILBERT

Canadian Press Cable Editor

Whatever steps Nazi Germany may be planning to bail out Italy from her Greek fiasco, events in the 64th. week of the war made it clear that they are too late to save the junior partner of the Axis from a humiliating thrashing at the hands of the Greek mountain troops.
